SN survey identifies oting behavior trends among MSU students

By R.D. CAMPBELL State News Staff Writer

Who are the MSU students going to the local polls in Tuesday's election?

They are the sophomores who prefer the Republican congressional candidate and the seniors who give the Democrat a five to one margin. They are fewer than 40 per cent of the total student body.

They are the off - campus students who will probablyvote twice as heavily for Human Rights party (HRP) gubernatorial candidate Zolton Ferency as their on campus counterparts.

They are women who are more undecided about how they will vote and men who tend to be almost twice as supportive of HRP candidates.

These are among many trends showed by a State News random, scientifically selected sampling of 406 students.

The poll was conducted last Sunday and Monday by 25 State News editors and reporters. Three graduate students in communications - Kim Serota, James Taylor and George Barnett - examined, criticized and approved for scientific validity the survey. The trio has formed an between 7 a.m. and 8 p.m.

informal partnership called Communications Research Institute to conduct political polls.

On Friday the State News reported that Republican Gov. Milliken had a narrow margin over Democrat Sander Levin among registered MSU students and that Democrats Bob Carr, 6th District congressional candidate, Earl Nelson, 24th District state Senate hopeful, and Lynn Jondahl, incumbent 59th District state representative candidate all had healthy margins over their Republican opponents. The polls shows that 82.5 per cent of MSU students are registered to vote and that 83 per cent of those say their chances of voting Tuesday are either excellent or

But that turnout figure is probably inflated, especially if the weather is discouraging for a trip to the polls, according to Charles Atkin, MSU Communications Dept. asst. professor, who has conducted other political polls of MSU students.

The poll indicates that the "novelty factor" is at work in determining whether students will make it to the polls anytime

Almost 89 per cent of the registered freshmen questioned said their chances of voting were either excellent or pretty good, while the precentage of sophomores, juniors and seniors who said likewise were each about 80 per cent.

But graduate students led all categories of registered students in their likelihood of voting with 95.9 percent.

As eager as registered freshmen are to lose their voting virginity, so it seems that you can't teach an old voter new tricks, especially when he hasn't voted before.

Nearly 90 per cent of the 140 students who said they had voted before said their chances of voting were high whereas, 78 per cent of the 188 students who said they had not voted before said they would probably vote Tuesday.

Atkin said that if freshmen were removed from this sampling, the 78 per cent would probably be substantially

While local political observors usually say that between 50 an 55 per cent of MSU students are registered in East Lansing, the poll shows only 38.2 per cent or 128 of the 406 poll respondents are

To the probable delight of males who are certain that women are fickle, the polls shows that women are substantially more undecided about which lever the will pull than men. In the 6th District congressional race, 39 per cent of women were undecided and 25 per cent of the men were undecided. Similarly in the gubernatorial race, 32 per cent of the women and 22 per cent of the men had not decided.

Sex was also apparently a factor in the East Lansing state House race where Republican Cathy Lessard faces incumbent Democrat Lynn Jondah. Women supported Lessard at a rate nearly twice that of the men. The results here are subject to a fairly high degree of error since only 13 respondents out of 158 said they would vote for Lessard. Jondahl got 76 yes votes.

As expected, the poll indicated that 60.5 per cent of all students call themselves independent voters. Twenty one - and - a half per cent said they were Democrats, 14.4 per cent Republicans and 2.3 Human Rights party backers.

Damman affair may end career of Gov. Milliken

Wire Services In most election years the lieutenant governor is just the other guy on the ticket who nobody pays attention to during the campaign and who isn't heard from during the four years after the election.

But in this year's gubernatorial race the person Gov. Milliken has selected to fill that office may become the albatross that ends Milliken's political career. Milliken announced Saturday that he would keep James Damman as his running mate despite questions that have arisen during the past two weeks. The controversy began when the Detroit Free Press published a series of articles investigating Damman's alleged part in a land development firm while a member of the Troy Zoning Appeals Board. In a Friday editorial the newspaper urged Milliken to dump Damman. The newspaper reversed itself Sunday and said the known facts do not justify removing Damman.

The earlier Free Press articles said Damman and several partners, some of whom are past and present members of Troy muncipal posts, started a land investment firm that purchased land secretly while Damman was helping draw a master development plan for Troy.

It also said realtors and land developers were chief contributors to Damman's 1970 election to the state House of Representatives.

Milliken opened his Saturday news conference by reading a seven - page statement that outlined the case against Damman, as published by the Free Press, and said he reviewed all allegations and considered them baseless.

"It is my strong belief that Mr. Damman, as a public servant, did not violate the public trust, did not use his office for personal gain and did not abuse his power," Milliken said.

However, Milliken said he is turning over his findings on Damman's involvement to Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley for further review. If Kelley finds any impropriety on Damman's part Milliken said he would ask for Damman's resignation should the Republican ticket condition no longer grave

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Former President Nixon was taken off the critical list Sunday for the first time in six days. He continued to show increased strength since a brush with death brought on by post operative complications.

"It's his best morning since hospitalization began," Nixon's physician, Dr. John C. Lungren, said in his daily medical bulletin.

Lungren said through hospital spokesman Norman Nager that the 61 - year - old former chief executive began a soft food diet, including custard and vegetables. He would sit up later Sunday for the first time since entering the hospital for treatment of phlebitis Oct.

Nixon had been fed intravenously during the critical period, until Saturday when he was first allowed to take consomme and gelatin.

Lungren said Nixon was now in subintensive care, which he described as a step down from critical care. The next less serious condition would be intermediate care, but there was no indication when Nixon might be put in that category.

Nixon slept at intervals Saturday night, Lungren said. He described his patient's vital signs as normal.

Lungren said the blood clot in Nixon's left leg, which forced urgent surgery last Tuesday morning, had not enlarged. The doctor said Saturday that internal bleeding near Nixon's abdomen had been stopped

Watergate trial going slowly

The Watergate coverup trial is running behind schedule and hope is fast fading for meeting U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's goal of a verdict by

The time consumed for questioning witnesses by prosecution and defense lawyers is one potential cause for delay.

When Sirica asked once again last Thursday if his Christmas goal still looked possible, prosecutor James F. Neal responded that it did, with the one unknown being "that matter we're all aware of."

Neal never said what "that matter" was, but it seemed clear he was referring to Richard M. Nixon and the question of whether he will be well enough to come to Washington to testify.

Hopes to avert coal strike fade

Early hopes for averting a nationwide coal strike Nov. 12 faded Sunday despite intensified efforts by negotiators to forge a contract settlement.

Bargainers for the United Mine Workers and the Bituminous Coal Operators Assn. faced against an informal weekend deadline to reach agreement on the basic wage and benefit package and remaining noneconomic issues.

Montreal firemen end strike

Montreal's firemen returned to work Sunday after a 21/2 - day strike during which about 20 fires caused an estimated $2 million damage, mostly to abandoned buildings. It was the largest number of fires to occur in Montreal in a 60 - hour period.

No fire deaths occurred. .

The 2,400 firemen of the Montreal Firefighters' Journal poll shows Assn., an independent union that quit the AFL-CIO this year, walked off the job Thursday night despite a provincial ordinance forbidding strikes by public employes: They demanded immediate cost - of - living raises of $750 plus a living costs escalator clause in their next contract. The current pact expires Dec. 31.

After Quebec premier Robert Bourassa intervened, the union accepted Mayor Jean Drapeau's offer of a $750 allowance before the end of the year and put off negotiations on the new contract.

Smoker blamed in Korean fire

Police in Seoul, South Korea, blamed a careless smoker Sunday for a hotel fire that killed 88 persons, most of whom were trapped inside a discotheque. A survivor said the club's employes locked the only exit, apparently to make sure the customers paid their bills. It was Seoul's fifth major hotel fire in less than three years, the second in three weeks and the second in the Brown Hotel in just over two years.

The blaze destroyed the hotel's sixth floor, where police found 65 bodies in the nightclub. They said they were looking for the patron who started the fire by carelessly disposing of a cigarette butt in his 6th - floor

Rightist plot revealed in Italy

Italian rightists planned to storm the Quirinal Palace last August, arrest President Giovanni Leone, and force him to dissolve Parliament to set up a "strong government," investigating judges in Rome said Sunday.

They said 21 arrest warrants would be issued soon. The judges said the coup organizers also planned to pollute aqueducts, destroy bridges and pipelines, disrupt communications to provoke a civil war, and murder politicians, magistrates and union leaders.

UNEC predicts hard times

The United Nations' Economic Commission (UNEC) for Europe predicts difficult times for world economies but says at least in the industrialized West there no danger of the kind of crisis that preceded World War

The commission's trade review, published in Geneva, Switzerland, on Sunday, said only the least developed nations will suffer from tougher competition on world markets and worsening terms of trade as foreign aid by developed countries, beset by their own worries, tends to be slowed down.

"The most urgent world economic problem today is that several poor countries will not have their basic needs for consumer goods and input materials covered," the review says.

Dems see big gains in election

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democrats predicted massive victories Sunday while Republicans shied away from guessing about what might happen to their party in Tuesday's elections.

Democratic party Chairman Robert Strauss predicted that his party will pick up four to six Senate seats and 27 to 32 House seats in Tuesday's vote. The Democratic tide is also expected to result in nine governorships in the 10 most populous states. That would place 85 per cent of the nation's people under Democratic

But the statehouse, rather than Congress, may be the scene for key shifts of political power, and it is possible the nation may have minority Americans as governors of three western states next year.

In Hawaii, Lt. Gov. George R. Ariyoshi is a clear favorite to become the first governor of Japanese ancestry after emerging from a tight primary fight earlier this month.

Ariyoshi, 48, a Honolulu attorney, has a long pedigree in Hawaiian politics extending back to five years in the territorial legislature before statehood. He has been acting governor for a year because of the serious illness of incumbent Gov. John A. Burns.

Democratic nominees for governor in Arizona and New Mexico are both Spanish . Americans, and both are locked in close fights.

In Arizona, Tucson lawyer Ral H. Castro, 58, a former ambassador to Bolivia, came within 7,700 votes of upsetting the Republican incumbent governor four years ago. This time the incumbent is retiring, and the polls predict a Democratic trend nationally. But the race still looks tight.

New Mexico has not elected a Hispanic governor since 1918, and state legislator Jerry Apodaca has faced an uphill race, partly because a fierce primary left Democrats divided this summer. Apodaca is pitted against rancher Joe Skeen, 47, in a contest without any clear favorite as yet, though out - of - state Democrats are more optimistic about prospects in Arizona than in New Mexico.

Blacks could take the no. 2 statehouse jobs in another pair of western races. In California, state legislator Mervyn Dymally is an obvious favorite for Lt. Governor on the Democratic ticket headed by Edmund G. Brown Jr. But in Colorado, another state senator, George Brown, who is the Urban Coalition director in Denver, may need a big victory his Democratic running mate, Richard D. Lamm, to become Lt. Governor.

Sample ballot lists endorsements

During the past three weeks State News endorsements of candidates running in Tuesday's election have appeared regularly on the left side of this page. Most of these endorsements were made after members of the State News editorial board interviewed all candidates running for the office in question.

State News endorsements are presented as an opinion that readers can consider in deciding how to vote. The knowledge of reporters who have been covering a campaign and the candidates involved for weeks or even months, combined with the candidate interviews, serve as the basis for the

The sample ballot arranged on this page includes all of the races and issues that voters in East Lansing's predominantly student precincts will decide on Tuesday. However, voters will be faced with just one Ingham County commissioner's election, depending on which district they live in .

Candidates endorsed by the State News are indicated by a check mark in front of their name on the sample ballot. Circles indicate the State News' stand on the four statewide proposals, No matter who you support, the most important thing to do Tuesday is vote.

ELECTION FORUM

Local candidates garner praise

Conlin backed

After reading the State News editorial endorsing Richard Conlin for county commissioner I felt I would write in support of both the editorial and Conlin. The editorial just briefly mentioned Conlin's support of human rights issues. Not only has Conlin worked towards funding of a rape counseling program, but he has also helped in the creation of a women's commission. This commission is one of the few county women's commissions in Michigan. Conlin has also worked in eliminating sex discrimination in county jobs. His method was simple, raise the salary of women to equal that of men in the same job level.

Effectuality is the most important reason to re - elect a person. Richard Conlin has proven that not only is he concerned, but that he turns this concern into action which brings results.

Misty Kuceris 129 E. Grand River Ave.

I urge voters to support Richard Conlin for re - election to the Ingham County Board of Commissioners. Richard Conlin has worked hard to change the present wasteful priorities of our transportation system. He believes that we must move as fast as possible toward an energy efficient transit system, accessible at minimal cost to rich and poor alike, and one far less destructive to the environment and scarce energy resources.

He initiated county support for the area bus system, worked hard to help bring passenger train service back to Lansing, supported the proposed county bicycle path sytem and introduced the county resolution calling on voters to support the transportation bond issue (Proposal D) on the November ballot.

I hope voters who are concerned with transportation priorities will campaign and vote for the re - election of Richard

> James R. Anderson Professor of Humanities

Karczewski urged

Dear 10th District Resident, When you go to vote Tuesday for statewide offices, your vote will be one of approximately three million cast. However, in the 10th Ingham County Commission District (on the east MSU campus and surrounding apartment and housing areas) your vote may be one of the crucial 1,900 votes needed to elect your next local county representative.

I strongly urge you to take the time and vote for Mary Ellen Karczewski, Human Rights party candidate: Of the three candidates in the 10th District, she is, in my opinion, the most progressive for the following reasons: Only Karczewski has unequivocally opposed the Mickey Mouse pot busts on campus by the Metro Squad.

 Only she proposes to use the powers of a County Housing Commission to help alleviate housing shortages and high rents. Only she favors extensive county expenditures for day care. Only she, as an MSU junior (the only student candidate), will be really in touch with the concerns of other MSU students who are facing the same hassles with county, city and university administrations.

 Karczewski is one of the few women commission candidates who has a chance

Her Democratic opponent, Richard Conlin, has had two years as a commissioner to show what he is like. In 1972 he campaigned against the Metro Squad; four times since then he has voted for Metro Squad funds. Recently he publicly defended dorm pot busts. He has never been visible in the 10th District. Areas concerning the constituents such as a student workers union, rent control efforts, and needed work for progressive city council candidates have been ignored by him, as he largely associated with only Democratic party regulars and elected

If you are concerned about 'splitting the vote' and allowing a conservative Republican to be elected, there is no such possibility. In 1972 the Republican commissioner candidate got 24 per cent of the vote. One informal poll in October showed only 14 per cent favored the

Jim Heyser 8th District Ingham County Commissioner

Veenstra pushed

Over the past year and a half, as a member of the Ingham County Non -Motorized Transportation Advisory Group, I have come to know John Veenstra, 6th Distrist county commissioner. In that time I have come to know John as an honest, sincere and extremely dedicated public official. He worked diligently to see that a citizens' advisory group made up of those most directly concerned was formed to prepare a plan for nonmotorized transportation in Ingham County. He felt that a nonmotorized transportation plan should be prepared by people who walk, bicycle or ride a horse.

Road commissions in Michigan, as their name implies, have been concerned with building roads for sole use of the automobile. Because of Mr. Veenstra's efforts a new policy is now taking place in Ingham County. Ingham County is now for the first time seriously considering other forms of transportation. As an ex - officio member of the Non -Motorized Advisory Group, Mr. Veenstra has displayed a tremendous insight as to the transportation problems of the County. While many people associate Mr. Veenstra with bicycle paths, he has worked hard to make county government more open and responsive to the needs of citizens of his district and the county as a whole. He deserves to be returned to the board of county commissioners.

> John Czarnecki, chairman Ingham County Non - Motorized Transportation Advisory Board

Hauptmann corrects

The State News is out of touch with reality. Its Nov. 1 reporting of my positions in the 8th District county commissioner's race is one of the best works of fantasy I have run across in quite a while. In the caption under my picture the only correct information is my name. party and district. I am 21, not 23, I am not a member of Honors College and I am a senior in general business, pre - law, not business law insurance, and office administration. But these errors are trivial compared to those made in the statement of my positions. Whereas the articles covering my two opponents deal with positions on specific issues, concisely written, the article on myself rambles through a number of vague stands which I found interesting - however, they are not

To correct the third paragraph of the article, dealing with the Metro Squad, I quote my campaign material: "Metro Squad was designed to crack down on the sale of hard drugs. However, much of its resources have been wasted on minor pot busts. In addition, the county commission receives inadequate information on its activities. This program needs a major overhaul to justify continued county funding." In other words, make it go after pushers of hard drugs or abolish it.

The last paragraph of the article totally ignored my position on housing. It is not that I do not "know what jurisdictional problems with local communities" a housing commission would face, but that I oppose the county using a commission to force its will upon local communities in the field of housing. My campaign has been geared to getting the power out of the hands of the county bureaucracy and back to the individual citizens and the local governments - which are closer to the people and their needs - through the use of decentralization (a fact mentioned in the State News endorsement of Dave Rathke.) In an editorial endorsement or "Opinion Page" article, I would expect the State News to buld up one candidate and ignore the others. However, page eight of Friday's State News was presented as being objective news reporting of each candidate's positions, and as such, I would have expected a little more effort on the part of the State News staff to obtain accurate information about my positions.

Gaulden supported

The State News, in its endorsement editorial concerning the race for East Lansing District Court judge, not only backed an essentially incompetent and insensitive Daniel Tschirhart, but also used distortion, and innuendo to support its position. Furthermore, that distortion and innuendo was used in an attempt by the State News to destroy one of the most outstanding candidates for any office this year, Booker Gaulden, also running for East Lansing District Court judge.

First of all, the State News claims that Tschirhart has run what amounts to a first class court, of which the entire East Lansing community could be proud. However, this newspaper has not talked to the numerous individuals who have been insulted and mistreated by Tschirhart. Furthermore, the State News does not seem to be concerned.

However, the State News is concerned with finding some justification for its support of Tschirhart, and the only means of finding that justification was through extremely biased and inaccurate reporting aimed at attacking Mr. Gaulden.

For example, when the State News claimed that Booker Gaulden's advocacy of an evening division of small claims court was unnecessary because Tschirhart settles all small claims within thirty days, it neglected to mention that Mr. Gaulden's proposal would speed up that process to 7

Also, when the paper said that another proposal of Mr. Gaulden's, a magistrates assistant which would enable the court to render round - the - clock service, was impossible, it once again neglected to print that this is possible through an application to the State Supreme Court.

These points, and others, have been covered by Mr. Gaulden in his highly personalized door - to - door campaign. However, the dirtiest attack hurled at Mr. Gaulden was the accusation that he was involved in questionable campaign tactics. In talking with Mr. Gaulden, I found him to be very candid and honest, and there is no substantiation at all to the lies which this newspaper has fabricated.

I cannot see how anyone can trust the State News, for in this case it did not look for the better candidate, but it looked for lies, innuendo, and distortion to back a candidate who made it to the bench not through open election, but through the generosity of our Republican governor. I urge all individuals who are interested the District Court and in the quality of here in East Lansing to vote for Book Gaulden for East Lansing District Cou judge on Nov. 5.

As a concerned MSU student, I wou like to come to the defense of Lansing District Court judge candid Booker Gaulden. Mr. Gaulden is not on one of the best qualified attorneys in state, but his candidacy offers for all E Lansing residents a much improved col with emphasis on individual rights and with more sensible and effe procedures. Mr. Gaulden presents stund academic credentials, with degrees to Harvard and the University of Michi Law School. Mr. Gaulden's No. experience has been of the highest let and he has distinguished himself and the very best, practicing with the we known activist law firm, Philo, Maki, I Cockrel. He also has further experience an asst. attorney general for the State Michigan, in which capacity he specialis in consumer affairs.

The programs that Booker Gaulden advocating are genuine, for they are an at bringing a broader spectrum of community into the judicial proc These reforms will make due proce reality at all levels of the District Court.

A vote for Booker Gaulden is not of a vote for the most qualified candid but it is also a vote for an independent candidate, for Mr. Gaulden has recit campaign funds from only family personal friends. Indeed, the contract between the highly qualified and straight forward Booker Gaulden and Da Tschirhart is marked, for Tschirhart's distinctions are a great deal of arrogarudeness, and the fact that Republicans decided to hand him s political patronage. I know these things, because I questions and paid attention to the something the State News has not don this case. I urge all East Lansing votes students and homeowners alike to for Booker Gaulden, for he has the high qualities that we need in District Court judge.

another article in the State News Friday. McConnell, in his column, and Taylor, in his ads, make a flat - out lie when they state that the $750 standard deduction would need to be closed under Carr's plan. In fact, Carr supports an increase in the deduction to help offset the effects of inflation.

The $70 billion for national health care would be financed, as Carr has always said, partially from an increase in social security taxes - but would be more than offset by the reduction in medical expenses for the average family.

Finally, Bob Carr has not been "bought" by labor. They support him, just as the business interests support Taylor, because they agree with his ideas - and he's not ashamed of that. Carr and the unions both want national health insurance, campaign reform, and consumer and environmental protection. This type of legislation doesn't help unions; it helps people. And that's what Bob Carr's candidacy is all about.

They work fulltime during the summer and part - time during the school year to support themselves. After waiting in line for 45 minutes for the benefit to clear out so we could enter the Stables, we were graciously informed that the cover charge to see Tom Rush had been raised to three dollars. Well, I don't grudge that. It was a good show. What I do grudge is having to wait an extra two hours to see it start. As a result of the earlier benefit, the Tom Rush show was delayed until nearly midnight. Tom Rush was great, and that put me back in a good mood. Nonetheless, shouldn't be very surprised at all if Carr lost as many votes that night as he gained.

'SN ignores SLP'

Before this great November election begins, I wish to publicly congratulate the State News and the local media in general for the fairness they have shown in covering the campaigns of the Reprocrats, Demopubs and that harmless little Hippo Rights party.

I also wish to commend the State News for totally ignoring the program of classless, democratic, industrial self government proposed by the evil Socialist Labor party (SLP). It is clear to me, as I am sure it is to all responsible voters who have ever been handed a leaflet by these mad people, that implementation of the SLP's program would mean the end of our beloved free enterprise system and the beginning of a life without capitalists or politicians. These Socialist Labor partyites would have us believe that production should be carried on for people's needs and desires, not for profit. Can you imagine houses, food, cars, etc. being produced for use? I'm sure you can't.

However, you, as I, have recognized that there are certain irresponsible elements in these troubled times (undoubtedly victims of permissiveness) who would welcome, organize and even go so far as to vote for such utopian godlessness. Therefore, it is essential that we keep these negative ideas, which go against all the immutable laws of human nature, out of the news media, lest we have to superimpose martial law on our sacred two - and - a - half - party system as responsible Chileans had to do.

Thank you, and again, congratulations for a job well done Michael Ballard 531 Ann St.

Levin supported

The State News endorsement of Zolton Ferency was not based on accurate facts. Sandy Levin has made the utilities a major issue since the primary. Levin believes that residential rates should not go up until industry pays a fair share, since industrial rates are 70 to 80 per cent less than residents. The last two rate decisions by the Public Service Commission have followed Levin's proposal by increasing industrial rates much more.

Levin started working on campaign reform two years before Watergate. As a state senator, Levin introduced more than 30 campaign reform bills. These included limits on contributions, ceilings on expenditures, full disclosure measures and a public check off system. Levin is the first gubernatorial candidate in the history of Michigan to make public both expenditures and contributions.

Levin thinks a graduated income tax is much more equitable, but points out that the voters would have to change the state constitution which would take two years.

It is for these reasons that Sander Levin should be the governor of the State of

The State News, throughout their endorsement, misrepresents the views of Democrat candidate Sandy Levin. The endorsement claims Levin wouldn't touch the idea of a graduated income tax with a ten foot pole. If the editorial writers had bothered to do their homework a little better, they would have known that Levin has wholeheartedly supported a graduated income tax and supported a proposal for a constitutional amendment for such on the

Rather than "pussyfooting around," as the State News would call it, Levin has strongly supported the repeal of the state sales tax. To replace lost revenues, he has proposed a re - evaluation of the state budget to eliminate unnecessary governmental expenditures, not the services which are needed. He has called for reducing the staff of the executive office, annually re - examining old programs which currently remain un evaluated once instituted, limiting outstate legislative travel expenses except to gain more federal monies or help create jobs for Michigan, and streamlining the administration of the welfare program.

Among the so - called "few jabs" that Levin has made at the utilities are his proposals to freeze all general rate increases to the residential customers and a rollback for residential customers of the recent estimated 50 per cent Consumers Power increase in gas rates.

A vote for Zolton Ferency is not a vote for political reform and responsiveness in government. Rather it is a vote for continuing the social and economic problems that this state cannot afford to bear by keeping the current administration in office. Such a vote

Carr not 'bought'

In his Oct. 31 column on the Carr - Taylor race, Michael McConnell contends that Carr is "bought and paid for" by labor because of campaign donations. Apparently Mr. McConnell does not even read the paper he writes for. Let's set the record straight by reviewing campaign contributions listed in the Oct. 30 issue of the State News. Of the $34,146 listed as contributed to Cliff Taylor's campaign, $33,646 comes from those benevolent contributors such as business - industry, medicine, banking, real estate, auto dealers and insurance. In other words, 98 per cent of Cliff Taylor's listed contributions come from business and professional groups. I let you, dear reader, ponder who is bought and paid for. Mark Schwitzgoebel

A 414 Armstrong Hall Students stamped on

During the televised debate between Robert Carr and Cliff Taylor on Oct. 31. Mr. Taylor made the inference that he considers students to be secondary citizens. His comments were made in response to the question of student eligibility for food stamps. He seems to be under the misconception that students are voluntarily unemployed and thus should be exempt from aid available to the needy.

May we point out that some students are unemployed simply because of the concept and the reality of representing such a large and diverse constituency. This Halloween we really did see a ghoul and a goblin.

Let me say at the outset that this should not be taken as a strictly anti - Carr letter. Though I have become thoroughly disgruntled as a result of a certain aspect of Bob Carr's campaign tactics, this is not an effort to debunk the man and I hold no personal or political grudges. What I protest is when the vote - gathering business can reach such a frenzy that the better interest of the public can be lost and innocent people forced to suffer the ill - effects of a campaign extravaganza.

The extravaganza which I refer to is the recent Steven Stills benefit concert for Bob Carr at the Stables. Most of us around campus are by now aware of that recent concert and those blessed few who were

WASHINGTON (AP) - The AFL - CIO's political arm spent $297,861 in 10 days to help labor - approved candidates in Tuesday's elections, topping a list of last - minute spending by special interest groups.

A check of reports on file with the government showed the giant labor group's political spending in the most recent reporting period - from Oct. 15 to Oct. 24 inclusive - far outpaced that of other rich lobbies, including the American Medical Association, dairy cooperatives and big individual unions such as the United Auto Workers (UAW) and United Steelworkers.

Many of these other special interest groups, however, reported large amounts of cash on hand at the end of the period, and may now be making large donations that won't be disclosed publicly until next year, when the next batch of public reports is due.

Last - minute donations of $5,000 or more must be reported publicly by telegram, but anything smaller won't be known to voters until well after ballots are cast.

Egypt asks UN force to relocate

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A United Nations official went to the Egyptian town of Ismailia on Sunday after Egypt asked that the UN Emergency Force (UNEF) vacate some of its headquarters buldings there.

The Jerusalem Post said observers feared the Cairo request was made because of plans "to build up Egypt's military potential in the area" and that the Egyptians were trying to have the UNEF head quarters moved to Cairo. "The question of UN Emergency Force headquarters accommodation at Ismailia has been raised, and the matter is under discussion," a UN spokesman in New York said.

He said the Egyptians want the buildings back in connection with next spring's planned reopening of the canal and that the proposed turnover does not mean the UNEF headquarters will be moved.

The Israeli state radio reported that UN sources in Jerusalem said the Egyptians requested two months ago that UNEF evacuate some of its Ismailia buildings. The radio said that the Egyptians wanted the buildings for the Suez Canal Authority.

Under its Finnish commander Lt. Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo, UNEF has policed an agreement worked out last winter by Secretary State Henry A. Kissinger to keep apart Israeli and Egyptian troops east of the Suez. Ismailia, with the main UNEF headquarters, is on the canal's western bank.

A spokesman for the Egyptian Foreign Ministry said Cairo "still holds to the Kissinger step - by - step approach. ... We welcome any step forward and will do our utmost to persuade other Arab countries to go along with it."

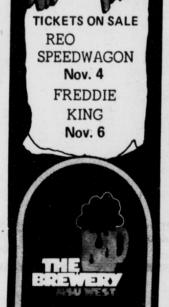

He did not rule out that a possible secret agreement was reached at the Arab summit to allow Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to do whatever he considers in Egypt's interest now that the Palestinians are a separate entity in the situation.

Egyptian officials would not speculate on Sadat's thoughts, but diplomatic sources said the Egyptian president messaged Kissinger the outcome of the summit and asked that he return to the area.

The AFL - CIO now has reported spending $1.7 million so far this year for federal, state and local elections, the largest total for a single political committee.

More than half the money in the most recent period -$150,000 of it - went into the giant labor organization's "educational fund," which will pay for get - out - the - vote efforts aimed at helping candidates on election day.

The remainder of the money was given directly to 121 individual campaigns. The biggest donations were $5,000 each to three Democratic candidates for the Senate. Rep. Wayne Owens of Utah, Patrick J. Leahy of Vermont, and Wendell H. Ford of

The AFL - CIO continued to make large donations even after Oct. 24. Sen. Birch Bayh, D - Ind., reported by telegram that he got a $5,000 gift from the labor federation. Owens also reported receiving an additional $6,000 from the AFL - CIO, and a separate $5,000 donation from the steelworkers.

FIVE GREAT REASONS TO ELECT SANDY LEVIN YOUR NEXT GOVERNOR

"I won't be a behind the desk governor. I will be visible and accessible. I want a personalized, more open and less remote state government."

SALES TAX REFORM

When Levin first went to the Michigan Senate in 1965, he helped write a bill that would have repealed this unfair tax on food and drugs. It never passed due to Republican opposition. This year, he is fighting hard for Proposition C, which gives the public the opportunity to vote this regressive tax cut. The current governor is against the repeal, claiming that it will cost the state too much revenue, although he was more than willing to give business a $90 million tax cut this year. However, the governor's claims are untrue. The Michigan Citizens Lobby has calculated that even a maximum increase of ½ of 1% in the State Income tax would cover lost revenue, assuming no reduction in state expenditures. Levin is confident that a small reduction in expenditures can be made, making an income tax hike unnecessary. For once, consumers would receive a well deserved break and the poor, retirees, and students, many of whom are living on fixed incomes, would no longer be taxed on the very necessities of life.

WOMEN in State Government

Levin has charged that the current governor has failed to ensure equal opportunities for women in state government jobs. Only 1 of 17 department heads appointed by the governor was a woman. Of 1,267 persons appointed to boards and commissions by the governor, only 12.4% were women. Only 6 of 84 paid positions in state government, appointed by the governor, were women. Levin feels that there are plenty more women in this state who are qualified, and pledges to appoint them to important position in his administration. "It is time that present discrimination against women in State government jobs be stopped and a determined effort be made to provide women with a real opportunity for advancement in the civil service system."

Environmental Protection

In 1970, Levin led a successful fight to protect the Waterfalls of Porcupine Mountain State Park from a construction project that would have ruined the natural beauty of the area. Also in that year, Levin sponsored a bill to permit citizens to take polluters to court. The House version became the Environmental Protection Act of 1970. As early as 1966, he co - sponsored legislation for a bond issue to finance pollution control. For the future, Levin proposes the formation of a State Land Commission, which would develop a comprehensive program for land use across the state. This would enable the best possible utilization of the state's natural resources, but more importantly, would protect scenic and wilderness areas for all to enjoy.

Protection for Farm Workers

Since 1969, Levin has sponsored over 12 bills to protect farm workers, including Day Care Centers for children of Farm Workers (SB 919, 1969) and the Minimum Wage Law (SB 912, 1969). This legislation never made it past the governor's desk. The best the current governor has done was to appoint a special task force whose recommendations he never acted on. Levin pledges to continue the fight for Migrant Labor legislation.

Higher Education Funding

In September of this year, Levin declared that "Inflation is pricing middle income students right out of higher education." A large number of students are not poor enough to qualify for scholarships or rich enough to afford the staggering costs of higher education. Levin proposes a state guaranteed loan program for all students regardless of family income. Up to $3,000 annually could be borrowed for use in colleges, universities, or technical - vocational schools. The program would not remove any existing funds from lower income student programs, but would provide all Michigan students with adequate funds for higher education. Only in this way, can the state live up to its responsibility in educating its students.

Carr reviews stands, denies union strings

By MIKE ARNETT

State News Staff Writer What is your personal background?

CARR - I graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1965, and from the law school there in 1968. While I was there I became active in the antiwar and civil rights movements. In 1968 I attended MSU on a Ford Foundation scholarship.

Since then I've been active in community affairs, particularly civil liberties. I've served on both the local and state board of the American Civil Liberties Union. I've done a lot of work on student voter registration. That's how I became active in East Lansing

Your campaign has been heavily financed by labor unions. If you are elected, won't you feel, afterward, that you will have to vote the way the unions want you to vote or risk losing their support in the next election?

CARR - There are no strings attached to that money. The unions have never asked me for any favors. I've opposed them when I disagreed with what they were trying to do. For example, the UAW supports auto import quotas, and I do not.

Of course, there are many things that they and I just naturally agree on. There is an affinity between us and the way we view the working people of this country - how they always get the short end of the stick and pay the big

Balanced Budget

You propose a balanced federal budget, yet also approve implementing a $100 billion national health care system. How can this be done without a tax increase?

CARR - Even assuming that it will cost $100 billion. that cost is already there. That is how much American are paying each year for health care. The question is: what source is that money coming from, and how are we going to budget that money?

I'm talking about is reordering national priorities away from wasteful military spending and foreign aid, and reforming the tax code over a period of time. I've never suggested anything but a balanced budget, and I oppose a tax increase, including the 5 per cent surtax proposed by President Ford.

Student Loans

What do you think should be done to make it easier for students to get loans to finance their educations?

CARR - I favor getting rid of needs analysis statements which students now have to fill out to qualify for loans. Eligibility should be much more uniform. Students should have the money to go where they want to go. There should be a guaranteed student loan program. The government should pick up the slack when private banks aren't making loans to students.

Food stamps underwrite a basic nutritional quality in this country.

How much of the student vote do you think you will receive? CARR - I got 88 per cent last time. I probably won't get that this time. To win, I have to have a heavy student turnout, and about 70 per cent of the student vote. This will

Do you think that American social problems are best handled at the national rather than the local level?

CARR - It is a combination. We have a national economy and national unemployment picture, and that is where these problems have to be solved. But law enforcement is one major problem that has to be dealt with at local levels, even though Congress can support these efforts and can help define crimes. But I'm opposed to a national police force.

Taylor discusses election issues

By MIKE ARNETT State News Staff Writer What is your personal

vember 4.10

ckground? TAYLOR - I grew up in e Flint area and attended the iversity of Michigan. I went law school at George ashington University. During last year there I served on staff of former Michigan ngressman James Harvey.

After graduating from law hool I enlisted in the Navy, d I served for three years as officer. In June of 1971 I as appointed an asst. osecuting attorney for gham County. In October 272 I entered private law actice. Also in 1972 I orked for the re - election of S. Sen. Robert Griffin.

Vietnam involvement You enlisted in the Navy at height of the Vietnam war, 1967. Do you think merican involvement in etnam was a mistake? TAYLOR - At that ne, I felt an obligation to go to the Navy. I felt an interest serving my country, dependent of my feelings ward the war.

I think everybody now inks it was a mistake. I oped, during the war, that the nited States could escape etnam with a viable foreign licy, and I guess we have.

Do you support the alization of marijuana? TAYLOR — The jury is not vet on marijuana, so I'm opposed to its decriminalization. Alcohol is a totally different problem, which springs from a different historical base.

Different from Chamberlain How do you differ politically from Charles Chamberlain (the outgoing Republican congressman)?

TAYLOR - Well, I don't really know. I feel he's significantly more conservative than I am. Also, I think there is a difference in approach. Mr. Chamberlain did not spend very much time campaigning on campus. I've spent a good part of my campaign talking with students on campus.

In addition, many of the members of my campaign staff are students and many of our volunteers have been students.

Food stamps Should students be eligible for food stamps?

TAYLOR - I'm opposed to that, because the food stamp program was designed to take care of people who are involuntarily unemployed, not voluntarily unemployed people like students. Also, when students receive food stamps it creates an antagonism toward the food stamp program, endangering the entire program. There is nothing wrong with the basic concept of food stamps.

What do you think should be done to make it easier for students to get loans to finance their educations?

TAYLOR - I support a continuation of the present program. The government should be the guarantor of loans to students, not the loaner. I know that loans are hard to come by now, because of deficit spending by the government. We should get the government out of the business of borrowing.

Average citizens Your campaign has emphasized representing the average citizen. Considering the association of Republicans with big wealth, why did you run as a Republican? TAYLOR - Because I think the Republican party at its best moments has tended to emphasize allowing maximum lattitude to the individual to ELECTIONS resolve the problems that face him. I don't think the government is the only institution that can solve social problems. The Republican party has supported this idea, while Democrats have seen government as unqualifiedly

During the primary, you criticized your opponent, state Sen. William Ballenger, for being the choice of a backroom meeting of power brokers. Many of the "power brokers" who attended that meeting are now supporting you with contributions. Is this a contradiction to your campaign slogan, "He's his own

TAYLOR - I wasn't the first choice of those men, and they haven't been that active in supporting me. The figure wouldn't be that significant.

Long - range problems

What do you feel will be the long - range problems this country will face over the next 25 years?

TAYLOR - Care of the elderly, as their numbers increase, will be a significant problem. The environment will continue to be a problem, as will coping with technology.

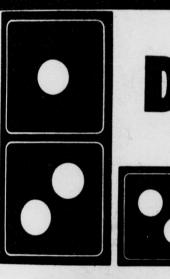

There will be a problem living in an increasingly complicated world, while still maintaining privacy for people to lead their lives as they want to lead them. It is going to take a strong civil liberties consciousness.

You support the American Medical Assn. (AMA) proposal for tax credits for medical costs. How can a low - income family that has no extra money pay for large medical bills and then deduct all of part of them at the end of the year?

TAYLOR - The first premise of the plan is that people are insured for health costs. But 15 per cent of the people in the country are so poor they will have minimal receptivity to incentives. So that group will receive a direct payment from the government. The $8 billion cost of the plan includes these payments.

Many parts of the U.S. medical system are working well. The AMA plan encourages innovation in the delivery of health care systems, and allows for minimal incursion into the tax area.

Bring on OSU; Spartans buck Badgers

By CHARLES JOHNSON State News Sports Writer

MADISON, Wis. - Bring on Ohio State! ... and Indiana! ... and Iowa! And if it were not for the one tie blemishing MSU's Big Ten record, the battle cry for the roses could very well be

After posting a 28 - 21 win over highly - touted Wisconsin before a Badger homecoming crowd of 78,848 Saturday, the Spartans believe they can do anything.

The victory boosted MSU's conference record to 3-1-1 and established it as sole owner of the no. 3 spot in the Big Ten title chase. Both Ohio State and Michigan kept their unbeaten Big Ten records intact at 5-0 with wins over Illinois and Indiana

Thus, the climate is set for a classic showdown Saturday when the country's No. 1 rated Buckeyes visit Spartan Stadium for a crucial conference game.

"I'm really looking forward to playing Ohio State now," MSU coach Denny Stolz beamed in the joy - filled Spartan dressing room. "I was looking forward to it before, but now we've got two wins in a row and we've solved our fumbling problems."

After the encounter with Ohio State, the Spartans will play Indiana in an away game and then finish up the season at home against Iowa Conceivably, the Spartans are still in position to finish on top of the Big Ten. However, it is not likely. The 21 - 21 tie two weeks ago against Illinois is looming more and more important as the title chase goes down to its final three weeks.

Had the Spartans emerged with a win over the Illini, their record would be 4-1 and they would be pretty much able to determine their own destiny. But now, barring a total collapse by the Buckeyes or Michigan, MSU will probably have to settle for Ohio State's remaining games following the clash with MSU include contests with Iowa and Michgian. The Wolverines will face Illinois next week and Purdue and the Buckeyes the following Saturdays.

"There are two teams ahead of us in the conference, but we're a little closer to them now than we were," Stolz said.

MSU jousted any hopes Wisconsin may have had of winning the Big Ten race and dipped the Badger conference mark to 2-3 and 4-4 overall with the victory.

Wisconsin entered the game as the 20th - ranked team in the nation after looking impressive against some of the country's top grid squads. MSU proved Saturday that it also fits into that class. For the second week in a row, MSU played almost errorless football and the result was another victory. "We had tremendous execution on offense," Stolz said. "I can't say enough about Charlie Baggett. It's about time people realized how good a quarterback he really is. I've been saying it for two years now."

Baggett chalked up 74 yards in the air, hitting on five of eight passes, and added another 61 yards on the ground in 12 carries. He also threw for his seventh touchdown pass of the season on a 6 yarder to tight end Larry Bethea, who was wide open in the end

MSU also got scores on a 22 - yard scamper by tailback Rich Baes, an 111 - yard run by fullback Levi Jackson and a 6 - yard keeper by Baggett.

Jackson's touchdown run got MSU on the scoreboard early in the opening quarter, but the Badgers marched right back for a TD. Tailback Billey Marek culminated Wisconsin's 77 - yard drive with a 19 yard run. The Badger extra point attempt failed as a State News Sports Writer The Minnesota Jinx is finally over for the MSU hockey team.

Tom Ross scored a power play goal off the skate of a Minnesota defenseman with about 7½ minutes to play in the final period Saturday night to give the Spartans a hard fought 4 - 3 victory over the Golden Gophers at the Munn Ice Arena

Minnesota had extended its two - season winning streak over the Spartans to five games with an overtime victory Friday by the same score, 4 -

MSU's new arena was officially dedicated in ceremonies before Friday's contest which featured an appearance by the man the facility is named after, Clarence L. "Biggie" Munn. A four by five foot photograph coach and athletic director was

Crowds of 5,419 and 5,627 watched the games, as MSU continued to set new records for hockey attendance.

It was the opening Western Collegiate Hockey Assn. series for both teams. Both squads are now 2-2 overall. It took the Spartans more than a period and a half to get rolling against the Gophers in their victory Saturday.

Down 1-0 in the second period after the Gophers' Reed Larson tallied in the first period, MSU's Daryl Rice poured in a pair of power play goals to give the Spartans a 2 -

Minnesota scored twice within a one and a half minute span early in the final period to regain the lead but Rice went back to work. The junior skated past the entire Gopher squad and beat goalie Bill Moen to score and complete a fine individual effort.

"I just kept on going with the puck and the next thing I knew, I was right on top of the goalie," Rice said of the tally which completed his 3 - goal hat trick.

Ross' winner was scored when he tried to pass to a wide open Rice at the side of the Minnesota net.

"That was not a very well behaved Minnesota hockey team," Bessone said. "And I'm surprised because they have great talent. They have too much talent to play that type of hockey."

Bessone thought the Spartans played a "ragged" hockey game for the first two periods Saturday. The Spartans came out

Friday night like they were going to skate the Gophers all the way back to Minneapolis. Steve Colp and Ross finally beat Moen late in the first period to give the Spartans the early advantage. Minnesota tallied the next

Tom Vanelli ended it when he beat Clark with a screen shot. "We played a tremendous game but we just didn't get any breaks," Bessone lamented after the contest. "We should have had five goals in the first period." Things evened out a bit for the Spartans Saturday, however. Ross winning goal came eight seconds after Vanelli was given a two minute tripping penalty.

All women interested in trying out for the MSU women's basketball team should attend an organizational meeting at 4 p.m. Nov. 12 in the lounge of the Women's Intramural Building.

It said Democratic leads Gov. Milliken by two percentage points, 44 - 42, overall, while the governor holds a 45 - 41 lead among voters most likely to go to the polls Tuesday.

The survey, conducted by the Market Opinion Research organization for the News said 12 per cent of the voters queried still have not made up The News said this is the > since its polls began 25 years Originally, it said, the survey was completed before the Damman affair blew up, so it sent survey teams back out to reassess the mood of the largest number of undecideds state's voters. The results of the reassessment survey will come out before the election.

Two weeks ago, Levin led 45 - 43 among all voters but trailed Milliken by six percentage points, 47 - 41, among most likely voters.

The survey said many undecided voters apparently lean to Levin because they appear disturbed by the issue he has hit hardest - the economy.

It also said there has been a definite shift away from Levin

Precinct data available for change of addresses

MSU students not only have to figure out who they will be voting for tomorrow, but also they must decipher where they will Any student who voted in East Lansing last year and has not changed his address with City Hall should still vote in his old precinct and alert the poll workers to the change. A voter need not have a voter registration card with them to Anyone who is told they are not on the rolls should call City

Hall and see if they have been removed to an inactive list in which case they will be immediately reinstated and allowed to vote. A student who has moved out of East Lansing within the last 60 days can still vote in the city on this election.

His Belief

It is in times such as we are now living that we need strong, honest and experienced leadership in public office. A strong local government is needed to keep decision making at the level it belongs.

With my past experience in local government and organizational work, I feel that I can contribute to the type of government that citizens want tnd deserve - a government that prevents waste of taxpayers dollars, promotes strong law enforcement, provides for all, from the student to the senior citizen and works for the community good rather than to its detriment.

I solicit your support for County Commissioner on November 5.

Nine hopefuls vying for governor's chair

Levin - Democrat

Sander M. Levin, 42, Berkley. Counsel to Detroit law firm. Former state senator; former state Senate minority leader; former state Democratic chairman; Democratic gubernatorial candidate in 1970; former member of Oakland County Board of Supervisors.

Levin vows to work to "make the legislative process more open and responsive to the needs of the people." He says he would force industry to pay a "fair share" of utility rates, and would support enactment of "though, meaningful" campaign reform legislation.

Levin would change taxation by reducing reliance on property taxes for school funding, assessing property taxes more equitably and supporting the elimination of the constitutional ban on the enactment of a graduated income tax.

He also calls for state supported day care centers, consumer protection education, the weeding out of fraudulent welfare cases and the building of "realistic incentives" for welfare recipients.

Milliken - Republican

Gov. William G. Milliken, 52, Traverse City. Former lieutenant governor; former state senator; former state majority floor leader; former trustee of Northwestern Michigan College; former member of Executive Committee, National Governor's Conference.

Gov. Milliken pledges to continue "improving equity, providing additional renter relief and repealing the corporate franchise tax and the personal property tax on inventories.

He would support campaign finance reform and "a wide range" of consumer protection measure, which he says would include auto repair and women's credit measures.

He believes people "truly in need should receive all possible assistance," and that it is essential, in order to fulfill this goal, that "only the needy" get government aid.

Davidson is a champion of citizens' rights, and would work to limit the power of government to interfere with the private affairs of citizens. He opposes regional government, which he says deprives citizens of the right to use their land as they see fit.

Davidson advocates the elimination of the "progressive income tax," and wants to tax the foundations that are currently tax free, unless they limit their purposes to "charitable pursuits."

Davidson says he is opposed to "tax - supported subsidies to able - bodied persons who refuse to work, engage in welfare fraud or utilize their reproductive capacities for the purpose of securing ever larger welfare payments."

Maisel - Socialist Workers Robin Maisel, 30, Detroit. Printer. Activist and shop steward in Graphic Arts

International Union. Maisel backs no taxation of incomes below $15,000, progressive taxes on incomes up to $25,000 and 100 per cent taxation of incomes above $25,000. He would also repeal all sales taxes.

Maisel would work to give all welfare recipients a "livable allowance" through payments at unionized labor rates. He advocates 24 - hour day care facilities and affirmative action to hire women and minorities and government provided jobs

Maisel would repeal all antistrike legislation involving public employes. He would also support "massive state funding of schools to hire every certified teacher and reduce class size."

Horvath - Socialist Labor

James C. Horvath, Warren, no biographical information available.

Horvath advocates "a new form of government to fit the needs of our industrialized society. The base of this society will come from social ownership.

Horvath said the campaign has one issue: capitalism versus socialism. And capitalism, Horvath said, "is not worth

Horvath calls all politicians "obsolete" and says all power must rest in the hands of the people. He believes that "war, misery, poverty, unemployment, crimes of every variety, waste and destruction of our precious natural resources" are the result of capitalism in America, Andrews - Conservative and that capitalism must be replaced. Ferency - Human Rights Zolton Ferency, 52, East Lansing. Associate professor of Criminal Justice, MSU. Democratic gubernatorial candidate in 1966; chairman of State Democratic Party from 1963 to 1968; former executive secretary to Gov. John B. Swainson; former director, Michigan Workmen's Compensation Dept.; former commissioner, Michigan Liquor Control Commission. Ferency, cofounder of the Human Rights party in 1970, is calling for changes in the tax structure to provide for a graduate income tax, and supporting public acquisition and ownershp of Michigan's state spending, cut state taxes Andrews claims this system and reduce the number of state employes. He sees state government response to inflation as one major campaign issue.

Andrews wants to reduce

Another major issue, says Andres, is the high cost of welfare. He favors a system whereby welfare recipients would be required to pick up their checks, rather than have the checks mailed out.

reduced the number of people on welfare by 20 or 25 per cent in other states where the system was adopted. Andrews also would eliminate sales tax on food and drugs and increase benefits to the elderly.

Cliff Taylor

THE REASONS

Tomorrow, you'll be electing the man who'll represent you in Congress for the next two years. We think the man who'll best be able to do that, and the man who'll be best for the Sixth District, is Cliff Taylor.

This is why:

1. Cliff Taylor set a limit on contributions to his campaign by special - interest groups or individuals, because he didn't want to even give the appearance of owing his election to any one source of funds. He even returned $3,000 to one group when they tried to go over his limit. By contrast, Cliff's major opponent has received over half his funding from special - interest groups.

2. Cliff Taylor has made his campaign open and honest from the very beginning. He has revealed his complete personal finances - income, holdings, and taxes paid. He has reported all contributions to his campaign, large and small. And he has campaigned on the issues, not on personalities.

3. Cliff Taylor believes that for the good of America, we must balance the federal budget. Cliff believes that the many years of deficit spending over the past generation has been a major cause of today's crippling rate of inflation, which is particularly cruel to lower - and middle - income families.

4. Cliff Taylor also believes that the American people will not and cannot stand another tax increase. So he's opposed to President Ford's proposed 5% personal - income surtax. And he's also opposed to any massive new federal spending programs that, by they very nature, would require an equally massive tax increase.

5. Cliff Taylor has talked to literally thousands of MSU students and has walked to over 15,000 homes throughout the District during the past several months. From this, Cliff knows what you're concerned about and what you want him to do in

6. Cliff Taylor's election will help maintain the present balance in Congress. The Democrats will still be in power but will not have the kind of lopsided majority that can lead to abuses of the American system of checks and balances in government.

Six good reasons, then, for electing Cliff Taylor to represent the Sixth District in Washington. We'll have a man who really reflects the concerns and desires of the people of this district.

And you'll have an independent Congressman you can count on.

IF YOU CONSIDER YOURSELF AN INDEPENDENT VOTER, YOU SHOULD BE INDEPENDENT ENOUGH TO CONSIDER VOTING FOR CLIFF TAYLOR.

"Bob Carr rides the steed of change in this 6th District congressional campaign."

(This and the following quotes were excerpted from the Michigan State News Editorial, "Put Carr in Congress, Monday, October 28, 1974.)

"And when the mirage of appearance and the dust of plausibility clear, his Republican opponent, Cliff Taylor, rides the same old nag that stumbled into this mess.

"Taylor's philosophy sometimes displays an insensitivity to the expressed opinions of students, the poor and the disenchanted.

"Just look at the issues where the candidates clash.

"Carr supports guaranteed jobs for everyone. Taylor supports the limited jobs program of the Ford Administration.

"Carr would legalize marijuana, Taylor would not.

"Carr would oppose constitutional amendments barring abortion and busing for desegregation. Taylor would support both.

"Carr would slash $10 billion from the defense budget. Taylor does not believe that such a large sum could be eliminated without jeopardizing national strength.

"Carr would be far more vigorous in plugging tax loopholes.

"Carr advocates nationalized health care, while Taylor backs the more modest program suggested by the American Medical Assn.

"The issues, the campaign and most of all, the moribund national political situation, point to a vote for Bob Carr. He has sought, and deserves, a coalition of working people and students to help infuse some much needed flux into the slowly changing world of Washington."

We can't say it any better. Please vote tomorrow, November 5th.

Dammon affair may end career of Gov. Milliken has to go," Levin said. Following Milliken's Saturday press conference. Levin held one of his own and said the voters deserve a better explanation.

"The governor has had months to investigate Mr. Damman," Levin said. "There should have been no need for last - minute defenses of Mr. Damman.

"The governor's failure to completely investigate earlier James Damman's activities ... is not the kind of decisive leadership the public has a right to expect," Levin said.

The Sunday Free Press editorial said information turned up in the last two days during an investigation ordered by Milliken does not show Damman guilty of "subterfuge, profiteering and abuse of power."

"There remains about Mr. Damman's actions much that involved poor judgment or the appearance of conflict of interest," the Free Press editorial said. "Appearance may be objectionable, but it is not the same as fact."

The paper urged further investigation of Damman but said, "The tragic aspect of this situation is that our conclusion, which now in our judgement is not supported by the facts at hand, may well endanger unjustly the re-election chances of Gov.

The Damman controversy also raised questions about conflict of interest involving Democratic lieutenant governor candidate Paul

Nixon taken off critical list

received no blood transfusions since Thursday.

Connie Hamilton, director of critical care nursing at Memorial Hospital Medical Center described Nixon as "physically quite ill" during a briefing to newsmen on a change in the nursing arrangement for Nixon. "When he sits up, they (nurses) will watch his blood pressure and his pulse and any change of his vital signs," she said. A drop in blood pressure and a rise in the pulse rate are symptomatic of the shock which pushed Nixon into critical condition last week. Hamilton declined to respond to a question on whether Nixon had been irritable or depressed during his hospitalization, saying, "I think that's personal information." She said Nixon's wife, Pat, and daughters, Julie Nixon Eisenhower and Tricia Nixon Cox, were permitted to visit the former president only five minutes each hour. "They have been extremely sensitive to his needs," Hamilton said of the family which has maintained a vigil at the hospital since last

Tuesday night.

Lungren said the former president would continue to receive 10 - minute "positive pressure breathing treatments" about every four hours. He said Nixon had received a total of six units of blood, nine units of red blood cell concentrate and one unit of albumen liquified protein - during his hospitalization. "We're keeping open the intravenous for emergency medication should that become necessary," Lungren said, though there was no indication Nixon would need such treatment. Nixon was readmitted to the hospital, 50 miles north of his seaside home at San Clemente, on Oct. 23 after an oral anticoagulant proved ineffective in treating phlebitis in his left leg.

He had spent 12 days in Memorial Hospital ending Oct. 4 for treatment of the problem, an inflammation of the veins. During that stay a small blood clot broke off from a larger clot in his thigh, traveled through his heart and lodged in his right lung. Lungren released Nixon from hospital care after he concluded the clot no longer posed a serious threat.

the freshmen are more Republican than Democratic, and are the only class that is skewed so. Graduate students are the least Republican and teh most independent class. Of 38 seniors, 39.5 per cent

U.S. foreign med students face problems

By DENISE CRITTENDON State News Staff Writer

Though the long road to admittance into an American medical school may look bleak, the foreign medical school, considered an alternative by some pre - med students, may not be any more

In reality, it can be a very disappointing experience. Each year 1,000 to 2,000 American students, most of whom did not make it into a med school here, attend foreign medical schools where the admission standards are lower.

But approximately 80 per cent of those drop out during their rallied to the aid of a young Indiana boy Friday who needs a steady supply of mothers milk to counteract a rare blood

Most were responding to a photograph published Friday showing the child, Jeffery Burton, 6, and his foster mother, Mrs. Margaret Burton of Hammond, Ind.

Mrs. Burton appealed for milk donations because the supply she had on hand will run out by the weekend. Jeffery needs at least one quart a day to keep the disease, called acrodermatitis enteropathica, under control.

One woman, Dot Gonia of Trenton, has suggested the formation of an independent milk bank in the state.

She has appealed to mothers to contact her at telephone no. 313-675-2556 so that such a bank could be organized.

American students who choose to attend foreign med schools are apt to face several problems, including language barriers and $3,000 annual tuition rates, James Conklin, assoc. dean for administration and student affairs of MSU's College of Human Medicine, said.

Often, these students confront a stunning barrier when they return to the U.S. expecting to find a job, he said.

"There is a lot of competition for good physicians for internships," Conklin said. "But usually hospitals have preferences for American graduates. Because of biases, they think American graduates are better.

The pressures to "get in" are high in this country. In the nation's 105 medical schools, there are only about 1,400 vacancies per year - very close to the 1,600 pre - med students enrolled at MSU alone.

Foreign schools, though, sometimes enroll as many as 2,000 to 3,000 students in a single year's class. Those foreign med schools with the highest numbers of American students are the University of Manila in the Philippines, the University of Guadalajara in Mexico and the University of Bologna in Italy. Substandard training In a recent report compiled by the Assn. of American Medical colleges, foreign medical schools were called inadequate and Detroit Memorial Hospital and graduate of a foreign medical school, said foreign medical students are generally not as well trained as American medical students because the schools are not as good. The foreign medical schools lack the finances to provide sufficient training, he said. As a result, their graduates are usually not as knowledgeable in the areas of basic science as the American medical school graduates.

Because of their poor medical background, foreign medical graduates may not seem to be as skilled as American graduates, Hodari said. The problem, mainly due to inadequate training, is usually corrected after they begin their internships or residencies in the United States.

Clinic experience lacking William Weil, chairman and professor of the College of Human Development, pointed out that some foreign countries such as Sweden, Switzerland and Germany offer quality education. These schools, which are highly rated, are equally as hard to enter as American schools. The more commonly used poorer foreign schools such as the University of Guadalajara pose the problems.

"American medical students tend to migrate to these schools that they can get into easily and these schools have low

Among the problems, he said, are the lack of clinical rather than classroom experience, and an overabundance of students. In many cases, a student attending a foreign medical school may be required to work in the country entered for one or two years after his graduation.

Service for country

"Theoretically, if you are educated by the system of another country, you are expected to do some service for them. It extends about one or two years but some students will buy way out," he said.

The association's report bases its accusations of the inferior of foreign medical schools on two basic differences:
