A railway workers' strike for higher year - end bonuses, timed partially to embarrass the government during Ford's visit, forced an estimated 36 million Japanese to find alternate transportation to work or else to stay at home. But the 24 - hour strike, which ended at noon, had no significant effect on Ford's activities.

"I'm greatly honored to be the first American president to visit Japan," Ford told Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka as they sat down in the guest house later for the first in a series of policy talks.

In Seoul, the capital of South Korea and next stop on Ford's Far East trip, riot police blew tear gas into a church to stop an antigovernment demonstration by some 800 clergy and laymen.

With Ford's visit only three days away, rallies and demonstrations against the government of President Chung Hee Park continued. An estimated 4,000 women university students held an indoor rally to demand a new constitution and the release of persons imprisoned for antigovernment Reporting to newsmen on Ford's talk with Tanaka, Kissinger said the President assured Tanaka that Japan "could count on a stable level of agricultural supplies from the United States." This was a vital guarantee from the world's largest food producer after the Nixon administration last year abruptly halted exports of soybeans, a Japanese staple.

Kissinger said Ford was understanding about Japanese concern over nuclear weapons reportedly brought into Japanese ports by U.S. warships. But he implied the controversy remained unsettled by saying that the two sides agreed on further consultation between the secretary of state and Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura. He added that the 1960 security treaty at Japanese ports.

Arab guerillas infiltrate Israeli village, kill four

By Associated Press

Israel and Palestinian guerillas exchanged threats of new bloodshed Tuesday, hours after an early - morning raid on an Israeli settlement in which authorities said three Arab invaders and four Israelis were killed.

Israeli gunboats were reported cruising off the coast of southern Lebanon. The Lebanese Defense Ministry put the army on alert and urged the public to report any threatening Israeli naval movement. Guerillas also were alerted throughout the

In Damascus, Syria, the Popular Democratic Front (PDF), an organization that said its men carried out the suicide raid on Beit Shean, declared such attacks will continue "until Israel recognizes our rights and existence, and until a secular democratic Palestine state is established."

Nonaligned delegations circulated a resolution among General Assembly members Tuesday generally endorsing Arafat's demands. If passed in a vote expected Friday, it would support "the right to national independence and sovereignty" of the Palestinians, to be obtained "by all means" allowable under the UN charter.

The PDF spokesman said Tuesday's raid was partly to avenge the death of an Arab girl last weekend in an anti - Israeli riot in the Israeli - held West Bank of the Jordan River.

The attack on Beit Shean, an Israeli town near Jordan and the Sea of Galilee, was the first since last June. It brought the Israeli toll in guerilla raids to 57 dead and 120 wounded over seven months.

Israeli authorities gave this account: Dressed as workers, the three guerillas infiltrated the town in predawn darkness and blasted their way into a four story apartment house, killing a 40 - year old mother of three. The others were shot when they tried to flee down a stairway. Twenty of the four - story building's 75 residents were injured leaping from windows in escape attempts.

Three hours later Israeli troops rushed the apartment while others fired into its windows, and all three Arabs were dead. Infuriated townspeople threw the Arab bodies out of window and set fire to them. Information Minister Aharon Yariv vowed "quick, rapid action" against guerillas "in Israel, in the Arab states and all over the world."

"We are determined to remove the guerilla policy with force wherever and whenever we can find the terrorists," he told a Jerusalem news conference.

The Popular Democratic Front, a Marxist Palestinian guerilla group, claimed responsibility for the raid and pledged more terror attacks "where the enemy least expects them."

A PDF communique issued in Beirut said the raid was a reprisal for recent Israeli air, ground and sea attacks on Palestinian concentrations in South

In Jerusalem, Yariv said the Beit Shean raid had "ripped the mask off the PLO and exposed their policy of indiscriminate murder.'

In Washington, the State Department condemned the terrorist raid on the Israeli community.

"Once again we have witnessed the tragic spectacle of a terrorist attack on innocent civilians. We want to express our shock over these senseless murders," a statement released Tuesday said.

Other officials said privately the raid would set back the Palestinian Liberation Organization's effort to gain support from the United States and Western Europe.

Turkey costs beat inflation woes

By JOHN TINGWALL State News Staff Writer

Add one amen to your Thanksgiving prayer - for the price of turkey.

Unbelievable as it may seem in these days of trotting 12 per cent inflation, the price of turkey has dropped sizeably from last year's all - time high of 83 cents per Low prices in area grocery stores for the holiday bird - between 45 and 55 cents - per pound - are attributed to a surplus of turkeys in the state and the resulting backlog in storage freezers.

"We've come into turkey season with a huge supply," Henry Larzelere, professor of agricultural economics, said. "The wholesale price has dropped from 60 and Larzelere, who specializes in poultry prices, said the price for toms will probably jump back up next year, since the 1975 "crop" will be 10 per cent smaller than the 1974 harvest.

Turkeys, fed on corn and soybean meal, mature in three to six months, close to 1973 prices," Larzelere said.

Hatched around February, they are then slaughtered from July to September and frozen, because of the seasonal

The surplus of frozen birds accounts for this year's wholesale price drop.

"But retail prices are anybody's guess," Larzelere said. "If the retailer thinks he can attract attention and get shoppers in, they'll put them on specials and sell them at virtually no margin.

At Meijer's Thrifty Acres in Okemos, turkey prices range from 43 to 69 cents per pound, compared to last year's 55 to 79 cent price spread. Meat Dept. manager Thurlow Schmieding said he considers turkey one of this year's best bargains, though some grades of beef have dropped in price since last year.

Schmieding, who boasts that Meijer's has a turkey for every pot and a price for every pocketbook," said this season the supermarket will sell freshly - killed turkeys for the first time.

"Some people prefer a fresher turkey," Schmieding said. "I've known people to drive 20 miles for a fresh turkey, but myself, I can't taste the difference.'

He said turkeys killed one day before selling will cost 10 to 15 cents more per pound than regular freezer turkeys.

For those unable to afford the holiday bird at decreased prices, the Michigan Lottery has zeroed in on the abundant flock.

The state lottery bureau will conduct its biggest bonus giveaway ever Thursday - awarding $10 toward the purchase of a turkey - to an estimated 10,000 winners.

Michigan's largest turkey producer is expected to cut down on the size of its million - plus flocks next year to coax prices back up, but the price of this year's holiday supply will not be affected.

Officials hit jail terms for pot

Elimination of prison sentences for marijuana smokers was urged Tuesday by the present and former White House chief spokesmen on drug abuse.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, director of the Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention, said he opposes jail penalties but would not remove all penalties.

His predecessor, Dr. Jerome H. Jaffe, went a step further. Jaffe said Congress should consider limiting the penalties for simple possession of marijuana to a fine or eliminating the penalties altogether.

The two men, both appointees of former President Richard M. Nixon, were leadoff witnesses at a two-day hearing before the Senate subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics.

Nixon, aides heard on tape

Two White House aides, faced with news that the seams of the Watergate coverup were popping, urged then - President Nixon to have former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell take the blame and face criminal indictment for the scandal.

"The jig is up," Watergate coverup trial defendant John D. Ehrlichman urged Nixon to tell Mitchell on April 14, 1973.

Armed with indications that the two Watergate principals were about to begin confessing to federal prosecutors, Ehrlichman advised the President to tell Mitchell that he must "recognize that you are not going to escape indictment. There's no way ...'

Watergate prosecutors introduced into evidence the tape recording of a one - hour, 56-minute conversation among Nixon, Ehrlichman and cover - up defendant H. R. Haldeman. The recording had been released previously by the White House.

House schedule set for Rocky

Chairman Peter Rodino, D - N.J., said Tuesday he has scheduled eight days of hearings by the House Judiciary Committee starting Thursday on the nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president.

Allowing time out for Thanksgiving and Democratic organization of the next Congress, Rodino's schedule calls for completing the hearings on Dec. 5, leaving ample time for a House vote before the current session ends. Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said Tuesday the Senate will probably vote after Thanksgiving.

The Senate Rules Committee has completed its hearings and will probably make its recommendation on the nomination this week.

Plan fails to get OK from labor

Spokesmen for organized labor told the nation's Democratic governors at their conference at Hilton Head Island, S. C. Tuesday that they still have some reservations about a proposal aimed at preventing a party bloodbath at next month's miniconvention in Kansas

But they indicated, with some guidance from Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss, that they may abandon a move to spell out more clearly their opposition to delegate quotas for the party's 1976 national convention after being assured that the governors also oppose any effort to require specific numbers of blacks, women and young persons.

Phillippine embassy siege over

A Philippine immigrant who held the Philippine ambassador to the United States hostage at gunpoint for 11 hours was ordered committed to a hospital Tuesday for mental examinations.

U.S. District Judge George L. Hart Jr. signed the order committing Napoleon Lechoco, despite pleas by defense lawyers that the siege at the Philippine embassy here was a one - time incident brought on by grief over a son being detained in the Philippines.

The siege began Monday afternoon and ended early Tuesday.

French wage policy protested

France's two largest labor federations organized a massive protest parade Tuesday against the government's wage policies, but a would - be 24 - hour general strike was largely ignored and ineffective.

Some 100,000 workers marched through the streets of eastern Paris past mountains of garbage piled up at street courners as a result of a week - old strike of garbage collectors. And all of France remained in the grip of a month - old strike of postal workers which has virtually paralyzed the distribution and collection of mail. There was no move toward a settlement of these strikes.

The industry spokesmen said the lower accident rate after nationwide speed limits were lowered to 55 miles per hour did not save enough money to offset current loss payouts.

The meeting began after city planner Michael Conlisk explained the program, outlining possible uses for the funds, and then asked for citizen suggestions.

J.D. Davis asked the city to consider building some type of recreation center where senior citizens could gather.

Leo Hawk suggested the city develop some plans for a coordination of programs and facilities with MSU and the East Lansing public school system which would allow senior citizens a chance to get involved in life - long education

"Some of us want to demonstrate to the students across the street what older people can do," Hawk said. Another senior citizen said the city had a need for some type of housing for the elderly and suggested the possibility of building an apartment complex for the old folks.

"People move out of East Lansing to get into elderly housing elsewhere," he said. Representatives from the Drug Education Center and the Listening Ear both requested that the city consider using part of the funds to find new facilities for the organizations.

Conlisk then mentioned some of the ideas that had come up previously and asked the citizens how they felt about them. One idea the planning department came up with was to buy city housing, renovate it and sell it to middle income homeowners.

EDITORIALS 'U' must think safety

Death is a convincing argument. Ever since a student died by walking in front of a train while trying to cross the Grand Trunk railroad tracks from an unmarked path across from X lot, University administrators have been saying it should never have happened.

Leaders of the breast - beaters have been Milton Baron, director of campus parks and planning, and Jack Breslin, MSU executive vice president. Both said they pushed for safety crossings at X lot and its sister hazard at F lot last spring. But, they said, the cost of such measures would be prohibitive.

It now appears University officials never seriously investigated the cost and feasibility of putting safety measures up at the crossings, and casually took at face value inflated Grand Trunk estimates of construction costs for the projects.

In retrospect it is sadly clear that University officials did not make a serious effort to correct a hazardous situation for hundreds of students.

"After all," we have only a limited amount of money, and we had to consider the fact that only 1,800 students who park in the lots would use bridges or walkways at the spots," Baron said.

This is calloused reasoning. By arguing along similar lines; it would seem a waste of limited dollars to accommodate handicapped Recent State News inquiries show that two overhead bridges at the crossings could be built for $60,000 to $90,000 - almost half of the $126,000 cited by Grand Trunk as an estimate for two track level crossways.

Breslin and Baron both admit they never really thought about overhead bridges, but assumed they would be too expensive.

University officials must not complacently accept Grand Trunk's claims that their control over track - level construction makes their cost estimates unrefutable.

If the University decides to go ahead with track - level walkways it should make the railroad explain the discrepencies in its estimates and private contractors' lower estimates.

If the railroad sticks to its guns in its high construction estimates, the University should then look to the possibility of building bridges at the two parking lot sights. Construction of bridges would be cheaper than railroad estimates on walkway construction, and would not fall under stringent railroad construction control.

Any plans made now by the University on railroad safety construction are too late to prevent one tragedy. Next time, University officials must act on safety measures before a death convinces

Football ticket ripoff exposed

Regarding the letter concerning football seating in the Nov. 14 State News, we have some additional information which may shed some additional light on this situation. As the letter stated, the best student seats are seats 1-18 in rows 18-60 Section 9, for a total of 756 "great" seats. We were in line at 2 a.m. Monday, Nov. 4, and were fourth in line at one of the booths. By the time we got to the window there were no seats 1-18, rows

The lady running the booth checked the adjoining booth, and there were none of the 756 great seats there either. We were forced to accept less desirable seats. On that same day, we went to the Jenison Fieldhouse ticket office and spoke to one of the asst. athletic directors. He told us it was the policy of the athletic department to give away 200 of the above 756 seats to high school football players and their parents.

He indicated the remaining 556 seats (31 rows) should have been divided equally among the four booths. He also said for further information on this problem we should talk to John Laetz. assistant to the athletic director for game management, who is in charge of ticket distribution. We tried on several occasions to contact Mr. Laetz, but we never reached him, and to our knowledge, he never returned our calls.

We then interviewed the people that were manning the booths Monday morning. Among the four booths, only 15 of the 31 rows could be accounted for, and 13 of these 15 were at one booth

At the game we determined that rows 30-40, seats 1-18, were filled with high school students and their parents. Rows 22-29, seats 1-18 were predominatly adults, reportedly members of the

Centurians, a group that donates money to

We question the propriety of giving student tickets away to special groups, but even more important, we feel that students should be made aware of ticket distribution policies for all athletic events. Once again, the student has been stepped upon, and we feel that it's time the student body realizes where the

Sorry, Mickey

I was distressed and disappointed after reading the article titled "MSU - diploma mill grinding out students ". What seems to be happening is the goal of the University is becoming synonymous with that of trade school: to produce an employable end - product. This goal is an important one, but it a far cry from the traditional academic purpose. In times past, higher education was meant to produce a more refined, learned and ethical human being. Now it seems the quality of a person is superfluous; what is important is a man or woman's potential for employment, one's marketability.

I was abashed by the educational philosophy displayed by the anonymous professor and by John Shingleton. Their comments on the social science and liberal arts fields are insulting and debasing to students, faculty and to the creative potential of the University.

"If the students opts for the Mickey Mouse route to graduation, then he can find it," Shingleton says, referring in part to those majoring in these two fields. He agrees with the anonymous professor that, "...the immaturity of many students precludes them from making realistic decisions on what they want from a college education." "Mickey Mouse" hardly describes these programs.

RR X-ing unsafe

After reading the State News articles concerning the death of a student at the Fee railroad track crossing, it's obvious that both the University and news media are either extremely naive or attempting to pass the blame onto students, when the negligence lies with the University.

The stories state that last year this problem didn't occur and that many students this year don't cross at proper crossings. The fact is that all students from Fee complex cross at undesignated crossings and that there were certainly just as many students with cars in X lot last year using the same well worn paths.

Why do students cross there? The State News attributes it to fearfulness, carelessness or laziness. It's probably laziness. But ask faculty and staff who have their cars at their fingertips where they would cross if they had to park their cars in X lot. I'm sure most would choose to take the short - cuts instead of walking the extra 1000 feet down to Hagadorn Road and back to their cars, which is close to a half a mile.

So wake up and solve the problem. It should have been solved years ago and the University knows it. But it always takes something like this to wake them up. It's too late for Miss Handelsman but not for the rest of the students. Let's do something before it happens again, instead of dodging the blame. We are writing from Wilson Hall where

The Doctor's Bag

BY ARNOLD WERNER, M.D.

Letters may be addressed to Dr. Werner at from one human to another raises MSU Health Center. Names need not be included unless a personal reply is equested. Is it possible to transfer a human embryo from the uterus of one woman into another before implantation?

If not, is such research being conducted and how successful have they been? In humans, research has been done on fertilizing the egg outside of the woman's body and then implanting it into her uterus. Apparently, there have been some successes in terms of getting the implantations to take, though these successes have been far and few between. If such a procedure could be worked out, it would be a tremendous benefit to a number of women who produce normal eggs but have been unable to become pregnant in the usual way.

The idea of transferring the embryo immense ethical problems not the least of which involves the use of one person's body to provide a service for another when that service has to do with the very formation of human life. If the technique was sophisticated enough to permit women undergoing abortion to donate the developing fetus to another woman while not being subjected to any added risk, the idea would have immense potential. At this time, the state of the technology is not that well developed.

In cattle, however, where ethical problems are rather narrowly defined, it has been possible to prime certain choice cows with hormones to get them to produce many ova, fertilize these by artificial insemination with semen from choice bulls and then transfer the fertilized ova to ordinary cows. This increases the number of highly desired cows that can be bred in a given period of time. Such experimentation has been successful.

My husband, a normally gentle individual, cannot tolerate a crying baby. He blows in the baby's face or gives him sharp raps on the back to stop him. We have a happy, quiet five - month - old who usually only cries when we change his diaper and when he is hungry. My husband thinks his methods are just harmless, but effective ways to stop crying.

He also says you don't have time for problems about babies. Seeing him blow in the baby's face makes me feel violent towards my husband and I am afraid I am going to become a husband beater.

Babies have relatively few ways of expressing how they feel, and relatively few ways of expending energy. Crying and then being responded to and having one's distress relieved is one of the earliest communication links.

There are all sorts of baby cries, those that indicate hunger, pain and probably plain old weariness. Blowing in the baby's face may be a harmless distraction to divert the baby's attention from what is bothering him, much as rattling something in front of it would be. Rapping on the back is unwise. Little babies should not be shaken, rattled, folded, bent or spindled. They are fragile. Their heads are heavy and still loosely attached to their bodies. Their brains can rattle and produce internal bleeding and subsequent addling.

But, it doesn't sound as if you are complaining about your husband as an abusive parent. Perhaps your husband needs some reassurance that it's alright if the baby cries and perhaps you are over responding to your husband's attempts to harmlessly distract the baby.

Special presidential election needed

President Ford went off to the Orient in a Russian fur hat that brought to mind nothing so much as Cal Coolidge, another Republican political accident who had a penchant for funny headgear in the White House. Since Congress has not yet confirmed Nelson Rockefeller as vice president, Ford is taking some criticism for leaving the country, the legislators are being accused of dangerous dawdling, and the 25th Amendment itself is certainly under fire.

This is the amendment that was intended primarily to deal with the problem of a mentally or physically disabled president, but which almost incidentally provided the machinery by which Ford became vice president and thus put him in position to succeed Richard Nixon as president. Under the terms of the same amendment. Ford now has nominated Rockefeller to be vice president. If he is confirmed, the nation for the first time will have appointees, rather than elected politicians, as president and vice president.

This is not a good situation. The people clearly have a right to make their own choice, even between knaves, fools and demagogues, and it is surprising how often they manage to pick a good man despite the limited choices they usually are offered. Granted all that, the 25th Amendment is not necessarily bad, despite the present double - appointee problem.

It took, after all, truly extraordinary circumstances to bring the amendment into play twice in less than a year. Americans have not in nearly two centuries of experience had a vice president forced to resign in a plea bargain to avoid criminal prosecution, though one vice president resigned for political reasons and some others died in office. Nor have we had a president forced to resign to avoid impeachment, though one narrowly missed being removed from office and eight died while serving. The chances that both will happen in the same term - a vice - presidential vacancy, then a presidential vacancy, creating still another vice presidential vacancy - are astronomical.

office. The Democrats, in the same sense, might have been spared the Eagleton affair. If anything, the 25th Amendment seems to emphasize the haphazard vice presidential choices Americans have been exposed to in the past. And Rockefeller's ordeal suggests how little they may ordinarily know even about men who run for president — more than once at that.

Besides, the 25th Amendment was studied carefully in the Senate Judiciary Committee, passed by both houses of Congress, and ratified by three - fourths of the states - the most considered process of change in American life. The amendment was passed to meet a long term need and ought not to be repealed or changed drastically merely because of a current - perhaps unique - situation.

Nor would it be preferable to elect a new vice president when the office becomes vacant. Vice - presidential candidates then would be running separately from a party presidential nominee, which they cannot do now. Aside from the fact that this could result in a president and a vice president from different parties, people do not really vote on vice - presidential candidates normally only for the head of the ticket.

The vice president is important only in. the sense that he or she might succeed to the presidency. So long as the vice president remains vice president, as all who have occupied the office have testified, he or she is little more than a

That being the case, the one change in the 25th Amendment most worth considering might be the additional requirement that if an appointed vice president should succeed to the presidency, as Ford did, a full - scale national presidential election would be held on the general election day falling in the next calendar year. That would give the voters their right of choice within a reasonable time, while maintaining governmental stability, without major change in the elections system or undue fuss over the vice presidency itself.

ATMOSPHERE MAKES THE DIFFERENCE

Dr. John delights Brewery audience

By DAVE DIMARTINO State News Reviewer

The most overlooked quality of any good concert is the atmosphere in which the performance takes place. A band may do identical sets at a bar, a concert hall or an outdoor concert, yet each show will appear thoroughly different. It is the concert atmosphere that makes the difference.

Dr. John is a case in point.

Lou Reed gave a concert at Grand Valley Sunday night. On the bill with Reed was none other than Dr. John, one night away from the Brewery.

The difference between Dr. John's performances Sunday and here Monday was clear. At Grand Valley, he just did his job. At the Brewery, he gave a full - fledged performance.

Where does the difference lie? In the concert atmosphere.

Would you like to be Dr.

In that very sterile Grand Valley environment the show began. Dr. John's rhythm section walked onstage to scattered applause. He began a riff while the guitarist asked the crowd, in the thickest conceivable Southern drawl. "Where is de Doctuh?"

Eventually the unenthused crowd found out. The Doctor came onstage, dressed to the hilt in his regal garments and, along with his two female backing vocalists, threw glitter into the crowd.

But the crowd was not buying it. With every song, Dr. John appeared to be enjoying Justifiably loose on his birthday, he told the audience in his gritty New Orleans drawl, "Ah'm sweet sixteen an' nevuh ben. . ." and began a warm, enjoyable set. His piano playing was impeccable throughout and at the show's end he deserved - and uproaringly received - demand for an encore.

and unobtrusively.

Richard Chamberlain headed the cast. He has emerged as an accomplished actor, comfortable in classical or modern drama. He has a simplicity of style which embellishes his performance, balancing complex poetry with the languid mein of a perfect Renaissance courtier. His elegant, graceful interpretation lacked the turgid moralizing which would overweight this slight drama. He shrugged where a Burton would posture. Castigliogne set a style which demanded that a Renaissance courtier fight a war, compose a sonnet or make love to his lady with grace, style, but without

SURVIVAL FIERCEST

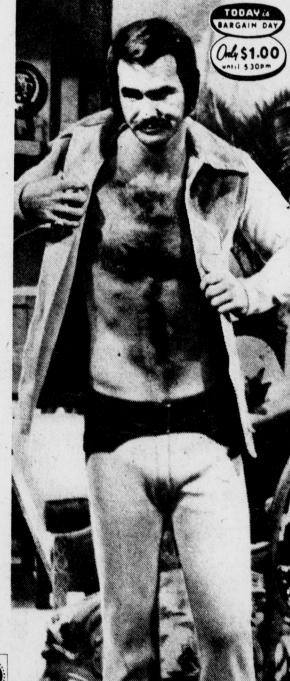

"THE LONGEST YARD" is a movie that cracks a lot of jokes. And a lot of bones. Burt Reynolds stars - tough, sassy - and always that fire.

Reynolds is at his most virile. The wrath of a woman scorned starts his trouble. However, he's got some wrath of his own. And the last 45 minutes of the film is unlike anything you have ever seen. It will have you howling and cheering like no movie ever has.
"THE LONGEST YARD" is about life. And it's about fighting back. It's about good over evil. And about laughing uproariously at them both.

Guitarist plans benefit recital to assist African relief fund

Guitarist - composer Francis Bebey of Cameroon, Africa will give a benefit concert at 8 tonight in Kresge Art Gallery.

Contributions from the concert will go to the Mudiaga Fund for emergency relief to African students and their families at MSU.

The fund is named for Mudiaga Scott - Emuakpor, who died in a Lansing carnival ride accident last summer at the age of three. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ajovi Scott - Emuakpor of Nigeria, who are graduate students at MSU.

Bebey is one of the few African artists who has reached an international audience as a concert performer, playing in Africa, Europe and the United States.

His music reflects the artistic conceptions of a twentieth century African, a man who is aware not only of the values of the traditional music of his continent, but also of the need to integrate it progressively into the musical art of the whole world.

This awareness is demonstrated by the use of rhythms and sonorities new to the guitar, which he uses as both a melodic and a percussion instrument.

Born in Douala, Cameroon, in 1929, Bebey has produced broadcasts for several radio stations in French speaking Africa and has written a number of short stories, poems

Rehnquist said the decision was at odds with the court's most recent ruling in a similar case.

In that decision 13 years ago, the court held that Eli Lilly & Co., could not escape regulation by New Jersey "merely because it is also engaged in interstate commerce."

Douglas said the two cases were different. He said Lilly operated a New Jersey office with 18 employes promoting its products.

He said Allenberg, on the other hand, had no office or warehouse of its own in Mississippi and no employes regularly soliciting business there.

'What ifs' star of U-M, OSU show

Discourse on "the game of the century" this year. "What happens if Michigan has the ball on the Ohio State five -

'Nope. Bo's ineligible. Mike Lantry would have to do that." "What if Michigan goes for it and scores and Franklin breaks

'Michigan will win."

"Hmmm. Well, does U-M go to the Rose Bowl?" "Who ever the athletic directors consider the 'most representative team' will be going."

"Do you think our Hoosiers have a chance?"

"Son, I think they're 'most representative' of the Big Ten but they'll probably be watching the Rose Bowl from Bloomington." "What happens if Ohio State beats the pants off Michigan and Michigan State gets the nod?"

"The Big 10 will ostracize all athletic directors."

Through a fog of pregame controversy, one fact shines brightly. Michigan and Ohio State will meet in Columbus, Ohio Saturday to decide, for the sixth time in the past seven years, the Big Ten title and attendant Rose Bowl trip.

Who will win is anybody's guess and should be.

Who will go to the Rose Bowl, however, is nebulous at best.

Amidst all the opinion following the 10-10 tie of a year ago, one fact seemed clouded over. Who was the best team? A tied score does not determine the better team.

Why then, does the ultimate decision rest with ten athletic directors who do not even participate in warm - up drills? Simple logic tells me that it is the duty, job, business of two opposing football teams to play their best and thus determine the winner. I remember an infamous 10-10 tie of eight years ago that was finally decided by the wire services. That too, is ludicrous.

There is only one way to determine the better of two teams on the playing field.

In a nutshell, there's entirely too much politicing among Big Ten athletic directors, the wire services, coaches, etc., to render an unbiased, impartial decision as to which team should "win a

It is time to devise an NCAA playoff system to keep personal biases and other injustices out of football and let the games be decided on the field.

How valid is a national champion which is awarded the honor by sportswriters who have not seen all the leading contenders

The only outcome Saturday that would necessitate a determinant vote would be an Ohio State win.

The Big Ten athletic directors would then meet in Chicago on Sunday to pick the Rose Bowl representative. All of the athletic directors would view films of the game.

"It would be an eyeball to eyeball vote," MSU Athletic Director Burt Smith said. "There wouldn't be anyone calling on the telephone and saying who they voted for. Under the present circumstances, this is the best way to handle it."

A tie in the vote by athletic directors would eliminate the

By MIKE LITAKER State News Sports Writer

On any given Sunday afternoon or Monday night, you can sit down in front of the television set and pick out numerous former MSU football stars running and tackling to the tune of money and glory that the NFL provides for the gifted few.

Following their careers is relatively easy for the armchair quarterback who rarely considers the fate of the hundreds of ballplayers who have graduated over the years from Spartan Stadium. Many still reside in the Lansing area.

Bill Feraco, Cal Fox and Bob Lange, all MSU gridiron products of the late 1960's, have recreated their own version of the triple threat in making up the Eaton Rapids' High School football coaching staff.

"It was love at first sight and I said boy we got to get together later." Lange, who was mainly responsible for assembling the trio,

After he left MSU, Feraco bounced around the Continental League with the Tri - City Apollos, Michiana Hawks and the Flint Sabres, whom he jokingly says gave him a "six - pack and gas money" to play for them.

After a couple of years of teaching and coaching in Greensburg, Pa., Feraco returned to East Lansing for the 1973 spring green and white game, when Lange put out his call.

"I was looking for a change anyhow when I came back," Feraco said. "Sooner or later there comes a time when you have to judge yourself and you only cloud the issue when you don't," continued Feraco about why he gave up playing semipro ball for Cal Fox joined the Eaton Rapids staff after earning a degree in marketing at MSU and selling insurance for a year. A try - out with the Houston Oilers was cut short the following year when an achilles heel injury struck.

"I never thought I'd teach but it was a way to get back to coaching after I found out that I didn't like business life," Fox

Proudly displayed in the success of the trio has been the erasure of the "dumb jock" image that often haunts an athlete in and out of the classroom.

Feraco has been aware of the "jock complex" for quite some time and has the philosophy figured out when confronted with the question.

"People ask what I do and I say coach and teach. The next question is already predetermined in their minds. 'What do you teach? History, social studies, or gym?' and they're surprised when I say English," Feraco said.

"It's been one great time ever since we've been together,"

Reaching goals in a roundabout routine has become a way of

Seven set to play in field hockey trial

MSU's women's field hockey team placed seven women to play in the trials for the Great Lakes sectional hockey team at the Great Lakes tournament Saturday.

Traveling to Ohio Wesleyan University this weekend and representing MSU will be Betsy Hallgren, Carol Kiddon, Karen Miller, Shelly Owens, Jo Reiter, Rose Wilkins and Joan Woloszyk. The women will be put on arbitrary teams and play for nine

After the first game, they will be broken into different teams according to how the selectors will want to see them play. Three teams will be selected, and all of them will play in the national tournament in DeKalb, Illinois in two weeks.

MSU coach Mikki Baile is very optimistic about the chances of the Spartan women making it to the nationals.

"I think that we have a good shot at it," she said. "They played well on Saturday despite the adverse conditions that they had to play in. It's harder for inexperienced players to play in the

A public hearing will be held this morning on a proposal to increase maximum work loss benefits payable under no fault auto insurance to compensate for cost of living increases.

The State Insurance Bureau Monday recommended that a cost of living provision be tagged onto all work loss Maximum benefits would from $1,000 to $1,111 because the consumer price index shot up 11.1 per 1974, State Insurance Commissioner Daniel J. Demlow said.

The hearing on the rule will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Law Building auditorium of the capitol complex. The rule will take effect 15 days after filed

MUST CONTEND WITH BOTH RACISM, SEXISM

Black women need relevant liberation

By MICHELE BURGEN State News Staff Writer

Because black women have had to contend with the double - edged sword of racism and sexism, there is a real need for black and other minority females to adopt a liberation movement geared to their needs, the former chairperson of the National Black Feminist Organization said.

Margaret R. Sloan, a native of Chicago and a contributing editor of Ms. magazine, said that there are gaps in the black and white women's movement that made the step toward black women's liberation essential. Black women have had to deal with racism as well as sexism, myths of the matriarchal culture and conduct their crusade from a largely poor rather than middle class sector of the economy.

Sloan spoke to about 100 people Monday night in a talk sponsored by the Women's Studies Colloquium Series, a group of faculty and students interested in teaching and learning about women in society.

"We need active involvement in order to survive," she said. "We (black people in the '60s because of each chapter of the feminist the situation we found ourselves in during the civil rights movement. But black women are also victims of sexism. That is the logic that connects blacks and feminism," she said.

While almost all women suffer from a poor self - image black women have had to face women) had pressures to stigmas that slavery put on identify ourselves as black them, she said. For that reason, organization holds consciousness - raising sessions in order to help women develop a greater sense of self worth.

Sloan lashed out at the failure of the government to provide child - care centers as a means to hinder the women's movement.

"Child care is everyone's right, rich or poor," she said. "They use the excuse that nuclear family. But during the war (World War II) they had centers for children so that mothers could work while their husbands were out there killing people and they didn't say anything about it breaking up the family then," she said.

She charged that by making women stay home to raise children, the government effectively keeps women out of political activity.

Sloan came out strongly in favor of abortion, especially for poor, black and third world (non - white) women who suffer most from the poverty that comes with large families. She added that there was a movement to make abortions hard to obtain by letting

Report lists tenants' complaints

By FRED NEWTON State News Staff Writer

In their first annual report, the Tenants Resource Center (TRC) has listed the four most common problems encountered in Lansing - East Lansing housing.

"Security deposits, maintenance, leasing and evictions are the most frequent problems," Charles Ipcar, tenants' center coordinator, said.

During the first year of operation, the nonprofit research and educational organization dealt with over 1,100 requests for information related to housing problems.

The first year annual report
