than 1980 or 1981, on further limitations and possible reductions after 1985.

Sunday's development was the most important since former President Nixon and Brezhnev reached an interim agreement on offensive arms control on May 26, 1972. That agreement, which does not cover all weapons, expires in Before heading for home the President credited the achievement to "just good negotiating, good give and take.'

If the agreement stands up, it could prevent over the next few years a scramble for newer and more sophisticated weapons and save both countries vast amounts of money.

Secretary of State Kissinger said it was the breakthrough in strategic arms negotiations sought over the last several years. "The back of this thing has been broken," he declared.

Brezhnev told Ford while they signed a joint communique in a second - floor solarium that he was "very pleased." Later, in bidding Ford farewell at a military airport, the Soviet leader said, "Good - bye and God bless you."

The agreement on guidelines will be taken up in January by U.S. and Soviet negotiators in Geneva, who will have the job of working out what Kissinger called the "technical complexities."

The objective is to prepare a treaty for signing by Ford and Brezhnev next June at a summit meeting in Washington.

Ron Nessen, the White House press secretary, said the agreement "was something former President Nixon couldn't do in three years but Ford did in three

Of Ford's relationship with Brezhnev, Nessen said, "I don't know what it was, but they hit it off."

Kissinger told reporters that the total number of Soviet missiles, bombers and other delivery systems would be below current Soviet strength. U.S. missiles already in place in Europe would not be counted against the American total, the secretary of state said.

He described the setting of ceilings as "a substantial step forward on the road to an agreement."

The Soviet Union has more and larger missiles, while the United States has an enormous advantage in multiple warheads and more intercontinental bombers.

At the current rate the United States would have more than 10,000 MIRVs mounted on 1,710 missiles by 1977. At present only 35 per cent of the land based and submarine - based force has received MIRVs. The Russians began testing multiple warheads last August but none has been deployed.

In agreeing to a ceiling on these sophisticated weapons, Ford appears to have made a major concession. Also, for the first time, bombers would be included within weapons controls.

The setting of ceilings and equal numbers still leaves the two powers free to determine their own numerical "mix." For example, one could have an advantage in intercontinental ballistic missiles and the other in submarine - based missiles, provided the total of the two kinds was

The United States, under the 1972 agreement, has 1,054 land - based missiles and 656 submarine - based missiles, with about 750 of the total already in the MIRV category. The Soviets are allowed 1,410 land - based missiles and up to 950 submarine - based missiles.

In the joint statement, the two countries said a long - term nuclear weapons agreement "would be a significant contribution to improving relations between the United States and the U.S.S.R., to reducing the danger of war and to enhancing world peace."

President Ford removes his fur coat, which he brought especially for his stay in Russia, and hands it to Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev before leaving Vladivostok Sunday. Brezhnev tried on the coat, but it is not known if he kept it.

MSUEA was founded six years ago but did not win the right to bargain for all MSU C - Ts until March 1974. A disputed election between MSUEA and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) delayed the union's certification as the bargaining unit. Final agreement between MSU and the six - man union bargaining team was reached last Tuesday.

"It isn't a perfect contract," said Harold Schmidt, chief negotiator and professional consultant to MSUEA. "But it gives us a base to build on."

The contract formalizes the promotion and vacancy - filling systems which in the past have not always been fair, Hawkins said.

It requires that vacancies be filled from a list composed of the three most senior qualified union applicants within the department and the five most senior and qualified applicants within the union but outside the department, before off campus applicants are considered.

Even with the wage increases, MSU C-T wages are below those paid by the State of Michigan for comparable jobs, Hawkins

Greyhound negotiators agree on tentative pact

By Associated Press and State News

Greyhound Bus Lines said a tentative agreement was reached Sunday in its week - long strike and issued a call from its Phoenix, Ariz. headquarters for all employes to return to work immediately. Greyhound President James Carrigan, expressing satisfaction over the accord, said Sunday, "We'll have buses rolling later today." But a spokesman for the mediation service said drivers were expected to return to work Monday. The ratification process was expected to take several days.

A Greyhound spokesman in Detroit said Sunday that it could be running at full capacity either today or Tuesday.

"We are notifying our bus drivers and other employes," he said. "We're asking them to report in for work."

In his announcement, Carrigan said the settlement issue was mainly inflation.

"We want our employes to have the money necessary to meet the rising inflation and they know, too, that rising costs have created additional pressures on us," Carrigan said. "We believe this settlement takes both into account."

About 16,000 Greyhound employes have been idled by the strike which began at noon last Monday.

Guy Parent of Phoenix, one of two federal mediators who assisted in the negotiations, said Amalgamated Transit Union negotiators for the striking drivers and terminal workers agreed to a three year, nationwide contract.

Udall makes presidential plans

At the moment the only announced Democratic contender for President in 1976 is Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona.

Udall, 52, got the jump on several potential opponents for the nomination by announcing Saturday he would enter New Hampshire's March, 1976, presidential primary, the first in the nation.

UDALL

The decision followed a six - month sampling of sentiment among Democratic voters that convinced Udall the race is wide open now that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts has taken himself out of it.

Thursday's announcement by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., also bolstered Udall's presidential aspirations, he said.

Happy to undergo operation

Happy Rockefeller entered Memorial Hospital in New York Sunday night for her second breast cancer operation in five weeks.

The wife of vice president - designate Nelson A. Rockefeller is to be operated on this morning, Rockefeller told a news conference shortly after she was admitted to the hospital.

Rockefeller disclosed that he had known about the cancerous condition of his wife's right breast since shortly after the first operation Oct. 17 when her left breast was removed. But he said he kept it from her

"I can't tell you how very much I admire her courage," Rockefeller said.

Prosecution may rest case

Some time today chief prosecutor James F. Neal is expected to tell the jury that the government rests its case against the five men charged with criminal conspiracy in the Watergate coverup.

Then, before the defendants present evidence to counter the charges, their lawyers will argue that the government has failed to support its accusations and that the cases should be dismissed.

The claims are routine and are expected to fail except for one count each of lying to the FBI lodged against John D. Ehrlichman and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Simon meets with coal officials

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon met Sunday with top coal industry officials in an effort to find a settlement to the nationwide coal strike.

Simon's meeting with the advisory committee of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association occurred shortly before W. J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Medication and Conciliation Service, summoned the bargaining teams to his office after informal talks between the industry and officials of the United Mine Workers (UMW) failed to end an impasse.

It is the first time the government has directly intervened in efforts to end the walkout that began Nov. 12 when 120,000 UMW members struck mines producing 70 per cent of the nation's coal.

AEC refutes scientists' claims

A spokesman for the Atomic Energy Commission has refuted claims by a group of scientists that nuclear reactors are not as safe as claimed.

The scientists attacked on Saturday a $3 million study for the AEC that described the chances of a reactor accident killing 1,000 people as about as likely as a meteor striking the earth and killing a similar number.

"I understand their point of view, but it is not very well taken," responded Saul Levine of the AEC, who directed the study in question.

Levine said the group's criticism of the study's form of analysis would have been correct for the 1960s, but "we have advanced that methodology considerably ... our numbers are in touch with reality."

Students living in mobile home parks, like this one east of campus, must recognize the potential fire hazard that accompanies the attractive cost of such living. Fatality rates in mobile home fires are twice that of fires in more conventional dwellings.

populated trailer parks, Trailer Haven and Mobile Home Manor, both located on E. Grand River Avenue about a half mile east of Hagadorn Road, contain 302 mobile homes, 80 per cent of which are inhabited by MSU students. Many of these students live in older, poorly heated trailers that lack fire detection, extinguishing equipment and easy escape routes. James Hunsucker, acting director of the Michigan Consumers Council, said the Michigan legislature has passed several mobile home safety laws.

"Among the safety laws passed, it is now mandatory that all new mobile homes have a fire extinguisher, a smoke detector and large windows that can be kicked out for escape in case of fire," Hunsucker said.

The majority of the homes in the local trailer parks were built in the 1960s and are owned by students, who rent the lots.

MSU students living in mobile homes seem to be aware of the fire dangers they live with but are willing to sacrifice safety for the cheaper living that mobile homes offer.

"I'm worried about fires, but this place is cheap living there's nothing I can do," said one student living in a mobile

She lives in a 1956 mobile home with its original oil heater.

"There is no pilot light on the heater, so I have to light it by hand," she said.

She bought the home from a friend about a year ago and kept it because of the cheap living cost.

There are two doors to her mobile home, one of which is blocked by a bookcase. There is no fire extinguisher.

In both Trailer Haven and Mobile Manor there are boxes with fire extinguishers located outside about every eight trailers, but none inside each home unless the resident buys one himself. A number of the outdoor extinguishers are missing.

A Meridian Township building official said mobile homes are subject to the same rules that conventional housing is, therefore there are no fire extinguisher requirements in older mobile homes.

Though there have been no major fires in either trailer park, a recent mobile home study in Oregon shows that fatality rates for mobile home fires are twice that for conventional housing.

Floyd Hewitt, manager of Mobile Home Manor, said most fires in mobile homes are the fault of resident carelessness.

Most students, since they reside in older mobile homes that are not affected by recent legislation, have very little room for escape in case of fire.

Windows are too small for escape and the extra door is often blocked.

However, one MSU graduate student, Robert A. Hull, has both a fire extinguisher and an easy second escape in his mobile home.

"Mobile homes is the only way to live when you're a student," he said.

Jim Amori, asst. director of the Michigan Mobile Homes and Recreational Vehicle Institute, said there were over 25,100 mobile home fires in the United States last year.

"Mobile homes burn much faster than conventional housing mainly because they're one - third the size," Amori

A recent mobile home bill in the Michigan legislature, if passed, would establish a nine member commission to regulate the mobile home industry in Michigan, including safety requirements.

The bill, however, may fail because it was returned to committee by state Sen. Phillip Pittenger, R -Lansing, for more discussion. It may die there.

EDITORIALS Don't raze Cain today

The ASMSU board's attempt to oust ASMSU President Tim Cain is a classic example of an effort to skirt concrete issues through procedural games.

A motion was made at a special ASMSU meeting Friday to dismiss Cain because he disobeyed an earlier board resolution stating that the Union should not be opened for all - night ticket lines without the approval of Pop Entertainment Director Paul Stanley. Cain went against the resolution last Monday night when he arranged to let into the Union - without Stanley's permission - hundreds of students waiting outside in an ugly freezing rain for tickets to the Frank Zappa concert.

Though Cain could legally be removed for his action, it was hardly an act of such foulness as to merit the drastic proposed. The real reasons for the removal attempt, as everyone involved knows, go far beyond an illegal attempt to relieve some rain soaked Zappa fans.

Several members of the board have been dissatisfied with Cain's attempt to organize a student apparent inability to compromise with certain board members. These are the real points of contention. They should not be buried by a gutless attempt to change the subject.

Those who want Cain removed because they feel he has used his office to promote the student employes' union should have the courage to say so. When the board meets tonight to consider the ouster motion, the subject of Cain's union involvement must dominate the discussion.

Cain has worked much harder for student causes than any ASMSU president in memory. A push for his removal will have to be backed up by some damned good reasons. It is debatable whether his opponents are representing the opinion of a majority of students. Cain became the first ASMSU president elected directly by MSU students last spring.

Students can help assure that Cain is given a fair shake by attending the meeting in 328 Student Services Bldg. at 8 p.m. This can help insure that a hard -

in fight for board seats

It's nice to see that at least one political football made it past the goal line in the state Senate during this fall's lame duck legislative

Barring a major ideological turn around in the state House, students will finally be able to serve on the governing boards of their own universities, due to recent senate action.

But this is only the first step in making the governing boards at MSU, the University of Michigan and Wayne State University truly representative of students.

Now it is up to Gov. Milliken and the major political parties to put the spirit of the bill into practice.

Gov. Milliken, when considering appointments to nonelected university boards, must give first priority to qualified student candidates.

Major political parties must also nominate student candidates for board posts. Minor parties have already paved the way for student representation in this respect.

This year, the Human Rights party, Socialist Workers party and the Socialist Labor party all ran students on their governing board tickets. Larry Bartrem, an MSU student, tried and failed to get a Republican nomination as a candidate for the MSU Board of

At MSU, students now have representation in practically every committee and governing body in the University. However, without representation on the granddaddy of all governing boards - the board of trustees - student claims of a forceful voice in University governance seem almost

student workers in an insecure position. There are also other authoritarian work

By NEW AMERICAN MOVEMENT One of the most important events at MSU this year is the effort on the part of students to form a Student Worker's Union (SWU) for part - time student workers. The New American Movement, (NAM), a recently formed socialist group, has actively worked with the Student Interim Organizing Committee to organize SWU and believes that such a union has implications which go far beyond organizing a union.

The unionization of student workers is not only one way for students to protect their rights now, but is also one way for student workers to learn how to protect their rights once they enter the regular job

The immediate reasons for a Student Worker's Union seem compelling to us. Because of economic hard times the jobs which students have are important in enabling them to pay for their education. As part - time workers for the University they are paid lower wages than full time workers doing the same work. We feel this is unjust. Student workers should receive equal pay for equal work. They also suffer from job insecurity since student jobs terminate at the end of each term. This allows management to keep procedures, such as the ability of supervisors to fire workers arbitrarily and the lack of grievance procedures.

One demand which NAM feels is particularly important is democratization of the work place. Under normal conditions, the manner in which work is carried out is determined by a supervisor not selected or controlled by the workers themselves. NAM believes it is important to seek ways to give student workers greater control over the way work itself is to be carried out. Worker selection of supervisors is one possible proposal working toward democratization.

People usually think of MSU as an educational institution, but in reality it is also a major employer in the East Lansing area. In that sense it is like a large private corporation, such as General Motors, Student workers are vital to the functioning of the University, just as assembly line workers are vital to the functioning of General Motors. Thus in spite of what the administration may say, it does not simply create make - work jobs to allow students to earn money to get through school. Jobs performed by student workers are vital to the University's functioning. The University is not exactly a benevolent father providing allowances for his children.

In a real sense the struggle for a Student Worker's Union is part of our "lifelong education." At one time a college education was seen as a passport away from the working class to a job which not only paid more, but which also allowed more room for creativity and independence. This is no longer the case. Today, many college graduates cannot find jobs for which they are trained; and those who do find jobs discover they are frequently as poorly paid and as alienated as young factory workers. Groups which have traditionally thought of themselves as "professionals," such as teachers, TV news workers and white - collar workers in general, have been forced to unionize to protect themselves.

NAM hopes that its work with he Student Worker's Union will show that socialism is not the substitution of a socialist elite for the current capitalist elite, but rather an attempt to structure society so that collective control of the economy allows maximum, decentralization and maximum democratic control over our work places and

Industry short on know-how

The idea that Americans might buy fewer cars if prices rose an average of $900 per machine apparently crossed no important minds in Detroit when the 1975 models were contemplated. It is an astounding fact, but what else can we make of the car tycoons' surprised cries of dismay at discovery that their new models are selling like mink coats in Calcutta?

The goose can be plucked only so thoroughly, and then you have to settle for pinfeathers. Instead, the car makers tried for another mattress load. It makes you wonder what ever happened to good old American know - how up there in the board room

One hesitates to speak slightingly of high business, for its bishops tell us the corporate world is a place of mysteries impenetrable to the layman. Yet here they were, the leaders of the most quintessentially dynamic American industry, automobiles, unaware that you can't pluck a naked goose.

Well, they had their reasons. Costs had risen. Labor was more expensive, and raw materials and pollution suppressors had to be paid for, and so forth. The old Detroit standards couldn't be brought in at an appealing price. So they brought them in

Did it occur to anyone to bring in something new, something less than the old standards? What about something basic? Why not a reissue of the Model T? Such questions make tycoons smile, and not without contempt. They betray a naive ignorance of retooling time, planning procedure, testing delays, design lag and marketing psychology. People who don't understand the business shouldn't ask dumb

On the other hand, people who don't understand goose plucking shouldn't be so quick to laugh at people who do.

If the car industry's troubles were an isolated failure of business skill, we might write it off as a misfortune in a quirky economy and pass on, but the landscape is becoming littered with corporate ruins, and one develops the uneasy feeling that good old American know - how is turning into don't - know - how.

On the Penn Central we had management that didn't know how to run railroad, and at Pan American, a management that didn't know how to run an airline

At Lockheed they didn't know how to run an aircraft company even with the Pentagon's sweetheart subsidy. At Franklin National we had banking don't know - how so vast it produced history's biggest bank failure.

Wall Street turned out to be lined with brokerage houses that didn't know how to run a brokerage house. At the Curtis Publishing Co. they didn't know how to run a magazine, and at Equity Funding they didn't even know how to run a financial swindle.

What has become of the businessman who had imagination? In most of disasters we see executives meet to by plodding head down along predetermined courses that carried to into trouble in the first place. They frozen in immobility, shackled corporate habit, capable of complaint, quick to charge the more for less, eager to ask Washington a bailout and utterly empty imagination.

Thus the electric - power comp like Consolidated Edison are very 900 the glum face and at telling us to an only blood, toil, sweat and tears, by anyone in the industry has had an ide stopping the rise in the price of electric before it exceeds the monthly month payment on the house, it is a secret

Ideas must be stifled at b somewhere in the lower reache corporate hierarchies. The only onest seem to survive these days are very indeed, for business' response to times continues to be complaint, his prices and government bailout, through direct handout or tax relief.

If this sounds churlish toward board - room captains, they understand that a person who has to more for their goods, and then pay in to the government to support their fail and then sit still for advice that he have to pay even more next year, deserves to, because he won't page more self - denial, is not a person like cheer his tormentors as heroes of indus (C) 1974 New York Times

Dealing with this review, the Okemos Jazz Ensemble has learned a lesson absolutely fitting for performing with Stan Kenton - that is, to continue to perform on the basis of their musical standards and convictions, in spite of misinformed newspaper reviewers' negativism. This is something which Kenton has been doing for forty years and may be the most valuable learning experience to come out of his Nov. 15 concert.

Bill Wright, Director Okemos Jazz Ensemble

In my long years of experience on the jazz scene as a reviewer and jazz writer, I have never read a less knowledgeable and more misinformed review than the one offered us by Dave Stern on the recent Stan Kenton concert.

It is only too evident that Stern does not know much about Kenton or his iconoclastic career when he says that Kenton "cashed in on nostalgia." The same review curiously notes that Kenton "played vacuous arrangements of worthless contemporary pieces." Come now, Mr. Stern. From what pole are you attacking?

Also, the disservice done to the Okemos Jazz Ensemble is unfortunate seeing as how that organization has more first - rate professional gigs to its credit than most university groups.

In sum, let it be said that such puerile journalistic efforts do little to enhance either the cause of jazz in our area or the reputation of The State News as a reliable critic of local culture.

Prohunting

There has been a recent increase in antihunting sentiment by many well meaning but misinformed people. Why? I think, in response to Mr. McKinney's letter of Nov. 14, it's primarily due to the wide spread ecology movement experienced across the country as of late. Everybody, it seems, wants to be a do - it yourself conservationist. And in so doing they feel that the only way we can insure the survival of our wildlife is to stop hunting them. From the biological standpoint they could not be more wrong.

Each year in Michigan we lose as much as 50,000 acres of valuable wildlife lands to "progress." With ever - increasing human encroachment upon these lands, biologists are faced with the huge problem of maintaining healthy wildlife populations. Prolific species such as whitetail deer often breed beyond the carrying capacity of their habitat. The biologists, in this case, must recommend that surplus animals be taken to insure that there will be enough winter range to feed the breeding stock. The best way to do this is to have an annual hunting

Of all animals, only about 30 per cent are hunted. In no case has any animal been brought even close to extinction by sport hunting. However, market hunters and poachers almost always do this.

I fail to recognize any logic when someone says it is OK to butcher a steer for food but not OK to kill a deer for food. Nobody claims that a deer is a savings, either. For the most part, deer hunts are quite expensive. But to a deer hunter cost is not important. He realizes that his hunting dollar is a help to the economy and that all wildlife management programs (for both hunted and unhunted species) are financed from his pocket.

The hunter also knows that one deer hunting trip is worth a lifetime of memories to him. Passed down from father to son, deer hunting is a tradition. It's a tradition of sportsmanship. Sure, we know there are a few bums out there who don't play by the rules, but they are a small minority. Most hunters don't get a deer - only about one out of six or so. The guy who thinks he needs more than one deer a year is subject to penalties by

So, Mr. McKinney, please understand that hunters don't care if you don't like to hunt. But we do care if you prefer that nobody else does either. Your attitude only proves your ignorance as a conservationist.

As far as hunters being since concerned with the survival of animals, I seriously doubt it. In fact, many cases the extra animals "planted" by the hunters to produ acceptable excuse for killing them. hunters were really concerned with well - being of the animals, would they make some effort to transfer the anim to a less populous area, rather t wantonly murdering them?

Sea-to-sea people

Jeremy Rifkin and the People's Bicentennial Commission's proposal to line up 3,168,000 people hand - in - hand across the entire United States is the best idea I've heard of since streaking.

Imagine the possibilities: live nationwide television coverage, like on election night, with Walter Cronkite reporting, "Returns from Michigan show 78% of the state covered by 46,397 people in line with an expected total turnout of 53,765. However, CBS News still predicts Rhode Island will be the first state to be transversed."

Civic pride would be bolstered as citizens extended their line, linking with the next - door community and the next and the next. Romances would flourish when strangers hold hands for hours on end.

Air Force reconnaissance jets could fly overhead to spot breaks in the line. Space satellites would snap fantastic pictures showing strings of people reaching across the countryside like ants marching to a picnic.

What better way to show our national unity than to form a human chain of Americans, stretching from sea to shining sea (with special arrangements for Alaska and Hawaii)?

Does this sound preposterous, or even impractical? Well, even if it is, that's the American Way. Besides, getting millions of people in line would be easy, because by 1976 there's sure to be three million in the unemployment line alone. Let us not forget that MSU h unique talent for this patriotic endea Students are already experts at holding hard wouldn't mind training sessions with opposite sex) and show equal profice at standing in line (for registrat

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader was in Lansing Friday to lend his support to a petition drive urging Michigan Sen. Robert Griffin to support the consumer advocacy

A filibuster has blocked final congressional approval of the House passed bill. One more senator's vote is needed to end the filibuster.

At a special press conference preceding an address to a convention of the Michigan Education Association, Nader said Griffin is singlehandedly holding up passage of the

"I don't think he is philosophically opposed to this bill," Nader said. "It's just a matter of political expediency."

Nader said Griffin is "taking his marching orders from General Motors, Ford and the auto industry in general." He said Griffin received $36,000 in campaign contributions from automotive executives in his 1972 campaign for re - election.

Griffin has said that his opposition to the bill stemmed from the fact that it exempted labor unions and the broadcast media from coverage, and said it would create an expensive bureaucracy.

"The so - called Consumer Protection Agency would be empowered under the bill to intervene and speak for consumers in proceedings involving anyone else, such as farmers, businessmen or professional persons. But the agency could not represent consumers in proceedings involving labor unions," Griffin said in a Senate speech.

Griffin supported a similar bill in 1970 which included labor unions under the jurisdiction of the proposed agency.

The petition drive was started by the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM) with the hope of urging Griffin to come out in favor of the Nader said passage of the bill could be assured if Griffin switched his vote, since this would convince President Gerald Ford to support the bill.

Nader said the bill will undoubtedly be passed in January when the newly elected Congress takes over, so Griffin would be wise to support it now.

"He either listens to Senator Dole and gets this bill pased in modified form this year, or sees it passed next year by the new Congress," Nader said.

The Consumer Advocacy Agency which would be created by the bill would not regulate or impose standards on business, but would simply serve as a lobby for consumer interests.

"I've asked Senator Griffin if he wants to debate or discuss this on radio or television," Nader said. "He just smiles." Nader also launched into a wide ranging attack on the auto industry and said the layoffs hitting the industry are a result of corporate mismanagement.

He said the layoffs, which are expected to hit 150,000 workers by Christmas are unnecessary. He said the industry could increase sales by simply cutting prices.

"The auto industry is deceptively making a smokescreen out of auto emission and safety standards," Nader

Nader said the safety features have hiked auto prices by an insignificant margin and that the industry should consider making cuts elsewhere. "If they really wanted to lower prices, the first thing they would do is cut their executive salaries in half to show that they are really sincere," Nader said.

Nader suggested the government begin considering using antitrust legislation against the auto industry and other monopolies.

"It's time the administration started enforcing laws that have been on the books for 80 years regarding these monopolies," Nader said.

Zappa! Backstage...

Your band is warming up on stage, waiting

It's past showtime, Frank. Where are you? Follow the band's trail back into the locker room. Zappa must be in there somewhere.

Back into the tunnels and confused maze of the locker room. Back past the cops and Pop Entertainment security people, past the remains of a six - foot submarine sandwich and the cans and bottles of liquid refreshments. Past the framed pictures of varsity sports teams. Past the showers and outer locker rooms, back to the final locker room behind the scales. The inner sanctum of the maestro.

The door is locked.

Zappa is in there, remote and alone. The sounds of bizarre guitar riffs give his presence away. The music floats eerily through the warren of lockers, benches, showers and gloom in the ancient arena.

Hidden in the deepest recesses of Jenison Fieldhouse, Zappa plays rock music for himself in total silence while thousands of his fans outside go wild.

Zappa was holed up in his lair for about an hour before the show. Only the intermittent guitar runs gave his presence away.

"Frank just sits back there playing," explained Dick Barber, press coordinator for the Mothers. "It's not too much fun watching him fingering the frets on his guitar, but that's when he works out a lot of his riffs."

In the other room, musicians wandered about practicing, glancing at sheet music or just resting on the long wooden benches.

Outside in the main arena, people kept trying to get backstage. If they had, they would have been disappointed. The most exciting event in the dressing rooms was the demolition of the huge submarine sandwich.

"The Mothers are much more conservative backstage than their on - stage image would lead people to believe," Barber said.

At last, after the Mothers warmed up the audience for the master's entrance. Zappa emerged from the dressing room and was guided by Barber's flashlight through the darkness to the stage.

Once on stage, Zappa must have been

and rapping with the press

By DAVE DIMARTINO State News Reviewer

"There's never a time when 'nothing' is really happening." So said Frank Zappa about his career in and out of the Mothers of Invention when he held a preconcert press from the campus area. Though surrounded by patronizing interrogators, conference Saturday afternoon

for about 40 media people

Zappa showed few signs of frustration or boredom as he answered queries he had doubtlessly answered hundreds of times elsewhere. As the cameras flashed and the cassette recorders clicked on, he answered the questions by letting his wit speak for him. His replies were short, fast and disarming. Asked if he noticed a change in his recent audiences as a result of his increasing popularity, he promptly replied: "Yes, there's been a 600% increase in 13 - year - old girls attending my concerts." Someone questioned if he enjoyed playing guitar. "Yes, doesn't everyone?" he asked. On his musical influences, he said: "No, I never met Igor Stravinsky . . . but we like the same kind of scotch."

And then came obvious questions: "How about the future direction of rock, Frank, after all the glitter and eyeshadow fades? ..."

"Gee, I dunno - isn't that about it?" Zappa answered.

The press conference gradually became a comedian's ultimate fantasy. The 40 people asking questions became 40 straight men fielding punchlines from the master.

The gathering yielded a relatively small amount of information, though it lasted 45 minutes. Most of the questions asked Zappa were frustratingly generalized and occasionally blatantly stupid. Thus, regardless of the fact that Zappa has long established himself as a serious American composer, too many of the questions centered on his famed bizarreness rather than his musical theories.

Occasionally, though, Zappa eventual release. seemed to be encouraging the Spartan quarterback Charlie Baggett races for the first of MSU's eight touchdowns during the Spartans 60 -21 thrashing of Iowa Saturday at Spartan Stadium. Baggett, who set a new school single season total offense record with 1,713 yards this year, ran for three scores and tossed two touchdown passes in leading MSU to its fifth straight Big Ten victory. Baggett ran and passed for 21 touchdowns during the season.

By CHARLES JOHNSON State News Sports Writer

Saturday's game at Spartan Stadium was supposed to have been the "other" game going on in the Big Ten.

But when it was all over, MSU's football team had made sure that the 51,002 fans who remained Spartan loyalists in the face of the Ohio State - Michigan televised game got their money's

The Spartans, aided by a second - half scoring outburst that even got the benchwarmers into the act, romped past Iowa 60-21 in the season finale that capped off a successful year for coach Denny Stolz and his squad.

As sudden as the sunny Saturday afternoon sky was overtaken by cloudy, rainy weather, MSU's offensive machine (and it qualifies for the expression) began plucking the Hawkeyes with huge gains of yardage. The scoreboard continued to ring up the

MSU posted 660 yards in total offense, its highest output since 1971. Its 60 points were the most scored by a Big Ten team this Spartan quarterback Charlie Baggett, who passed for two touchdowns and ran for three others, eclipsed Jimmy Raye's MSU season record for total offense with a 243 - yard performance to give him 1,713 yards on the yaar.

Raye, Baggett's next door neighbor in North Carolina, and now an MSU assistant, established his mark in 1966 with 1,546

The win boosted MSU's Big Ten record to 6-1-1 and its overall mark to 7-3-1, both Spartan bests since the heyday of the mid -

Baggett scored his first touchdown the first time MSU had the ball on a 47 - yard scamper around right end. The Fayetteville, N. C. native subsequently connected for touchdown passes of 33 and 38 yards to split end Mike Hurd, who was playing his final game

For extras, Baggett added touchdown runs of five and one yards.

"A great record was smashed to smithereens," Raye joked of Baggett's accomplishment. "I hope he breaks it again next year." In all, the Spartans' touchdown tally registered eight, including Baggett's five scores, a seven - yard scamper by Rich Baes and two by an unheralded freshman playing on his first collegiate game.

Claude Geiger, a native of Charleston W. Va., got the call have the game to go in at tailback and boy, did he answer it.

Running the ball late in the fourth quarter, Geiger continu to churn out yards before finally going over from the five.

With enough profits already in the bank from the first around, Geiger still wasn't finished.

With 15 seconds left in the game, Geiger burst through an of Iowa defenders to journey 53 yards straight downfield for second touchdown of the day as the clock ran out. "I didn't ask to start or anything when I came to Michigan State," Geiger said. "I just wanted a chance to play. I told coach when I signed the letter of intent that I would prove my and that I believed I was capable of starting." Geiger, who runs the 100 yard dash in 9.6, said an early see injury was possibly the reason he was not a key factor in team's fortunes.

"I got an ankle injury early and that's what set me back think," he said. "I just got messed up and I never got anot chance. Before this game I was thinking about transfering another school because I wanted to play. Now I think I'll do around for the next three years."

Stolz lauded Geiger and agreed that the injury was the rear he had not seen much action this season.

"He just got injured early and that's what happens to fresh when they get banged up," Stolz said. Geiger wound up with 127 yards in 10 carries as the Sparts second leading rusher in the game. MSU's Levi Jackson led the ground game with 156 yardsink carries, but fell short of the 1,000 mark on the year, finish with 942 yards. The Detroit sophomore's season production the third highest in Spartan history. The victory was the sixth straight for MSU. Almost all of talent which produced the marked improvement over last sea will return next year. The prospect has Stolz gloating.

"It makes for a little warmer winter," Stolz said. "We said our offensive football game would be improved and exciting we certainly obtained those two goals."

Iowa's points came on a 47-yard pass from quarterback had Fick to Bill Schultz, a blocked punt which safety Jim Cald took in for an 18 - yard score and a two - yard run by taile Rod Wellington.

CHICAGO (UPI) - Big Ten athletic directors voted Sunday to send Ohio State to the Rose Bowl.

Wayne Duke refused to divulge the vote by which the athletic directors decided to send the third - ranked Buckeyes to the New Year's Day classic for an unprecedented third straight

Duke said voting was conducted in unmarked sealed envelopes and he and the conference attorney counted the ballots.

MSU volleyball unit out of national meet

MSU's women's volleyball team failed to qualify for the national volleyball tournament as it did not place high enough at the regionals held at Western Michigan University this past

In the Spartans' original pool were two teams that eventually finished first and third in the tournament.

In the first round of competition, MSU faced Cleveland State, who eventually won the tournament, Chicago Circle, who finished third and Marshall University.

MSU beat Marshall 15-6, 10-14 and 15-5, but lost to Cleveland State 15-1, 15-4 and to Chicago Circle 15-5, 15-7. The final standings in the tournament had Cleveland State finishing first, Illinois State finishing second, Chicago Circle grabbing third and Northeastern University rounding out the top

In spite of the final outcome, coach Annelies Knoppers was pleased with the way the squad played.

"We played well. We were unfortunate to get the toughest teams within our pool, but we played hard and well against them," she commented.

"For instance, this is the third time we have faced Chicago Circle, and even though we've never beaten them, this match was the best one of the three we have played. The final score does not always tell the entire story," she added.

Spartan wrestlers host MSU Saturday. The other tryout matches Tuesday

The MSU wrestling squad will hold special tryout matches at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Men's Intramural Building Sports Arena.

The public is invited to attend at no charge. Spartan coach Grady Peninger says that at least five of the starting jobs are up for

"There are going to be some real dogfights," Peninger said. "I couldn't honestly pick a winner in at least half of the matches." In some of the key matches, at 118 pounds, Jim Bissell from Haslett will tangle with East Lansing freshman Dave Bartlett. Freshman Dennis Brighton will face freshman Gil Herrera at 134 pounds.

Don Rodgers will defend his position at 142 pounds against Lansing Everett's Mike Owen. At 167 pounds, Lansing Sexton's Mark Ciolek or Oliver Williams will take on either Kevin Pierce or Rick Warner.

Spartan freshman running back Claude Geiger raises the ball triumphantly after scoring his first touchdown for the Spartans in the final period Saturday. Geiger, from Charleston, W. Va., scored on runs of five and 53 yards against lowa. The latter score was a game - ending touchdown.

MSU reserve running back steals show in final minutes

By PAT FARNAN

State News Sports Writer MSU freshman running back Claude Geiger stuck it out for a few months and finally stuck it to the Iowa Hawkeyes Saturday.

Just as overcast, dismal weather settled over Spartan Stadium Saturday, Geiger provided a little more sunshine for the Spartan troops who crushed coach Bob Commings Hawkeyes 60-21 with a second half blitzkrieg.

The Spartans outscored. outdefensed and outscrapped the Hawkeyes, who ended their season on a flat 3-8 note. Spartan coach Denny Stolz watched his players roll up a 33-0 second half advantage as Stolz unloaded the bench.

On a 13-play drive which culminated in the Spartans' seventh touchdown, Geiger carried the ball eight plays, including six in a row, and scored on a touchdown run of five yards. For an encore, Geiger lugged the ball 53 yards on the final play of the game, a play oddly enough that Stolz was unaware of.

"If we would have needed it we couldn't have bought that last touchdown," Stolz said. "The quarterback on that play was our scouting team quarterback, Steve Moerdyk. Since he's always running the other team's plays, he doesn't footrace," said Geiger, know the signal system we

"I called a draw play but he missed the signal, so he called the touchdown play. He had never run a play before, but now he's one for one on touchdown drives."

A Charleston, W. Va. native, Geiger had considered quitting football earlier this year after sustaining a severely sprained ankle. But MSU assistant coach Jimmy Raye, among others, helped convince the speedy Geiger to stick it out and wait for his chance.

Geiger, with 9.6 speed, got his chance Saturday.

"Tyrone Wilson went in before I did and I wondered if I was going to get to play," he said. "But I went in soon afterward and just decided that I was going to do my best."

Geiger said he never expected a chance to score two touchdowns, particularly after his first six - pointer.

"I was thinking about getting the handoffs smoothly," Geiger said. "And I had never practiced handoffs or pitchouts with that quarterback Moerdyk before."

Geiger flitted through a gaping hole in the Iowa defensive line and burned 53 yards to complete the Spartan scoring.

Senate appointment draws fire

By JEFF MERRELL State News Staff Writer

State Sen. Joseph Mack, D. Ironwood, whose environmental voting record was rated worst in the Senate by an environmental organization, was recently appointed to the chairmanship of the Senate conservation committee.

Mack received 7 out of a possible 100 points when rated by the Michigan Student Environmental Confederation (MSEC).

Mack said that "These people (environmentalists), whether knowingly or unknowingly, are doing to this nation what other people would have to do with bombs.'

He has said he will do all he can as committee chairman to take care of jobs, "then we'll take care of the ecology."

"It's the worst possible choice," said Alex Sagady, MSEC director.

"It's a sickening situation when a man who hates the Dept. of Natural Resources (DNR) so could be put in a position like that," said Rep. Warren Goemaere, D-Roseville, cochairman of House Conservation and Recreation Committee.

Mack's appointment was seen as repayment for not battling Sen. Jerome Hart, D.Saginaw, for the chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee. Mack, however, will retain a seat on that committee. The Democratic leadership lists lack of desire for the job by other Senators and the seniority system as major reasons why the post went to Mack.

Sagady said Mack was responsible for numerous proposals that were not favorable to environmental

"He wanted all lands designated under the natural river act and shoreline act to be paid for by the Dept. of Natural Resources," Sagady said. That proposal, which was not approved, would have been prohibitive, since the DNR would never have enough money to purchase all the land they want, according to Sagady.

As the act stands, a designated area is rezoned to prevent development.

"Mack was also the one that put the amendments into the Wilderness Area Act that made it ineffective," Sagady added. He also cited Mack's proposal to delete esthetics from consideration in the inland lakes and streams act and a proposal to put bicycle trails and a "snowmobile trail during the winter" through the Porcupine Mountains State

In addition, Sagady said, Mack was responsible for logging and mining industries being exempt from the soil and sediment erosion act.

According to the Northwoods Call, an environmentally - oriented newspaper in the Upper Peninsula, Mack also wanted to sell state park land to the highest bidder and put a moratorium on deer hunting in the Upper Peninsula when an overpopulation of deer would have ravaged the surrounding landscape.

"I resent the fact that these

Armed robber escapes

Marshall Music Co., 245 Ann St., was held up Saturday morning by an armed robber who locked three employes in a broom closet and escaped with between $300 and $400 in cash.

The robber was described as a slender black male, about 5 foot 11 inches tall, wearing a blue track suit and a blue wool stocking

No one was injured in the robbery and the police have no one

TOMORRO!

Literally bursting with dances and exciting production numbers, PIPPIN is the reigning musical hit of the 1970's. Music and lyrics are by STEPHEN SCHWARTZ (remember GODSPELL and THE MAGIC SHOW?)

PIPPIN is the young son of Charlemagne, the 8th Century Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. Like any teenager, PIPPIN tries to find something meaningful in his life. But what can you do when your father is the Emperor?

The attractive songs include: "Magic to Do," "No Time At All," "Spread a Little Sunshine" and "Simple Joys."

Heading the cast are TV's BARRY WILLIAMS ("Brady Bunch") as PIPPIN and IRVING LEE (Judas in "Godspell") as THE LEADING PLAYER.
