Nixon sought Dean pledge on testimony, tape reveals

WASHINGTON (AP) — In April 1973, the Watergate scandal was about to open, President Nixon sought urances from John W. Dean III that he uld not be hurt by what Dean was ing prosecutors.

A tape of the conversation, of a eting between Nixon and Dean on April was played Tuesday at the Watergate erup trial as the prosecution finished

Then John J. Wilson, the 73 - year old mey representing Haldeman, began examining Dean, the government's

The prosecution bowed to defense pressure and played the April 16 tape apparently because even at that late date Dean was assuring Nixon: "I think you are still five steps ahead of what will ever emerge publicly."

> "Two to three removed from what?" asked the prosecutor James F. Neal. "From the committee," Dean said.

Mitchell, one of the five defendants in the trial, flushed red at that point. The other defendants are H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Kenneth W. Parkinson and Robert C. Mardian. All five are charged with conspiracy to obstruct

Dean said that near the end of March he hired a criminal lawyer and first met with prosecutors on April 8.

He said he told Haldeman what he had done and received the reply, "John, you ought to think about that because once the toothpaste is out of the tube, it's awfully hard to get it back in."

Dean said that on April 15, 1973, he told Nixon, "I didn't think my having gone to the prosecutors was an act of disloyalty, that the best way for me to handle it was to tell what I know."

The White House said no tape recording of that conversation was made because the recording machine filled up in early afternoon. Nixon that day was told of the full involvement of his aides in the scandal by Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen.

Dean met with Nixon again the following day and the President asked him to sign two versions of a resignation letter to be used if Dean was charged with a crime. Dean refused, saying he wanted to write his own letter and that Haldeman and Ehrlichman should also submit theirs.

In asking for the resignation letters, Nixon told Dean "If we have to use these things - I pray to God we don't - 'cause you guys don't deserve it. You don't

On April 30, Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigned and Dean was fired.

Retail prices rise again; annual hike tops since '47

WASHINGTON (AP) - Inflation surged ahead in September as retail prices rose another 1.2 per cent, the Labor Dept. reported

The increase pushed consumer prices 12.1 per cent higher than a year earlier, the sharpest increase in any 12 - month period since

Retail prices increased across most of the economy last month with food, clothing and mortgage interest rates leading the way. A few items declined, notably gasoline and fresh fruits and

President Ford's economic advisers have predicted that retail prices will continue rising at a rate of about 1 per cent per month through the end of the year, and that there would be no significant easing of inflation until sometime next year. The year already is destined to go down as the worst peacetime inflationary year on record. Retail prices have climbed 9.7 per cent so far this year, surpassing last year's rise of 8.8 per cent, which was the worst since 1947.

The Labor Dept. began the Consumer Price Index in 1913 and government analysts said the current inflationary rate was exceeded only during war time economies. The 1.2 per cent rise in prices last month, adjusted to account for seasonal influences, is equivalent to an annual rate of 14.4 per cent if projected over the full year.

In absolute terms, without seasonal adjustment, prices rose 1.1 per cent in September, compared with 1.3 per cent in August. This lifted the Consumer Price Index to 151.9, meaning that it cost $151.90 to buy a variety of goods and services that cost $100 in the 1967 base period.

Earning rose a little more than prices in September and the purchasing power of the average worker with three dependents edged up one - tenth of 1 per cent, the first increase in three months. However, purchasing power was still 5.2 per cent below a

The government said food prices rose 1.9 per cent in September, the sharpest increase since February. Nonfood commodities increased 1 per cent, the smallest rise in nine months, but still a substantial jump. The cost of services, including rents, utilities and medical fees, rose 1.1 per cent, the same as in July and August.

Grocery prices, which usually decline in September, were up 1.5 per cent last month with everything but fruits and vegetables increasing in cost. Dairy products, which had been declining, posted their first increase in four months.

Grad student seeks to sail Chinese junk

By STEVE ORR State News Staff Writer

This is a story with two main characters: a Chinese junk named Ho Choi (which means "good fortune") and David Bea, a 23 - year - old MSU graduate student. It is set in Lansing, Skokie, Ill., and the high seas the world over. It takes place now and for the next several years, and involves money, nautical adventure and the Chicago World Trade Fair in 1960.

Ever since Beal learned of Ho Choi, a Chinese junk sitting in dry dock in Skokie, he has wanted her. Beal calls Ho Choi "the chance of a lifetime," and sets a simple goal for her: "to go everywhere and anywhere everybody on the boat wants to

Ho Choi, a 43 - foot solid teakwood craft, was built in Hong Kong in 1960 and sailed to America to promote the World Trade Fair in Chicago that year. Even though Beal has not yet bought Ho Choi from her Chicago owner and he needs two or three more investors, he and the two other men who have already promised to invest in Ho Choi have figured out where they want to go.

They plan to sail Ho Choi on the Great Lakes first, to accustom themselves to her; then to plow through the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence Seaway to the Atlantic and make their way to their first major port of call, New York City.

Florida is next on their list, and from there: the world. Beal mentioned the Bahamas, Africa, the canals of southern Europe, the fjords of Norway and the Far East as places he and his copartners now just dream of visiting.

But, Beal claims, getting Ho Choi is no dream. In fact, he says, if they can find two or three men or women to join them, the chance of obtaining Ho Choi are "100 per cent."

"The only thing that's going to keep us from pulling this off," Beal said, "is lack of interest.

Several people have already approached him about joining the venture, but they have all backed off. Beal, who can be reached at 485-1886, said he still badly needs two or three men or women willing to make the initial investment of about $700 needed to buy the boat.

After that, Beal said, more money and work would be required from each co-owner to refinish, refit and revitalize

While having some money to spend and being willing to work may be prerequisites for signing on with Ho Choi, being able to sail is not. That is fortune, because Beal admits that he knows very little about junks. Apparently not many people do. According to an expert of Chinese sailing crafts from the Cresent Sail Yacht Club in Grosse Pointe, there are "just a few" Chinese junks in America. Beal said he knew of no others in the area. That is one thing Beal finds attractive about Ho

"Most people aren't interested in these kinds of boats," Beal said. "It's simply because she's so different that we like her.

"Ho Choi sticks out like a sore thumb." he said. "People go berserk when they see her. They flock all over her, especially around docks, where they're used to seeing nothing but sleek, modern boats.

A sleek, modern craft Ho Choi is not. Styled after time - tested Chinese ocean going cargo ships, Beal described Ho Choi as heavy, hard to sail and handle and slow. However, Beal said, the boat is very seaworthy and dependable in the roughest

Existing plans do not call for Beal and his partners to make things any easier on themselves, either. He said they plan to learn how to steer by the stars and use their sails to dock and undock, leaving new - fangled navigational equipment and the engine for emergencies.

Learning how to sail Ho Choi can only come after some much needed

Beal said the junk "needs work beyond belief." It has to be stripped, refinished and rewired. The engine needs to be completely overhauled and there are rotten planks in the hull that must be

Beal said the co - owners could do almost all of the repair work. One of the current partners, Beal said, is a diesel engine expert, another is knowledgeable in caulking and restoring boats, Beal has some skill in carpentry and Beal's brother is an electrician. He said that professionals would be hired to do some of the crucial hull work.

Beal admitted, though, that all his dreaming and scheming is contingent on just getting ahold of Ho Choi.

"All I know is, this is too ge of a buy to let get away. The hardest rt is just finding the people to go along with it.

U.S. population growth slows

The U.S.-Census Bureau's latest state population estimates released Tuesday showed the nation's growth rate as of last July had slowed to seven - tenths of 1 per cent a year, compared to a 1.1 per cent average annual growth rate for the previous three years since the 1970 census. The preliminary figures pegged total population at 211,390,000.

Southern and western states accounted for virtually all the population growth last year.

Colorado, which had been the fourth fastest growing state with an average annual grwoth rate of 3.9 per cent in the previous three years, dropped off to a 1.1 per cent growth rate.

HRP group pickets State Journal

By JOHN TINGWALL State News Staff Writer

Fifteen Human Rights party candidates and workers picketed the Lansing State Journal offices Tuesday afternoon protesting the newspaper's policy, which they believe ignores minor party candidates.

The pickets, notably without their most eminent party member, HRP gubernatorial candidate Zolton Ferency, began picketing in front of the Journal's main entrance at 3:15 p.m. and dispersed

Toting signs saying, "We demand fair coverage" and "The Journal doesn't want you to know," the pickets chanted "junk the Journal" and paraded around the building. No Journal representative confronted the protesters.

HRP secretary of state candidate, James McClure said the party members were protesting a Journal editorial policy that makes it impossible for Journal reporters to do an effective job.

'The Journal has said that it is 'not about to become a press agent for minor parties," McClure said. "And in an editorial, they said that being ignored is one of the problems a minor party must

McClure said that the Journal, as Lansing's only major daily, has a responsibility to cover all political platforms, but has ignored third - party coverage because of ideological differences between the paper's editorial policy and the HRP platform.

"The only coverage they've given us has been superficial coverage of Ferency's gubernatorial race," McClure said.

Most of the pickets were HRP candidates for local offices, including Howard Jones, candidate for the 6th District congressional seat, and John Fishbeck, candidate for the 26th District state Senate race.

"Every time they do a major story on a candidate, they mention his or her major opponent - the Democrat or Republican and ignore any others," Ed Aho, HRP Lansing area campaign coordinator and MSU student, said.

Aho said several HRP candidates were interviewed by the Journal, but few of their remarks were printed in the newspaper.

Ben Burns, managing editor of the Journal, said the Journal has covered "everything of significance" in area

"This is just their way of getting more publicity," Burns said. "Why should we devote a lot of space to a minor party candidate who hasn't come up with significant issues?"

Calling the picketing a good stunt, Burns said the Human Rights party and other third parties misunderstand the role of the newspaper.

'They think we should disseminate their messages," Burns said. "But they should be able to develop programs so compelling that voters will demand to hear it in the newspaper."

EDITORIALS MSU should approve records access soon

"Know thyself," was the ancient Greek guide to study. But in many cases, MSU students have been the last to know the content of information kept about them by the University.

Recent federal legislation, sponsored by Sen. James L. Buckley, C-R - N.Y., will open students' official files to their scrutiny. This will guarantee that they can become familiar with the information that is given by the school to prospective employers or college admissions offices.

The legislation also raises a lot of problems in interpretation and practice.

Should students be able to see confidentially submitted letters of recommendation? What are the implications to the recommendation process of opening these files to student view?

Some officials argue that candid subjective descriptions of students will be eliminated, which may harm the admissions process and also place applicants more at the mercy of grades and test scores.

In reality, this problem is probably overstated. Presently, be changed by the law. Moreover, the possibility of student scrutiny might force the counselor or professor making the recommendation to be more thoughtful and accurate.

Those without the time or interest to be more thoughtful will probably cease to make recommendations – and their hasty comments will not be missed.

The unfairness of opening files that were accumulated in the past under rules of confidentiality is another potential problem. But it can be solved by returning confidential material to the persons who submitted it. They could then resubmit any items they are willing to have the student see.

In the future, no promise of confidentiality would be made.

Varying interpretations of the law could also produce some problems which must be ironed out. For example, all health and counseling records that are used only inside the treatment center should be handled the same as private physicians' records. Physicians and counselors often need to keep notes private in order to treat patients effectively.

Parent's Confidential Statements, vital to students' scholarship chances, should be open to them, but the parents should be notified of that beforehand. Thus, they would not be forced to divulge their financial status if they wanted it kept private.

MSU and the Office of most recommendations are Education in the Dept. of Health, complimentary, and this would not Education, and Welfare are presently embroiled in these problems, trying to arrive at a set of policies and interpretations which will meet the spirit of the law.

> Such deliberations take time, but prompt answers to the problems are needed to protect the rights of students. MSU should move with all due speed to implement these

Distorted ad damages Lessard's credibility

Cathy Lessard, Republican candidate for 59th District State representative, has damaged her credibility by placing a newspaper advertisement that distorts her opponent's voting record.

In the advertisement, which ran recently in the State Journal, she claimed that Rep. H. Lynn Jondahl, a Democrat, voted against 12 pieces of legislation, all of which she feels would be supported by the district.

While two of the claims are correct, several are blatantly false and the rest are quite misleading.

Jondahl will file a complaint about the ad today with the Michigan Fair Campaign Practices Committee.

The Lessard campaign was negligent in not investigating Jondahl's record more carefully. They would have found statements by Jondahl in the House Journal explaining many of his stands and clearly refuting their claims.

Jondahl is a difficult man to attack. Lessard started off on the correct tack in trying to confront him on issues and not media image.

But she has hurt her campaign and her efforts to be fair and open with the district's voters - by not taking the care to insure that her claims are accurate.

Lesson lies in Ford's 'lies'

"What is truth?" jesting Pilate said and would not stay for an answer."

The question that St. John, and later Lord Bacon, attributed to Pontius Pilate the responsibility - ducking governor of Judaea who found no fault with Jesus but who went along with the job demanding crucifixion - concerns us again in the testimony given to the Congress by President Ford as he explicated his pardon of Richard Nixon.

In the week before he became President, Gerald Ford had to ask himself what was truth, or more accurately, when does a man in public life avoid telling the truth in order to be true to his conscience or true to his vision of the

FOOTBALL TRAFFIC

I cannot let the letter of Barbara Ann Davis concerning Saturday football traffic (State News, Oct. 16) pass without a refutation. Davis finds fault with those who have the audacity to suggest that there might be Saturday activities other than the Sacred Game. The problem is not solely a post - game problem. The problem prevails before, during and after the game. Those of us who live on or near campus have two choices.

1) Find an activity within walking or biking distance or

2) Leave before the game and return after the game traffic clears.

My husband and I elected the second course the day of the Notre Dame game. Unfortunately, we miscalculated our time of return and were caught in the post game stampede. After 45 minutes of trying several unsuccessful approaches to our home on Marigold Avenue, we finally reached it (notwithstanding dirty looks from officers who apparently felt we had no right to turn onto Marigold from Harrison). The problem is not so simple as

Davis thinks. I realize that, on a football afternoon, we cannot expect to go home by the most direct route. The difficulty is getting home by any route at all!

Surely some sort of compromise could be worked out so that those of us who choose not to watch the sorry Spartans can have access to our homes. I do not think we should be forced to order our lives by the football schedule. Karen W. Tyson

Graduate assistant, economics

I generally feel it is a total waste of time to try to fight "The Football Establishment." However, I feel the practice of allowing the campus to be totally taken over by football is out of hand at this University. I understand that football games are probably big moneymakers for the University and that the fans should be made as comfortable as possible. This comfort apparently includes total domination of MSU streets on certain Saturdays, especially at the moment the fans are finished with their enjoyment in Spartan stadium.

Without getting into why I am pissed off at "The Football Establishment," I would like to suggest a compromise solution to the Saturday football traffic. Basically, I suggest keeping certain MSU streets open to "normal" traffic on football Saturdays and to route the football traffic around these "normal routes." I assume this will create some additional inconvenience for football fans; however, it would give the nonfootball students, staff and faculty a chance to get to their respective places on campus on football Saturdays.

Could we have one street open to central areas of the campus all day on football Saturdays and could this information be publicized before the football Saturday? I feel, that MSU can serve both "The Football Establishment" and the academic community if it were to

The facts are not in dispute. On Aug. 1 Gen. Alexander Haig told then - Vice President Ford the contents of the tape that showed Nixon had been a participant in the coverup of Watergate. The new revelations, President Ford testified last week, "ran completely counter to the position that I had taken for months in that I believed the President was not guilty of any impeachable offense."

With that new knowledge of Nixon's guilt, Ford faced appearances in Mississippi and Louisiana on Aug. 3, 4 and 5. What to do? Ford related:

"In the previous eight months I had repeatedly stated my opinion that the President would not be found guilty of any impeachable offense. Any change from my stated views or even refusal to comment further I feared would lead in the press to conclusions that I now wanted to see the President resign to avoid an impeachment vote in the House and probably conviction in the Senate.

"For that reason," the President said, explaining why he had deliberately lied, "I remained firm in my answers to press questions during that trip and repeated my belief in the President's innocence of an impeachable offense.'

That's quite an admission; as a matter of fact, there has never been a presidential admission quite like it before. Before reacting with a knee - jerk "for shame!," let us explore Ford's alternatives at the

He could have contracted "diplomatic illness," pulled the covers over his head and have become incommunicado. This would have been duly - and alarmingly reported, and rumors would have been rife about 'What does Ford know that has caused him to slam his door?'

Or he could have told the truth, an alternative never to be overlooked. But consider the consequences:

Since the information had been given to him in absolute confidence, it would have been immoral for him to have revealed it, much as a reporter feels guilt revealing an off - the - record comment or exposing a source.

More important, if the vice president were suddenly to demand that the President resign, he would forever be branded as a usurper by a sizable segment of the public. Since the vice president always has a vested interest in presidential resignation, ethics require him to hold himself aloof from any influence on that decision.

Most important, the national interest during that momentous week ending the Nixon presidency called for coolheadedness all around. Events were rolling toward the revelation of truth and the necessary response of resignation at the top. An announcement by the man next in line declaring the President to be guilty might have derailed that train prolonged the agony and left the country in paralysis.

And so Ford "remained firm" in his answers, continuing to say publicly what he had previously believed to be true, but what he knew to be false on that last weekend of the Nixon presidency.

Only after the evidence was made public on Aug. 5 did Ford let it be known that he would no longer affirm the President's innocence. By waiting two days - by lying for two days - the president - to - be paid in the coin of his own credibility for an orderly and amicable transfer of power.

In retrospect, a better case can be made for the alternative of having contracted political laryngitis that weekend, but no case at all can be made for being the first to tell the truth when the truth was steadily unfolding.

The public interest sometimes requires a public man to fall silent and tell less than the truth, but rarely if ever requires him to tell an outright lie. That is what we can hope this fascinating episode has taught Ford, but it will be no lesson at all if we insist that he should have blurted out the truth that weekend.

Unlike Pontius Pilate, President Fordis not running away from responsibility for his actions. On the contrary, his willingness to reveal publicly his moral dilemma should cause the rest of us to set aside simplistic reactions — to ask, jesting aside, "What is truth?" — and to stick around for an answer.

BELEAVED

This afternoon I returned to my room to find that a gigantic dust storm, induced by one of the leaf blowers being used by the grounds department, had penetrated my slightly open window.

I don't understand why it was necessary to blow leaves toward the window and building, since the idea is to get them into a central pile near the center of the grass. Further more the man running the blower was then raking the leaves away from the building so he could get to them. My modest but new stereo and the air in my room are now filled with very gritty leaf

As with the helicopters bombing us with insecticides, the grounds department has shown its total inconsideration of our rights to an unpolluted existence. My only suggestion is that everyone who is similarly attacked complain vocally and in writing until the supervisors impress on the workers that people live around here.

The Doctor's Bag

BY ARNOI D WERNER, M.D.

Letters may be addressed to Dr. Werner at MSU Health Center. Names need not be included unless a personal reply is requested.

We are confirmed lesbians - we like our arrangement and are not asking for any advice regarding changing our sexual status. However, we have a problem which is causing some concern in our relationship. While performing mutual oral stimulation, one of us is experiencing multiple organsms while the other is not able to climax at all. Is there a more effective way for us to achieve a satisfying end for both? A reasonable evaluation of the problem you describe would require more information than what is provided by your letter. People involved in homosexual relationships can have the same range of difficulties in terms of sexual response as can people who are involved in heterosexual relationships. It would be important to know the previous sexual experience of the person who is having the difficulty. For instance, is the lack of orgasm something recent or is this something that has always been the case? Is there a particular event that marked the beginning of the difficulty? How important is the sexual side of the relationship to each partner?

You specifically mentioned difficulty involving oral sex. Some people have concerns about oral sex or just find it unpleasant. It might be that other forms of stimulation would be more satisfying.

Discussing the problem with a physician or other professional who is knowledgeable in the area of sex therapy would be wise. Finding such a person might not be easy since the subject of homosexuality still makes a lot of people uncomfortable. If you or your friends don't know anyone you can trust to talk to, give my office a call and I will try to be of assistance. I have a friend who eats very fast. It is unbelievable the way he can take a large mouthful of food, chew it once and swallow. He immediately follows this with another large mouthful and this cycle continues until he has demolished a full meal within minutes. Is this mere habit or is it psychological? And what, if any, difficulties could result?

I am afraid you describe an eating style that is quite prevalent. I have never been sure whether the pattern is a reflection of the hectic pace some people live by, a throwback to what must have been a common style when human eating behavior more closely resembled that of lower animals, or whether it is simply a matter of dealing realistically with the terrible tasting food one gets served in so many quarters these days.

Eating should be one of those areas of biologic function pursued in pleasant surroundings, with enjoyable people, and at a leisurely pace. The only difficulty that would result for your friend may be a lack of pleasure. You might help him by taking away his silverware and providing him with chopsticks. Why do natives of equatorial regions of the world have the same essential body temperature as natives of the polar regions?

The efficient operation of enzyme systems and other intracellular phenomena in the human species depends upon a body temperature that is constant over a fairly narrow range. Human beings are sufficiently closely related to each other, regardless of where they are in the world, that they share the same highly developed physiology. People who live in different parts of the world adapt in a variety of ways to maintain an internal environment that is fairly constant.

WEATHER REPORT

For years we have patiently observed musical reviews and it is apparent that nothing has changed. Criticisms by State News reviewers lack musical intelligence and the spirit of an open mind.

Dave Stern's review of the Weather Report concert claims the rock beat "usually has nothing to do with the rest of the music," and "there was little soloing and what there was was patently unimpressive."

The beat is the core surrounded by a musical experience true to the feelings Weather Report has developed in their past two albums. This experience is clearly void of solos common to most jazz settings. Instead, the bass, saxophone and keyboards mix related feelings set up and expanded by each other, giving the listener a sense of spacelessness.

Stern also felt the group should split up because they are in the danger of becoming sterile. The demolition of a band's integrity based on a single performance is absurd.

In short, we disagree with every view Stern takes in his review. Possibly he should leave opinions involving "jazz renaissance" to more progressive minds.

WIN losing

Dear Mr. President,

I'm having a helluva time. I watched you on television the other night while waiting to see the World Series, and your message really got to me. Ever since heard you tell us that the best way to fight inflation was not to spend money and not to waste anything, I've been trying to follow your advice with very questionable results. For example, the next morning I went down to the supermarket and bought some soup bones. I made the mistake of telling the butcher I wasn't going to buy any steak until the price came down. That evening I received a visit from two members of the cattleman's association who said they had heard about what I said in the supermarket, and they wanted m to know that they were having the work year in their history and if I didn't give damn about the food industry in th country, they wouldn't give a damn about me. I explained to them that you said the only way to fight inflation was to li within my budget - and you know who they did? They shot two steers in the hear on my front lawn. It cost me $89.50 to have the carcasses carted away. The next day I had a call from a automobile dealer who told me the ne models had just arrived at the showrood and advised me to come down right awa I told him that, because of your plea i Kansas City, I decided to forego the luxury of a 1975 car until the econom was straightened out.

An hour later three officers of the United Auto Workers Union broke inter my office and asked me what I thought was doing. I told them the car I own was perfectly satisfactory, and I real didn't need a new car. Well, you shoul have heard what they said, Mr. Presiden They accused me of creating unemployment in the most importan industry in America and shouted that everyone thought the way I did we would have the greatest depression in the histo of the country. I tried to calm them dow by pointing out that everyone in the country had to bite the bullet - but the were so infuriated they threw a chathrough my window, which cost me $5

Because the kids have no mot theater to go to anymore, they're hand around the house with their friends, and has cost me $45 for beer and pretz

But this is neither here nor there. Wi I'm really writing to you about is, coul please have my WIN flag to fly over house, because I want everybody to kno how easy it is to fight inflation? Economically yours, A.B.

powers to back it up.

Anderson's bill has its best chance of passage next session, Alex Sagady of the Michigan Student Environmental Confederation, Inc., said. The other bill, introduced in the Senate, is "not liked by too many people," he said.

The whole problem centers around the influence of environmental impact statements, those much publicized studies of environmental, social and economic effects of state projects, such as the Michigan Avenue and Harrison Road

Impact statements are required by the state for major or controversial department projects.

"The statement should be a fair and complete statement of what the project is, what the environment of the area is and what effects the project will have on the natural and human environments," Ted Black, chief of the Dept. of Natural resources and member of the review board, said.

Many impact statements do not cover the full breadth of possible problems, or all of the possible alternatives, Black said.

"The governor did not provide adequate funding for impact statements," he said, in explanation of their faults. Very few state departments have enough people to do a professional job on the impact statements.

The Highway Dept., however, has "36 or 37" people who work on impact statements, Bob Adams of the department said. The people work in two sections, one concerned with environmental impact and the other with socio - economic problems.

The City of East Lansing, in its own move to strengthen the power of impact statements, has been considering an ordinance requiring impact statements from all projects within the city.

The ordinance would provide a review board similar to that of the state.

State accused of ignoring road plan effects

By JOE KIRBY

State News Staff Writer

An environmentalist group has charged the Dept. of State Highways and Transportation with failing to conduct in depth studies on the environmental impact of its highway projects.

Alex Sagady, coordinator of the Michigan Student Environmental Confederation, said the highway department has not fully complied with state and federal laws requiring statements on the environmental, economic and social impact of the projects.

The group also released a document drawn up by the highway department requesting funds from the legislature to conduct environmental studies.

The document showed that the highway department was 39,000 staff hours short of completing the impact statements required. The legislature consequently approved funding for 16 additional employes.

Sagady said the department will still be short staffed even after these positions are filled.

Adams explained that the highway department is working to cut costs and make its operation more efficient, so the 16 additional staff members will be

Adams said that in the past many projects had been delayed until an environmental impact study could be

Sagady said the released document stated that the highway department has not had a process designed to identify and evaluate the implications of transportation programs on the social and economic fabric of the State.

Adams said this meant that the department had to evaluate each project on an individual basis because it did not have the staff to build a process by which the project could be evaluated during the planning stages.

The highway department document released by the Michigan Student Environmental Confederation was used recently in a court case attempting to halt construction on the Michigan Avenue -Harrison Road construction.

The Federal District Court in Grand Rapids refused to halt the project and James Anderson, who is leading the court fight, is planning on appealing the decision to 6th Circuit Court in Cincinnati.

Five candidates for trustee seats to discuss problems facing MSU

Five candidates for the board of Trustees will discuss issues facing the University in a panel discussion Thursday night.

Speaking will be Democrats John B. Bruff and Raymond W. Krolikowski, both attorneys; incumbent Frank Merriman, board chairman and Republican candidate, and two Human Rights party (HRP) candidates, M. Theresa Des Camp and Bradley K.

Des Camp, 20, is a former MSU nursing student.

Sullivan, 20, an MSU student, is ineligible for a seat under a 1969 ruling by Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, which said that such an activity would constitute conflict of interest. Sullivan said he will not campaign for the office, but said that having his name on the ballot would help to establish the HRP as a prominent group.

The discussion will be at 8 p.m. in the James Madison library of Case Hall. The public is invited.

LYNN JONDAHL HAS BEEN NAMED "CONSUMER ADVOCATE OF THE YEAR" BY THE MICHIGAN CITIZENS' LOBBY.

Writing about what he called "the most comprehensive prescription drug legislation for consumers ever enacted in the United States . . . the Generic Drug Bill," Doug Ross, Director of the Citizens' Lobby stated:

"Numerous consumer and public interest groups worked hard for enactment of this bill. But if it had not been for the leadership and legislative skill of Rep. Lynn Jondahl (D - East Lansing), it is doubtful the bill would have passed.

"Through his remarkable mastery of the many medical and other technical issues raised by the legislation, he was able successfully to defend the bill both in committee and on the House floor against strong special interest opposition."

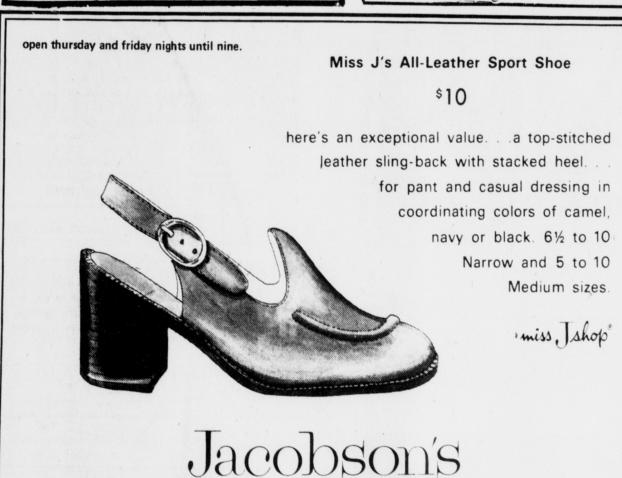

The Generic Drug Bill allows consumers for the first time to shop for the least expensive brand of drug the doctor prescribes, requires pharmacies to post the prices of commonly prescribed drug products to permit comparison shopping, and protects the shopper's health and pocketbook by providing for more complete labeling of drug products.

Lynn Jondahl is working with citizens throughout the state to repeal the regressive sales tax on food and drugs. As vice - chair of the House Consumers and Agriculture Committee, Lynn has helped guide to the House floor consumer legislation such as the Auto Mechanics Licensing Act and the revision of the Holder in Due Course law.

Ensemble to play at series last concert

Roscoe Mitchell and the Creative Arts Collective ensemble will perform in the final concert of the Creative Music IV series at 8:15 tonight in Abrams Planetarium.

Founder of the Ensemble of Chicago and president of the Creative Arts Collective (CAC), Roscoe Mitchell ranks among the top saxophonists in creative music. His inspired performance at the 1972 Ann Arbor Jazz and Blues Festival, his workshops in 1973 at MSU and his subsequent decision to live and work in Bath, Mich., generated the initial energy which united musicians in the Lansing - East Lansing area into the Creative Arts Collective.

Incorporated in April 1974. as a nonprofit organization, the collective sponsors live performances of creative, improvised music in an environment in which established and beginning musicians learn and perform together.

The formal goals of the CAC include creating an environment for fostering musical scholarships through the development of a free training program for the young; sponsoring concerts and recitals in order to enhance the cultural growth of the community; increasing the mutual respect between creative artists and musical tradesmen (booking agents, manufacturers of musical instruments, etc.), and enhancing unity among people

U.S. Army Lt. Dorothy Clark Is Coming To Campus To Talk About

College Junior and Student Officer Programs

The College Junior Program is an exciting chance to preview life as an officer in the Women's Army Corps. It's open to girls who have completed their junior year at college. As a cadet corporal in the Enlisted Reserve, you spend four summer weeks at Fort McClellan, Alabama - with other students from all over the Nation. You find out about training, social life and the many opportunities available to you

Then you'll go to Fort Benning, Georgia, where you'll see and meet your male Army counterparts.

You'll be paid a cadet corporal's salary. All your transportation from home and back will be paid for by the Army. You'll also receive uniforms, meals and medical care at no expense.

After you have completed this program, you'll be under no obligation to continue in the Reserves. But when you have received your college degree, you may apply for a commission, as a second lieutenant, in the Women's Army Corps.

Student Officer Program pays you while you're a senior at college

If you're convinced that you want to become an officer in the Women's Army Corps – the Student Officer Program can be the rewarding second step. Only those who have completed the College Junior Course are considered, and only a limited number of applicants are selected. Your qualification and acceptance are based on your standing in the College Junior Course.

For more information on the College Junior Program, and more details on the Student Officer Program, get in touch with

TWO ALL-STARS SWAPPED EVEN UP

Bobby Bonds traded for NY's Murcer

Outfielder Bobby Bonds, the slugger - speedster who was supposed to take Willie Mays' place with the San Francisco Giants, was traded to the New York Yankees in an interleague swap Tuesday even - up for outfielder Bobby Murcer, once heralded as Mickey Mantle's

"I don't think there's ever been a trade with two all - stars swapped even - up," Yankee President Gabe Paul said. "Most trades of name players have someone thrown in on the side. But this was a one - for -

"The deal was finalized last night on the phone between myself and Horace Stoneham. We must have been on the phone, back and forth, 20 times in the last few days. At and Doc Medich's name was brought up. But we killed that part of the deal.

"One basic rule in making a deal is that when you are going for a real solid righthanded hitter, why go flitting around." Bonds and Murcer, both 28, had relatively poor seasons after enjoying outstanding ones in 1973. The immediate consensus following announcement of the deal was that the Yankess shaded the Giants in the trade.

"We needed a lefthanded hitter badly," said Jerry Donovan, the Giants' assistant to president Horace Stoneham. "We're very happy to get Murcer."

Yankee Manager Bill Virdon, reached in Springfield, he's a good defensive player. "There's nothing I can see that he can't do."

Virdon provided three reasons for the trade: "Bonds will steal more bases (than Murcer), he'll hit more homers and he's a righthanded hitter. We need to change our club around from lefthanded to righthanded hitters."

Bonds was on a fishing trip when the deal between the two clubs was announced.

There has been spirited bidding for Bonds' services, with the Minnesota Twins, Philadelphia Phillies and New York Mets all showing interest in the 6 - 1, 190 - pound Mo., by UPI, said: "Why not outfielder. The Giants were

IM Turkey Trot slated for today

The annual Intramural Turkey Trot will be held at 5 p.m. today, starting at Old College Field. Entries to the event will be accepted by the Intramural Dept. right up until starting time.

Men and women, students, faculty and staff are eligible and may run on a team or individually. Teams may represent residence halls, residence hall houses, fraternities, sororities or just any group of four contestants. Any number of men and

The first four contestants of any group across the finish line are considered for the team place of that group. Last year 17 teams and 106 individuals made the run.

Each team must provide a name card or sign at least three by five inches for each runner to wear. Teams must have been represented at the scratch meeting held Tuesday night.

The Turkey Trot is approximately one mile in length. Participants should run the course at least twice before the meet and have had a physical exam after July 1974.

First and second place team finishers will receive, of course, a turkey. The first and second place individual finishers in both the men's and women's classes will also get a turkey. All birds will be donated to a charitable organization.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) - The Pittburgh Pirates Tuesday traded outfielder Gene Clines to the New York Mets for catcher Duffy Dyer.

Clines, 28, had been used mostly in a utility role since 1970. Last season he hit .225 in 107 games. His career average is .287.

Dyer, 29, a product of the Mets farm system, shared catching duties the past three seasons with Jerry Grote. He played in 63 games for the Mets last season, hitting .211.

Pirates General Manager Joe L. Brown said it was felt Dyer would be "a good solid backup catcher" for Manny Sanguillen, who played in 151 of the Pirates' 162 games last season.

Peer Brunnschwiler speaks English with just a hint of his Swiss heritage, though he has lived in the United States for a good part of his 18 - year - old

"It can be a problem when someone asks you your name and you tell them with a bit of an accent, 'it's Peer.' They don't seem to ask you much more, thinking you're some foreign student who would have difficulty speaking English," he smiled.

Brunnschweiler, along with his teammates on the undefeated MSU soccer squad, will host the Western Michigan Broncos at 3:30 p.m. today on the soccer field south of Spartan Stadium.

Cheerleading: it's fun but rough

By PEGGY GOSSETT State News Staff Writer

They sprint onto the Astro Turf at Spartan Stadium, green and white clad arms waving in unison with the crowd stomping and singing, "Go right through for MSU, watch the points keep

Since the early 1900s when the all - male squad was called yell masters, the MSU cheerleaders have been trying to entice screams and spirit from Spartan fans. They attend every home football and basketball game and many of the away games. What motivates an MSU student to bounce and split and cheer his or her way onto the cheerleading squad? "It didn't even occur to me that I would make it when I tried out," said Kathi Tiplady, senior and cocaptain of the squad. "I tried out for the fun of it. I had nothing to lose," she said. This is her third year on the squad.

Not all fun Cheerleading is not all fun, however. Cheerleading means gritting teeth and stomping feet, not to cheer, but to keep saddle shoe clad feet warm through the freezing rains and snow of

It means 10 hours of practice a week, and if you do not show you do not cheer on the squad. It means an entire weekend sacrificed driving to the furthest away games, such as the six hour trip to the Illinois game last weekend.

"But it's worth it. I intrinsically love the school spirit. I just enjoy cheering," Jill Krause, who is in her second year with the Cheerleading has an element of fear, especially for the cheerleader perched on top of three people in the tallest formation. Krause fell from that position during the Notre Dame game Oct. 5, and after tearing the cartilage in her left knee, underwent surgery. She is out for the season.

"I don't worry about fear. To me it's more of a challenge to my physical abilities to try the hardest cheerleading mounts than to overcome any fear," Krause said.

Sometimes it costs The cheerleader makes no money for his or her effort. On the contrary, the position sometimes costs the cheerleader minor expenditures for equipment like shirts, socks and bodysuits, parts of the uniform which the cheerleading budget does not cover. Each year the cheerleaders receive $1,300 from the Athletic Dept., which covers their costs for the year. From that, $500 is automatically deducted to buy uniforms for the next year's squad, as they must be ordered months in advance. The remaining money pays for food, gas and motel expenses on away trips, and cleaning fees for the uniforms.

Funds were exhausted Whether or not the money is enough to get them through the season is another question. Last year the funds were exhausted before the sports season ended, and the cheerleaders had to dip into their own pockets to pay for the last few cleaning bills. They also paid their own room and board for two weeks before the season started, so they could practice for it. Bill Beardsley, asst. athletic director in charge of financial affairs, said the cheerleaders receive the maximum revenue amount possible from the Athletic Dept.'s budget. "Like any sport, they decide for themselves how the money will be spent. When their money's gone, it's gone," he said.

Whether they travel by plane or University - owned cars is a matter of budgeting and their priorities, Beardsley said. "They could fly to the UCLA game if they wanted, but they could not afford to travel anywhere else," he added.

"Find a way" Ed Rutherford, adviser to the cheerleaders this year, said, "If their funds run out this year you can bet that I'll see to it that they don't pay for their own cleaning. We'll find a way."

It seems the Athletic Dept. has found another way to aid the cheerleaders this year. All 12 regular cheerleaders were given two tickets to every home football game, where in past years they were only given two tickets to one game of their choice.

The cheerleaders also receive free health care and medications from the University Health Center, a practice which began last Athletic Director Burt Smith said cheerleading is considered a minor sport, since it has a budget just like other sports programs. Cheerleaders receive letters and letter jackets, which are fleecy green wool with white leather sleeves, the same as many lettermen wear.

"In line with the other minor sports we do have enough money," Jim McCabe, senior and cocaptain on the squad, said. Minor sports had their total budget cut $5,000 last spring, and though the cheerleaders' budget was not cut, neither was it

"Those cutbacks had nothing really to do with the cheerleaders," Smith said. The cutbacks came in grant - in - aid programs, which affected tennis, golf, wrestling, swimming, track, baseball and gymnastics, "But compared to other schools, we don't have the luxuries.

that their cheerleaders do," McCabe said. U-M, Purdue budgets Cheerleaders at the University of Michigan and Purdue have

But somehow the Purdue squad found a way to travel to Hawaii Invitational basketball tournament last winter.

"Though each cheerleader contributed $100 dollars for trip, the athletic department found a way to come up with other $300 needed for each cheerleader," said Thomas McHenry sponsor of the Purdue cheerleaders.

"The athletic department recognizes the value of cheerlead for public relations work, and to carry enthusiasm between team and fans," he said. "So we help them all we can."

Cheerleading camps

McHenry said the Purdue squad often holds cheerleadi camps where they teach high school squads Purdue cheerlead techniques, and the squad makes about $700 this way each ye The alumni foundation also contributed money to cheerleading program last year, he said, and probably will do again this season.

The MSU cheerleaders have made similar attempts at money raising projects to boost their budget. "I had to go out like a goodwill ambassador, asking lo businesses to donate to the cheerleaders," McCabe said. "Final

Central Hospital officials said the dead included 33 whites, 15 black Africans and one person whose race could not be determined. They said are attempting to recruit that about 160 persons were injured in the racially tense capital.

In another development, a Swiss businessman reported in Zurich that wealthy Portuguese

Mozambique. Authorities said Portuguese and Frelimo troops were in firm control of the colony's capital Tuesday, but a government broadcast urged everybody to stay home. The Portuguese servicemen involved had been demobilized after Lisbon agreed last month to turn over the colony next June to Frelimo, the Mozambique Liberation Front, a black group that fought a 10 year war for independence.

mercenaries to fight in

The fighting began when the Portuguese soldiers attacked four Frelimo troops outside a crowded sidewalk cafe on the Avenida da Republica, took their weapons and drove away in a truck.

"Let's go get our guns and give these men a lesson," one of the Portuguese reportedly said. They returned about a half - hour later and opened fire on Frelimo troops guarding a newspaper office. Rush hour crowds fled in panic as the black soldiers returned the fire. The ensuing gunfire and grenade exchange lasted 30 minutes, until Portuguese troops arrived in armored cars.

Afterwards, blacks rampaged through the city, attacking buses, cars and pedestrians. Officials attributed many of the deaths to rioting.

It was the second major outbreak of racial turmoil in Mozambique since the Sept. 7 independence agreement. In Lourenco Marques and the port of Beira, 190 persons were killed and more than 500 injured in rioting after a brief, bloodless rebellion by white settlers opposed to the prospect of black rule.

On the mercenaries story, Swiss businessman Hans Lenzlinger said he had been asked to act as a recruiting agent for the Portuguese, but denied reports that he had

The first report of mercenaries being recruited appeared in the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet, which said Lenzlinger planned to go to Sweden to recruit 500 men before hiring 500 more from Germany and Africa.

"I have nothing to do with this," Lenzlinger, who used to run an escape route for refugees from eastern to western Europe, said. "Not even 5 per cent of this is true."

The Aftonbladet story said that Lenzlinger had received about 1,000 letters, mostly from soldiers in Sweden looking for easy money. Lenzlinger said he received the letters, but that he did not spend money to have them translated and that he does not know their subject.

Replies to abortion stand vary

By RALPH FRAMMOLINO

State News Staff Writer

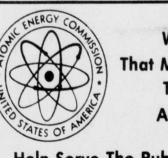

A recent decision by American Lutheran Church (ALC) delegates that approves abortion in some cases has met with a degree of favorable response within the church, but criticism

The criticism from outside sources, ranging from citizens groups to other religious organizations, stemmed from the belief that abortion is unallowable, except in very well defined

Previously, the ALC took the stand that abortions were permissible only in cases where the mother's health was endangered.

The resolution, which reaffirmed the church's policy of the unborn child's right to life, said that members must make the best decision about terminating a pregnancy "based on the situation and accountability for God, self and neighbor." It also reserved the right for members to make "the judgment that - all pertinent factors of responsibility considered - the developing life may be terminated to defend the health and wholeness" of those

"I would like to know on what biblical grounds they based their decision," said Pastor W. E. Michael of East Lansing Trinity Church, an interdenominational organization. "I have strong doubts about the wisdom of their decision, and have great difficulty accepting it. I think people are toying with things that don't belong to them."

Help Serve The Public Interest In Making Nuclear Energy Safe, By Joining AEC's Regulatory Staff

As the fuel shortage has recently demonstrated, energy has become a matter of vital concern to the future welfare and prosperity of our country. The expanding use of nuclear energy will undoubtedly help to ease the crisis. But if it is to fulfill its promise, nuclear power requires responsible handling, and that is of the utmost concern to the Atomic Energy Commission Regulation.

Our business is to protect the public and the environment by making nuclear power safe. We do this through the rigorous regulation of the design, construction, and operation of nuclear power plants.

The challenge of harnessing nuclear energy demands a significant expansion of our manpower resources. We can offer you an excellent career opportunity ... the satisfaction of rewarding work ... exceptional chances for advancement ... competitive salaries and very attractive government benefits.

Rev. Daniel M. Buske, pastor of Emmanuel 1st Lutheran Church, said his stand is against abortion.

"I don't believe I should judge over what any other body decides" he said. He cautioned that with abortion "you enter into the realm of sanctity of human life."

"It is a commandment - thou shalt not kill," he said.

Response from Campus Crusade for Christ was antiabortion. "Our response is that scripture says that children are a blessing from God," Bill Flynn, director, said.

Father Albert Hornberger, of St. Casimir Catholic Church, also said that abortion is not a matter of personal conscience. "Catholic teaching is unequivocal - abortion is murder," he Michigan Citizens for Life views the decision as undefinitive in its philosophy and ethics, Jane Muldoon, president, said.

"What seems to be weighed in the balance of judgment is the mother situation," she said. "The end result may be that the real balance is not considered - should the child continue its life or should it be killed."

The citizens group believes that the termination of life, as derived at by personal decision, would lead to anarchy.

'Again, this is a questionable principle for society to adopt and certainly contrary to the principles of Christ himself - who loves all men," she said.

Supporters from within the Lutheran Church say the decision was based on a need for more counseling leverage and hesitancy to pass value judgments on people's lives.

"The intent of the thing was to help the counseling process," said Rev. James A. Schalkhouser, of Bethlehem Lutheran Church, 549 E. Mt. Hope Ave. "It was not a very dogmatic sort of thing, it was left more to the dictate of the individual's own Rev. Paul Pretzlaff, of St. Paul Lutheran, 3323 Lake Lansing Road, said, "I think the important thing is that people understand that the convention doesn't speak for the church, but Pretzlaff is also in the ALC.

"This kind of thing does not have an easy answer, so we must look not at only the religious but social implications," he said. "Our own church pretty much took that stand some years ago," Rev. R. S. Nelson, pastor of St. Stephen Evangelicistic Lutheran Church, 3838 Delta River Drive, said.

"We all would say that the Bible is the final word. There is a difference in interpretation, where the human element enters into Rev. James K. Pflueger, of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, he said that a broader responsibility guideline was necessary at "What we call therapeutic abortion is narrower than it should

said that as a group they were antiabortion, but as an indivdual, should be careful in making value judgments on people's lives. "I see the essential right of the mother to have some control, some say," he said.

Pflueger said. "Therapeutic should be redefined. We

UPI correspondent to speak on campus

Noted White House correspondent Helen Thomas of United Press International (UPI) will speak at 8 p.m. Thursday in 158 Natural Resources Bldg.

The speech is sponsored by the campus chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism society.

CBS correspondent Dan Rather referred to Thomas in a recent interview as one of the top three White House reporters. She is a graduate of Wayne State University and began working at UPI in 1943. In 1961 she became a White House correspondent.

Thomas will also visit with journalism students and faculty. The Thursday night talk is open free to the public.

Cat's clinic stay starts fund effort

By PETE DALY State News Staff Writer A cat crunched by a hit - and - run driver in East Lansing last Friday has found lots of new friends, including some local handicapped people who understand the cat's plight.

And the handicappers, who want the cat for their mascot, are mobilizing fast to save it from possible destruction.

After being struck by the car in front of the East Lansing police station, the badly bleeding cat dragged itself to the sidewalk where it was picked up by Terry Davis, a Lansing resident and employe of the MSU Office of Handicapped Programs, and Kathi Bishop, an MSU junior.

The two took the cat to the MSU Veterinary Clinic, where Davis had to sign for financial responsiblity before the cat could be admitted.

Later the two people learned the cat - now in the clinic's intensive care unit suffered a fractured skull and jaw, and the total bill from the Vet Clinic was estimated by veterinarians there to reach possibly $200.

The Vet Clinc requires such bills be paid in full before an animal is released. Should an owner never return to pay the bill and collect the animal, clinic vets said, it would probably be destroyed.

Dr. Gary Thayer, a veterinarian at the clinic, said that sometimes personnel who work at the clinic will take home an abandoned animal rather than let it be put to

"But obviously we can't take home all that are never claimed," he said.

Davis and Bishop, who agreed to donate what they each could afford, were wondering where to come up with the total sum of $200 when Davis told Judy Taylor, his supervisor at the Handicapped Programs office, of their predicament.

Now Taylor and Charlotte Bugbee, both of whom are handicapped, say they will contribute toward the cat's doctor bills. The two want to adopt the cat as a mascot for the local chapter of the National Assn. of Physically Handicapped, which they are members of.

"We aren't just cat lovers. We want to help save the cat as a symbol of our social view that a life that is injured or permanently damaged shouldn't just be discarded."

Taylor said that though she and Bugbee will help Davis and Bishop to pay the bill, she is going to ask other interested local members of the handicapped organization to pitch in. About $100 is still

Local handicapped persons who want the cat for their organization's mascot are now trying to raise money for the feline's high medical bills.

COGS to support fight

By PAT NARDI State News Staff Writer

The Council of Graduate Students (COGS) voted unanimously Monday to support the fight of foreign students who have been refused work permits during summer vacations.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service told MSU officials in April that they would not be allowed to authorize summer jobs for nonimmigrant foreign students because young Americans would be deprived of needed employment opportunities.

Foreign students do not need permission from the immigration office to work on COGS representatives said they would meet with the foreign student adviser and/or President Wharton to discuss implications of the problem.

COGS representatives said they would also support the activities of the National Assn. for Foreign Student Affairs (NAFSA) of which August Benson, an MSU foreign student adviser, is president.

In a report issued by Benson, he said that MSU and campuses around the country are seeking to make emergency loans and on campus jobs available to foreign students. Last year Benson's office secured 120 offcampus working permits for foreign students. This year only 19 were approved by the immigration office. Those were given mostly in cases where unforeseen serious illnesses occurred to alter a student's financial situation.

"Foreign students are going to have tremendous economic problems, and that's going to mean they'll have tremendous academic problems too," said Trevor Gardner, COGS vice president for University Affairs.

Gardner said without the jobs, foreign students would find it difficult to provide the required proof that they will have sufficient funds to pay for their schooling expenses. MSU only admits foreign students if they can prove they have

Our goal in sound is to satisfy the needs of each individual we meet. Because sound is such a personal item, its impossible to fulfill everyone's requirements with the same components – but if you desire the ability to play your music at lease breaking volume without sacrificing clarity, accuracy and definition – this system fits the bill.

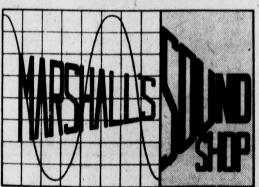

Sherwood's S - 7200 AM/FM stereo receiver provides the potential for head throbbing volumes with a very conservatively rated 32 watts continuous power per channel at 8 ohms from 20 - 20,000 Hz at less than 0.7% distortion — typically below 0.2%.FM IHF sensitivity 1.9uV. SUPER!

Instead of wasting all that pure power the JBL L26 DECADE speakers put it to effective use and efficiently convert it to pure, wide - range, high definition, LOUD sound. Construction and detail found on the L26 could only be done by JBL. Beautiful L26's included in system at the fair trade price of $156.00 each.

Unless we selected an excellent source, all the above units would do is reproduce the source's distortion accurately. So to insure against this, we've chosen one of the best sources we could think of. The new DUAL 1226 automatic turntable with base, cover and STANTON 600EE elliptical cartridge guarantees two things - Great sound and minimum record wear. System separately over $910.00.
