Limited SIRS access en for near future By BRUCE RAY WALKER State News Staff Writer

A wetted finger held up in the Academic Council meeting Tuesday showed that the wind was blowing in favor of the students fighting for access to Student Instructional Rating System (SIRS) forms.

And if the weather in the council does not change before next Tuesday's meeting, it will probably overwhelmingly vote to grant students limited access to the green-andwhite University forms used to rate professors.

But access to the forms will be limited because students on the council compromised and asked for access to only one of three levels of ratings proposed.

The compromise means that students will have access to the data gathered from questionnaires filled out by instructors and devised by students to help other students select courses that would more benefit them. The instructor will be encouraged, but not required, to fill out the forms.

When the Educational Policies Committee (EPC) came out with its report on SIRS, it proposed that three levels of evaluation of instructors be set up: · Level one would rate an instructor according to his compliance to the Teaching

Code of Responsibility. · Level two would consist of a set of questions developed by the individual colleges and departments to help them make personnel decisions.

· Level three would consist of a set of questions developed by the students to help other students better choose courses and

The level three questions would be developed by the Elected Student Council, student members of EPC and Evaluation Services and would probably ask the student to rate an instructor on how interesting his or her class was, how heavy the workload was and what kind of lecturer he or she was. These responses would then be put together by the University and made available to students.

At first, the students were supporting clauses in the document guaranteeing students access to level one questions and giving the individual colleges and departments the option of providing students with responses to level two questionnaires. But when some members pointed out that problems could arise with this arrangement and that students could include any questions they wanted answered in level three, the students decided to drop amendments asking for levels one and two

Brian Raymond, student representative from the College of Social Science, said that they also decided to stop asking for level one and two responses because of legal advice that advised there were certain legal problems with releasing public ratings of how an instructor teaches.

The students made a final concession when they decided to leave it up to the instructor whether he would hand out the level three forms to his students or not. A change from "requiring" instructors to hand out the level three forms to just "encouraging" them to was said by Raymond to be a move to protect the group gathering and publishing the ratings from possible legal action from angry instructors.

The council has another document before it about SIRS which does not contain provisions for student access. Most members were saying that they would quickly dispose of that document Tuesday, pass the document with student access and send it on to the Academic Senate for

To the south and east of Saigon, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces continued heavy shelling and sapper attacks in what appeared to be efforts to close the circle around the jittery capital.

In Washington, U.S. Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand said South Vietnam cannot survive without additional military aid from the United States. He made the statement after reporting to the Senate

Spokesmen said five the compound. Witnesses said windows were shattered in three floors of one wing of the palace.

Thieu made a broadcast calling the attack "an act of a group of people aimed at killing me with the intention to change this legal and constitutional regime." However, air force commander Lt. Gen. Tran Van Minh and several politicians termed it an individual act.

Opposition politicians expressed fears it might result in further suppression of dissent in South Vietnam. Some said it might serve to encourage the Communist forces positioned around Saigon. In neighboring Cambodia, battles raged in the center of a key provincial town west of Phnom Penh as Premier Long Boret returned from a reported meeting with Khmer Rouge leaders and declared, "We will never surrender." Field reports said Khmer Rouge forces slammed more than 400 shells into Kompong Speu 30 miles from Phnom Penh, killing an estimated 100 people. The reports said the insurgents attacked and burned a refugee village three miles northwest of Kompong Speu and that a number of villagers were killed or abducted.

Israel may give up land to revive peace efforts

Israeli policymakers are considering vacating roughly half the Sinai Desert in a new territorial concession to Egypt in an attempt to revive U.S. peace efforts, according to qualified sources.

No Israeli official would comment for the record on the report Tuesday and officials in Jerusalem insisted the idea was only "theoretical." But the sources said the Israelis were thinking of the withdrawal, which would be even deeper than that proposed during Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's unsuccessful peace shuttle last month and would run from north to south in the desert.

They said it would hinge crucially on Egypt's readiness to end the state of war with Israel and would come only after Egypt proved its peaceful intentions with actions.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman would say only that "the degree of Israeli withdrawal depends on the Egyptian political input." One report from Washington said the State Dept. turned down the idea because it had not been ratified by the Israeli cabinet.

The idea apparently arose in the past few days. Last week Premier Yitzhak Rabin had said Israel's negotiating position had not changed as a result of Kissinger's failure.

Kissinger called an end to his peace shuttle in March when Israel declined to surrender Egyptian territory without a specific promise from Cairo to renounce war against the Jewish state. Rabin and his team were known to balk at giving up the Gidi and Mitla passes in the Sinai Desert as well as the Abu Rudeis oil fields without gaining a public nonbelligerency pledge from Egypt in

DNR opposes offshore oil hunt

By JEFF MERRELL

State News Staff Writer The Dept. of Natural Resources (DNR) does not want to know if there are oil deposits under the Great Lakes.

But oil companies do. And at least one company is continuing to pump the DNR for permission to explore the petroleum possibilities, though there is even some doubt that they have to obtain that permission at all.

"If we don't know that oil is there, then there will be no pressure to drill for it," said Charles Harris, chief of resource management for the DNR.

"It was felt by both the (Natural Resources) Commission and the director of the DNR that if we authorize a survey, that would put pressure on the state to drill if likely places for drilling are discovered," Harris said.

But a DNR denial of an exploration request by Seiscom-Delta, of Houston, Tex., has not stopped that company from continuing its active interest in gaining permission.

"If they did it without our permission we would have nothing to stop them," Harris

"Nowhere do I know of any policy or any statute that would pertain to this type of exploration," agreed Bob Aker, chief of the oil and gas section of the state geological survey division.

"Unless there was damage to fish, I doubt if we could stop them," he added.

Palmer Greene, manager of marine marketing for Seiscom-Delta, said his company is still interested in exploration. "As far as we're concerned, it's not a dead issue," Greene said.

Seiscom-Delta conducts oil and gas exploration for oil companies with interests a certain area, and then sells the results. The company's exploration of the Great Lakes would involve shooting air bubbles off the bottomlands from a boat and interpreting the vibrations into useful geological data. Greene said enough oil companies "with northern Michigan interests" have shown interest in the possibilities of exploration to warrant continued pressure on the state for survey permission. Seiscom-Delta will continue to "educate the state" on the company's proposal, according to Greene.

"What might happen afterwards (i.e., drilling) does not have a bearing on what we are doing," Greene emphasized.

The DNR's Aker, however, said if permission for exploration were granted, the oil companies would "get their foot in the door" and could put pressure on the DNR to drill.

And there is some speculation by DNR

officials that some of the oil formations that have proven the most profitable on land extend out into the lakes. Still, representatives from various oil companies are cautious in their view of the situation.

"I think we would buy the survey results, if the price was reasonable," said Ted Phister, of Shell Oil's legal department.

"But the additional expense of offshore work doesn't justify drilling at the present

Vance Orr, president of the Michigan Oil Co. in Alma, said his company was not interested in the Seiscom-Delta survey for their own purposes.

"Probably during my lifetime, we won't be drilling for oil and gas off the Michigan shoreline," Orr said.

"But as far as seismic exploration is concerned, I can't see what's wrong with it," he added.

Oil derricks off the Great Lakes shorelines? The Dept. of Natural Resources says "never," but recent pressure to allow exploration for oil deposits under the lakes has taken a little bit of the punch out of its negative exclamation.

Jackson: reveals agreements

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Tuesday he has learned of secret agreements between the United States and South Vietnam and called on President Ford to make them

Jackson said in a Senate speech that he will call administration officials before one of his subcommittees if the "documents embodying or reflecting these secret agreements" are not made available voluntarily.

Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said Sunday he did not know in detail what commitments the United States had made to South Vietnam. But Schlesinger added that it would be correct to say that any commitments made to South Vietnam were made unilaterally by the executive branch.

Ruppert pleads insanity

James Ruppert pleaded innocent by reason of insanity Tuesday to an indictment charging him with killing 11 members of his family during a gathering at his mother's home in Hamilton, Ohio Easter Sunday.

The indictment charged Ruppert with killing his mother, Charity Ruppert, 65, another son, Leonard Ruppert, 42; Leonard's wife, Alma, 28, and their eight children, aged 4 to

After the indictment was read, Judge Fred B. Cramer asked Ruppert how he pleaded to the charges.

One of his lawyers, Joe Bressler, replied: "Not guilty to all 11 indictments as it now stands. We would also like to enter a plea of not guilty for reason of insanity."

Investigation of IRS sought

Allegations of corruption and improper activities in the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) should be the subject of an outside investigation, says the head of the tax agency.

Commissioner Donald C. Alexander said Monday that the agency is conducting its own probe of accusations by some taxpayers of bribery and payoffs to IRS agents in the Middle Atlantic region of the country.

Alexander said he favors strengthening the investigative staff of the congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation rather than establishing a new investigative agency.

Petroleum production urged

An oil industry spokesman says it would take up to seven years to establish a petroleum stockpile that would protect the United States against another embargo.

Dr. James S. Cross, a vice president of the American Petroleum institute, urged Congress Monday to authorize production at the naval petroleum reserve at Elk Hills, Calif., which he said could produce one billion barrels of oil.

Cross said oil from the Elk Hills facility could be stored in salt domes along the Gulf Coast.

A chartered jetliner carrying 291 Vietnamese orphans arrived at Travis Air Force Base in California Tuesday in one of the last of the major orphan airlifts.

A total of 302 orphans had boarded the flight in Vietnam. Those who did not come to the presidio had been left at Tripler Army Hospital in Honolulu to be treated for diarrhea, dehydration and pneumonia.

Inmates seek prison reform

A convict leader says he and other inmates took four Tennessee State Prison counselors hostage so "another hot summer of killing" could be avoided.

Dock Walker, 29, of Memphis spent more than seven hours negotiating with Corrections Commissioner Herman Yeatman and other prison officials Monday before the counselors and several inmate hostages were freed unharmed. Most of the prison's 2,400 inmates remained locked in their cells.

Soviets can pay in advance

A new study by the Central Intelligence Agency has concluded that the Soviet Union, thanks to much higher prices of oil, gold and other things it exports, can pay in the years ahead for a much larger volume of imports from the west without having to rely on credit.

The study has been declassified and is available from the Library of Congress.

It indicates that if the Soviets want something from this country badly enough, they will have no trouble paying for it in the next five or six years.

UN group seeks sea law

The United Nations conference on the law of the sea is approaching its midpoint with considerable movement toward a treaty but enough disagreement to endanger hopes for an oceanic constitution.

Agreement has already been reached, in general terms, on extending territorial seas from 3 to 12 miles, creating a 200-mile economic zone beyond the territorial limit and establishing an international agency to control development of the seabed.

But there are disagreements when it comes to translating the over-all consensus into livable and enforceable terms.

House committee OKs budget targe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional budget target of $368.2 billion, including a record $73.2 billion deficit, was approved Tuesday by a sharply divided House Budget Committee.

Republicans and Democrats accused each other of using false figures during and after the committee session at which the target budget figure was approved 13 to 10. The final vote reversed a vote earlier in the day by which the committee rejected the budget target, 13 to 11. The committee's action was the first step in Congress' effort to set its own controls over the federal budget rather than simply act on the President's requests.

Congress to investigate jobless benefit system

By the Associated Press

Congress began examining the jobless benefits system Tuesday as Ford Administration labor officials said the program is undergoing the most severe test of its 40-year history.

The House Ways and Means Committee's newly formed unemployment compensation subcommittee opened a series of basic information-gathering sessions on the system.

"With unemployment at 8.7 per cent and 8 million Americans unemployed, we are facing the worst economic crisis since the depression of the 1930s," said Rep. James C. Corman, D-Calif., the subcommittee chairman.

The subcommittee has scheduled seven fact finding sessions through April 22 and then, Corman said, he intends to consider proposals to provide additional weeks of benefits for those who will exhaust benefits under existing law.'

A $200 million feature of the recently enacted tax cut law provides an extra 13 weeks of federal unemployment compensation benefits for about 250,000 persons out of work in hard-core jobless areas, thus bringing new relief to those who have exhausted their existing full year of benefits.

This feature is due to expire June 30, but President Ford has announced he will urge continuing it until the end of 1976. In other economic developments:

Detroit will grind out cars and trucks in the next decade with a smaller work force, auto industry analysts believe.

The Big Four auto companies produced a record 12.6 million vehicles in 1973 and employed a record 1.05 million men and Even if these companies return to 1973's record production, employment in the next decade will not rise above 975,000, according to a dozen experts working for the auto companies, banks and the United Auto Workers.

Car and truck sales at the Big Four are running now at an annual rate of 8.6 million. Employment is 735,000 blue collar and white collar workers, down 30 per cent from 1973. Company spokesman say 200,000 of the laid off workers will be recalled later this year, but the remaining 115,000 jobs-75,000 blue collar and 40,000 white collar-will not be refilled in the near future.

Senators press Administration to increase Vietnam refugee di

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators pressed the Ford Administration Tuesday to step up relief for Vietnam war refugees, whether in the South or North.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., urged that the President send a special envoy to Vietnam for diplomatic negotiations dealing with the safety of refugees in areas overrun by the North Vietnamese. He urged either approaches directly or through the United Nations to the Viet Cong.

Miller said the subject will be covered by President Ford in his foreign policy address to a joint session of Congress Thursday Miller and Daniel Parker, administrator of the Agency for International Development, declined to elaborate further at a hearing on Indochina refugee problems before the Senate subcommittee on refugees headed by Kennedy. Miller contended that the United States moved swiftly in the face of the deteriorating military situation to mobilize shipping from the United States and other nations to move refugees, and to arrange the transport of orphans from Vietnam. He said the United States is now concentrating its refugee relief efforts in areas "where we have access." Parker said information is sparse about the refugee situation in areas overrun by the North Vietnamese.

LANSING (UPI) - Gov. Milliken said Tuesday he will oppose any attempt to do away with Michigan's presidential primary. Democratic legislative leaders are split on the issue.

Democratic leaders in some Southern states are trying to eliminate their presidential primaries in an apparent attempt to blunt another presidential bid by Alabama Gov. George Wallace. A similar proposal for Michigan is being considered by the House Elections Committee.

But Milliken, a Republican and a prime innovator of setting up Michigan's presidential primary for the 1972 elections, told a group of reporters he will oppose any attempt to change the law this

"I think it deserves more than one try," he said.

Wallace won Michigan's 1972 Democratic primary, capturing 51 per cent of the vote in his most impressive victory in a northern state even though the party echelon had endorsed other

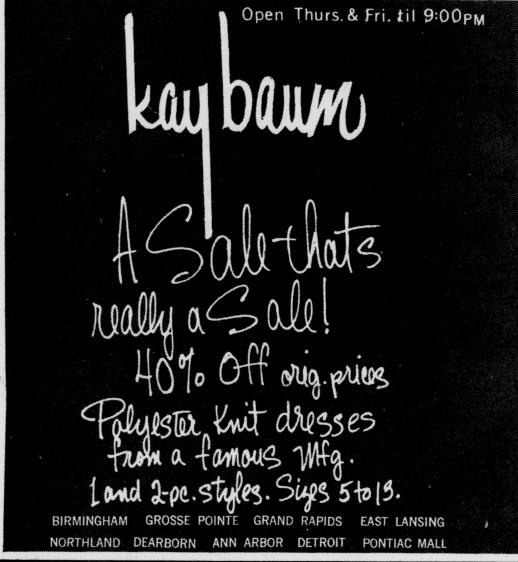

Senate Majority Leader William B. Fitzgerald, D-Detroit, said Tuesday he would vote in favor of eliminating the primary if such a proposal reaches the Senate floor. But House Speaker Bobby D. Crim, D-Davison, said he was "not particularly" in favor of the

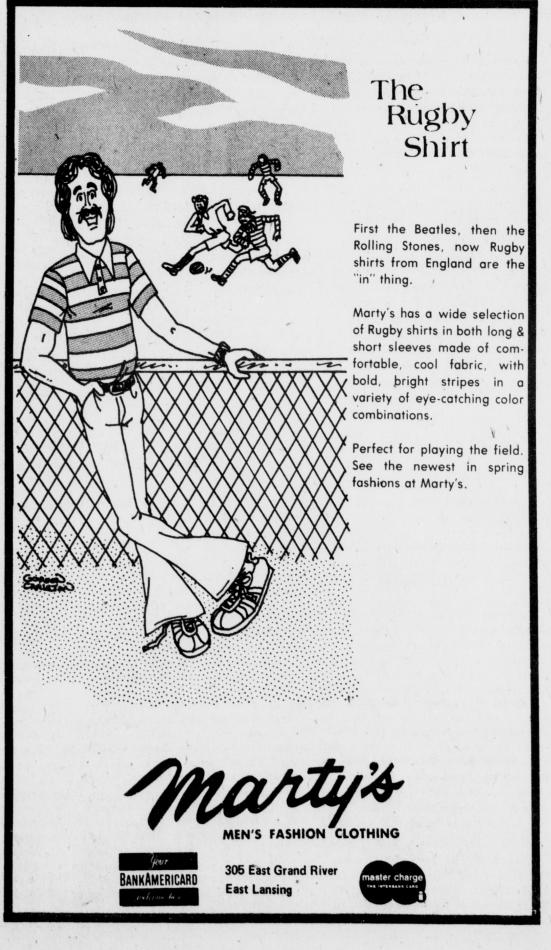

"There's going to be a lot of debate on the damn thing," Crim said. "But it ranks about 100th on my priority list."

State Democratic Chairman Morley Winograd said the party leadership has not yet taken an official position on the issue, but plans to discuss it in depth at an April 29 meeting in Detroit preceding the democrats' annual Jefferson-Jackson dinner.

Winograd said the party leadership is now more interested in legalizing party registration in Michigan so that primaries will no longer be open to voters from both parties, as well as independents. He said he expects a closed primary bill to be introduced in the legislature in the next two weeks.

Sooner or later, MSU trustees will get the message.

Unfortunately, later is upon us. and the great lettuce debate flares on because of the trustees' lackadaisical approach to one of the ripest issues on campus.

The Residence Hall Assn. (RHA), impatient for some action, will be finalizing a referendum question this week to test on-campus student sentiment on a proposed boycott of Teamsters let-

After the board sidestepped the issue at its March meeting, for whatever reason, RHA commendably picked up the ball. If all goes well, the board will have no excuse at this month's meeting to shunt the boycott aside once again. It will have a firm sounding from the student body, in addition to 9,000 student signatures submitted to them by the Student Boycott Committee.

Indeed, the referendum route was never really necessary, with those signatures already obtained.

The usual impervious manner of the trustees as a body will require a flood of opinion to goad them to action, and this is what we expect they'll get from residence hall residents.

At least one trustee, Warren Huff, says his vote for a boycott is contingent upon a fair and complete poll of student sentiment.

This, then, should be the answer to your problems, Mr. Huff.

The referendum should prove that MSU students do not want this University to be parcel to the degradation and maltreatment of the migrants recruited to harvest our food.

Big John facing biased trio

"Ah wouldn't trust that feller," John Connally used to say about untrustworthy characters, "any further than I could throw a chimney by its smoke."

Monday, a jury listened to former Lyndon Johnson aide Jake Jacobson being cross-examined by defense counsel Edward Bennett Williams, and will form its impression about whether to trust Jacobsen's accusation that he bribed John Connally.

Leaks from the special prosecutor's office for the past year have hinted at additional circumstantial evidence that would clinch the case. No such "smoking gun" has been produced so far, however, and now we are being told that the case boils down to which man is to be believed - the accuser or the accused.

That is not strictly true. Put yourself in the jury box. You are not merely asked to believe Jacobsen, a confessed perjurer who is testifying is order to escape prosecution for alleged felonies in Texas. You are also asked to believe The Good Guys - the Watergate special prosecution force - who have been hailed and sanctified over the past two years as avenging angels combating the Forces of Evil.

Now put yourself in the shoes of the typical juror. You are a black and poor Washingtonian, being asked to overcome natural prejudices in judging a rich and white Texan. You do your best to set aside ingrained animosities just as a Catholic juror tries to do in an abortion case, or a Jewish juror in a case involving an Arab terrorist or a white juror in the case of a black man accused of raping a white

But that is not easy to do, which is why the special prosecutor likes to try big cases strictly within the District of Columbia. It is no coincidence that every Watergate case brought to trial in Washington, D.C., has resulted in a conviction, and the only Watergate-related case tried before a non-Washington jury — in New York — resulted in an acquittal. The prosecution's "edge" here is so enormous as to be scandalous.

In this recession-proof, political capital, the local media have devoted far more attention to Watergate than anywhere else;

Nixon "and his henchmen" are hated here with an intensity unmatched elsewhere in the nation; and any fairminded observer would list this city at the very bottom of a list of a thousand places where a trial should be held in order to be fair.

Serves 'em right, people say; a taste of their own medicine; what did those Nixon men care about individual rights when they were in the saddle? Thus, prosecutions soaked in prejudicial publicity before partisan juries are accepted as a kind of poetic justice, at a time when our law courts could use more justice and less poetry.

Of course, this jury could upset the odds and find Connally innocent. If the charge dropping bribe paid to Jacobsen by the prosecution is too galling; if the jurors are not shown incontrovertible evidence to corroborate the central part of the accuser's story; and if - above all - Ed Williams can separate John Connally from the guilt-by-association aura of Watergate, then perhaps conviction of former Nixon officials in the District of Columbia will prove to be non-automatic.

One antidote does exist to counter the poison of Nixon association, which is why Connally has a slim chance. His attorney, the Clarence Darrow of this generation, needs no instructions from the sidelines, but he would stand a better chance if he could counter the Nixon tape with the Zapruder film.

John Connally has been the target of two different kinds of assassins. One took aim from the Texas school book depository on Nov. 22, 1963, and drilled a bullet into his back while he was accompanying President John F. Kennedy to his doom. Lee Harvey Oswald nearly succeeded in assassinating then-governor John Connally.

Whether or not a different kind of assassin - a character assassin, if such he be — will succeed in terminating Conpolitical life is up to the jury. The an not all that far-fetched. At least h has a rational purpose for seeking a down Connally; the accuser is free Brotherhood is not just a bunch of bunk. In 1971 I dropped out of MSU in my junior year because of an eye disease that left me blind until eight weeks ago. For the first three years I was either in the hospital or unable to leave home for anything.

During that time my fraternity brothers never let me down. Whenever I was in the hospital they came. Four, five guys one day. Three or four a couple of days later. A few more on another day. Not the same ones but practically every guy in the house made the six - hour trip.

They encouraged me, they told me jokes. they brought booze, gifts and once in a while a Rho - mate. They lifted my spirits when a lift was badly needed. They were there when I needed them.

Brotherhood? I really didn't know what it meant until then. Anybody can be friendly and helpful to a person when he's down, at least for a little while. But these guys kept it up for three years until each one graduated and left the house to take a

Hoofers applauded

I would like to extend my congratulations to the Block and Bridle Club.

The horse show sponsored by the club exhibited an outstanding display of horses and horsemanship. The additions of barrel racing, sheep herding and goat tying gave an added attraction to the show. I was fortunate enough to attend two shows and enjoy the exhibition of Master's Cup Riding.

My only disappointment was the lack of audience participation. But I guess wherever there are horses and horsemen, there will also be a horse show. It's nice to know that people that were there shared your enthusiasm and interest.

Iranian play a tragedy

It is surprising that so far almost nothing has appeared in the U.S. press about the latest accomplishment of the otherwise so well - publicized Shah of Iran. This is a dreadful play and will have most tragic consequences for the people and for the future of Iran. The play is a drama with following acts:

1. On March 2, the Shah declares the establishment of a new party called "Iran Resurgence party." It will be the only party allowed in Iran.

2. The monarch divides all Iranians in two separate and distinct groups. The first consists of those who believe in the monarchy and in his white revolution, and the second who do not.

3. The first group should apply for membership of the party. For the second group, Shah openly declares that its place is either in prison or if its members want, they may leave the country. 4. Shah proposes that Hoveyda, his premier, should be appointed the secretary general of the party, head of the politburo, as well as its executive for at least two years at the first national congress of the party. His appointment is assured. 5. A nationalistic fervor sparin country. Not only do the president Senate, the chairman of the N Iranian Oil Co., the imperial court m or the editors of the Iranian newspapers so readily sign party regi but thousands of Iranians country apply for the membership. Even the employes of Iranian TV w

Please come to my rescue! No one believes me that an individual can get syphilis from a camel. I know what everyone is taught, but my brother who is in the Peace Corps in North Africa has heard of another way. He was warned by his superiors about getting camel saliva on open cuts or abrasions. If the saliva was infected with the syphilis spirochete, he was told he could come down with a full blown case. Can this really happen? Or, were his instructors just making a joke that went over his head? There are many types of spirochetes, the syphilis spirochete being just one kind. It might be that there was some confusion over the development of other types of infections from camel saliva which probably does contain another variety of spirochete. Saliva of any kind introduced into a wound can be highly infectious, which is what makes animal and human bites so danger-

Syphilis is not found in nonhuman animals, a fact which has made research in this area so difficult. There have been some promising developments in introducing the disease into certain types of animals in a laboratory but this is very far from the question raised in your letter. Maybe there was a joke that had to do with camel humps and your brother missed the punch line.

I have a friend with cancer of the bone. She is in a lot of pain but does not like to take all of her pain pills because she wants to be as alert as possible. Would acupuncture be a viable alternative to the drugs? How lasting are the effects of acupuncture and has it been used to treat cancer patients?

Acupuncture as a means of alleviating pain has been tried and many claims for its success have been made. However, there has been no general substantiation of these claims in medical literature. The problem is complex. The perception of pain can be modified by psychological factors and there may also be certain neurophysiologic factors that can influence pain perception. Acupuncture is alleged to work by blocking the perception of painful stimuli by the introduction of a countering stimulus by applying the acupuncture needle to specific sites on the body.

While there would be nothing harmful in trying acupuncture to relieve the pain you write about, there would be major difficulty in finding a knowledgeable person to administer the treatment. I cannot be optimistic about success in such an endeavor. The problem faced by people with the type of pain you describe is immense. Under such circumstances the use of narcotic drugs is perfectly appropriate and can often be used in amounts which will not dull the person's awareness of other things that are going on, especially when used in combination with certain other types of medicine.

Particularly in cancer and other life threatening illnesses, pain is made worse by lonliness and is eased when family, friends, physicians and other caregivers remain involved and available.

I believe I have some sort of urinary problem. I have to urinate every half hour at times. Yet, I do not have this problem continually. It seems to come and go. Sometimes my excess urination will occur for one or two consecutive days and then not reappear again for weeks. I am a somewhat nervous person, could this have any bearing on my problem.

Some very anxious people do experience the symptoms you describe. And certainly the noncontinual nature of the problem should make one suspicious that anxiety could be involved. However, there are a variety of other causes of frequent urination. Frequent urination is a symptom of urinary tract infection, but pain often accompanies urination. There can be a variety of bladder or urethral irritations which can also produce symptoms of frequent urination. A visit to a physician who would obtain a careful history of the problem, do a urinalysis and any other appropriate examinations should provide a ready answer to your question.

There is a rumor going around to the effect that I do not exist.

But I do. Really. It's true. Just ask anybody in the Etruscan Language Literature Dept. They all know me.

The rumor states that Walter Adams, distinguished university professor (or so we are led to believe), made me up and put my name in the Faculty and Staff Directory. Bunk. It's just the other way around. One dark and stormy night I was partaking of an ancient beverage when I decided to create a ficticious character. I was in that kind of state, you see. Creative. That is what the ancient beverage does to one partaking of it.

So anyway, there I was with my creativity tittering all about and I decided to take a poke at bureaucracy. I proposed to invent an associate professor of economics and insert his name into the Faculty and Staff Directory - which is what I did.

I invented the name Walter Adams, which is actually the name of a distant cousin by marriage, and watched my creation grow, year by year, in the Faculty and Staff Directory, from a piddling associate professorship to the ethereal heights of a distinguished University professor, interim University president frequent economic advisor to the House.

I had no idea it could have gone so spread like peanut butter. So I decided it was time to expost travesty on justice. How did Walter Adams get to be tinguished professor if he did not exist? I made him up, I tell you. He is creation of my vivid imagination! I am not crazy! I just want justice!

The plans call for a Great Hall seating about 2,500, a theater recital hall with a capacity of 600, a laboratory theater, classrooms, dance studio, scenery design shop and similar facilities. There will be an outdoor theater area and a covered plaza for art shows or similar events.

Is the Great Hall large enough?

In determining the size, we were guided by the experts rather than the dollars. The acoustical engineers, Boner Associates, and other consultants advised that any concert hall exceeding the 2,500 to 2,800 range would be acoustically deficient. The size should be ample for most of our Lecture-Concert attractions; when we have a major drawing card, we can schedule more than one performance (such as we did with Rudolph Nureyev in 1973).

How much will the facility cost?

The present estimate is about $16 million. We are asking the Michigan Legislature for $5 million, and we are seeking to raise the remaining $11 million from individuals. foundations and other friends of the

Why not get it all from the legislature since this is a state univeristy?

The legislature restricts its funding to What would the performing arts center academic buildings. Since the performing arts center will have important instructional components, such as class and practice rooms and facilities for the Theater Dept., we are asking the legislature to fund that share, but the rest must come from nonappropriated dollars.

Is that why the April 19 "Tony & Lena Sing" benefit is being held?

Yes. The MSU Faculty Folk Club has undertaken to raise $100,000 for the performing arts center and is sponsoring the benefit as a demonstration that the University community is behind the project.

Aren't $100 and $50 tickets pretty expensive?

Well, after all, it is a fund-raising show. Even so, with the generous state and federal income tax treatment of educational contributions, a family with a taxable income of $20,000 could buy two $100 tickets at a net cost of $63.50. That's a pretty good deal. In addition, there also are $25, $12.50 and $6.50 (for MSU students) tickets available.

Why Tony Bennett and Lena Horne?

The "Tony & Lena Sing" show was a smash hit on Broadway and has played to sell-out audiences across the country. The Faculty Folk Club asked them to come here for the benefit because it wanted performers with wide appeal and a successful show. While the object is to raise money, we also want to make sure that those attending have a wonderful evening.

Of course, those who don't want to attend will still find their contributions welcome. Hundreds of people in and around the university have complained about the Auditorium for years. Here is an opportunity to replace talk with positive action.

Will the center be exclusively for MSU

Not at all. For years, the Lecture-Concert Series has provided cultural programming for thousands in the Greater Lansing area, and this aspect of MSU's public service will be enhanced by the new center. As another example, we would like to see the Lansing Symphony Orchestra make the center its permanent home.

VIEWPOINT: MSUEA CONSTITUTION

CTs need quorum for change

By BEATRICE LIN

CECILIA CANFIELD

The recent attempt by several clericaltechnical workers (CTs) to petition for a special meeting to amend the MSU Employes Assn. constitution was a huge success, with over 268 signatures collected of the 190 required. This meeting will be at noon Thursday in Erickson Hall kiva.

It is apparent that many CTs want a chance to have input into the constitution which was "railroaded" through at a recent 41/2-hour meeting of MSUEA, chiefly by Harold Schmidt, chief negotiator of MSUEA. This constitution smacks of elitism. Guarantees of democratic rank and file input and control are conspicuously absent and have been argued down as being impractical and unimportant.

Several CTs have met and have drawn up proposed amendments, which were printed and distributed at their personal expense to all who signed the petition. We wish to use this Viewpoint as a forum to paraphrase some key amendments and present a brief rationale as to why we think they are vital to a truly representative association. Our aim is to enable CTs to evaluate before the meeting some of the proposed amendments and ask that they call us to offer comments, suggestions or criticisms.

•Article VI - Committees: The standing and special committees will be staffed from the membership upon application. The present structure states that the board shall fill committees from among its members. The proposed amendment allows and broadens member participation.

We also propose that association representatives be elected by their constituents in line with truly democratic representation. The present constitution provides for the board to appoint or select association representatives.

•Article VII - Meetings: We propose that MSUEA hold monthly meetings as opposed to quarterly meetings (which amount to three general meetings and one elections meeting). Monthly meetings would encourage membership participation by opening up and increasing access to information and meeting and find they cannot even vote for communication by the members.

In addition they would provide more decision-making opportunities and a chance to get regular feedback of board decisions and deliberations. As it now stands, the executive board makes all decisions except those made during the three general meeting.

•Article VIII - Quorum: We propose a quorum of 25 to replace the current 100-member provision. This proposal goes hand-in-hand with the monthly meetings since in the past monthly attendance has been averaging 35 members. This lower quorum will insure that the decision-making power rest with the membership since in the absence of a quorum, the executive board is empowered to make the decisions.

This provision does not imply a limit to the number of members we want to attend meetings, but insures that those attending will be able to vote. The ridiculous 100-member provision will have the effect of turning off members if they come to a lack of a quorum. Even if only 25 rank and file members did attend, this would be far better than only 11 Board members making •Article XI - Amendments: We propose that the current provision requiring all amendments to be signed by no fewer than 51 members be deleted. We feel that amending the constitution should be a plausible procedure and not one that discourages members from introducing change if a consensus in that direction exists.

After all, if support for an amendment exists, its manifestation should be allowed. The argument that this would lead to "amendment fever" is ill-founded. In the past, how many CTs have introduced amendments to the constitution?

We are also calling for amendments for Articles IV, V and IX. We urge all MSUEA members to come to this very important meeting Thursday. We will need 100 members to be present in order that we Aymond said his company intends to apply to the state Public Service Commission (PSC) in May for a further increase in its electric rates.

Though he declined to say how much the company would seek, sources said it would exceed the $66 million granted in January.

Detroit Edison and Michigan Bell Telephone, which also received PSC approval earlier this year to increase rates, announced during the weekend they too intended to apply for rate increases soon.

Aymond said that unless and until earnings are restored to the levels authorized by the state Public Service Commission, Consumers and other utilities cannot attract the capital necessary to build facilities needed in the years ahead.

He said earnings per share on the company's common stock were $1.34 last year as compared with $2.41 a year earlier. The resulting return on common equity, he said, was 4.8 per cent as against 12.12 per cent. actually authorized by the Public Service Commission.

Earnings remain well below what they should be-and must be-if the company is to regain its ability to finance future construction on the scale that its management knows will be needed, Aymond said.

Though rate relief is a "must," Aymond said, there are several encouraging indications

John J. Appel, professor of American thought and language, is part of a committee seeking congressional funds to restore Ellis Island as one of the nation's bicentennial projects.

"It seems foolish to let these historical buildings collapse or let vandals run the island down while the bicentennial commission is wracking it's brains trying to find something to do," Appel said.

The committee, a national organization known as the Restore Ellis Island Committee, is composed of teachers, writers and others who are interested in immigration and ethnic history.

The committee is asking that $1.5 million of 1976 budget go towards the restoration of the Appel said that the committee does not wish to tell anyone exactly what to do with the island, but simply wishes to see something done.

"We just don't want to see it continue to waste," he said. Appel said that it could be turned into a museum or library where racial and ethnic groups display aspects of their history, or a park.

People can make suggestions to the National Park Service as to what can be done with the island, Appel said.

Appel pointed out that the island's location already offers it a particular advantage.

"It is located where lots of tourists already go," he said. "It is on the way by ferry boat to the Statue of Liberty.'

The committee urges all people interested in seeing the island restored to contact their congressmen.

"I doubt the government will do much unless they feel there is support for it," Appel said.

"Original Soundtrack" is on its way to becoming one of 1975's best albums.

ARGENT: "CIRCUS"-A very curious thing has hap-pened. Argent, which has been suffering from acute blandness since its "Ring of Hands" album years ago, have lost Russ Ballard, who many considered the group's last stronghold against the Emerson, Lake and Palmer excessivity syndrome. Instead of emerging with "Tarkus Squared," its newest, "Circus," is the group's finest work in years.

Somehow, keyboard player Rod Argent regained his taste. Long, meandering solos have been replaced with concise and appropriate instrumental flashes that are greatly helped by new guitarist John Grimaldi, a 19-year-old who plays in the Mahavishnu mold, though his style is more refined.

The first side of "Circus" is alone worth the album price. "Clown" is particularly praiseworthy, as it beats anything the group has done since its first album in 1969.

Unfortunately, there are one or two problems. LINDA LOVELACE "The Early Years"

WE HAVE IN-CAR HEATERS

Before Linda Lovelace became a porno queen in "Deep Throat," she made several short films. Even in the erotic underground these films became notorious. These films have been written about in Playboy, Penthouse, Oui and Gallery.

Linda Lovelace's early films have never been exhibited in a motion picture theatre publicly. They are simply too daring. They are held exclusively by private collectors of erotica. Beal Film Group has contacted a private collector and made arrangements to exhibit these films for a special engagement.

These Lovelace films have become pornographic classics, much discussed, but rarely seen. They are absolutely hardcore and go substantially beyond anything that Beal has ever presented.

Hayhoe had her chance when the class coordinators did some recipe demonstrations. Frank Robinson admitted cheerfully that his debut Tuesday as player-manager of the Cleveland Indians was just about perfect.

He hammered a home run in his first time at bat, the 575th of his career, his close friend Boog Powell blasted another, and the Indians defeated the New York Yankees, 5-3, before 56,204 roaring fans.

"It was great, and a big win and a tremendous win," said Robinson, the first black to manage in baseball's major eagues.

His homer came on a 2-2 pitch off Yankee starter Doc Medich and rocketed past the left field fence as he got around on a low

"The first two strikes I just couldn't pull the trigger but then he came back with a sidearm motion," Robinson said. "I saw him drop down and-boom. I had no feeling really. I just go blank after hitting. But when I got to third base I thought, 'Will wonders never cease?"

Winning pitcher Gaylord

Perry, the first man out of the dugout to congratulate Robinson despite their disagreements in the past, said, "Robbie took the pressure off us all." And Powell said, "I was just super happy for Frank. It brought me up hollering." The fans stayed until the last out, with Perry fielding Thurman Munson's grounder and throwing him out at first.

They roared and waved their

"It was good to hear those people holler," Perry said. "Maybe it helped me keep throwing hard at the end."

The MSU Rugby Club teams were hot and cold in tournaments held in Iowa City, Iowa, last weekend. The men's team won the Big Ten title but the women lost all three games in their tourney.

The men were shutout in their first meeting with Minnesota, 4-0, but came back to whip the Gophers, 22-0, in the title game. MSU also beat Iowa and Purdue to thrust itself into the finals with

MSU alumnus Julian Fotre led MSU with two tries (four points) in the championship game, which gave the club its first Big Ten title since its formation. The men had just returned from a second place finish in the

In the first series of games ever for the MSU women's team, it lost to Indiana, Kansas State and Illinois.

This Saturday the women will host the tournament champions, Indiana, in a game at Old College Field next the baseball field. The team, which has only been practicing since winter term, is

I'm not a dyed-in-the-wool fan of anything except MSU athlets Consequently, I can't resist putting my 2 cents worth in about MSU basketball program.

There's been a lot of debate as to whether or not the basket program is second rate. Well I, for one, certainly think it is MSU has always been known as a football school. Dozens w dozens of athletes have sharpened their skills here before going to the pros. But I can't recall too many MSU basketball plane who have made a real mark in the pros other than Ralph Simple and Johnny Green.

It seems as though the Athletic Dept. refuses to get sen about the basketball program, and with the possible exception. John Bennington in the mid 60s, MSU has never had a "fe basketball coach.

I admire the character of Gus Ganakas. He's an honest straightforward man, in my opinion. Unfortunately, he's no winner. I give you the past basketball season, MSU probably the second-best talent in the conference. Yet where did the to finish in the Big Ten standings?

I think the Athletic Dept. needs to make some bold, innoval moves. The first thing to do is go after a winning basketball collision. someone of the caliber of River Rouge's Lofton Green, or State's Will Robinson or perhaps someone like Arizona's 178 Snowden.

The last two men named happen to be black. Wouldn't i great if MSU's Athletic Dept. did some progressive thinking in change and hired the Big 10's first black head basketball coad especially for a Canadian. The golf season in Canada is generally short because of the climate.

There's no reason why Jenison Fieldhouse shouldn't be filled its ancient rafters for every basketball game. Former MSU hockey star Gilles Gagnon (left), who ended his ice career here in December 1972, has been named asst. hockey coach and golf professional at Colgate University.

"I was going to try out for the golf team my first year at MSU, but I had some injuries (from the hockey season) and I also wanted to make sure I graduated on time," he said.

Gagnon has established himself as one of Michigan's top amateur golfers. He has played in numerous tournaments, highlighted by a high finish in last year's Michigan Open.

The Michigan tournaments are over, though, and all Gagnon has to worry about now is getting the snow off his golf course and helping bring the Colgate hockey team back into contention in the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference.

Shortly after the impeachment hearings last summer, police at the Rayburn House Office Building set up the first X-ray machine which can detect anything from paper clips to automatic pistols in a visitor's lines of suspicious objects on a video screen wired into the scanner.

Male dies after club's initiation

DE KALB, Ill. (UPI) - An initiation rite for a Northern Illinois University social club that required drinking one half-gallon of liquor is being blamed for the death of a 23-year-old Detroit student.

"I'm not completely sure it was an initiation rite," De Kalb County Coroner Paul Van Natta said. "But I'm pretty sure it was. There were a couple of other kids in the hospital from the stuff."

De Kalb police Chief Joseph Maciejewski said Richard Gowins drank the half-gallon mixture of gin, tequila and wine in one hour at an initiation party Saturday and was found unconscious later at the apartment where the party was held.

He was pronounced dead Saturday night at a De Kalb hospital.

De Kalb Chief Deputy Coroner Richard Miller said witnesses confirmed Gowins drank the mixture upon initiation into the Wine Psi Phi club, described as an unofficial club for black male and female students.

Police said authorities would await a pathologist's report due next week before declaring an exact cause of death.

The club is not affiliated with any Greek organizations listed with the university's student association.

A spokesman from a local drug rescue group said drinking 30 ounces of 90-proof alcohol could be fatal. Gowins reportedly drank 64 ounces of 60-to-80 proof alcohol - twice the minimum fatal dose.

The spokesman said persons consuming this much alcohol usually vomit or pass out before they reach the fatal stage. Death is considered rare unless the victim is unconscious for many hours or if trauma or infection complicates the case.

Terrorism is an overt sign of a revolutionary war strategy aimed at undermining constitutional forms of government. said Desmond O'Brien, chief superintendent of the Royal Ulster Constabulary in Ireland.

O'Brien, speaking Monday at a seminar sponsored by MSU's school of Criminal Justice, said the strategy of terrorists can usually be divided into three phases - the organizational phase, the terror phase and the guerilla phase.

In the organizational phase "propaganda is used to exploit present problems on grounds of race or politics to produce unrest, and potentially leftist organizations are infiltrated to add to the problems," O'Brien

He said that dissent will be used to attempt to discredit the police and local government, until in the terror phase firearms and explosives will be used against them.

"The first real signs of revolutionary action are protests, sit-ins and vandalism, because when this goes on, the community is at its weakest," O'Brien said.
