at 18 per cent annual interest,

Rick took out a bank loan at 12 per cent annual interest and paid the whole thing off at once.

Rick is just one example of how easily a person can misuse the bank credit cards, Master Charge or Bank Americard and find himself owing large sums of money or being labeled as a bad credit risk.

Bank charge cards, which now can be used to charge up to $300 at registration, are slowly becoming more popular among MSU students.

The credit terms of Master Charge, which is financed locally by the East Lansing State Bank, and of Bank Americard, financed locally by the First National Bank of East Lansing, are virtually the same.

A credit card holder is usually given a $300 monthly limit on items that can be charged and if he pays back the money within 25 days after the billing d a te, there is no extra charge.

Bank officials agree that the best way for anyone to avoid paying the interest on their credit cards is to promptly pay all of their bills at they receive them.

The only way the banks can make any profit from their credit cards is by charging 11/2 per cent monthly interest on any charges that are not paid withing the first 25 days.

A card holder can also obtain an instant cash loan of no less than $50 and no more than $100 from any bank in the country displaying the credit card's emblem. On these loans a finance charge of 11/2 per cent is automatically added on to the person's monthly bill.

Though both credit cards are now available to MSU students without their parents' signature, Master Charge cards appear to be more easily obtained than Bank Americards.

Sam Lovall, loan officer for the East Lansing State Bank, who interviews all applicants for Master Charge, said that he welcomes any MSU student and tries to explain the responsibilities of holding the credit card.

"I figure that any junior or senior has already invested some $4-5,000 in his education and why would they want to ruin their credit rating so early in their lives," Lovall said.

Nixon, Kissinger confer; aide sent to S. Vietnam

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) -President Nixon received Henry Kissinger's report on his Paris negotiations Sunday, and then ordered a trusted aide to fly to Saigon to tell President Nguyen Van Thieu of secret steps toward peace in Vietnam.

The quick trip to South Vietnam by Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., Nixon's chief liason with Thieu, was seen as another sign that a peace agreeement might be near.

But, as Nixon met at his bayside villa with Kissinger and Haig, the White House refused to amplify on Kissinger's statement Saturday before Ziegler said Haig would confer with leaders of three other nations touched by the Indochina conflict - Laos, Cambodia and Thailand.

The presidential spokesman would not say if or when Kissinger would return to Paris, but the phrasing of his reply-"I have no information on Dr. Kissinger's further travels," spurred speculation that Nixon's top foreign policy aide would soon resume negotiations with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho, perhaps as early as midweek. Many Spartan Village and South Complex bus riders are dissatisfied this term with the bus service to their end of campus because of lengthy waits and crowded buses.

"We wait here sometimes for 20 minutes or more," one rider complained, " and then the driver waves by because the bus is too crowded to pick us up."

"It's depressing," another student said, "when we wait so long in the cold for a bus and then it pulls up overloaded, and we're packed like sardines in the door wells."

Another red-cheeked student with chattering teeth remarked, "It's time we did something because it was like this last year, too. We shouldn't have to pay $21 for this."

A informal State News survey indicated that students on the Brody and Circle-Fee routes were not nearly as dissatisfied with their service.

To combat what he believed to be lengthy waits and crowding, one student tried to start a call-in campaign to the bus supervisor to get more buses on the Spartan Village and South Complex route.

Automotive services Supervisor Charles E. Garrison, did report that he had received a slightly higher number of complaint calls, but he was not aware of any call-in campaign. But, he said, starting today, services would be expanded and schedules would be adjusted to accomodate students.

"We are constantly juggling schedules to provide the best service we can, Garrison said, "but we haven't sold enough passes to provide as many buses as we'd like."

Garrison also said he realized students thought winter bus passes were expensive, but at four rides a day, it is only 11 cents per ride, he more students are taking short emphasized.

The number of buses running depends on pass sales and not as many passes were sold as in previous years, he said. This may be because more people have bicycles now, he added.

The service has 15 buses running, three of which are Spartan Village Case-Wilson. On this route buses are supposed to be at a stop every seven and a half minutes and on the Brody and Circle-Fee routes, every three

The buses may be slower because Conplex buses seem nearly always crowded in the winter, Brody and Circle-Fee buses reach peak capacities only a couple times a day, said one driver. Crowding on these buses appears less because more buses run on this route, riders claim.

A national advisory commission, in a wide ranging report Sunday, proposed that the maximum sentences for crimes except murder be no greater than 25 years.

The 22 - member commission, after a year - long study, recommended what it called a model for state and local governments to use in reducing crime and improving criminal justice.

The 750 - page report calls for decreased emphasis on imprisonment as a crime deterrent, speedier trials and grass - roots citizen action programs attacking crime at the neighborhood level.

The findings, prepared by a 100 - member task force, will be reviewed Jan. 23 at the National Conference on Criminal Justice.

Some 25 major defense contractors spent $2.3 million over the past two years on advertising apparently aimed at influencing military procurement decisions, the Council on Economic Priorities said today.

In a 40 - page report called "Advertising to the Military," the nonprofit research organization objected to such ads, contending that the companies should confine themselves to submitting bids and technical information when asked to do so by the Pentagon.

"Perhaps the Pentagon procurement officer who smokes Winstons because they 'taste good like a cigarette should' might also opt for an all - weather aircraft from Grumman in part because it 'wields a wicked wallop," said Leon Reed, the director of the council's study, quoting a Grumman ad slogan.

"What have they got to gain by pleading guilty," Rothblatt said Sunday. "They'll go to jail, they'll waive their constitutional right to appeal and they will serve as many years in prison as the judge orders.'

Rothblatt represents Bernard L. Barker, Eugenio R. Martinez, Fran A. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez, all from Miami and all charged in seven counts with conspiracy, burglary and attempting to bug the offices of the Democratic National Committee in he Watergate complex.

It was understood that the other two defendants, G. Gordon Liddy, 42, and James W. McCord Jr., 53, were standing firm in their determination to go through with the trial. Both men face the additional charge of actually intercepting oral and wire communications, but Liddy alone is not charged with two counts of possessing intercepting devices.

The reports that the Miami four wanted to follow the lead of E. Howard Hunt Jr. in pleading guilty were reinforced Friday afternoon when U.S. District Judge John Sirica abruptly closed his court to press and spectators. Then he conducted a two - hour session alone with the six defendants and their lawyers.

"I don't want anybody to talk to anyone about anything in these proceedings," Judge Sirica warned before closing the court. At the end of the day he called in the jury which has been out of the court more than it has been in and adjourned until today without explanation.

The New York Times on Sunday reported that the four Miamians, all with Cuban and CIA backgrounds, have been regularly paid since their arrest in the Watergate building complex June 17.

Women push for funds from city to aid center

By JANE SEABERRY State News Staff Writer

After months of extended debate and study, the issue of city funding for the Women's Center appears to be approaching an end.

Organizers of the center will have what may be their last chance to defend their need for city funding at a city council meeting 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall.

The center is requesting a budget of $225 per month for the fiscal year 1972-73 to cover rent, utilities, telephones and supplies.

The Center, which has been at its present location, 5471/2 E. Grand Ave. since last March, has been operating through donations and fund-raising projects.

Presently the center lists such services as rape counseling, family planning, pregnancey counseling, abortion counseling, discussion groups and a speakers bureau, which provides speakers for organizations and schools. Other services planned include mother-daughter counseling, a newsletter, an increase in regular office hours and a day

A report of an investigation of the center's activities by the Human Relations Commission was issued earlier this month, and will be used partially in the city council's decision Tuesday. Because the commission was not charged with making a decision on the issue, a minority viewpoint and a majority viewpoint were merely submitted to the city council for review.

Though the majority of the commission has indicated that the Women's Center can serve "a very viable role in helping women to overcome sexual stereotypes," a minority viewpoint does not support the proposed public funding for the Women's Center.

Several commission members have charged that the center advocates sexual discrimination. A report issued by the minority states that they find "no justifiaction for public support for any group which outrightly discriminates vland Pierson, director of the MSU Counseling ter, says more students are taking advantage of nseling services than ever before.

Need help? Try counselors

By LAURA MILLER State News Staff Writer

After Lynn broke up with her boyfriend, she started having severe stomach pains which prevented her from going to classes. At about the same time, her parents pressured her about earning more money for school. She began to get migraine headaches.

On top of all her physical problems, Lynn felt alone, without any friends in the University. She considered quitting school. She finally went to the Counseling Center to talk to someone about her physical and emotional problems.

She went to the center as a walk - in patient and had an interview with a counselor who evaluated her problem. After two weeks, she was assigned a regular counselor who became a friend and guide and encouraged Lynn to stay in school.

In recent years, more students with emotional problems like Lynn's, are going to the Counseling

Pierson, director of the of problems service, said.

"Society, in general, along with the University community, is increasingly more receptive to seeking professional help," he said. 'Sometimes a student will think about coming here for a long time, and then a seemingly small incident, like a break - up with a boyfriend, might send them into the counseling center one day."

Though the counseling service is short - staffed to meet the needs of a large university, students can go to one of six outlets on campus on a walk - in basis. They are given an initial interview evaluation and then assigned a counselor depending on the urgency of the situation.

The six decentralized offices offer a full range of counseling and psychological services from information dispensing to handling very serious emotional disturbances, Pierson said.

A staff of about 35 counselors and 15 interns Center for help, Rowland R. handle essentially two types vocational problems and problems.

More than one half of the students using the counseling center have career planning difficulties the director noted. Some want reassurance and some have extreme difficulty making decisions.

"Of these some have straight, outright career planning problems and no other personal problems," Pierson said. "But a great many students who have difficulty making decisions in this area, have difficulty making many decisions in their personal life."

In most cases, career. academic and personal problems are not unrelated. he emphasized.

As an example, Barb, a senior, continually dropped classes and changed her major to avoid graduating, because she had not found a prospective husband. Her personal problems conflicted so much with the achievement of an academic goal that she sought help from the Counseling Center.

"There are very few personal concerns that don't affect academic and professional goals," Pierson explained. "Many students are able to manage effectively despite difficulties, but for those who can't, the service helps them cope and grow."

Inevitably, he said, the counseling service makes the Recently, counselors have also seen more women expressing dissatisfaction with their roles in interpersonal relationships, Pierson said. This could be an outgrowth of the women's liberation movement, he added.

Students should eye new education unit

Someone once quipped that education is too important to be left to the educators alone. But the joke became reality Dec. 29 when Gov. Milliken created the Commission on Higher Education: Of the 26 members so far appointed to the body, nearly two-thirds come from outside academia.

The commission's task, however, is no joke. Within the areas of goals, government and financing, it must "chart the course for the state's future" in higher education — a mandate that is match ed in broadness and vagueness only by its seeming determination to foster fundamental change. As Staff Director Richard L. Beers recently put it: "If necessary, we'll propose a constitutional amendment, and I fully anticipate we'll do so."

Change

Except for some university administrators, most onlookers agree with Beers at least in the need for change. For the last five years or so, politicians have perceived a growing lack of public confidence in the state's higher education system. State officials think the public has been bewildered by the picayune huffs-and-puffs that have paralyzed governing boards in endless internal quibbles. More dramatically, officials say the public shuddered with disgust at the widely-publicized emergence of campus activism. Valid or not, these gripes have fallen on Milliken's ears, triggering his latest creation.

More meaningful than these public gripes, however, are three specific complaints that have long been voiced by those well-attuned to higher education.

First, a growing number of critics have questioned the role of post-secondary education as manpower developer. Irked by the spectacle of college graduates pumping gas for a living, they wonder if higher education has truly geared its human resources to the state's needs and demands.

Second, critics have spoken of the "opportunity gap" between social, racial and economic classes, and even between age groups.

Competition

Third, critics have pointed out that a "cut-throat competition" exists between various universities rather than a healthy co-operation. "They all want to evolve into graduate research universities," one critic noted cynically. This tendency, critics charge, leads to duplication and given some valid answers on each of these points, but they lack credibility because of what the public may perceive as vested interest in the status quo on the part of the administrators.

On the other hand, the state Board of Education, which has proposed changes, has been hamstringed by the legislature.

The new commission, Milliken hopes, will by-pass both these obstacles. By stacking it with laymen, Milliken hopes for "bold ld new designs" unlikely to be offered by the status quo. By involving the commission more closely with the legislature, Milliken hopes that the ineffectiveness of the state board will not be repeated.

Unique

At this stage of the game, no one has any idea which direction the commission members will head. Whatever their ultimate recommendations, they should keep in mind two fundamentals about higher education. First, as an organization, the university is not run like a business, with a top-down chain of command. Second, as an institution, the university is not comparable to other state institutions since uniquely, the investment into higher education comes not only from the public treasure but also from individual students, who invest both money and themselves for their education.

Because the commission remains at a fledgling state, the State News reserves any praise or criticism for a later date. But education is indeed of monumental importance. The public, and especially students. would do well to closely watch the commission's activities for the next 12 to 18 months.

Nixon expected support

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9- Even after all the bitter criticism of President decision to bomb Hanoi during the Christmas holidays, there is still a fundamental philosophic difference here over both the bombing and the criticism.

The administration is defending its right to bomb the North Vietnamese back to the negotiating table, without consulting the Congress or explaining why the heaviest bombing of the war was used, not for military but for diplomatic purposes.

Just as strongly, Mike Mansfield. the majority leader in the Senate, is challenging this right is public, and though he reported to the President privately the strong resentment in Congress against the unexplained bombing, they did not discuss, let

President and of the Congress and the people at a time of difficut decisions. For example, in a discussion of his philosophy during the presidential compaign on Oct. 21 last year, he said:

"A leader must be willing to take unpopular stands when they are necessary... and when he does find it necessary to take an unpopular stand, he has an obligation to explain it to the people, solicit their support, and win their approval." This, of course, is precisely what the Congress expected on the bombing decision and precisely what the people did not get. And the reason for this may be that, on other occasions, Nixon has taken a quite different position and suggested that the leaders of the country have an obligation to support him when he makes a hard

"It is often said," he observed on Oct. 16, "that when a president makes a hard decision, the so-called opinion leaders of this country can be counted upon to stand beside him regardless of

"Who are the opinion leaders? Well. they are supposed to be the leaders of the media, the great editors and publishers and television commentators and the rest. They are alone resolve, the basic problem of supposed to be the presidents of our universities, and the professors and the rest, those who have the educational background to understand the assumption that the President importance of great decisions and the bomb as he pleases, that the 0 necessity to stand by the President of and the people should support the United States when he makes a take responsibility for prolong terribly difficult, potentially unpopular decision. They are supposed to be some of our top businessmen who also have this kind of background.

"Let me tell you that when that decision was made there was precious little support from any of the so-called opinion leaders of this country who I have just described..."

This comes nearer to the offical attitude now: When the President acts, with or without consultation or explanation, he should be supported, regardless of conflicting judgments or even the dictates of conscience, and those who reject this view of democratic government are somehow regarded a unworthy.

For example, Dean Francis Sayre of the Washington Cathedral, recently presided over a memorial service for former President Harry Truman, which was attended by many leaders from around the world, but not by President Nixon. Secretary of State William Rogers gave a reception for the visitors and all leaders who participated in the service- all, that is, except Dean Sayre, who a few days before had led a peaceful walk to the White House in protest against bombing.

It is this attitude of mind war, and that even preachers wh witness to conscience show rebuked- that is what is at the of the contention in Washi today.

And it is serious and dangerous, for the President apparently feels that he is the inn party and that he is being to between the enemy and a @ interfering with the peace negoti in Paris. And the tragic part of that Nixon still feels that he di provoke the Congress, and evi sees no contradiction between practices and his proch principles.

"Above all," he said philosophic talk last Oct. 21, " the land where an alien pate has no place at all-because we believe in a system that det power from the consent of governed.

"All of my life I have had! the ultimate wisdom of the and in the values of faime respect and compassion that from within the American spin President, I shall never break faith."

Directors accept plan for SN editor selection

The State News Board of Directors Friday approved a and editors a written statement reflecting its rationale in new plan for choosing the editor - in - chief which will give making such a choice. the news staff and editors a greater role in the selection

The plan, formulated by a committee of editors and staff members, provides for a mass meeting of the board of directors, the editors, the news staff and others in the State News organization where the editor - in - chief candidates

Following the interview session, the State News Staff Assn. and the editorial board will caucus separately to discuss and evaluate the candidates.

Later, these two groups will present the board of directors with a written evaluation of each candidate and a numerical tally of votes for the candidates.

According to the plan, the board of directors will then caucus privately to make the final selection of editor - in -

After its selection, the board will provide the news staff

Also included in the new plan are four guidelines which the staff, editors and board of directors are to use as a basis for evaluating the candidates for editor - in - chief. Candidates will be judged by their journalism ability and experience; evaluation of proposed programs for the State News; ability to carry out such programs and leadership the ability to get along with staff, board of directors, general manager and the public.

The plan came as a result of disagreements over last year's editor - in - chief selection.

Several staff members and editors expressed concern last spring that the staff's and editors' evaluation of the candidates was not effectively communicated to the board of directors and that the board of directors failed to put proper value in those evaluations.

The new plan will take effect this term beginning with the petitioning for editor - in - chief in mid February.

Any full time student interested in running for editor - in - chief may turn in a petition to the State News Business Office Feb. 12 - 23.

Each petition should outline the candidate's journalism ability and experience and proposed programs for the newspaper.

The interview session and the final selection will take place in early April and the new editor - in - chief will take Walters said that the current system of having the downtown branch approve all applicants is presently being reviewed in order to have the local branch issue the cards after their personal interviews.

"As it is now, we do all the paperwork and send it downtown for approval. But often times you can tell more about a person just from talking to them than by only reading the form they fill out," Walters said.

"There are only so many buses to go out and then there is nothing more we can do," a driver said.

Another driver joked about the situation, "Come on, kids, pack them in there! We've got to practice this more so that we're ready when it gets really cold and snowy."

So far, the drivers do not believe the situation is unbearable, Garrison said.

Some Spartan Village riders have a different feeling saying they want an express bus that bypasses the halls.

"South Complex students should only be able to ride Case-Wilson buses so that we don't get crowded off our buses," one Spartan Villager said.

But most of the riders on this route agree - they want more buses.

Nixon

1970 that the President has dispatched Haig to consult with the South Vietnamese leader. Haig's last trip was on Dec. 10-13.

Nixon suspended the heavy bombing on Dec. 30, and Kissinger's talks with Le Duc Tho resumed Jan. 8.

Kissinger, like other White House officials, has avoided all reference to substance of last week's more than 30 hours of talks. When he left Paris, he said it was up to Nixon "to decide what next step should be taken to speed a peace of justice and reconsiliation."

If Haig's previous trips are a guide, the emissary will be carrying a private letter from Nixon to Thieu.

But, Ziegler refused to confirm that such a letter had been drafted. He described Haig's journey as part of Nixon's "on-going consultation" with Thieu, who balked at a tentative agreement drafted by Kissinger and Tho in October.

As the latest set of Paris talks concluded, however, South Vietnamese sources said Hanoi had shown "encouraging signs" of yielding on one of Thieu's major demands -for recognition of South Vietnam as a sovereign state separate from North

But in return, the sources said, Hanoi had insisted on equal recognition for the Viet Viet Cong's Revolutionary Provisional Government.

These develpments, as well as a possible compromise on Saigon's demand that all North Vietnamese troops be withdrawn from the South, apparently prompted Nixon to dispatch Haig to confer with Thieu.

The White House said Haig was being accompainied by John Negroponte, a member of the National Security Council staff who has been involved in the Paris talks: and by two military assistants, Lt. Col. Frderick Brown and Maj. George Joulwan.

considered by many to have the potential to take CAA crown this year, must now aim for the Big Ten jonships in March to wrest the title away from MSU.

The contest against Iowa was not decided until the final event, the horizontal bar. MSU had built up an early lead by outscoring Iowa on the side horse 24.6-20.95.

Before the meet, MSU coach George Szypula said, "Iowa's strength lies in their depth." Szypula's statement was proven out as the next three gymnasts for Iowa scored 9.0, 9.15 and 9.0.

The outcome hinged on MSU's performance in the final event. First, Randy Balhorn performed his routine and scored a 9.0. Freshman Glenn Hime then withstood the pressure and also scored a 9.0. Ken Factor, the last man for MSU, needed only a score of 7.85 for the Spartans to upset

Iowa. Factor came through with a score of 7.95 and that side horse from Iowa by a score of 24.6-20.95. was the end for Iowa.

"This victory over Iowa was very pleasing," Szypula said.

"We worked hard all week long preparing for this meet, and it paid off. Iowa is loaded with talent and anytime you can beat them, you've done a good job.

"Right now our main concern is getting ready this week for defending NCAA champ Southern Illinois University."

Paving the way for MSU's upset was the fine performance of junior Don Waybright on the side horse. Considered to be MSU's weak spot, the side horse was the event that enabled MSU to take an early lead against the Hawkeyes. With Waybright's score of 8.85, MSU won the Freshman Jim Tuerk continued to show poise as he captured first place honors in the vault with a score of 9.1.

"Our team has come a long way since fall practice," Szypula said. "All our gymnasts are beginning to show mid-season form, and I expect the Big Ten Championships this year to be a real battle. Even though we beat Iowa, they'll be ready for us at the Big Ten meet.'

Miami proves itself

LOST ANGELES (UPI) - The business-like Miami Dolphins powered their way to their first World Championship Sunday and polished off the first perfect season in NFL history when Bob Griese picked apart the Washington Redskins' celebrated defense for a 14-7 Super Bowl victory.

Before a record Super Bowl crowd of 90,182 in the Los Angeles Coliseum, the Dolphims wrapped up a 17-0 season and helped wipe out the sting of three previous championship game losses by Coach Don Shula by dominating a game that wasn't as close as the score sounded.

Satisfying their handkerchief-waving fans and answering their critics who claimed they didn't play a tough schedule, the Dolphins were in such complete command that they had a shut out until the Redskins scored a freak touchdown on a blocked field goal attempt with 2:07 remaining.

The only real excitement of the game came when the Redskins got the ball back with 1:14 left on their own 30 and needed a touchdown to produce the first sudden death in the seven-year history of the Super Bowl.

But the Dophins' no-name defense, that took away the Redskin running game by stopping Larry Brown throughout the game, sacked Billy Kilmer on fourth down on the 17 with 33 seconds left and the Dolphins then just let the clock run down as the fans mobbed the field.

The Dolphins, who were born in 1966 when the Super Bowl was first played, kept distracting Washington Coach George Allen throughout the game, then took a 14-0 halftime lead and then sat on the lead in the second half as the Dolphin defense did the Safety Jake Scott, who was bothered by a sore shoulder all week, intercepted two of Kilmer's passes and received the car given to the Most Valuable Player.

But Griese, who hadn't started a game since Oct. 15th when he suffered a broken bone in his leg, should at least be given a drive in the auto by Scott as he tossed a 28-yard touchdown pass to Howard Twilley and had a 47-yard touchdown pass to Paul Warfield called back because of a penalty.

Griese, who had taken over at halftime of Miami's victory over Pittsburgh, completed eight of 11 passes for 88 yards and the touchdown.

Jim Kiick scored the other Dolphin touchdown on a one-yard run as he started the game and then alternated at halfback with Mercury Morris. When Brown can't run, the Washington offense is in trouble and he never got going against the Dolphin defense. Brown could get only 72 yards in 22 carries and Charley Harraway was held to 37 yards in 10

The failure of the running game forced Kilmer to the air and he just didn't have the passing day he had against Dallas in the NFC title game as he completed 14 of 28 for 104 yards. He had three passes picked off by the Dolphins and they were run back 95 yards. One of them, by Nick Buoniconti, set up the Dolphins' second touchdown late in the second period and that proved to be the difference.

Spartans can't hang on--Wolves kill winning streak

By GARY KORRECK State News Sports Writer

It took an MSU basketball team 14 years to win seven games in a row and just five minutes for them to lose it Saturday when the U-M Wolverines stopped the Spartan string with a 78-71 victory.

The loss ended the Spartans longest winning streak since 1958-59 and dropped them into a fourth place tie in the conference standings with a 1-1 mark. U-M, now 3-0, shares the lead with Indiana.

The game started out as if the Spartans were playing for the national title. A packed Jenison Fieldhouse of 12,493 rocked in ecstasy as MSU quickly ran to a 6-0

Midway through the period, MSU had a 20-11 bulge before the Wolves reeled off eight straight points. U-M took a brief one-point edge, 23-22, before the Spartans rallied for a 37-35 halftime advantage.

Up until the 13-minute mark of the second period, the game stayed fairly even, with U-M managing a couple of short-lived three-point advantages.

Then, the bottom fell out for Gus Ganakas' cagers. They hit on just 4 of their last 12 shots and Ken Brady, who had done little the entire game, teamed with Henry Wilmore to give U-M a 71-64 lead.

The S p artans pulled to within four, 75-71 with 20 seconds left, but muffed a stolen pass and could do little but watch as U-M's Ernie Johnson canned the game's last three points. Ganakas was naturely disappointed by the loss, but he reminded listerners that the season was still young. "I think we played a fine

Grady Peninger would be among the first to tell you that it's not how, but how many.

Trailing former MSU asst. coach Doug Blubaugh and his Indiana Hoosiers 8-2 after three matches, Peninger's Spartan crew unveiled an arsenal of weapons, won the next seven bouts and blitzed the Hoosiers 30-8.

"Doug was with us for a long time and the kids and I really wanted to go out and get this one," he commented. "He's a friend to all of us, but now he's on the other side of the mat."

The other side of the mat was pretty exuberant during the first three bouts. Randy Miller, behing 1-0 in the third period, scored on a takedown and an escape and held a slim 3-1 margin on John Hobbs with three seconds left. But Hobbs pulled a reversal out of his hat and the match ended in a deadlock, 3-3.

"Randy got a little tired and got careless with him,' Peninger said. "Hobbs just turned it around. Randy shouldn't have lost."

Jim Bissell, pressed into service at 126 due to the injury of Pat Milkovich, also had trouble getting started. The Hoosier's John Angel had Bissell in pinning position twice, but the scrappy, sophomore managed to get untangled. "Being behind is no Angel held on for a 6-1 behind the MSU bench.

Conrad Calander was next in line, and Bill Willetts was ready. The 1971 Big Ten champ at 142 pounds, Willetts was relegated to the 134 slot where he's been tough ever since. Calander found out just how tough. Tied after two periods, Willetts collected three points in the final stanza to make the score 8-2.

As Peninger once again along came Tom Milkovich and along came the fireworks. Milkovich went right to work on Indiana foe Marty Hey, accumulating 13 points but was unable to pin Hey who had already been assessed two 'stalling' penalties. Milkovich pinned him anyway and the team score was tied 8-8.

"Tom is our team leader and he's a great one," Peninger said. "If there's a better collegiate wrestler in the country, I have to see him."

Rick Green then pinned Jerome Stuart with a hook and quarter-nelson at 1:52 of the second period and the Spartans were on their way. A former New York high school champion, Green transferred from Temple University and became elegible this quarter.

Two overflow crowds at Demonstration Hall and a television audience saw MSU's fired-up hockey squad outplay and outshoot Wisconsin and end up with a split of its two-game weekend series, losing Friday, 4-3, but coming back to whip the Badgers 7-5 Saturday.

The split left the Spartans still in possession of first place in the Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. (WCHA) standings, while Wisconsin dropped to third behind Denver.

MSU, now with a 9-2-1 league mark, has 29 points, Denver has 26 after the Pioneers' split with Michigan and the Badgers have accumulated 25 points.

"The difference between the games was that a couple of goals went in for us Saturday that should have gone in Friday night," MSU coach Amo Bessone commented.

In the Spartans' victory, MSU tallied four unanswered goals in the second period to wipe out a 4-3 Badger lead. Brendon Moroney and defenseman Norm Barnes scored 19 seconds apart to give MSU a 5-4 lead and then Mark Calder and Frank DeMarco Alan Dilley paced the Spartans as usual with two individual wins and a third win as part of the medley relay team. Dilley took firsts in the 200 individual medley with a time of 2:00.20 and the 200 backstroke with 1:59.49.

Kip Bennett and Bruce Wright chipped in with a pair of individual wins. Bennett took the 500 freestyle (4:52.10) and the 1,000 freestyle (10:05.40). Bennett's time in the 1,000 was just one second and one-half off the MSU record

Wright, meanwhile, won the 200 freestyle (1:46.16) and the 100 freestyle

The other three first for the Spartans came in the 1-meter diving (Mike Cook), the 50 freestyle (Glen Disosway) and the 200 breaststroke (Ken Holmes).

It was the special effort that carried the Spartans to the victory more than anything else. Finishes like Jim Bradford nipping Wisconsin's Dan Streibel by four-tenths of a second for third place in the 200 freestyle, was a big factor in the Spartan win.

The long awaited rematch between Wisconsin's Murphy Reinschreiber and Ken Winfield in the 200 butterfly was won rather easily by Reinschreiber with a good time of 1:56.07.

With the victory the Spartans moved their dual meet record to 2-1 for the season. Saturday MSU entertains cross-state rival Michigan. The Wolverines, led in the early going by freshman Tom Szuba, are expected to give Indiana a battle for the Big Ten title this season.

Iceboating can be fun - especially at speeds up to 80 mph - according to Tim Gottleber, Frankenmuth junior, shown speeding across Lake Lansing.

SEASON 'NEAR-PERFECT'

Winds, cold cheer iceboaters

The bone-chilling temperatures and winds that followed the heavy rains of a few weeks ago, have created near-perfect conditions for iceboating in the area.

In fact, Chuck White, Lansing senior and first commodore of the MSU Sailing Club, cannot remember a better iceboat season.

Recently, White and Tim Gottlener, Frankenmuth junior and second commodore of the club, took advantage of the excellent sailing conditions and the DN 60 iceboats the club keeps at Lake Lansing.

"It's just about the most exhilarating thing I've ever done," Gottleber exclaimed.

The thrill of riding the wind, six inches above ice smooth as glass, is shared by a growing number of iceboat enthusiasts across the country and the DN 60 boats like the club owns are the smallest, cheapest, safest and most popular of all iceboats. They are 6-feet-long and cost about $600.

They weigh about 100 pounds and are said to be capable of reaching 80 miles per hour under ideal conditions.

begun to dress for iceboating."

six weeks long, beginning early in January. But this year, there were people sailing on Lake Lansing in the middle of December, according to residents at the lake. "This area of Michigan is probably DN stands for the Detroit News, 'one of the best areas of the country which had the boat designed 40 years for iceboating," Gottleber said. "Up north, there is too much snow."

> Gottleber, who is in charge of instruction for the sailing club, said iceboats also provide an excellent way to learn the fundamentals of sailing since the principles are very similar.

"We tried to organize the first Some ice boats are much larger and intercollegiate iceboat competition faster than the DN 60 and like two years age," White said, "but the White also expressed concern a the future of the sailing club is "We don't want to get too big businesslike," he said.

"We had about 50 members last and we bought some new boats equipment," White said. "We also to tape a series of instructional for people who want to learn to but, we try not to forget that purpose of the club is to get toge and have fun."

Lake St. Clair, near Detroit, rep to be one of the finest iceboat on in the world, will host so Europeans and Americans for the Cup DN 60 race, Feb. 9-10. Lansing will also hold an in regatta Feb. 4.

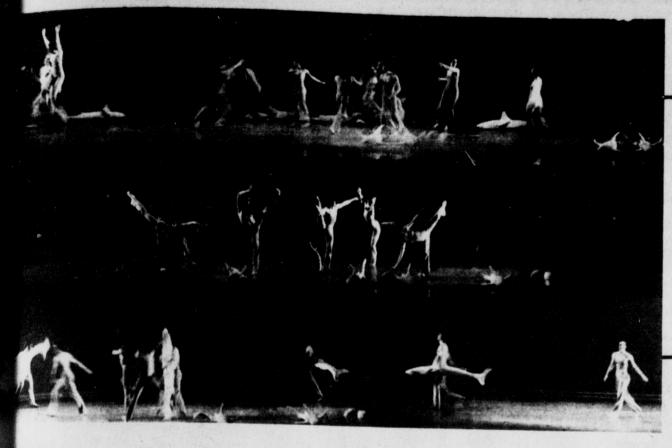

Tim Gottleber, second commodore of the MSU Sailing Club, sets some of the 60 - square - feet of sails on a DN 60 iceboat. The boat was designed 40 years ago for the Detroit News, which at that time published a page on how to build items. Iceboating has grown in popularity over the past few years, although veterans of the sport warn that it's colder than it looks.

Terry, McGhee leave 'em yellin'

By GARY KORRECK State News Reviewer

A brand - new coffee house opened with a pair of old - timers last weekend and the results were edifying.

Bluesmen Sonny Terry and Brownie McGhee filled the opening night bill of Mariah coffee house with a performance which left the McDonel Kiva audience yelling for more.

The 61 - year - old Terry proved once again, he is probably the best in the business on a Marine Band harp. Combined with some subtle guitar work and expressive vocals by McGhee, the pair demonstrated why they are still around after some 30 years together.

A tight program ranging from their own country blues tunes to the whoop holler style in which Terry does his most original harp riffs, was climaxed by a self styled version of the traditional "Rock Island Line," which rates as a classic by two men who have seen "the mighty hard road." The duo spread their talents over a three day run, in addition to sitting in for a Mariah - sponsored workshop on Saturday afternoon.

Clearly, it was a first rate beginning for Mariah a venture which will have much to offer if given adequate support.

The Terry - McGhee program was preceded by the Bluegrass Extension Service, a group with limited stage presence but, great material. They are a new group though and with polish, could enhance any the future. They will appear at Frank 'n Stein Tuesday

Jim Fleming, McDonel graduate adviser and one of the founders of the coffee house, expressed concern over its future and made it known that he was open for suggestions, via a questionnaire.

In coming weeks, Mariah will offer performances by the James Cotton Blues Band and David Bromberg. It also has plans to act on the wishes of patrons, in procuring future talent.

It seems ironic that a place which appears to offer so much for so little, just a buck a head, should have to literally beg for support at its inception.

In a town such as East Lansing, where even the FM radio stations have no imagination, one would think people would desire to hear music with a little more bite than the Reader's Digest fare which usually comes over the airwaves. Turn away crowds Friday and Saturday night are a favorable indication, though.

And Brownie and Sonny put it to "all those who act they are billed with in couldn't be here tonight the sun goin' to shine on their back door some day."

Years of practice have made you the inefficient reader you are today!

Which one are you?

The "skimmer"? Able to read tall books in a single night, while retaining little or nothing?

The "lazy" reader? Rip Van Winkle with a book on his stomach . . . a page and a half, and you're out for the night.

The "word-at-a-time" reader? Capable of reading a single article over a long weekend.

The "I don't remember" reader? You've read 'em all, and remember nothing!

Face it . . . nobody's perfect. In fact, you've probably gone through life reading, without learning how.

There's a big difference between reading dynamically and just reading.

Most people read between 100 and 300 words a a minute, while you are capable of reading and comprehending up to 2,000 or more.

Give us 2½ hours a week for 8 weeks and we'll guarantee to triple your reading efficiency, both speed and comprehension, or refund your tuition in full!

We've already taught over a half million people just like you to read dynamically. So, whether you've a great deal of reading to do or just want to get more enjoyment out of your reading, we can help you achieve your goal.

In other action, Thompson gave a brief report on his recent world-wide trip funded by the Ford Foundation under the auspices of the Midwest Universities Consortium for International Activities.

Thompson was accompanied by Ralph H. Smuckler, Dean of International Studies and Programs. Together they visited various MSU projects and alumini in London, Paris, Turkey, Afghanistan, Pakistan, India, Thailand, Bangladesh, Indonesia, South Korea, Hong Kong, Japan, and the East-West Center in Hawaii.

"This University is well represented by its graduates who are active in both academic and government positions abroad. As we travelled I was extremely proud to be recognized as being associated with three major agencies totaled MSU," Thompson said. Huff commented that though the trips are extremely valuable the selection procedure as to who should go from the board should be changed. Presently board members are chosen on a seniority basis and Huff said that the opportunities to see the activities of MSU abroad should be given to newer trustees.

The trustees also approved a new contract for construction of the ice arena. The original contract was rejected last October when it was discovered that there was an error in the bidding. To meet budget requirements, the plan for the building were scaled down from the original and the seating capacity lowered. The contract was awarded to the Erickson-Lindstrom

Company of Flint, the lowest bidder. Construction is expected to be completed by June, 1974. The trustees also accepted various gifts and grants exceeding $2.5 $1.25 million.

The board also awarded the first John A. Hannah Distinguished Professorship to A.W.A. Brown, senior consultant for the World Health Organization. He will serve as co-director of MSU's Pesticide Research Center with Matthew Zabik, associate professor of entomology.

The board also approved a move to coordinate the central administrative structure for the medical and health science academic programs.

The board replaced the Institute of Biology and Medicine, established in 1961, as part of the Office of the Provost with the position of asst. provost for health programs, as its head.

John Howell, former associate dean of the College of Hum a n Medicine and College of Social Science was named to the post.

Perrin outlined that the objective of the position is to provide a direct staff advisory link for the University's health programs rather than operate as a direct supervisory office.

Wharton said his wide contacts with students, alumni, parents and civic groups around the state gave him a broad base of public concern which he could bring to the Ford board.

"I want to reflect the broader public concerns, which of course include safety, the environment and equal opportunity programs, but you have to find out first what you're dealing with, then try to make changes," he said.

'Wharton said he will resign from four other boards of directors, which he would not specify, so that his total level of outside commitment remains about the

That level of commitment, based on Wharton's own assessment of the demands on his time from outside activities, is "well within" the two days a month University limit on faculty outside consultation, Wharton said.

Ford is the second board of directors which Wharton has joined since becoming MSU president in Juanuary 1970. The first, also approved by the trustees, was the Public Broadcasting Service.

Wharton said he resigned from more than a dozen boards of directors when he became president and submitted a list of all his remaining commitments to the trustees for approval.

That list included positions as a director or trustee of the Rockefeller Foundation, the Museum of Modern Art, the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, the Equitable Life Insurance Society and several others. Wharton said he receives compensation only from the Equitable positon. Wharton said he has had numerous requests over the past three years to serve on various boards, including 10 major corporations. seven federal commissions and 11 educational institutions. The Ford inquiry was one of six in the last six months. Though he turned down most of these requests himself, Wharton said he has discussed some of them with the trustees. To date, however, only the board approval on The Public Broadcast System and Ford have become public knowledge.

Schools to get aid for drug testing

The Nixon administration is total 1,700, already have child's parents and willing to grant federal money for local pilot programs that search for traces of drugs in the urine of grade school and high school students. The first such program tentatively is scheduled to start Feb. 1 at Frederick Douglass Intermediate School in New York's Harlem district. The school teaches grades five through

The Harlem project is the first to be considered for federal funds. Local officials, with Jaffe's help, have asked for $70,000 from the Office of Economic Opportunity. A spokesman said Jaffe vicepresident for University relations, Senger and Levin. Levin said that as soon as the committee has established its guidelines for awarding the funds to individual publications, the committee will publish them in the State

Wharton emphasized that except for the recommendations he offered as to the general makeup of the committee, the central administration would have no involvement in the distribution of funds.
