SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese tanks pushed eastward toward Saigon Sunday in what one South Vietnamese official said could be the beginning of an offensive against the capital.

Tanks rolled to within 17 miles of the National Assembly named retired Duong Van "Big" Minh, a neutralist, as president to replace Tran Van Huong in an attempt to attain a negotiated settlement and spare Saigon from a major assault.

Military sources said Ba Ria, the capital of Tuy Province 30 miles southeast of Saigon, and the district capital of Long Binh, 20 miles to the east, had fallen to Communist-led troops.

In Hoa, the big military complex 15 miles northeast of Saigon that houses a corps headquarters and a fighter-bomber base, reported under heavy artillery attack. Military sources said hundreds of shells had fallen on the area and its defenders were fighting for a ground attack.

A ceremony was scheduled to be inaugurated Sunday and was expected to call for an immediate cease-fire and to condone the withdrawal of most of the American mission, seeking to reduce it to the normal level of other diplomatic missions.

Hundreds of South Vietnamese militiamen dropped their weapons in a pile and fled in the path of the two-pronged assault by Communist-led forces. More than 100,000 fleeing refugees also were stretched out in a 15-mile line in the path of the advance.

Saigon itself was hit by six rockets in the first such attack on the capital since the signing of the cease-fire agreement in January 1973. Four rockets hit before dawn, killing six persons, wounding 22 others and setting about 200 homes ablaze. Two more hit just before midnight, but police reported no casualties.

Communist-led troops cut Highway 15, the capital's overland highway to the coast, and Highway 4, its lifeline to the food-producing Mekong Delta to the south.

Radio Hanoi interrupted a musical program to announce that the Viet Cong also had captured Ba Ria, the capital of Phuoc Tuy province 30 miles southeast of Saigon. Hundreds of Americans were evacuated from Saigon, leaving fewer than 1,000 in the city by nightfall, about half of them assigned to the U.S. mission. The others included contract employes, businessmen, newsmen, missionaries and employes of voluntary agencies.

Officials said the staff of the U.S. defense attaché's office had been reduced but denied reports that it had closed altogether.

South Vietnamese officers claimed their forces knocked out more than 20 of Soviet-built T54 medium tanks in fighting, that swirled along a north to south arc stretching from 12 to 30 miles from Saigon.

A 24-hour curfew was declared in the greater Bien Hoa area, 15 miles northeast of Saigon, next in the line of attack.

A spokesman for the Viet Cong delegation said its position had already been made clear in a statement issued Saturday.

"Those who love the country and want to contribute to the building of peace must all respond to the two demands of the Provisional Revolutionary Government," the spokesman said.

The earlier Viet Cong statement called for "an administration in Saigon standing for peace, independence, democracy, national concord and serious implementation of the Paris agreement."

The second point demanded the withdrawal of all American military personnel including military advisers the Viet Cong claims are disguised as civilians, an end to U.S. "interference in South Vietnam's internal affairs," and the withdrawal of a 7th Fleet task force standing off the coast of Vietnam ready to land Marines to evacuate Americans should Saigon come under attack.

Elsewhere in Indochina, armed Khmer Rouge troops made a brief and peaceful incursion into Thailand as the new Cambodian regime in Phnom Penh trumpeted its victory over radio with music and propaganda statements but little news.

The Khmer Rouge troops crossed into Thailand at a seaside border marked by sticks and trenches on the Gulf of Siam but returned to their side after talking to a Thai provincial governor and Red Cross officials. One of the Khmer Rouge soldiers told a correspondent they had come in peace.

Telethon raises $134,000, federal flood aid due soon

By BRIAN HOUGH
State News Staff Writer

President Ford opened the way for federal disaster aid to Michigan flood victims Saturday, while area celebrities made a four-day television plea for private contributions to a flood relief fund.

Federal funds to aid flood victims will become available on Wednesday when the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration opens area offices.

In the meantime, private efforts, including a telethon sponsored last Thursday through Sunday by WJIM television and radio and the State Journal, will help to supply needed funds.

Congressman Bob Carr, Lansing Mayor Gerald Graves and a host of local performing artists donated time and talent for the telethon.

The telethon has raised $134,000 thus far, and donations can still be made by contacting WJIM.

The funds will be distributed through "Project Lend-A-Hand," organized by the State Journal. Persons in need of aid can apply by contacting the State Journal.

The federal aid will come through the Federal Disaster Relief Fund. The money will be used to provide temporary housing, supply disaster unemployment benefits to those who lost their jobs due to the flood and finance debris removal and repair for streets, bridges and public utilities.

President Ford declared Michigan a major disaster area on Saturday, making it eligible for the federal aid.

The aid will be distributed at so-called "one-stop shopping centers" to be set up in Lansing, Flint and Kalamazoo, the governor's office said.

The federal offices are termed "one-stop shopping centers" because an applicant will be able to apply for any type of disaster aid there.

Private citizens and businesses will be able to apply for low interest loans at the centers.

To qualify for a personal disaster loan, a person must apply at one of the federal centers, which will then send an assessor to determine if the request is legitimate.

Public expenses resulting from the flood will be reimbursed 100 per cent by the federal government.

Lansing suffered $20.3 million in damages and all of Ingham County totaled $40 million in damages, according to Graves.

State Rep. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing, said he was pleased by the President's quick action and that this disaster may lead to better preparedness at the state level in the future.

"The state has no funds specifically set aside for disaster relief," Jondahl said. "Money will have to be channeled from other sources."

Jondahl is working on a program to determine how state funds can be diverted to disaster relief programs.

Jondahl is also concerned that even the low-interest loans being offered by the federal government may be too expensive for low-income families.

For those who fear another flood, weekend showers amounted to less than half an inch of rain and no serious storms are predicted for the immediate future.

GROUP TO STUDY ALTERNATIVES

Ticket fine hike dropped

By BRUCE RAY WALKER
State News Staff Writer

The All-University Traffic Committee has abandoned its proposals to raise fines for student motor vehicle violations nearly 150 per cent, but authorized a study to look into other ways of stemming the flood of unregistered cars on campus.

The abandonment of the proposal came during a meeting Friday, after various student groups on campus came out strongly last week against the plan that increased student fines while leaving faculty and staff fines the same. The Council of Graduate Students (COGS), the Residence Halls Assn. and ASMSU president-elect J. Brian Raymond all denounced the changes.

The proposal had been delivered to the committee at its April 11 meeting by chairman Howard Woodruff, senior, 3469 Lake Lansing Road, who said the raise in the fines was needed because the present fines were not enough of a deterrent. Fines presently set at $10 would have been increased to $25, while $4 fines would have risen to $10.

When Woodruff introduced the proposal at Friday's meeting no one came out in support of it and by joint agreement of the committee it was abandoned before a vote was taken.

Four students sat on the committee as interim appointees after being appointed by Raymond last week. Raymond discovered at the April 11 meeting that no student appointees were on the committee because of a misunderstanding between former ASMSU president Tim Cain and President Wharton. COGS also had a representative present after finding out last week they had no official person appointed.

Before the proposal was killed, Richard Bernitt, director of the Dept. of Public Safety, gave the position of the campus police on the fine increases.

"Up to this time the Dept. of Public Safety has been officially silent, but I'll say now that I don't think the proposed new system of fines is the answer to the problem," Bernitt said. "I think the solution is to require all cars — student and faculty — to have a permit."

After the proposal had died, Charles Wilson, manager of Phillips-Snyder Halls, made a motion for the committee to study Bernitt's idea and a study was authorized. Wilson said he hoped that this might be a solution to the large number of cars on campus illegally because he would "hate to see it come to the point where armed guards have to be placed at every entrance of the University to keep out nonregistered cars."

One major change made in the fine system was to strengthen the action taken against students who forge University vehicle permits.

In the past, reproducing a permit brought about a referral of the student to the Office of Student Affairs. Now, anyone caught forging a permit will be referred to the Ingham County prosecutor's office for possible prosecution under a counterfeiting ordinance.

In other actions, the committee voted to change the present policy on students getting permits to drive on campus because of medical problems. In the future, in an effort to cut down on forgery, a student will not be able to present a letter from his or her doctor to University Health Center to get a permit, but will have to have his or her doctor send the letter directly to the health center.

Also, the committee voted to allow students with a motorcycle to register it at no additional cost if they already have a vehicle registered.

Election petitions filed with commission by SWU

By JIM KEEGSTRA
State News Staff Writer

The campus Student Workers Union has filed petitions requesting an election to establish a union for part-time student workers.

The petitions were filed late Thursday in Detroit with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC), according to Student Workers Union (SWU) member and organizer Doyle O'Connor.

O'Connor said Sunday he expects MERC to hold an informal hearing on the election request this week. At that meeting, the SWU will turn over election authorization cards signed by MSU student workers.

There must be cards for at least 30 per cent of MSU's approximately 7,100 student employes, about 2,130 signed authorizations. The cards simply indicate the signer wishes to vote yes or no on unionization.

At the MERC informal hearing, representatives of the University will also be present. O'Connor said the SWU is asking the eight MSU trustees to tell the representative to agree to an election without major, time-consuming petitions challenges.

"We are demanding that the board of trustees of MSU agree to a consent election to be held immediately," a SWU press release says.

The union expects and can accept a few challenges but does not want the University to question the validity of hundreds of authorization cards and tie up the election in court for three or four years, O'Connor said.

"The University has the power to put up one hell of a fight," O'Connor said. "We don't want that. We're willing to negotiate with the University on one or two disagreements."

If the University does not consent to an election, O'Connor said trustees might not be served dinner on campus or possibly no one would be served on campus.

O'Connor stressed the SWU is not threatening a strike but said it is one of the union's options. He said the decision to strike would have to be voted on by SWU members.

Trustee Warren Huff, D-Plymouth, said Sunday obviously an election would have to be held if the SWU has enough signed cards. However, he said their authenticity would have to be verified by MERC before the University agrees to an election.

Brian Babcock inspects his flood-ravaged furniture that will be hauled to the dump this week. Babcock, a 25-year-old Kellogg Center janitor, and his family are moving back into their home at 16 S. Detroit St. today.

Determined family moves home to begin again after flood ruin

By R. D. CAMPBELL
State News Staff Writer

The family is moving back today for the Babcocks.

Brian Babcock, a 25-year-old Kellogg Center custodian, his wife and two sons live at 516 S. Detroit St. in the flood-ravaged stable neighborhood. Last week the house which they have lived in for two years was under four feet of water.

Over the weekend 15 Kellogg Center employes attacked Babcock's house with mops, soap and disinfectant, scrubbing all five rooms in the two-story house from ceiling to floor.

The house smells and looks clean, the flood wounds are everywhere apparent. The plywood has buckled four inches from the normal floor surface in the dinette, living room and one bedroom. A water line running throughout the house has stained the veneer paneling.

"I don't gonna move," Babcock said. "It won't happen again. At least I hope it won't."

Most of the home lies most of the Babcock family's belongings will be hauled to the dump this week.

With $100 in donations from fellow employes and other relief funds from the Red Cross, Babcock is planning to buy used furniture today so his family can move back in.

Babcock said he could have saved most of his belongings if the police would have allowed him back to his home during the three hours between the initial forced evacuation of the neighborhood and the actual invasion of the flood waters into his home.

"We had just gone grocery shopping and the refrigerator was full of fresh meat," he said. "All we had time to get was two gallons of milk and some blankets."

On Saturday evening the Babcocks realized their pregnant Siamese cat Sonya was back at the house, but they weren't allowed to rescue her.

Babcock's sister-in-law waded into the house Wednesday evening and found the cat half-starved on the kitchen counter.

The following day Babcock found one dead and three barely alive kittens on a water-soaked mattress in one of the bedrooms. All the kittens died by nightfall.

But for Sonya and the Babcocks — like other flood-stricken families in Urdandale — the pieces will be picked up and life will go on.

Chrysler may issue rebates

Chrysler Corp., which suffered a dramatic sales setback this month, is expected to unveil a new car price rebate campaign today.

Sources said the firm will announce new pricing policies at a series of dealer meetings this week, and indicated Chrysler plans to offer car rebates of up to $200.

Chrysler kicked off the initial Big Three rebate campaigns early this year, but the other auto makers — whose sales are poor, but not as poor as Chrysler's — apparently are not eager to do it again.

"We have no plans for a rebate program," a General Motors spokesman said. Ford issued a similar statement explaining their company has no plans to resume rebating.

Study cites worker illnesses

A study done by the University of Washington for the government has found that one out of every four workers in a sample of small businesses has an occupationally derived disease and 89 per cent of those are not reported as required to the Labor Dept.

Some of the diseases listed in the study include chronic respiratory disease due to asbestos and other fibrous-like dust in work areas, loss of hearing due to noise, eye cataracts from infrared radiation and increased lead absorption in the blood.

"If we had statistics from an in-depth medical survey of the nation's workers, they would truly paint a picture of disease and chronic illness as horrifying as conditions in the sweat shops of the last century," said Rep. Dominick V. Daniels, chairman of the House health and safety subcommittee.

Avalanche claims 3 so far

About 50 mountain rescue workers in Castle Rock, Wash., rode snowmobiles into a blizzard Sunday morning to look for survivors of an avalanche that took three lives Saturday night, the Skamania County sheriff's office said.

Of the 29 persons registered to climb in the area, 26 have been accounted for, but the spokesman said some climbers set off without signing in.

Winds of up to 70 miles per hour blowing snow and ice precluded the use of a helicopter in the search operations.

The avalanche occurred on a 9,677-foot mountain in the southwest corner of the state.

Ford, Brezhnev talk delayed

President Ford and Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet leader, have agreed to delay until this fall their meeting in Washington, originally planned for late June or early July.

High Administration officials said Saturday that the decision to put off the meeting, probably until September, had not been caused by any critical problem.

They said the two sides had agreed on the delay for a variety of reasons, including a timing conflict with the expected 35-nation summit meeting concluding the European security conference in July, uncertainty about the Middle East and the mutual desire to review Soviet-American relations in detail.

Mideast talks may resume

A Palestinian delegation headed by Yasir Arafat is expected to visit Moscow next week as part of a diplomatic campaign by the Soviet Union to reactivate the Geneva conference on a Middle East settlement.

Moscow has seen the failure of Kissinger's mediation between Egypt and Israel as an opportunity to re-enter the Middle East as champion of a new attempt at a political settlement through the Geneva conference.

London bank loot still sought

In a second straight day of raids, police recovered another $100,000 worth of cash and some jewels Sunday that had been taken in one of Britain's biggest bank holdups. But Scotland Yard estimated that $7 million taken from a London branch of the Bank of America may still be hidden.

A Yard spokesman said teams of detectives raiding buildings in the London area found 40,000 pounds in British banknotes. This brought the total recovered so far since last Thursday's robbery to the equivalent of almost $340,000 out of $348,000 worth of British currency taken from the vault, the spokesman said.

Auto race crash kills 4

At least four persons were killed and another 12 seriously injured Sunday at the Spanish Grand Prix auto race when a car driven by Rolf Stommelen of West Germany crashed into a protective barrier, burst into flames and hurtled into the crowd.

Stommelen, 32, was reported in critical condition with multiple fractures, hospital sources said. "It was horrible," said a witness to Spain's worst auto racing disaster. "A blazing car fell onto the crowd with incredible force and the panic-stricken crowd stampeded in all directions."

About 100,000 had turned out for the event at the Montjuich racecourse on a bright, sunny day. The race also was seen on live television by millions throughout Europe.

Sea lift aids Viet evacuation

By The Associated Press

Waves of American Air Force cargo planes evacuating Americans and Vietnamese from Saigon were joined Sunday by a U.S.-organized sea lift.

The "Greenway," a freighter chartered by the military sea lift command, arrived at the Subic Bay naval base in the Philippines carrying 624 passengers from Saigon. A U.S. military spokesman said it was the first of several ships chartered for the evacuation.

American Embassy sources said about 970 Americans were still in the country late Sunday and more flights were scheduled.

The latest appeal for Americans to leave came in the wake of a Sunday rocket attack against the South Vietnamese capital in which six persons were killed, and a major assault on a district capital 17 miles east of Saigon.

Americans still in Saigon included about 500 assigned to the U.S. Embassy and other contract employees, businessmen, journalists, missionaries and employees of voluntary agencies.

Military spokesmen said one dozen C141 cargo jets were ferrying evacuees directly from Saigon to Andersen Air Base in Guam. More than 20,000 Vietnamese refugees were housed in a tent city on Guam. An additional 6,000 were expected to arrive daily, with flights coming in at intervals as short as 30 minutes.

The "Greenway," owned by the Central Gulf Lines of New Orleans, and more than 25 C141 and C130 flights over the weekend carried others to Subic Bay and Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines, where 10,000 persons awaited further transportation to the United States.

Robert J. McCloskey, asst. secretary of state for congressional relations, said in a Sunday interview that as of Saturday about 30,000 Vietnamese have been evacuated from their homeland. The total to be brought to the United States is "something on the order of 130,000," he added.

McCloskey said that if the United States were to evacuate all the Vietnamese who were associated with it in some way over the past 15 years the total would exceed one million — a figure "that probably we could not absorb."

Large numbers of Vietnamese continued to seek ways out of the country despite a government warning of strict penalties for illegal exit. The government appeared alarmed over the large number of military and civilian officials who have already left. Some of the Americans who remained behind were trying to arrange the evacuation of Vietnamese relatives and friends.

Durward E. Powell, deputy asst. commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, said in Guam, "We will clear out the people as fast as humanly possible" to enable them to continue to the United States, hopefully at a rate of 50,000. The refugees, he said, face intensive physical examinations and security checks after they reach the U.S. mainland.

The Rev. Ulrich Huisyer, a German-born Christian minister based in Oklahoma City, charged that bureaucracy and prejudice were keeping him from saving 200 Mountain tribe orphans in Saigon. Huisyer, who arrived in the Philippines Saturday from Vietnam, said the military would allow him to return to round up the orphans.

A source in Saigon said that about 100 other orphans expected to leave Monday in what might be the last flight airlift of children to the United States.

Budget will face debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will debate the federal budget as a whole this week for the first time, considering spending and deficit estimates generally larger than proposed by President Ford.

And the House will consider legislation giving Ford limited authority to use troops in South Vietnam if needed for evacuation. The bill also provides $327 million in humanitarian aid.

The budget debates, expected to begin Tuesday in the Senate and Wednesday in the House, mark another step in putting into effect legislation passed in 1974 to give Congress a better grip on fiscal affairs and more say in setting national priorities. The law still does not go fully into effect until 1976.

Each house will have before it a sort of budget outline in the form of a resolution approved by its budget committee and intended to serve as a guideline for the specific appropriations to come.

The House version estimates outlays of $368.2 billion against revenues of $295 billion, leaving a deficit of $73.2 billion.

The Senate resolution calls for a $365 billion spending level with a $67.2 billion deficit.

Ford's original budget estimated outlays of $349.4 billion with a deficit of $51.9 billion, but it has been revised subsequently. The Administration is insisting that the deficit be held to $60 billion in any case.

Chairmen of both congressional budget committees have criticized Ford's spending plan as deficient in the kinds of outlays needed to stimulate the economy and shrink the unemployment rolls.

While Republicans and fiscally conservative Democrats will be trying to get the proposed spending closer to Ford's levels, one group of already has called for an additional $2 billion recession-fighting program and similar efforts in the House.

A conference between two bodies is certain required to produce a guideline resolution.

While the fiscal debate dominates congressional activity during the week, the House has to act on the legislation giving Ford authority to send South Vietnam if needed to guard the nation. The Senate approves measure Friday. The probably will act Tuesday.

The House also has program for Tuesday, universal legislation to private development of Hills, Calif., naval reserves.

For Monday, it has another attempt to set amounts children should be charged for federalized school lunches.

Union members voice discontent at Washington 'Jobs Now' rally

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I think they got their message across," commented a union spokesman following a weekend "Jobs Now" rally that had to be halted when the crowd spilled onto the field and drowned out the speakers they were supposed to hear.

The rally, organized by the Industrial Union Dept. of the AFL-CIO, drew more than 45,000 union members here Saturday — the largest such turnout since the Great Depression.

The union members marched around the White House and Capitol and then marched to Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, where several speeches had been scheduled.

But a malfunctioning public address system and a restless crowd resulted in an early end for the rally.

"The outpouring got their message across and that kind of eclipses what went wrong," said spokesman Henry C. Fleisher on Sunday. "He said it was generally a good-humored, but militant crowd and added that it was no wonder that people got restless when they couldn't hear what was being said in the stadium.

The main reaction to the rally, Fleisher said, was "deep satisfaction with everything that went right."

Hundreds of the union members jammed the aisles of the rally chanting "we want jobs" and were later allowed on the podium, where they continued the chant over the public address system. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., were drowned out when they tried to speak. Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., left without addressing the crowd.

"They don't want words," said Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y. "What they want is action."

Shirley Love, a hospital worker from New Rochelle, N.Y., said she thought the rally was fine. "I couldn't hear a thing anyway," she said. "The people who were doing all the talking had $65,000-a-year jobs. Why should we have to listen to that?"

The rally had been staged to urge government action to battle the current 8.7 per cent unemployment rate.

Union leaders said government economic policy should include commitment to a national full employment policy, public works programs, reduction of interest rates and credit allocations, tax reform and mass transit programs.

Recycling unit struggling to stay alive

BRAD MARTISIUS
News Staff Writer

Michigan State News, East Lansing, Michigan

without pay for the past several weeks in an effort to cut costs and save the recycling program.

Residence hall coordinator Andy Perron said that more student cooperation could still save the program.

"Another 20 tons of newspaper each week would allow us to break even," he said. "We're now collecting 45 tons of all types of paper."

"We would like to see people make more of an effort to make sure their waste paper gets recycled. That could save our jobs and help improve the environment."

Right now the program is about $39,000 in debt to MSU and going about $500 deeper into debt every week. Members of the recycling program will be meeting with the Waste Control Authority's officials that the program has support and should be continued. The program's debt began

$1,000 per week by fall term, not only because of falling prices, but also because of the reduced volume of paper collected. "We've stabilized our losses to about $500 per week now," Perron said. "We just need a little more time."

Fred Moore, a former MSU student who started the recycling program in the fall of 1972, said that a disastrous April caused even more loss of money. "The snowstorm, the flood and a lot of breakdowns have kept us down," Moore said. "We haven't been able to pay off our debts to the University."

The University, meanwhile, is thinking of its losses. MSU got involved with the recycling program in 1973, when it started making loans to the program to enable it to buy the equipment it needed to run efficiently as the program expanded.

At the time paper prices were high, students were concerned about the environment and the program was making a profit. It eventually came under the control of MSU's Waste Control Authority, as the University continued to help the program expand.

Lowell Levi, MSU's budget officer, said the program is presently a losing proposition.

"We gave them a deadline — April 30 — to prove that they could turn the program around," Levi said. "Right now they are nearing the $40,000 debt ceiling we gave them."

Part of the problem is that the program is operating on a revolving account, meaning the costs of running the program must be paid out of the profits it makes.

The city planned to lay off 825 police officers and 302 firemen on May 1 as part of the over-all layoff of 3,000 city workers.

Young also blasted city workers who "don't realize how lucky they are" because "unlike laid off auto workers, they have a choice to avoid the layoffs if they're really interested."

Young earlier said many layoffs could be avoided if city unions would forego the 4 percent pay hike they are scheduled to get July 1. That request was turned down.

Fred Moore, a former MSU student who started the recycling program in the fall of 1972, said that a disastrous April caused even more loss of money. "The snowstorm, the flood and a lot of breakdowns have kept us down," Moore said. "We haven't been able to pay off our debts to the University."

The University, meanwhile, is thinking of its losses. MSU got involved with the recycling program in 1973, when it started making loans to the program to enable it to buy the equipment it needed to run efficiently as the program expanded.

At the time paper prices were high, students were concerned about the environment and the program was making a profit. It eventually came under the control of MSU's Waste Control Authority, as the University continued to help the program expand.

Lowell Levi, MSU's budget officer, said the program is presently a losing proposition.

"We gave them a deadline — April 30 — to prove that they could turn the program around," Levi said. "Right now they are nearing the $40,000 debt ceiling we gave them."

Part of the problem is that the program is operating on a revolving account, meaning the costs of running the program must be paid out of the profits it makes.

The city planned to lay off 825 police officers and 302 firemen on May 1 as part of the over-all layoff of 3,000 city workers.

Young also blasted city workers who "don't realize how lucky they are" because "unlike laid off auto workers, they have a choice to avoid the layoffs if they're really interested."

Young earlier said many layoffs could be avoided if city unions would forego the 4 percent pay hike they are scheduled to get July 1. That request was turned down.

Young blasts layoff injunction

NOT (UPI) — Mayor A. Young may defy a court order that temporarily bars the city of Detroit from laying off more than 1,100 firemen.

Young lashed out Friday against Wayne County Circuit Judge Michael Stacey, claiming Stacey had "no business" issuing a temporary injunction against the layoffs.

Stacey handed down the order Thursday after city officials refused to comply with his request to answer questions about the number of police and fire dept. layoffs as compared to layoffs in other city depts. Young demanded Stacey disqualify himself because of "conflict of interest."

He said Stacey was "playing fast and loose with the welfare of this city for his own political gain."

The city appealed Stacey's order to the state Court of Appeals. A ruling is not expected before Monday at the earliest.

Young said Stacey had no right to handle the suit, which was brought by a businessmen's group, because the judge belonged to a law firm five years ago which handled cases for the Detroit Police Officer's Assn.

"He had no right to even consider this case," Young charged at a press conference during which he waived a pile of releases depicting the city's dismal financial condition. "Personally, I resent it," he said.

If the appeals court does not reverse Stacey's ruling, Young said, "I just might take my chances on defying the injunction."

salesmen came to the plant between 11 a.m. and noon, unaware it was lunch hour.

The primary reason Michigan waited until April to switch to DST time was because lawmakers did not want school-bound children exposed to traffic hazards in winter morning darkness.

One of the prime movers in Michigan's stand against DST was state Rep. Donald Van Single, R-Grant.

Now, he says even six months of "fast time" is too long.

"I personally would like to see DST from somewhere around Memorial Day to Labor Day," the lawmaker said. "I think the end of the April to the end of October, especially on the latter end, is too late into the fall."

State switched to "fast" time Sunday, joining the nation which made the change nine weeks earlier. Most Michigan residents are relatively unbothered by the advent of DST, Lansing, workers at Swasey Co. can finally get an extra hour of sleep.

On Feb. 23, officials at Swasey decided to change company clocks to DST in step with corporate partners in Ohio.

At that time, the plant was open from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m., rather than the old 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. work day.

General manager Clay Stacey said about the only change during the nine-week period was when Michigan

Armenians recall slaughter

April 24 passed quite uneventfully at MSU, much as it did 60 years before.

But as of this year, April 24 is designated by the House of Representatives as a national commemoration of "man's inhumanity to man."

This day has special significance to Armenians in this country. April 24, 1915, laid the cornerstone for what was to be the first of the 20th century's two most stark and brutal genocides.

It started when 300 Armenian writers, educators, officials and intellectuals in Constantinople, Turkey were rounded up and murdered. Within three years, the Turkish government, trundling headlong into its plans to exterminate the Armenian population of Turkey, had killed between 1.5 and 2 million Armenians. It was not done by simple execution, but rather by tortuous, drawn out deportation marches to the deserts south of Turkey.

Most Armenian students have grandparents who were in those marches. My own grandmother lost most of her family — the Turks systematically killed most males to avoid any resistance. My grandmother's mother carried her dead two-year-old son around in a blanket for days, trying to get more of the sparse food rations for the rest of her family. But most of the time, there were no rations.

The historical significance of the experience was that it was allowed to happen. Then as now, foreign policy of nations that could have prevented the extermination barred them from taking action that would "strain relations" between governments.

Then as now, foreign policy of nations, which could have prevented the extermination, barred them from taking actions that would "strain relations" between governments.

It's not really necessary to dwell on the gory details. History makes clear that the Armenians suffered at the hands of some of the most diabolical minds ever to pollute humankind.

WW II. The threat of international outrage didn't concern him in the least. "Who today remembers the extermination of the Armenians?" he said at the time.

Thursday's commemoration by the Armenians nationwide focused on this crucial point. As long as governments see that the populations are unconcerned, remain apathetic, then genocide will remain a viable political tool by those in power.

The Armenians lost their country, scattered throughout the world. But their will. But most Armenians, to this cruelty and inhumanity — the third generation — have shared goals as a reparation for their history: shunted the paper-thin perspective of fanatic nationalism, closes eyes and minds to all concerns except selfish ones.

If genocide and the racism that go with it, regardless of who it is directed against, are to be eliminated in the modern world, we require a united protest, not a simple if apathy and individualism allow them their opposites — inviolable solidarity — will prevent it.

Ward system needed for council elections

The goal of our electoral system should be to attain the utmost in fair and equitable representation.

In East Lansing, however, we now work within the framework of at-large elections. The at-large method has allowed the nonstudent, homeowner constituency to dominate the city council, despite the fact that students make up 65 per cent of registered voters.

This "winner-take-all" system means that nonstudents who vote heavily in off-year city elections can often elect their candidates to the open seats.

Because of this, East Lansing residents should enthusiastically support the Human Rights party's (HRP) efforts to bring the ward system to the city. A ward system would guarantee that students could carry two and possibly three of the seats in areas heavily populated by students.

Though all of the detail has not been worked out yet, the HRP ought to be congratulated for picking up on an issue as crucial as representation in city politics.

The HRP expects to kick off a petition drive in May to put the issue before the voters in November. But before doing so, the HRP should carefully consider suggestions that passage is more likely in the 1976 presidential election and defeat this year could create a negative reaction if the issue is put before the voters again a year later.

Opponents of the ward system claim it would place more power in the hands of students. This is perhaps true, but only as a consequence of a more representative system than what presently exists.

And often such objections come from those who recognize the lack of student say in city politics and want it kept that way.

If East Lansing residents profess to believe in a fair and equitable system of representation, then they have no choice but to support the ward system.

VIEWPOINT: FACULTY FIRING

Humphrey suit taints 'U' image

By CHRISTOPHER SOWER

A recent State News editorial about the faculty grievance system and an article about the Lois Humphrey case describe behavior which is very strange for a university. How widespread is this condition which we all know to exist? It was described in the editorial:

"Because grievance cases must be heard in the aggrieved's department, faculty members hearing the case may fear the repercussions of a vote for the aggrieved on his or her own job security. . . People are usually unwilling to threaten their own security, no matter how noble the cause."

This sounds more like a police state than a university. Then, even though the land grant college idea is a unique social invention in human history, the MSU unit which administers its off-campus extension program is being charged in federal court with violating the civil rights of a woman.

Society, so far, has trusted the University to operate within an honor system instead of civil service procedures to protect its personnel because we claim to be obligated to function within the rules of honest scholarship managed by scholarly gentlemen.

Yet, with no binding rules to govern what often turn out to be arbitrary decisions of administrators, how much has the system become inroded with organizational manipulation and unscholarly behavior? Where do the rewards go? By far the highest salaries go to administrators and to ex-administrators, and not as rewards for scholarship. Ex-administrators return to tenured faculty status, maintaining their high salaries, with no review of their scholarly achievements.

The Humphrey case raises some serious questions about possible abuses of the faculty tenure system. She certainly has the qualifications for a tenured appointment. She was brought here from a good position in another state. She is listed as an associate professor in the faculty directory. But she was denied the right to use the faculty grievance system because the central administration says that she was an administrator, not faculty. Certainly, her successor must have received a tenured appointment.

Further, since she is the fourth successive woman to leave this extension program leader position, it looks as if there is something more wrong with the way this position is defined within the University structure than with the women who have left it prematurely.

There is a much larger issue here for all universities. The faculty needs to fully realize that the MSU administration will be asking a federal court to make a ruling about the university tenure system — one to deny tenure rights to a person of associate professor rank. If Humphrey is not faculty, then how many other holes are there in the tenure system? In how many other places are games being played with the faculty appointment system? How many administrators less qualified than Humphrey have managed the system to get tenure status and other privileges? Isn't it time to move toward a fundamental review of both the tenure and faculty grievance systems, but to free the process from the usual plays for power and special interests? MSU - Faculty Associates has filed a "friend of the court" amicus curiae brief on the Humphrey case. Does this case also not concern the American Assn. of University Professors? All University faculty at MSU and elsewhere will have to live with the consequences of a federal court ruling.

A court decision will also have impact on the status of the off-campus extension faculty, who I know from personal experience to perform a highly competent job in the counties of the state. The long-time good of the University calls for less isolation of campus faculty from a rapidly changing society, and this can be accomplished through closer working relationships with our extension colleagues.

Therefore, it is a serious concern to the extension off-campus faculty and to their state and national associations that a university administration will be asking for a precedent - setting federal court ruling which, in effect, will classify them as non-faculty.

Were Humphrey's civil rights as a woman violated by MSU administrators? Certainly, the University can find a way of gaining the time needed for a fair due process procedure to discover valid answers to this question without resorting to firing her on April 30. There is precedent for using extension funds to continue employment for interim periods for persons who have left extension positions where things did not work out.

We middle-aged and older men may as well admit that we are male chauvinists at heart. We like our women to be nice and ladylike, but we learn from boyhood to play rough games and how to shove ourselves from being shafted by others. But when men are pushed out of extension positions, they are gone elsewhere, in Washington, D.C., and at other places on our campus instance.

But isn't it a worse offense of norms to use University power to woman what is commonly known as "organization business" than to give same treatment to a man? The dilemma is that the other women who were ladylike enough to slip quietly organizational oblivion without a fight in federal court to challenge wisdom.

In the meantime, why can't all people to be reasonable members of a community which claims to have intelligence and whose long and earned reputation is being damaged, the right is not on either side of this will be sad if the administrators of a land grant University ask a federal court to solve our internal personnel problem.

MSU does not enhance its potential leadership roles by such behavior reported in our campus newspaper. damage will be done if instead of right possible wrong from what looks like management error, we move only embarrassing public defense of administrators to charges in a federal court that have violated the civil rights of a woman.

Crass abuse of gays

East Lansing has an ordinance forbidding discrimination against gays, but the actions of straights in Dooley's on April 16 makes it clear that ordinances are not enough.

Laws are not enough, nor is preaching, nor are newspaper editorials.

Some people are so insensitive to others that they require acts of crass intolerance to shock them into realization that gays are entitled as human beings to peace and consideration.

It is easy to blame the management of Dooley's for failing to keep the situation under control, but the main problem is not with Dooley's. The real reason for acts of intolerance is the intolerance itself, whether expressed actively, as it was that night, or quietly, as it is every day.

Perhaps the aftermath of the verbal and physical violence against the gays that night will bring a heightened awareness of the rights and problems of this much-abused minority.

Only such a shift in public opinion can produce real results. It will take considerable pressure from a tolerant majority to curb the violent impulses of individuals who behave so boorishly.

Gay eviction

The April 16 incident covered in Wednesday's State News in which gay people were kicked out of Dooley's brought out not only strong reactions from the gay world, but from straight people as well. We are not afraid of people with lives and ideas different from ours, unlike other people in this University who by their fear raise themselves to an elitist position and make the loudest noises. Their support attitude is merely a defense. Though we straight people supporting our gay brothers and sisters need no defense, it is time for us to make the noise.

The manager of Dooley's claims he was not discriminating against the gays for being gay, but for being the instigators of potential trouble. Granted, the expedient solution to Dooley's problem was to throw out everyone involved, but we feel there was no justification for the eviction of the gay people, especially considering the precedent it may set, and the propagation of narrow, destructive attitudes. Moreover, the gay people were not the ones breaking the ordinance quoted in the article.

It is extremely tragic that on a college campus, where there is such a potential for change and a concentrated source of intelligent energy, that we find ourselves inevitable creatures of habit, cowering beneath the same plastic values that originally cause America's problems.

Celluloid heroes

Hurrah for our very own East Lansing celluloid heroes and their attempts to make their imprints on wet flesh in Dooley's this week. In these days of diminishing quality entertainment, it is reassuring that there are still a few cretins around to provide some unusual and amusing entertainment.

Not being at Dooley's that particular night, I can only attempt to visualize the scene: a few innocent young men sitting together at a table, exchanging banalities about the new waitress' legs (overtly innocent anyway) and guzzling on their Victory gin.

A quick perception that "sumpin' ain't right here" led the intelligent one to rally the support of the rest of the men. The result: a stifling of the "sickening" public display of affection (of which they've never been guilty, with their preferences, I'm sure) and restoration to the normal passive activities at Dooley's.

I can't help but congratulate the men on their Herculean feat. I'll bet those guys aren't afraid of anything (except maybe themselves). And thanks, guys; if it wasn't for you I might never feel safe having relations with my pet dog in the privacy of my apartment.

Michael Roberts
145 Collingwood Drive

Dooley's rapped

Though it is really rather sad, I cannot help being angered by the behavior of a group of Dooley's patrons and by the management of Dooley's in response to some Gay Liberation Movement members dancing together at the bar.

The gays, who remained passive, despite insults, pushing and elbowing, were evicted instead of evicting the greater number of cretins who instigated the incident. But after all it was their fault; they were kissing. How sad it is that the act of two people kissing can precipitate group violence.

Why is it that there is such hostility toward those who express a particular sexual preference, specifically homosexual.

Letter policy

The Opinion Page welcomes all letters. Readers should follow a few rules to insure that as many letters as possible appear in print.

All letters should be typed on 65-space lines and triple-spaced. Letters must be signed, and include local address, student, faculty or staff standing if any — and phone number.

Letters should be 25 lines or less and may be edited for conciseness to fit more letters on the page.

No unsigned letters will be accepted.

Support boycott

Two weekends ago, 36 Lansing farmworker supporters attended the First East Coast Mobilization for the workers' in Washington, D.C. The two-day conference and mobilize support for the United Workers (UFW), recruit organizers, and provide campus committees with a forum for ideas and communicating recent events in the nationwide effort to scab lettuce and grapes from cafeterias.

The message we carried from Lansing was a dismal one. While coast colleges have responded to demands to boycott non-UFW lettuce and grapes, MSU continues to pay $80,000 a year of the stuff.

The message from Washington, Lansing, on the other hand, is a dismal one. Nationwide, the Gallo working so well that Ernest and Ed hired two more public relations firms to respond with a massive, million-dollar propaganda campaign. The page ads (complete with photos of farmworkers) appear in newspapers the country while four Gallo representatives appear at a Sunday night farmworker forum in Jackson, Mich.

With lettuce and grapes, the state equally optimistic. Recent reports that the amount of grapes in cold storage has reached a record high while prices have vacillated from 89 cents a head.

On May 12 and 13, Residence Hall is sponsoring a referendum on students to vote on whether or not University should boycott lettuce and grapes and lettuce. Vote for justice on May 12 and come to the board meeting on May 16. There, the trustees will be deal, once again, with the issue of human dignity and civil rights.

"NOTHING AGAINST THE VIETNAM KIDS, BUT I WISH WE COULD BECOME A POPULAR FAD!"

Defeated Portuguese Communists urge cooperation from Socialists

By HENRY GINIGER
N. Y. Times News
LISBON — The Portuguese Communist Party, embittered by its defeat in Friday's elections, warned the victorious Socialists to cooperate or find themselves in opposition to the ruling armed forces.

the electorate, found themselves at the center of a critical battle that could help determine Portugal's political orientation. On one side was the Popular Democratic party, in second place, which Saturday called on the Socialists to join it in promoting "democratic socialism" and on the other, the Communists who warned the Socialists against anti-revolutionary

"bourgeois democracy."
Mario Soares, the Socialist secretary-general, in a radio interview this afternoon, carefully kept his bridges open to both groups. He said the Socialist party was a party of the left allied with the Communists and other left groups in the Portuguese revolution. But he said the Popular Democrats had their place in the revolution as an ally, too.

Asked whether he favored bourgeois democracy or socialist democracy, Soares said there was no such thing as bourgeois democracy or socialist democracy.
"There is democracy, period," he declared. "It is of the people, for the people and by the people and it is not the dictatorship of the proletariat."

Late Saturday night, Soares's followers began to celebrate their victory and even routed him out of bed to lead a march while cars noisily honked their way through the center of the city.

The Communists, who got only 12.5 per cent of the vote, sulked in silence until this afternoon when hawkers appeared with a special edition of the party's official organ, Avante, containing a long explanation of the Communists' troubles. The headline was "Victory is difficult but it is ours."

"The elections have limited scope," the party said in condemning the anti-Communist campaign with which reactionaries intimidated, coerced, corrupted and deceived the people.

In the north, the statement added, the elections were not free. It was there that the Popular Democrats showed their greatest strength.

The Communists expressed continued confidence in the success of the revolution, declaring that even those workers "who did not exercise their rights to vote in conformity with their real interests" were nonetheless on the side of the revolution because "they desire, as ardently as their Communist comrades, to destroy capitalism in Portugal."

The statement went on to warn the Socialist party that either it followed a policy of unity with progressive and revolutionary forces and stopped its ambiguous and contradictory flirtation with bourgeois democracy or "it will be inevitably dragged into a position incompatible with the agreement signed by its leaders with the armed forces movement."

Former cabinet member calls for Ford to remove Kissinger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford says the recent fall of Saigon to Communist forces signals the failure of Henry A. Kissinger's policies in Indochina and around the world.

became a public critic of the U.S. commitment to the Saigon government. He said Kissinger and former President Nixon needlessly sacrificed 20,000 American lives and $70 — 80 billion by not withdrawing American troops from Vietnam as soon as they succeeded the Democratic administration to power in 1969.

"I think the whole power philosophy of Kissinger's is outmoded," Clifford went on. "I am opposed to personalizing the conduct of foreign policy as Mr. Kissinger has conducted it. It makes every situation either an enormous triumph or a bitter defeat for foreign policy."
"It looks as if it were a yo-yo. It's up, it's down, it's up, it's down, and I think that's very bad."

"I always had the feeling that Mr. Nixon and Mr. Kissinger failed to take advantage of difficult and even bitter lessons that had been learned even before they came into power in the United States," he said.

He said he thinks Kissinger should have remained in Washington and made policy decisions instead of first shuttling back and forth to Paris in 1972 and more recently to Mideastern capitals.

Clifford said the United States gave the South Vietnamese "practically everything to fight with, but in reality they had nothing to fight for. When the showdown came, they were not willing to fight and die for the Thieu government."

Asked if Kissinger should be replaced, Clifford, "I think it would be in the best interest of our country if a change were to be made... I am of the view that in view of the present posture of the United States and the policy he has advocated these past six years, we would be better off if Mr. Ford would make a change in the secretaryship of state."

Of Kissinger, Clifford said the secretary of state "is very wrong when he suggests that every part of the world including Vietnam has the same importance of some other part of the world."

Clifford called on President Ford to replace Kissinger as secretary of state and senior House foreign policy adviser.
While Mr. Kissinger was having such a meteoric rise, Clifford said, "Now when the inevitable reverses his star seems to be falling just as when it went up."
Clifford, the last secretary of defense of the Democratic administration of President Lyndon B. Johnson, was based in his law office in Washington. He was a friend to Johnson long before he became president. Clifford turned to the U.S. involvement in Vietnam after becoming secretary of defense in 1969. He first sought to persuade Johnson to withdraw American forces, then later

Big Ten grad student unit not formed

By MARY ANN CHICK
State News Staff Writer

Representatives from graduate student organizations at six of the Big Ten universities decided Saturday to postpone forming a Big Ten graduate governing organization until next fall to allow time for input from students and faculty.

Many representatives had hoped the organization would be formed as a result of this weekend's two day conference at MSU of Big Ten graduate organizations.

If the group were created, it would represent 30 per cent of all the students in the United States who are pursuing a graduate degree.

The formal organizing was delayed for a few months to give the representatives a chance to go back to their own graduate organizations and find out what each group thinks of the ideas tossed around at the two-day conference at MSU.

"Attempts have been made before (to organize graduate organizations) and failed, because they tried to do too much too soon," said Bob Kahl, a representative from the University of Iowa.

The representatives decided to meet this fall to further discuss the possibilities of organization; how it should work and who should be in it.

Though an exact date has not been set, the representatives from the Big Ten will meet in the fall at the University of Minnesota.

MSU's Council of Graduate Students (COGS) began working on the conference a year ago, after being contacted by several other schools about forming a nationwide or state-wide graduate organization.

"But nothing ever came of it, so we started working on the idea ourselves," said Jan Brashler, COGS president.

COGS decided to limit this weekend's conference to the graduate organizations from Big Ten schools to simplify the arrangements and keep costs down.

The conference, which cost roughly $1,000, was sponsored by COGS and the MSU graduate school.

Representatives from graduate student organizations at the University of Minnesota, University of Iowa, University of Wisconsin, MSU, University of Michigan and Ohio State University described their organization, how it fit into their schools and current problems.

Purdue, University of Indiana, and Northwestern University do not have formal graduate organizations and did not attend the conference.

Representatives from organizations at University of Illinois could not attend.

Several graduate organization representatives said they had no chance to give input into university decisions, as they had no places on university committees.

Graduate assistants have been organized at the University of Wisconsin and University of Michigan. But at the University of Minnesota, Ohio State University, the University of Iowa and MSU students went through graduate student organizations.

"This conference made us (COGS) realize how we have the best of two worlds," Brashler said. "We represent graduate assistants and have input into some of the University decisions that affect our lives."

Neighborhood group supports lowering floor space minimums

By FRED NEWTON
State News Staff Writer

The Bailey Community Assn. (BCA) decided at its annual meeting Thursday night to support lowering habitable floor space requirements for certain zones, which include

Greek houses, co-ops and religious houses.

BCA is a neighborhood organization of 370 members, including 20 students, which lobbies for various housing code and zoning changes.

The group came out in favor of allowing less than the minimum 200 square feet of habitable floor space per person in an R4 zone provided the habitable floor space of the entire building is over 1,500 square feet.

Currently, in an R4 zone, under which most Greek houses, co-ops and religious houses are zoned, both zoning and housing codes require a minimum of 200 square feet per person in a house, with no limits on the number of residents as long as the floor space is there.

But BCA has recognized the need to allow the Greek houses, co-ops and religious houses operate under lower minimum requirements, since these housing options share common kitchens, dining rooms and other facilities.

The BCA also reaffirmed its goal of speaking for common community interests and goals and presenting them to the city.

They are opposed to the proposed extension of Burcham Drive east into Meridian Township and are planning to put pressure on the Ingham County Road Commission to halt the project.

Auto heads serve on economy council

LANSING (UPI) — The Michigan Council of General Motors and Ford have agreed to serve on the 27-member Michigan Economic Action Council empaneled by the legislature to work on both short and long-term solutions to the state's economic plight.

Henry Ford II and GM's Thomas Murphy highlight a panel of distinguished community leaders who will look at solutions to Michigan's skyrocketing unemployment problem as well as long-term economic concerns.

The council membership, announced Friday, also will include such top labor leaders as Michigan AFL-CIO President William Marshall and United Auto Workers vice-president Douglas A. Fraser.

The academic world is represented by the likes of MSU President Clifton Wharton Jr. and University of Michigan economist Paul W. McCracken, once an adviser to former President Nixon.

Bankers, utility and broadcast executives also were selected. There are two women members.

The committee, which has been authorized to spend up to $200,000 in the next year to compile its recommendations, is chaired by Bendix Corp. Chairman W. Michael Blumenthal.

WOMEN TRACKSTERS WIN RELAYS

Oldman, golfers Big Ten champions

By ANN WILLIAMSON
State News Sports Writer

MSU junior June Oldman and the Spartan women's golf team are both No. 1.

Not only did the Spartans repeat as champions in the Big Ten women's golf tournament at Ohio State Friday and Saturday with a 36-hole total of 713, but Oldman outlasted all competitors to claim her first conference title.

Oldman, shooting an 81 Friday and an 85 Saturday for a 166 total, edged out Ohio State's Jackie Bertsch by six strokes to take the individual crown.

"I knew I had as good a chance as anybody to win the tournament," Oldman said. "I played with Jackie Bertsch throughout the two 18-hole games, which put a lot of pressure on both of us. If one sunk a putt, the other knew right away that she would have to sink her putt to stay in the game.

"I'm just really excited to have won the Big Ten medal — it's quite a title to hold."

The entire OSU team also gave the Spartans a run for their money, finishing second in the tournament with 727 strokes. The Spartans held an eight-stroke lead following Friday's play, but the Buckeyes closed the gap after the first nine holes Saturday to give the Spartans a scare.

"Ohio State almost caught up with us after the front nine Saturday, but our girls didn't give up and took care of things in the back nine," said MSU coach Mary Fossum. "The girls took advantage of the breaks and didn't let the bad breaks discourage them.

"It's the mark of a good competitor when you don't give up and I was amazed to see what great competitors they all are."

Freshman Joan Garety landed the second lowest stroke total for the Spartans, hitting a 91 Friday and an 83 Saturday for a 174 score. Senior Carol Peterson and freshman Karen Escott rounded out the Spartans' total with respective rounds of 93-89-182 and 92-99-191.

Following MSU and OSU in the team standings were Minnesota with 766, Illinois with 777, Wisconsin with 791, Purdue with 861 and Iowa with 877.

The MSU women's track team took first place in the Becky Boone Relays at Richmond, Ky., Saturday afternoon, but for once the Spartans didn't run away with the competition.

The Spartans maintained their undefeated season by finishing with 80 team points, followed closely behind by Tennessee State with 75 and Ohio State with 49 points.

The Spartans could only claim one first-place finish among both the running and the field events.

"The meet was really very exciting," said MSU coach Nell Jackson. "Tennessee State had very few runners, but the runners they did have were all outstanding, as they won most of the sprints. We didn't win a lot of the events, but luckily placed high enough to make a credible showing.

"The team continued to improve, but this meet was by far our stiffest competition of the year."

The MSU 440-yard relay team of Marjorie Grimmett, Carolyn Lewis, Sue Latta and Karen Dennis was the Spartans' only first-place winner, with a time of 49 seconds. Grimmett and Dennis both took second-place honors in the 100 and 220 dashes, with respective times of 10.8 and 25 seconds.

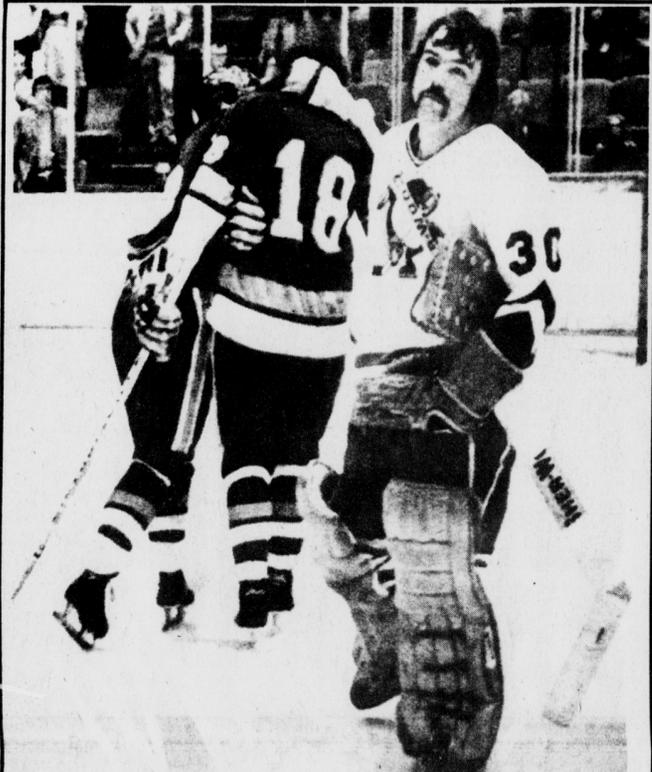

Spartans Ann Forshee and Karen McKeachie also took second place in the one and two-mile runs with times of 5:09.6 and 11:07.2, respectively.

Peggy Hoshield, Robin Collins, Sheri Hohenstein and Latta finished second in the one-mile relay with a time of 4:04.

Teammates Denise Greene and Laurel Vietzke took third places in the one-meter hurdles and long jump events. Greene was clocked at 15.3 seconds in the hurdles while Vietzke landed a mark of 18 feet 1 inch in the long jump.

Oglivie's first hit (home run) lifts Tigers over Boston, 5-4

DETROIT (UPI) — Ben Oglivie's first hit of the season, a two-run homer in the fifth inning, helped the Detroit Tigers defeat the Boston Red Sox, 5-4, Sunday.

Oglivie, hit by a pitch with the bases loaded to drive in a run in the third inning, gave Detroit a 5-2 lead after Dan Meyers started the fifth with a single. Oglivie had been hitless in his previous seven trips to the plate this season.

His homer proved important when Bernie Carbo and Dwight Evans hit bases-empty homers in the ninth inning for Boston.

Stickmen bounced, 9-6 in penalty-filled contest

By LARRY MORGAN
State News Sports Writer

Nothing unexpected happened in Saturday's MSU lacrosse game against Wittenberg. It was a scrappy, physical game, the kind the Spartans usually play.

But Wittenberg outscrapped MSU and beat it at the "secret" practice field, 9-6, in a Midwest Lacrosse Assn. game. The loss evened the Spartans' over-all record at 5-5 and dropped them to 2-4 in the league.

"Wittenberg is an identical team to us, except they are a little more physical," MSU coach Fred Hartman said.

But the story of the game was in the 34 penalties that were called on the two teams, 15 of which were assessed to MSU.

"That's where we lost it," Hartman explained.

MSU trailed, 3-1, at halftime, but continuously battled back throughout the second half, pulling close to the Tigers numerous times.

However, Wittenberg took advantage of 10 Spartan penalties in the second half to put the game away.

The Tigers scored their last five goals with an MSU player off for one infraction or the other.

Wittenberg was able to shut off part of the MSU scoring attack, as attackman Ron Hebert went pointless for the contest. However, some of the slack was taken up by the team scoring leader, attackman Steve Wilson, and midfielder Doug Peterson.

Wilson fired in a pair of goals to raise his seasonal total to 17, two ahead of Hebert. Peterson got the hat trick for the three goals he pumped in.

Midfielder Mike Richard also added three assists for MSU.

The stickmen now are idle until this weekend, when they travel to the Buckeye state for two league games against Ashland Saturday and Wooster Sunday.

The team must now win three of their next four games to finish the season above the .500 mark. If they can do that, it will be the first time a Spartan lacrosse team has managed that task.

For Carbo, it was his second homer of the game.

John Hiller came in following the two home runs to get the final three outs and preserve Lerrin LaGrow's third win without a loss this season. Hiller has yet to allow a run in 10 innings this season.

Ron LeFlore broke a 2-2 tie in the fourth inning with his second homer of the season.

The victory gave the surging Tigers a sweep of their three-game series with the Red Sox at Tiger Stadium.

Detroit currently stands at the top of the American League East, with an 8-5 record. Baltimore is the next stop for the Bengals as they will take on the Orioles in a two-game series tonight and Tuesday night.

Women sweep weekend series

The MSU women's softball team is on a winning streak. The Spartans swept their two-game road stand in DeKalb Saturday, squeaking by Northern Illinois, 2-1, and Illinois State, 3-1.

The wins brought the Spartans season record to 8-1 and marked the team's fourth consecutive victory since leaving Purdue on April 19.

"This was the first time we've played in decent weather and the team's performance really showed it," said coach Margo Snively. "For once, we were able to slow down a little and play the daring type of ballgame that we like to play."

The weekend sweep not only helped lift the Spartans in the column, but also fulfilled one of the two requirements necessary to qualify in the World Series next month in Omaha.

"With these two wins, we'll have won at least 50 percent of our out-of-state games, even if we lose all the rest of our road games during the rest of the season," Snively explained. "All we need to do now is win the state championship and we'll be going to the World Series."

Junior Gloria Beckford picked up the win against Illinois State for her fifth consecutive win without a loss, allowing only one hit and striking out two. Junior Sue Lawson drove in the run with freshman Kathy Strahan driving in the winning run for the Spartans in the fifth inning.

Sophomore Gwen White was credited with the victory against Northern Illinois to lift her season record to 3-1. First baseman Pat Veach and catcher Cindy Elliot combined for a great defensive effort by picking off three Northern Illinois players on first base.

Connors next move—nothing

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Where does Jimmy Connors go from here now that he has proven he is the world's No. 1 tennis player by demolishing proud John Newcombe in their $1 million challenge match?

First things always being first with the outspoken 22-year-old Connors, there is going to be no tennis for at least six weeks.

"I'm planning on doing some water skiing, hunt for an apartment and generally do a lot of nothing," Connors said after beating Newcombe three sets to one Saturday and winning what may amount to more than $500,000.

Connors also will devote some time to his romance with Chris Evert and if things work out they may be married before the end of the year.

Jimmy also may finally end his fight with the pro tennis establishment and the players' union. He has gone his separate way from World Championship Tennis and the Assn. of Tennis Professionals but now he indicates that perhaps it is time for a change.

Spartan leftfielder Amos Hewitt displays the swing that produced eight RBIs over the weekend against Wayne State and the University of Detroit. The senior batsman has now raised his batting average to .245.

BATSMEN AT ALBION TODAY

MSU hurlers sparkle on road

By MIKE LITAKER
State News Sports Writer

MSU's batsmen continued their season-long road trip this past weekend by taking a pair from Wayne State Friday by identical 7-2 scores and splitting with the University of Detroit Saturday.

The Spartan pitchers didn't even need rain to douse the enemy bats.

Ace righthander Duane Bickel scattered four hits in the opening game with the Tartars Friday to raise his record to 4-1 on the season, while George Mahan came back in the nightcap to post the sweep and up his pitching mark on the season to 3-2.

Coach Danny Litwhiler and asst. coach Frank Pellerin had plenty to smile about Saturday, too, as the Spartans pitching sparkled. Sophomore Jim Knivilla mowed his way through the Titan batting order in the first game enroute to hurling a three-hitter and raised his season slate to 3-2.

Rick Moore (2-4) continued to have his problems, struggling through only two-thirds of an inning in the second game and giving up five runs. But Todd Hubert came on to turn in the best relief job of the season from the MSU bullpen. Hubert allowed just one hit the rest of the way to lower his team-leading earned run average to an even 2.00.

"I was encouraged that we got four very good pitching performances," Pellerin said. "It's a good sign now, going into the stretch."

Hubert had been slated to start one of the games with Scott Evans in today's rescheduled doubleheader against Albion in yet another road trip. His place in the starting lineup will be filled by John Lincoln, while freshmen Larry Pashnick and Don Beck will man the bullpen corps.

The hitting hero over the weekend stretch was Amos Hewitt, who broke out of his slump in a big way. The transplanted outfielder exploded for three doubles and seven runs - batted in to lead the sweep over Wayne State. Another RBI against U of D raised his season total to 25, as he took over the team lead from catcher Rick Seid.

Seid suffered a bruised hand Friday and saw limited action the rest of the weekend. Reserve backstop Dale Frieth will handle the catching duties at Albion and probably Tuesday against Notre Dame in South Bend, while Seid rests his hand for this weekend's showdown with Michigan.

Saturday's 2-1 win and 5-4 loss to Detroit pushed the MSU season record to 17-11. The Spartans continue to pace the Big Ten with a 5-0 conference mark, one-half game ahead of second place Michigan (5-1).

While MSU pitchers were busy proving what everybody knew they could do all along, the Spartan hitting attack again proved it is among the best in the Big Ten.

Mike Fricke continued to keep his season batting average over the .400 mark as he while reserve outfielder Willie Willingham came off the bench to raise his pace to .400. Spartans have six players batting over .300.

Weather hinders team but linkmen show skill

By DAN SPICKLER
State News Sports Writer

Weatherwise, East Lansing has been no real home for the MSU men's golf team. Sunday afternoon the linkmen and their women counterparts helped MSU coaches Bruce and Mary Fossum clean out their flooded house in nearby Okemos.

Unseasonable snow and heavy rain have made it impossible for the golfers to practice on their home course, Forest Akers, and they have, in Bruce Fossum's words, "lost about three weeks of the season."

The linkmen have been able to shoot a few shag balls and as a result, most of the Spartans have maintained good driving games.

MSU is hurting, however, in the short game. Junior Scott Malaney said the only time the Spartans have been able to play on the true putting surfaces is at tournaments.

Surprisingly, the Spartans have managed to overcome a lack of practice. They looked quite impressive this past weekend in the Purdue Invitational, finishing fourth among 10 major teams at Lafayette, Ind.

Ohio State, winner of its own Kepler Invitational the weekend before, took first in a two-round, 36-hole event, finishing with a stroke total, MSU tallied 769.

Senior Steve Broadwell topped the Spartans field carding rounds of 72 and 76 for a 148 total. Medalist of the tournament was Dave DeBor (Ohio), who fired a 140.

Sophomore Gary Domagalski and freshman Dave Lemanski both tied at 153 for the Spartans. Senior Brad Hyland finished one stroke behind them with a 154 total.

This coming Saturday and Sunday the Spartans will compete in the Northern Michigan collegiate tournament in Ann Arbor. The men will then travel to Kalamazoo May 4 for the Bronco Invitational.

Hopefully Forest Akers will be in good condition by May 9, when MSU hosts the Spartans Invitational, an event which annually draws 30 schools from around the nation.

The Spartans have been practicing at the golf course in East Lansing and at Pine Lake in Haslett.

Ford wants tougher federal penal code

from WIRE SERVICES
New Haven, Conn. — President Ford will ask Congress to amend the federal penal code to insure swift justice and more uniform sentencing, and to the way to the states in their dealings with law violations from street holdups to white-collar crime in high places.

The sweeping recommendations will be requested by the President, when he sends a long-awaited law enforcement message to Capitol Hill in six weeks to two months. It was learned that the Dept. of Justice already has submitted a suggested program to the White House and that the specific recommendations are being reviewed by the Domestic Council.

Ford gave a preview of the program toward which he is leaning in an address before the sesquicentennial convocation of the Yale Law School.

to restore to the executive branch decency, honesty and adherence to the law at all levels. This has been done. It will continue to be."
The points Ford made in his anti-crime address have been advocated strongly by Levi, the former President of the University of Chicago whom the President recruited to the Administration as the first Democrat in his cabinet — and the chief executive appears to be going Levi's route.

victed of all violent crimes."
•The appointment of more judges, prosecutors and public defenders to the federal system to accelerate the administration of justice.
•A severe cutback in "plea bargaining," a process under which accused persons plead guilty to a lesser crime and save the prosecution the cost of a trial and generally themselves a prison sentence.

should be used for the incarceration of those convicted of major crimes and to "minimize the detention of persons convicted of minor crimes."
Moreover, the Chief Executive said, jail terms need not be "cruel" — the imposition of a one, two or five-year term often is enough punishment, he said.

impeachment inquiry by Congress, but there has been far less success in dealing with "murders, robberies, rapes, muggings, holdups, break-ins, — the kind of brutal violence that makes us fearful of strangers and afraid to go out at night."

State income tax hike takes effect Thursday

WILLIAM J. HOLSTEIN (UPI) — Employment will begin withholding 18 percent more in state income tax from paychecks Thursday, workers won't feel it until next week.
The recently approved increase in the state income tax from 3.9 per cent to 4.6 per cent will take effect May 1 and employees have been instructed to withhold the extra amount on that day.
The state treasury dept.

officials said that all paychecks handed out this week to Michigan's 2,750,000 employees, who are subject to withholding, will reflect the old rate of 3.9 percent.
"All paychecks issued on or after May 1 which cover a period previous to that date will reflect the old rate," said state revenue commissioner Sydney Goodman.
The new rate will apply only to the first full pay period after Thursday.

The beginning date for implementation of the state income tax hike coincides with the beginning of the federal income tax rebate approved by Congress and signed by President Ford.
Goodman said employers will begin withholding "slightly less" in federal income taxes on the same day that they begin withholding more state taxes.
"What the federal government is giving, we're taking back," he said.

The law enforcement message had been promised by the President shortly after he assumed office last Aug. 9, but was delayed pending the appointment of Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi and new Domestic Council officials.

The speech before Ford's fellow Yale law alumni — including Supreme Court Justices Byron White and Potter Stewart — was curious in one respect. The man who issued a blanket pardon to former President M. Nixon seemed to go out of his way to condemn law violations by government officials, both federal and state, and "told the receptive audience:

"As far as law violations in high places are concerned, let me stress this point: in my Administration, I have made it a matter of the highest priority to provide financial and technical assistance to the states. But the President noted that even while the Constitution puts crime control largely in the hands of the states, there are areas where the government can take the lead.

The President suggested in his speech and is expected to propose in his message to Congress:

•A modified federal code to make more sentences mandatory "and therefore punishment more certain for those con-

New University College class views social goals of medicine

By PAT NARDI
State News Staff Writer

Once upon a time there was a famous physician called Sir William Osler. Sir William had the uncanny ability to stand at the foot of his patient's bed, lay his hand upon the patient, sniff a few times, make a fabulously accurate diagnosis and walk away.

like Sir William, who treated a patient's medical problems expertly but totally ignored his social needs. Therefore it is offering an experimental class beginning fall term called "Social Intervention" to give potential medical students an idea of what their profession may be like.

students interested in medical school, nursing, social work, police administration and education.

what his goals and worries are, you can't deal with his general health."

patients are the ones who are most often faced with malpractice suits, he said.

Milliken criticizes jobless benefits bill

By PAUL VARIAN

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. Milliken says legislation raising weekly unemployment benefits by a maximum $30 is unacceptable as passed by the House and must be changed.

sion. The bill raises weekly benefits from 50 to 60 per cent of a workers' wages, but by no more than $30. For some lower-paid workers, the increase would be far less.

"One might treat the disease and not help the patient," Weil said. "The extent of an ailment might depend a lot on the patient's career. Without knowing things like what a patient does for a living and

But in commenting on the measure Friday, Milliken stopped short of threatening a veto.

Asked if he could accept the bill in its current form, the Republican governor said, "No, it has to be changed."

Senate Majority Leader William Fitzgerald, D - Detroit, who has promised action on the legislation next week, took issue with Milliken's remarks.

He noted that Michigan currently ranks ninth in the level of unemployment benefits among the nation's 10 most industrial states and added, "I don't see how the governor feels any attempt to change that situation is unacceptable."

Milliken's office issued a statement that carried a tone far more conciliatory than one released prior to House action on the measure, which suggested the legislature may be playing "a hoax" on the people by raising unemployment benefits in a manner that would also increase unemployment.

"I am concerned that we recognize the human needs of people who, right now, are suffering because of unemployment, and at the same time that we make sure that we do not create the kind of a job climate which will mean fewer jobs in the future," he said.

Administration fiscal experts claim the legislation would cost business $235 million next year and thus discourage job expansion.

Do your Dinner Number at McDonald's

Don't do dinner with dull, droopy drabness. Come to McDonald's and do it right. Do a Big Mac, or a Quarter Pounder (with or without cheese). Do cheeseburgers and Filet O' Fish sandwiches. Have world famous fries, soft drinks, shakes and hot apple pies for dessert too.

You can always make a big, beautiful production number out of dinner at McDonald's, and you can do it fast too, in any number of delightfully delicious ways... but you'll never pay a big production price. Dinner at McDonald's. Do it.

Quality and Value

Two "positives" that product planners accentuate, when they groom their entries for competition.

The ingredients American businessmen strive for, are indeed the ones consumers look for, when they buy. After all, the consumer is the ultimate voter in a product's election... and re-election.

But just how much quality can be built into a given item? How many colors and sizes? How will added quality affect the market price? Read about the route most American businessmen take—"The Main Street" approach. Read what this has to do with 21 million dishwashers and 35 million clothes dryers winning their way into American homes.

The adjoining message from the May Reader's Digest sums up important thoughts about quality and value. It's one in a series on our economic system placed by The Business Roundtable.

OUR ECONOMIC SYSTEM
YOU Make It Work

During these hard times, when all of us are concerned about getting full value in the things we buy, here are some important thoughts about quality

Who Cheers When Products Work?

THE NEW toaster was so shiny you could see yourself in it. But its first piece of toast looked like scorched plywood. And you burned your fingers fishing it out when it didn't pop up. Then the machine heaved a little electronic sigh and stopped toasting altogether.

What a storm! And it got worse. Leaving your wife and three kids beneath the shopping-center canopy, you dashed to your new station wagon. Soaked to the skin, you got behind the wheel and turned the key in the ignition. It wouldn't start. You tried again and again. Nothing. Not a spark.

It was a grand dinner. There were even some halfhearted offers to help with the dishes. "No, we bought a new dishwasher," you announced proudly. You loaded the dishes and joined the company. Uncle Ray was describing his new but when you noticed the foamy water running across the dining-room floor.

Sound familiar? We all remember vividly when things don't work right. But somehow we don't even think about it when our car crosses the 203-mile trip to Canada and back without a hitch, or when the electric coffeepot keeps perking away year after year. There's nothing spectacular about the sweeper that sweeps, the oven that bakes, the refrigerator that keeps right on doing its job.

No, the fact is that in our modern one malfunctioning product carries out the thousands that do work. One of the greatest tributes to American industry is the fact that the "lemon is news—the fact that bad products are the exceptions that surprise and bother us.

The expectations of the American consumer are very high, and the businessman knows it better than anyone else. That's why he seeks constantly to improve his product and maintain standards. The American Society for Quality Control estimates that business in this country spends from 8 to 15 cents of every sales dollar to overcome errors, to test, inspect and assure quality. Some examples:

- On the Tide-detergent production line in Cincinnati, boxes under-filled or damaged in any way are automatically and literally "kicked" into a reject bin.
- At the Gillette Company in Boston, every razor blade is examined for surface imperfections and sharpness. Some employees come to work unshaven each morning to test Gillette (and competitors') blades under laboratory conditions.
- At Eli Lilly Corporation in Indianapolis, some pills take as long as 45 days to manufacture. The process is stopped many times for tests of the purity and exact quantity of ingredients. As long as the pills are available on drugstore shelves, a control batch will be tested periodically to ensure potency and safety.
- At Sears, Roebuck & Co. in Chicago, many new products, from air conditioners to shotguns to water pumps, are tested in the field and in the lab (sometimes to final destruction) before they are marketed.

To an alert, competitive company, these efforts are as routine (and as vital) as breathing. "The best sales tool possible," says one executive, "is a product worth what you pay for it." But still those negative experiences force their way into our minds. Why can't we make things more reliable? Why do there have to be any mistakes?

To answer such questions, we must measure our expectations as consumers against the realities of the mass market. We must consider what absolute product-perfection would do to prices and volume. Have you ever stopped to think what it would cost to build a television set that would "never" fail or wear out? Many thousands of dollars. And the assembly and inspection procedures would preclude more than a few thousand sets being built each year. Thus, the high quality would be academic for the majority of Americans, who would simply be priced out of the market.

Businessmen face a challenge. Do they travel the low road? Cut corners, use the cheapest materials they can get by with? Or do they take the high road—turning out each product by hand, forgetting costs, doing only "custom work" beyond the financial reach of millions of cost-conscious average Americans?

Wisely, realistically, American business travels instead a "Main Street," where the aim is the best product that can be made at a price the mass of consumers can afford. In shops and factories across the country, engineers, designers, shop foremen hold "product audits," examining the chain saw or tape recorder or child's toy before them. With production costs rising, how can they improve the product but keep the price competitive? Will this plastic compound be as strong and as workable as the now-too-costly metal it must replace? Sure, this transistor is cheaper, but will it do the job as well? At the Rockwell International Corporation, engineers redesigned a pocket calculator over and over again to cut the cost and time of manufacture while improving the reliability of the machine.

The cumulative effect of such activities is a boon to the American consumer, especially during this difficult economic period when all of us want to stretch our dollars as far as possible. For, what good is an improved product if it isn't readily available to everyone at a reasonable price?

The Main Street approach means that there are 117 million TV sets in U. S. homes, 21 million dishwashers, 35 million clothes dryers—and it means that by and large this abundance of products is an abundance of good products, constantly being improved because of competition.

Look at automobiles, for instance, probably the most complex and sophisticated item the average consumer will ever buy. Today's cars run much longer between engine tune-ups, oil changes and lubrications than earlier models. Their brakes are much more reliable, their cooling systems require much less maintenance.

"Consumer pressure" is a healthy affirmation of the market system. After all, what good would consumer demands be in a society without businesses competing in reaction to those demands? But consumer pressure is no new phenomenon. It is rather the same pressure that has always motivated the conscientious businessman—competition.

Certainly, consumers have the right to complain, to send things back when they aren't right. But what really makes American products the greatest bargains in the world today—in both cost and performance—is the fact that all of us constantly cast our votes in the marketplace. It is these consumer "ballots" that shape the quality of the goods we purchase day in and day out.

State civil rights unit warns of reverse bias

By PAUL VARIAN
United Press International
Because of a marked increase in complaints, the Michigan Civil Rights Commission has advised employers that it will be on the lookout for "reverse discrimination" in hiring and promotion practices.

Civil Rights Dept. officials said last week that as the recession has worsened, there has been a noticeable rise in the number of bias complaints filed by white males against companies with affirmative action programs.

John Ferris, director of the department's compliance division, said tokenism in hiring and promoting to satisfy affirmative action requirements may be the root of the problem.

"If an employer wants to make a token effort to integrate his work force and he hires a black or a woman who is not qualified for the job, then he's not carrying out an affirmative action program and he's got a problem," Ferris said.

The commission tentatively approved a policy statement on reverse discrimination at a meeting in Detroit this week and is sending out copies to employers.

"The Dept. of Civil Rights is now receiving some complaints which allege discrimination in the area of employment against members of majority groups," the policy statement says. "The purpose of this statement is to provide some guidance to the public and to members of the department staff in investigating and resolving such complaints."

Department officials said about 100 complaints alleging reverse discrimination against employers have been filed since last July 1. Though they represent only a small percentage of the overall 2,777 bias complaints, the increase over past years is dramatic.

Ferris said only two reverse discrimination cases have ever completed the investigatory process and that in both instances, no bias could be proved.

But, he added: "It's quite possible we have cases in the process where we may have to find there's been unlawful discrimination involving a white claimant. And if we determine that, we'll act appropriately."

When the commission finds unlawful discrimination involving hiring, promotions, suspensions or dismissals of employees, it is empowered to order such remedies as reinstatement with back pay. However, its decisions can be appealed in court.

In investigating cases of alleged reverse discrimination, the commission said it will first determine if an employer is adhering to affirmative action guidelines and whether the firm's selection process is valid in terms of the qualifications of those minorities and women hired.

It also will look into whether the goals of the affirmative action program "are realistic in terms of the employer's need, the available work force and the specifications of the job."

Ferris said he anticipates a large number of complaints from employers attempting to satisfy affirmative action requirements, but added that in the long run the commission's new policy may help reduce on tokenism.
