This reduction is in addition to the 1.5 percent cut in spending passed by the legislature last month in its approval of the $3.04 billion expenditures for 1975 - 76.

MSU anticipated decrease MSU had already anticipated a decrease in state aid last month when the state budget director announced intentions to reduce expenditures by one per cent. State Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, however, called the act unconstitutional because it lacked prior legislative approval.

Meanwhile, the board of trustees voted on Sept. 5 to establish a $1 per - credit - hour contingency surcharge for winter and spring terms should the state reduce appropria-

Possible surcharge

University officials say the surcharge may still be utilized if the legislature agrees to the governor's action. Administrators contend that it is too early to tell whether additional steps will have to be taken, though President Wharton indicated further enrollment cuts would be unlikely. Roger Wilkinson, vice president for business and finance, said a raise in tuition in addition to the contingency fee had not yet been determined. State money to MSU was to have totaled $88.6 million of the $138.5 million budget for this year. This represents a $2.9 million increase over last year's state appropriation, and 64 per cent of the general MSU operating fund. It is not clear how much in the red the governor's action will place the general fund.

The bulk of the nearly $50 million needed in addition to state funds will come from a projected $41 million in student fees. This figure reflects the tuition increase imposed by the board in August, but does not include the $1 contingency surcharge approved this

The remaining $9 million will come from application fees, interest income, indirect cost recovery from research contracts and miscellaneous income.

Extension funds approved

Approved in addition to the general University budget was funding for the MSU Cooperative Extension Service and the Agricultural Experiment Station, with budgets of $12.9 million and $9.7 million respectively.

The Intercollegiate Athletics budget of $2.7 million showed an increase of more than $300,000 over the 1974 - 75 budget. The breakdown of allocations to the various programs indicate that $85,000 will go for football expenditures, $24,000 to basketball, $20,000 to hockey, $38,000 to athletic allocation of $10.8 million was earmarked for scholarships, $41,000 for salaries and fringe benefits and $21,000 for maintenance staff. Wilkinson, in submitting the budget for board approval, noted that the additional medical programs, the MSU Library and other support service units. An inflationary factor reflecting a rate of only 4.5 per cent was included in the budget, totaling about $518,000. The actual inflation rate, however, is close to 11 per cent, he said.

Faculty and professional staff will get raises amounting to 6.5 per cent, while student employes will be entitled to pay increases totaling 9.8 per cent.

Trustees vote at meeting

By SUE WILLOUGHBY

The MSU Board of Trustees voted 7 - 1 Friday to limit new admissions in an attempt to hold fall term enrollment next year to 43,500 students — a drop of more than 1,000 from this term's record enrollment.

for university and federal relations, said Sunday that Gov. Milliken's proposed mid -October budget cut announced Friday afternoon could cause even more extensive enrollment limitations next year.

The move, which was prompted by a sudden jump in enrollment, will turn away about 250 new students winter and spring terms, and could affect as many as 1,300 applicants next fall.

The number of new students being admitted has not risen drastically, but get a job are staying in school as jobs have become more scarce.

students to continue to rise," provost John

Cantlon explained. "This would dilute the quality of education and place a strain on the fiscal support system of the University."

Cantlon said enrollment estimates for this fall predict that after late registration there will be 44.582 students - a record crowd.

"That is really too many students," he said. "This will place the University under great stress." The new limits will probably not affect entering freshmen as much as transfer students, who usually apply for admission later than freshmen. An attempt was made this fall to hold down enrollment by moving up the cutoff date for new admissions to July, and by making admissions on a first come, first served basis.

The greatest concern among the board of trustees was that the University maintain its ratio of minority students despite enrollment cutbacks.

Cantlon assured the board that "things would continue as they are now" as far as minority admissions were concerned, but Trustee Warren Huff, D - Plymouth, Huff, the only trustee to vote against the move, said that he thinks the University is "arbitrarily limiting higher educational opportunities.

"They are limiting the people least able and the most needy," he said, "The ones that are quick and alert will get their applications in on time, and the ones that need it most will be left out.'

President Wharton agreed that it would be difficult to maintian a proportionate minority mix when limiting enrollment.

"This will require an accelerated effort on the part of the admissions office, but it can be done," he said. "If we know in advance we can make a special effort to avoid a reduction in the number of minorities."

Gov. Milliken admitted Friday that the budget cuts would probably result in even further reductions in student enrollments. but by revealing his plans in advance he is giving the University time to determine where the budget cuts can be most easily

University administrators have adopted a wait and see attitude toward the possible effects of the budget cuts, but other sources were predicting layoffs and cutbacks in University programs and student enroll-

Whether the budget cuts will effect enrollment largely depends on how much Milliken decides to pare MSU funds.

"I don't think there is a possibility that further enrollment limitations would be imposed this year," Perrin said. "But we'll have to look at next year when it comes."

Two recent presidential assassination attempts, occuring within weeks of each other in California, have prompted many Americans to ask the same questions pondered after the slayings of the Kennedys and Martin Luther King. Is ours a perennially sick, violent society of change in Latin America and other countries," said social science professor John Molloy. "Other democracies, like Britain and France, have histories of political violence as well, he said.

Molloy said he was unsure whether the number of assassination attempts in the United States has increased in recent years. But our awareness of such attempts has increased dramatically thanks to modern communication methods, he said.

"We didn't see John Wilkes Booth kill Lincoln. Teddy Roosevelt was shot in Milwaukee during a speech and kept right on going. FDR was shot at several times . . . It has been going on for a very long time."

"What's amazing is that there were no attempts, as far as we know, on Johnson, Nixon or Eisenhower," Schlesinger said.

"He doesn't meet enough people to really have a dialog, but he makes enough trips so he makes the news," Greenberg says. "He is using the media in a news sense, trying to create an image that he is having a dialog, that he is in touch."

In addition, Ford does not want to be in the position of appearing to capitulate to a few dangerous citizens, Molloy said.

"Bravery and manliness are virtues we like to see in our Presidents," he said.

Last week, however, Ford aides announced without explanation that the President was cutting back his October travel schedule. Negative public reaction to Ford continuing his usual campaign style probably prompted the move, Schlesinger said. BOVINES ESCAPE FROM BUTCHERS

Cornered cattle cow cops

By CAROL KLOSE State News Staff Writer

Three cunning cattle eluded over 30 frustrated law enforcement officers Friday after they escaped while being led to slaughter.

The cattle, one Black Angus and two heifers, were being led to their doom by employes of the Van Alstines Packing Co., on North Okemos Road, when they broke through a fence about 1:30 p.m.

Van Alstines' employes, white butcher coats flapping in the wind, took off on foot after the bold bovines.

But the wily animals were too quick for their pursuers and fled across Grand River Avenue, past puzzled motorists. The cattle then ran in back of Old World Mall and across the Red Cedar River into the sanctuary of surrounding cornfields

Ingham County sheriff's officers were called in to assist with the search and at one point East Lansing police and Meridian Township police were participating in the search for the animals, believed to be hiding in a one - mile area east of Hagadorn Road and north of Mount Hope Road. A helicopter from the Lansing Police Dept. buzzed the area also, but to no avail.

A lookout post was set up in the front yard of a house on Hagadorn Road. Officers from the Ingham County Animal Control Dept. were there with rifles drawn and about 10 employes from VanAlstines were there in blood - stained butcher coats and white plastic hardhats. Several were equipped with lassos.

Larry Bandt, dock foreman at Van Alstines, said cattle escaped them now and then, but "they never got this far before."

He said the cattle were potentially dangerous if they were

He also said the cattle's reprieve from death would be shortlived if they were spotted by police officers.

"We have orders from Van Alstines to shoot to kill," one officer said. "The Black Angus is the leader and we're supposed to get him first, right in the head."

The animal control officers had tranquilizer darts in their guns but other officers had the real thing in their weapons. "If one of these animals runs across the road and is hit by a car going 40 m.p.h., there is going to be a fatality - a human fatality, an officer said. Officer Ted Passineau of the Ingham County Sheriff's Dept. said that normally cattle shy away from people but since the cattle had traveled over two miles on their adventure and were probably excited by the whole affair, officers were afraid the cattle might not "Black Angus cattle are bad - natured, anyway," he said.

The search was called off about 4:30 p.m. Friday after the cattle had failed to appear in the cornfield for over an hour and as of Sunday afternoon the cattle were still lounging somewhere in the vicinity - as contented as Elsie, no doubt. "We just don't have the manpower to search through cornfields for cattle," Passineau said. "We will just have to wait until the public spots them and reports it." Passineau doubts that the cattle have traveled any farther, because someone would have noticed the animals, which range from five to eight hundred pounds. If and when the cattle are caught, they will not be sold for meat because animals must be killed in an inspected slaughterhouse. "That's why everyone likes cattle calls," one officer said. "We get to take home a little hamburger."

But for the time being the stealthy steer remain at large proving that, like a needle in a haystack, it is almost impossible to find cattle in a cornfield.

Watergate office to stay open

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi has decided not to shut down the Watergate prosecutor's office and will soon name a new special prosecutor to handle remaining cases, it was learned Friday.

Special Prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr., the third to hold the job since it was created two and a half years ago, will resign in mid - October after what had been expected to be a final report on the work of the office is issued.

War protester found innocent

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anti - war activist Patricia Elizabeth Swinton Friday was found innocent of federal bombing conspiracy charges.

A jury took just eight hours to acquit the 34 - year - old divorcee of plotting to bomb federal and corporate buildings in New York City six years ago.

Swinton, a fugitive for five years before her arrest last March in rural Vermont, faced a maximum of 15 years in prison. Two other persons whom the government charged were members of the plot were convicted of similar charges and are serving terms in federal prisons.

New Kent State trial denied

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) - U.S. District Court Judge Don J. Young Friday refused to set aside an Aug. 27 verdict that state officials and the national guard are not liable for damages arising from the May, 1970 Kent State University deaths of four students and the wounding of nine others.

Young denied a motion for a new trial by attorneys from the American Civil Liberties Union, who represented the parents of the four dead and the nine wounded students.

Italian Walk-out halt trains

ROME (UPI) — Trains came to a halt Saturday night in a strike designed to disrupt Italy's rail communications for 48 hours. Postal and telephone workers and civil servants said they would go on strike next week.

The walkouts were the first in an expected "hot autumn" wave of labor trouble which the government of Premier Aldo Moro says could speed up the inflation spiral and push unemployment past the one million mark.

Gunmen corner 7 in London

LONDON (AP) — Three Jamaican gunmen holed up in the basement storeroom of a London restaurant released one of eight employes they took hostage during an abortive robbery Sunday, police said.

The release came 15 hours after the Jamaicans, armed with sawed off shotguns, burst into the restaurant in the fashionable Knightsbridge district as it was closing.

Police identified the released man as Alfredo Olivelli, said he was unharmed, and that he was being questioned.

Mario Manca, Italy's consul general in London, told newsmen at the scene he understood the gunmen released Olivelli as an act of good faith. All the hostages are believed

Moslems send out two threats

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Moslem gunmen holding a Japanese freighter threatened to kill a Filipino hostage and take reprisals against 26 Japanese crewmen unless the Philippine navy permits them to move the vessel closer to an insurgent hideaway, informed Japanese sources said

But representatives of the ship's owner in Tokyo said the captain radioed that the gunmen threatened to kill all 26 Japanese crewmen aboard the freighter unless 10 Philippine navy ships left the scene and granted them safe passage. There was no immediate explanation for the difference in the reported threats.

The warnings came after the apparent collapse of an agreement reached 12 hours earlier for the release of the 3,953 - ton Suehiro Maru, the 26 Japanese crewmen and five Filipino government and logging officials.

An estimated 30 gunmen have been holding the ship since early Friday off the coast of Zamboanga, about 520 miles

Israel devalues its currency

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel devalued its currency by 10 per cent Sunday, causing consternation among Israelis over their economic future and criticism by some that the devaluation should have been greater.

After an all - night cabinet session, the government announced it had devalued the Israeli pound for the fifth time in less than a year and raised gasoline prices by 22 per cent and the sales tax on a wide variety of goods by 10 per

The devaluation means the Israeli pound is now worth seven to the dollar against 4.20 in November 1974, and that Israelis will be paying more for imported goods. Israel's economy took a dive amid arms purchases in the 1973 Arab Israeli war and faces continued pressures from the costs of supporting the nation's war apparatus.

OPEC raises oil prices

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) -The world's major oil exporters decided unanimously Saturday to raise oil prices next week, with the possibility of another increase in mid-1976. President Ford's top energy, adviser termed the move "outrageous."

Experts estimated the increase will raise the world oil bill by $10 billion a year and boost the cost of American oil imports by $2.5 billion.

Oil experts expect the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' (OPEC) action to

In the OPEC meeting, Iran pressed for an increase of 15 to 16 per cent, but Saudi Arabia, the world's biggest oil exporter, fought throughout to limit the size of the increase.

Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian oil minister, said repeatedly that he wanted a continuation of the ninemonth freeze that expires next Tuesday.

But in private negotiations he came around to the compromise 10 per cent figure proposed by Kuwait and the Uni-reporters. Yamani said he was unhappy with the decision to review prices again next June. He said he wanted a freeze "at least

The spokeswoman also said that the actions taken by the FCC will hopefully reduce pressure on cable companies to promise more and more services to gain a franchise.

"We want to avoid a bidding atmosphere," the FCC spokeswoman said. She added that many times companies can be forced to promise unrealistic services just to gain a franchise.

The biggest battle, however, will be over what percentage of cable subscriptions the city can receive for administrating the cable system. Currently the ELCC is receiving 5 per cent of the total subscriber rates collected. The FCC, however, only allows a (continued on page 18)

The Rhodes Scholarships were set up in 1902 in the will of Cecil Rhodes, an Englishman who made a fortune in the diamond mines in South Africa. The will specified that the criteria for selecting recipients should include "qualities of manhood" so the male eligi-

It was for this reason that women were excluded from nomination for awards, and in recent years feminist groups have frequently criticized the all-male policy.

But now it is almost certain that women will be able to compete with men for the scholarship. And most women feel that is the way it should be.

"A woman can be just as intelligent as a man so they should be able to receive the same award for that intelligence," said Katherine Stokosa, junior, 314 E. Shaw Hall.

Tripling? Better yet: quadrupling and cake

Year in and year out the State sions requiring 500 cubic feet of News has frenetically harangued Residence Hall Management for its tolerance of tripled rooms.

We have fanatically assumed the role of defender of cramped students who live out of suitcases and sleep 16 inches from ceilings.

We have decried the management mentality that equates resignation with cooperation.

We've frantically and repeatedly suggested the termination of all student housing requirements: the lottery approach as is used at U -M; possible construction of new housing; cooperation between the city and MSU to ease the housing crisis; abandoning the de facto policy of placing higher priority on the residence hall mortgage payments than student welfare, and countless others.

We've rattled sabers about possible law violations resulting from neglecting state code provibreathing space per occupant.

We've assailed management's policy of holding empty rooms in residence halls where overcrowding still exists.

We've even gone as far as to suggest that there might be some stray incompetence within the management offices in West Holmes Hall.

Yet, somehow, year after year, there's always tripling. A fact of life: tripling, death and taxes.

For this we have no explanation: we must have been wrong. All along we were trying to editorially negate a fact of life, and we couldn't do it. We made imbeciles of ourselves, and we've suffered

Now, we're going to set the record straight. We realize we have honest, hard - working people in Residence Hall Management and Residence Hall Pro-best. They're fair and have the most honorable of all possible intentions.

So from here on out, let the record show that we not only condone tripling, we heartily endorse it. Indeed, we have an even better suggestion: to assure that nobody is without a room and to guarantee that the mortgage payment is met on time - somewhere in the 21st century - what's wrong with quadrupling?

Thus we encourage the forces of management to join with us as we look over the masses of residence halls bloated with cyclopean quantities of students and proclaim, in the triumphant spirit of Marie grams, and they're doing their Antoinette: "Let them build lofts."

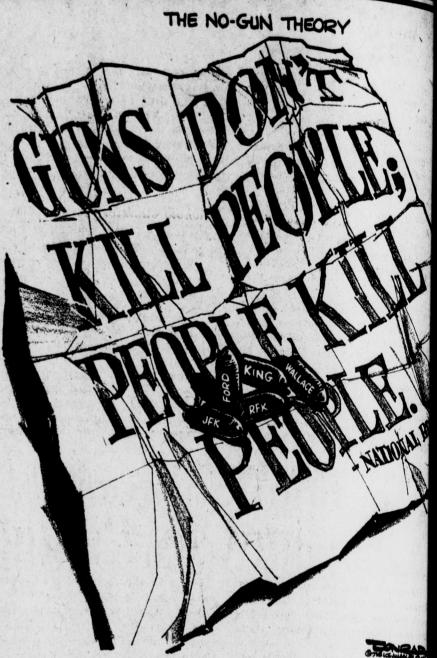

Issues show voter drive worthwhile

With the large influx of new students and the East Lansing city council elections a month away, VOTER, a coalition of student and political groups, is spearheading a voter registration campaign.

The door to door campaign will continue from now until October 6, the last day to register and still be eligible to vote in the November election.

The current effort has secured over 3,000 new voters for the East Lansing rolls.

The November election will determine the composition of the East Lansing City Council which will deal with such issues as housing and transportation hassles familiar to all of us. You should support VOTER's drive to increase student input on these important issues by making your polling place East Lansing.

Zestful Shriver tries to resurrect Camelot

Sargent Shriver "surfaced high," a Birch Bayh backer conceded after the gala announcement in the Mayflower Hotel ballroom last Saturday.

Shriver unfurled the banner of "reunion" on the cluttered Democratic field, and his audience, one thousand strong, gave life to

It was a "this is your life" kind of crowd that no present or future presidential candidate could assemble: the handsome family onstage, a balcony full of Chicagoans from the school board-Merchandise Mart beginnings; the floor awash in Peace Corps alumni and Office of Economic Opportunity

Shriver, with his usual enthusiasm, gave them all they hoped for - an 11-page announcement that sounded more like an acceptance speech and was frequently interrupted by applause. Nobody in the room - and many know his kindness firsthand — doubted his intention to bring back "love and compassion to national and international life.'

"My ears curled forward with embarrassment," said a man who had served both John and Robert.

But he got carried away and went further, casting some doubt on his protest that he entered without "a spirit of compulsive ambition or naive exhilaration.'

He spoke of the Kennedy legacy and stated boldly, "I intend to claim that legacy."

The ballroom cheered and wept, but outside, among old Kennedy loyalists, there was resistance.

"I choked," said a former aide to Robert Kennedy.

"My ears curled forward with embarrassment," said a man who had served both John and Robert.

If Shriver's claim carried promise of return to the New Frontier for his followers, it brought back some sour [c] The Washington Star memories of 1968 to other keepers of the flame. When Robert Kennedy announced his candidacy in March, Sargent Shriver, then serving as Lyndon Johnson's ambassador to France, declined to come home and

"If Ethel can get over it," said a Shriver supporter who thinks Sarge would make a better president than John did or Robert might have, "everybody else can. You saw she was here."

Ethel, in fact, when greeted by Shriver, drew the day's heaviest applause.

In the press conference that followed, Shriver was inevitably asked what he would do if the blood heir, his brother-inlaw, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, were to enter the race. The recently self-proelaimed claimant said he would step aside. "Wouldn't everybody?" he asked.

Sen. Kennedy was not present at the affair. Nor was his name on the well-balanced, star-studded, Kennedy-type committee list, which includes all the family save him and brother-in-law Stephen Smith. Teddy is neutral, Shriver explained, as if he understood perfectly.

His brother-in-law's "neutrality" is certainly as much a violation of the class' "all-for-one" tradition as Shriver's 1968 defection, but Shriver, who has long struggled with the brother-in-law problem, knows the same standard will not apply.

The larger question of his silence on the Vietnam war, broken only upon his resignation as ambassador to France in 1970, is not a factor to his present field. The war is no longer an issue in the country. The only possible contender who stirs a sense of obligation among such people is Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, who spoke out when it counted most. He is closeted with the CIA committee, which is looking into the darker doings of the New Frontier era. He has punctiliously ruled out any announcement until after he has reported to the country. The earliest date foreseen is January, too late to file in Massachusetts, where Vietnam still lives.

Shriver expects to drown all doubts in hope and joy and multiple solutions. He loves to campaign. He never met a man he didn't like - which sets him apart from John and Robert Kennedy, who could be flinty fellows, casting a cold eye on all comers and never forgetting a slight.

Shriver's backers hope that in his zestful rounds he leaves aside the Kennedy legacy claim and waits for someone else to identify him as the true inheritor. The country is looking for somebody who can bring back jobs, not Camelot.

Viewpoint: Amtrak

Feds cause of poor passenger service

By CHUCK BEAN

On October 14, 1970, Railpax (i.e. National Railroad Passenger Corporation) or Amtrak as is popularly called today, was created by Congress. "Congress provided Amtrak with a 40-million-dollar grant and authorized it to borrow up million to improve roadbeds and buy new equipment." Public Law 91-518, when it passed, was intended to "rescue the public's right of transit by rail from total abandonment by the railroads."

Amtrak received subsidies to stabilize passenger service and operating costs, with hope that this would help it meet its operating requirements and lead to efficient passenger service. They claimed that with "no other business but passengers, the corporation had every incentive to succeed." Their claim had no foundation except the human emotions on which it was intended to play.

The new government plan to provide passenger service to the nation is skeletal. Amtrak is "precisely 184 trains a day linking 144 cities on 21 basic routes, or less than one-percent of the trains available in the best days of intercity service more than 40 years ago." It was only as recently as one generation ago that 6,000 passenger trains existed in the United States. In 1970, only 350 of the 6,000 passenger trains continued to operate. It was also in 1970 that the federal government proposed its Amtrak plan. The government proposed to protect passenger service by cutting the number of passenger trains to 184. The Amtrak network has deprived Arkansas, Wyoming, South Dakota, Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire of service. On May 1, 1971 Amtrak became operational.

It is to one's advantage to know that between 1850-1871, the railroads in the United States received most of their subsidies in the form of land grants. According to the U.S. Federal Coordinator of Transportation, the railroads received from the federal and state government, land grants totalling 187 million acres, valued at $429 million. The Central Pacific Railroad, after receiving enormous amounts of government subsidies, became the most corrupt and dangerously unsafe railroad in the United States. Unlike the Central Pacific, the Great Northern Railroad, built by James J. Hill, without any government aid, for the sole purpose of doing profitable business, had an extremely opposite his-

Today, many questions are being raised about the Amtrak railroad. With the enormous amounts of government aid it is receiving, it is open to everyone's speculation on whether or not Amtrak will degenerate to the level of corruption and unsafe conditions equal to that of the Central Pacific Railroad.

Of the many questions raised about Amtrak, the answer to the following question was paralyzingly isbeeking. The question was: "Will there be any efforts to upgrade the quality of equipment?" The answer given was that Amtrak "is planning to select the 1,500 best passenger cars out of the 3,300 now in use." Nobody even argued for taking advantage of technological improvements and developments, or of modernizing present day locomotives and passenger cars. But such laxity of concern for improvements is typical of government. The lack of interest for improvements usually remains dormant until someone like Ralph Nader cries out that "corporate irresponsibility" has caused a senseless number of deaths, before Congress will act to pass legislation raising the railroad standards.

In the Amtrak issue, Ralph Nader as usual, is voicing his opinion loudly and clearly. In a letter to Senate Majority Leader, Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), April 26, 1971, Nader expresses his concern about Amtrak's conduct and future.

The ink on Congress' railroad prop was barely dry, when Amtrak b fighting to eliminate passenger ser along its government-planned non-pr able routes. In the eyes of Ralph Na Amtrak's possible elimination of passer service is basically due to its misus corporate power and funds.

Without cognizance of how Amtrak created, and how it is financed, Naderh unjust blame at its corporate managem Even though Amtrak itself is a semi-pri corporation controlling and managing railroads operation, its deficiencies are corporate caused. The federal governmentat planned, formed and financed provided the means which are allowing

In the past, the rate of collapse corruption in the railroad industry directly proportional to the amount economic aid it received from the government. There is no direct relation between enormous sums of free-money land grants (i.e. subsidies) and the mon wise use. It is pure folly to think and bel

Flash: Jordan refuses to accept missiles

Washington went into a tailspin last week when King Hussein of Jordan refused to accept 532 Hawk surfaceto-air missiles that the United States urged him to buy.

Hussein was angry because he said the United States had attached conditions to the sale. And Henry Kissinger was worried because Jordan could upset his Missiles for Peace game plan.

This is what was going on at the State Department during last week's crisis.

"Mr. Secretary, this cable just arrived from Jordan. Hussein is very upset because someone told him he could only use the Hawk missiles we're selling him for defensive purposes. He said he's never been so insulted in his life."

"Who told him he could only have them for defensive purposes?" "I don't know, sir. Some damn fool who wasn't clued in on the big picture."

"Well, fire him. We can't have our State Department people telling foreign leaders when they can shoot our missiles in the air." "Yes, sir."

"This is very serious. Do you realize if King Hussein refuses our missiles, then Israel could refuse them and then Egypt could become suspicious and would not buy any, followed by Saudi Arabia, Yemen and Abu Dhabi? My whole Middle East peace plan is based on everyone buying American missiles.

"Not to mention planes, tanks and spare parts. If we allow Hussein to get away without buying the Hawk missiles, it will upset the military the officials knew the body was there.

Quite a few high school students stumbled in drunk claiming they thought there was a party, but they soon sobered up after seeing all the police.

"We sat in the car on the road across the street trying to hear the band," said one surprised high school girl.

Around 5:30 the thinning crowd got their first shot of suspense when agents combed an area of the field by foot looking for sunken telltale marks as to where the body might be found.

About 6:00 the bulldozer started its engine and moved to a spot where officials were standing. As the clenching yellow scoop dug down,

Had Aspin gotten in touch with Ret. Commodore Claus von Frigate, former commandant of the Tidal Basin pedalboat fleet, he would have received a perfectly good explanation for the epidemic of retirement disabil-

"The congressman is overlooking the most important point," said von Frigate, whom I frequently consult on military maters, when I questioned him about Aspin's bewilderment.

"Using Anderson for an example, when the general took his first physical, he was being examined to see if he was in condition to run the Marine Corps.

"When he took his second physical, he was being examined to see if he was in condition to withstand the rigors of retirement.

"Anyone who is at all conversant with military science is aware that retirement is much more physically demanding than running the Marine

"As the head Marine, Anderson would have had aides and underlings all over the place looking after his personal needs. But in retirement, a general or admiral is pretty much forced to cope with routine exigencies on his own.

"It's easy for me to see how a general who was 100 per cent physically fit to run the Marine Corps could be 40 per cent unfit for

Sometimes it seems Woody Allen is a little bit crazy. At other times it seems he is OK and it is the rest of us that have a screw loose

Whatever the case, Woody is a very funny person who has a knack for making very funny movies and his latest endeavor, "Love and Death," is...well, a very funny movie.

Now a few demented gnomes who do not like Woody Allen claim that his movies are not very good because Woody is always just playing himself. Not true. He may be playing somebody else but nobody knows because they have yet to meet the person he is actually Anyway, to get back to the point. Woody does tend to play, the same type of character, but, unless he had one hell of a make-up man, his basic physical attributes make him a natural for that type of character.

In "Love and Death" (which he wrote and directed) Woody once again plays the skinny kid with glasses-the laugh-a-minute-loser whose luck goes from bad to worse-and he plays him very well.

This time the setting is Mother Russia just as Napoleon is making his invasion. Woody plays a Russian who is forced to join the army and defend his

Woody is not fond of the idea of going off to fight the French but he does it and even manages to become a hero while saving his country from the agony of being forced to eat rich French pastry.

Throughout the movie there are two things which Woody examines-love and death.

Woody first meets death when he is a small child and he asks the foreboding whiterobed figure the all important question: "Are there girls

His romantic interest is a cousin played by Diane Keaton, who does a superb job of fielding Allen's funny lines and throwing them right back at

love with Woody's brother in the movie and the skinny kid is once again frustrated by that artful creature known as love. Eventually, after he becomes a war hero, Allen has a fiveminute fling with a Russian countess which proves that occasionally he does have a little luck with women.

Before the movie is over though, Woody does manage to trick Keaton into marrying him and after she gets to know him, she actually falls in love

The two of them have some very interesting conversations about God and other philosophical questions and since they are poor, Diane learns to make very good meals out of snow. Later on, there is a meeting with Napoleon, which turns out badly for the good guys, and finally a short talk with an angel who mysteriously pops up out of nowhere. It is basically insanity but it is insanity with a message. Upon seeing this film, one may come to believe in love. After all, Woody did end up with Keaton. One may also find out a few things about death-it is worse than the chicken at weekend. for those unfortunates did indeed shell out $3.00 to see "Roger Grod sents Rod Stewart and the featuring Keith Rich--well, better luck next

It is not often when a "world premiere" comes to East Lansing, but the current disaster at the Spartan Twin can certainly be the last such "premiere" if this is all young Roger Grod can come up with.

Not only does this new Rod Stewart flick seem suspiciously familiar-and indeed, parts of it are, having been shown on "Don Kirshner's Rock Concert" earlier this year-but it epitomizes all that is depressingly familiar with rock and roll films in general.

Basically, the film is a 71-minute excerpt of last year's Cristmas Eve concert given in London by Stewart and the Faces. And that is it. No dialouge or film clips before or after the show, no interviews with band members or any of the other claptrap usually associated with such works is Good or bad, it fits in with producer Grod's line of reasoning. Last week, while in town promoting the film, he said in reference to it: "You won't see them brushing their teeth on the screen. People want to see a rock concert and that's what they'll get."

He could not have been more correct. A rock concert is all that is up there on the screen.

And maybe that is why the entire affair is so terribly boring.

Were the band any band of greater importance than the Faces, Grod's film might be of some respectable value. As it is. Stweart and the Faces have thrived on U.S. touring since 1970, and it is almost unimaginable that anyone with even the slighest interest in rock music has yet to see the band.

Furthermore, the band's popularity on the whole is possibly at the lowest point it has ever been-due to some very weak Stewart albums-and seeing Stewart in all his glory in England seems somehow nostalgic or contradictory at this

The appearance of Keith Richard is the one aspect of the film keeping it from being a total waste of time. Seeing the Stones' guitarist onstage with the Faces is in fact the type of unusual event that merits at least one or two curious glances. But his role onstage is so lackluster it only makes one with that the Stones themselves, rather than the Faces, were on the screen.

Which of course brings up the obvious question. If the fairly recent film "Ladies and Gentlemen, The Rolling Stones," with its quadrophonic sound system et al., was such an outright flop in this country, how can Grod expect anything better with just the Faces and a soundtrack that sounds as if it were mixed for television?

Television, in fact, is where the whole of Grod's film belongs. Once, any sort of rock and roll film might be considered a rarity worth viewing. But with three years of the TV overkill provided by "Midnight Special," "In Concert," and Grod's own affiliate, "Don Kirshner's Rock Concert," who needs this?

At least you can shut off a television set.

The jazz renaissance should. now, not be news to anydy. The sweetened, funkedjazz of Les McCann and hers is soaring to a popularity theld by jazz in 40 years. rare and unreleased materials of the range of his genius than does the il Evans-Tad Dameron reissue on Prestige Records.

Concentrating on music that was transitional both for the artist and for jazz throughout the series, The Cecil Taylor "twofer," "Transition," contains two rare Taylor albums. Recorded in 1955 and 1959, the compositions are primarily those of Taylor himself and of Cole Porter, with the inclusion of two standards-Monk's "Bemsha Swing" and the popular hit "Sweet and Lovely." Taylor, one of the earliest contributors to the avant-gards revolution, is perhaps the only one still not recognized as the genius that he is.

While the Prestige reissue series has been around for a while, it truly distinguished itself this summer with the issuance of a George Russell set entitled, "Outer Thoughts." Russell is a major composer and the greatest theorist jazz has produced.

Modern jazz, in any form even vaguely resembling the way we know it today, would be a total impossibility without George Russell. The music, from three extremely hard-tolocate Riverside albums recorded between 1960 and 1962, chronicles the formulation of Russell's style.

Keith Jarrett

Pianist Jarrett will play at MSU

By DAVE DIMARTINO State News Reviewer

Keith Jarrett, certainly one of the most prominent figures in contemporary jazz, will be appearing at MSU this week with his quartet.

As the year's first Showcase Jazz presentation, the concert and planned workshop seem to be drawing a fair share of statewide attention. This is really no wonder, considering that Jarrett, at this point in his career, is the most successful jazz pianist performing today.

Jarrett's diverse career began most notably with the Charles Lloyd Quartet of the mid-60's. After a much-celebrated tour behind the Iron Curtain and several promising albums, the quartet broke up, leaving Jarrett to form his own trio, one that recorded several excellent albums for Atlantic Records. That same trio-Jarrett, bassist Charlie Haden, percussionist Paul Motian-now comprise threequarters of Jarrett's current

After a 2-year association with the Miles Davis Group, a period which went by almost shamefully underrecorded, Jarrett permanently returned to his trio format and again toured Europe. Added to the trio was Texas reedman Dewey Redman, who had previously been a member of Ornette Coleman's mid-60's quartet.

With the addition of Redman, the present-day Jarrett Quartet was formed. Since 1972, the group has recorded several fine albums, including "Birth," for Atlantic Records, "Expectations," for Columbia Records, and most notably, 1973's "Fort Yawuh," which, with the addition of percussionist Guilherme Franco, received Rolling Stone's "Best Jazz Album of the Year" award. The quartet's most recent recording, "Death of a Flower," is an uncompromising effort that stands as the group's most exciting work to date.

Outside the quartet format, Jarett concurrently has been performing and recording alone, producing what many feel to be the most outstanding and substantial work of his Appearing only on Manfred Eicher's ECM label, the solo work has reached greatest fame with "Solo Concerts," a daring three-record set which has garnered universal praise since its release. That, "Facing You" and most recently "The Koln Concert," make up the body of his most impressive solo work.

Jarrett's composing and conducting talents are hardly minimal. His "In The Light" and "Luminescence" albums, both on ECM, are noteworthy not only for their musical excellence but for Jarrett's own nonappearance on both works. Also planned, word has it, is a full-length symphonic work composed and conducted by Jarrett.

Quite the musical sophisticate, Jarrett is full of surprises. This weekend's concerts should manage to hold a few surprises in store, also.

The Keith Jarrett Quartet will perform at 8 and 10:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday in McDonel Hall Kiva. Advance tickets are $3 for MSU students with ID and $3.50 general admission. Tickets are $3.50 at

Planetarium show interesting, uneven

By MARTY SOMMERNESS State News Reviewer

Due to a lack of continuity. Abrams Planetarium's current show, "The Universe of the Mind," frequently suffers from memory lapses during its performance. "The Universe of the Mind" is a multi-media production which illustrates thoughts of philosophers concerning the order of the universe. The show presents a progression of mankind's struggling to build a concept of the universe, first through the religion of the early Egyptians and Greeks and then through the astronom-

Europeans which often ended in religious controversies concerning what was the center of the solar system, the earth or

The purpose of the show "is a departure from the usual format of planetarium shows. Rather than dealing with and exploring a scientific area, Universe of the Mind attempts to enlighten the audience in a philosophical sense. The viewer is left to draw his own conclusions," states a press release.

The show achieved its purpose, but in an inept manner. A viewer may be impressed, and rightly so, by the show's ical observations of later day well-scored music and excellent graphics-thunderstorms appear to be the actual raging forces of nature. Pictures of revolving asteroids appear to be actually three-dimensional and exploding stars seem to rain cosmic dust right into the Sky Theatre itself.

That same viewer may also fall asleep in the theater's reclining seats waiting for those graphics to appear.

the superb graphics.

Poor production negated the Sky Theatre's slogan "Space is the Place" that the "Universe of the Mind" could have justified.

The show was an excellent conceptualization. However, the best way to prove that space is the place may still be to scan a book on astonomy at the library and spend the evening star-gazing.

"The Universe of the Mind" will be the planetarium's weekend feature show through Oct. 26. Friday and Saturday shows start at 8 and 10 p.m. Sunday shows start at 2:30 and 4 p.m.

Raymond also suggested that MSU's central administration be pressured into taking a more aggressive position with the state, that ASMSU strive for closer relationships with other university student governments, and finally that a series of meetings be held to "brainstorm" other approaches ASMSU and the student body can take.

Raymond said there are several issues left over from last term that he would like to see quickly out of the way so that ASMSU can get on with the business of the budget. Raymond said he would like Decision for Judiciary Raymond said the whole issue of whether the Student Workers Union (SWU) is a student organization or a labor organization also needs to be resolved, but cautioned he doesn't think there's a whole lot ASMSU can do about it.

"I believe it's a decision for the judiciary," Raymond said. "ASMSU would be outstepping its authority." He pointed out the University is the one who revoked the SWU student status. "It was a completely administrative decision," he said. Raymond said ASMSU will pay all bills SWU ran up before Sept. 15 when the University ruling was made. "After that time the University won't let us process anything of the SWU on the University account," he said. Raymond ventured he would also like to see a Housing Commission established composed of a total of six members who would represent on campus students, off - campus students and students living in

He said the commission's job would be to take an in - depth look at the problems that each of the housing options present and then make recommendations to the East Lansing City Council and the Board of Trustees to see what can be done about them.

Special Programs office desires qualified students to act as tutors

By PAUL J. PARKER State News Staff Writer

Though it currently offers tutoring services to all students, the Office of Special Programs may have to limit their services to only Special Programs students if work-study students do not begin to apply for jobs as tutors.

Harvie Jarriel, director of the tutoring program, said that the decision was made to hire only work-study students this year so that the money saved could be used to hire more tutors to continue to provide services for all students. He noted that over 40 per cent of all tutored students last spring were not Special Programs students.

"So far is hasn't been too successful," he said. "We might open it up to all qualified applicants.'

Jarriel said he is considering he possibility of finding volunteers for tutoring, but again added that they would have to meet the minimum require-

An applicant must have at least a 2.5 overall grade point average (GPA), with at least a 3.0 GPA in the subject area that he will be tutoring. Most tutors have been upperclassmen or graduate students with a GPA in the range of 3.3

Jarriel discourages interested students from just dropping in because of the limited number of tutors and their limited areas of knowledge. "The target population of Special Programs students is the first priority," Jarriel said. Special Programs students are those who did not quite meet the normal admissions criteria, but were admitted due to strong recommendations by high school counselors and teachers or who had otherwise shown the potential to do college level work. The tutoring program was designed to help those students better adjust to Students seeking tutoring help should call Jarriel for an appointment and be processed to see if there are tutors available for the subject the student needs help in. Jarriel said that until now, there has been little publicity about the program aside from the newsletter Special Programs students receive.

Tutoring sessions are held in Holden Hall on Monday and Wednesday nights and in Akers Hall on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Both tutor applicants and students who need tutoring should call Jarriel at 353-5210.

State News Staff Writer State Rep. Lucille McCollough, D - Dearborn, feels it is too late to convert her old Dearborn home to solar energy but is working to see the day when all new buildings and homes in the state will soak up the sun's rays as part of their built-in systems.

Lately, McCollough has been pouring a great deal of her own reservoir of energy into the chairmanship of a special House committee studying the feasibility of statewide use of solar energy for heating and cooling systems.

The committee has scheduled a public meeting Sept. 30 in the city council chambers in Flint designed to gain input from persons and organizations interested in the development of solar energy

Levi Jackson and the MSU offense turned three North Carolina State fumbles into three Spartan touchdowns in less than six and - a - half minutes as they rolled past the Wolfpack, 37 - 15, at Spartan

Jackson, running from the tailback slot, scored on eight, 12 and one - yard runs, and racked up 108 yards rushing in the first half. He had 137 for the day

But for the Wolfpack it was a long afternoon. They fumbled three times in the first seven plays and twice more later. All of the fumbles were recovered by the Spartans.

"I thought we were ready to play, but obviously we weren't," N.C. State coach Lou Holtz said.

"With five and a half minutes to go in the first quarter we had put the ball on the ground four times and they and they had recovered four fumbles. Not one of those was on a handoff. I felt Michigan State caused some of them, but some we just let go," Holtz said.

MSU coach Denny Stolz, on the other hand, credited his defense with one of the finest games they have played.

"It was our best overall defensive game as far as shutting down what the other team does best," Stolz said. "I've never seen an MSU team hit more," he said.

With Notre Dame next on MSU's schedule and U - M after that, Stolz said he couldn't have asked for a win at a better time, especially one as convincing. "The timing was absolutely perfect — it couldn't have been better," he said.

The Spartans first three scores were set up and scored basically the same way, with Jackson handling most of the offensive work. He carried the ball on seven of the first 11 plays MSU ran.

Jackson also had a chance at scoring his fourth touchdown of the first quarter on MSU's fifth possession, but he fumbled and N.C. State recovered in the end zone.

After defensive tackle Larry Bethea recovered the first Wo fumble on the North Carolina 23 - yard line, Jackson first r left tackle, then right tackle for gains of nine and six yards. The put it over with an eight - yard jaunt off left tackle.

The Wolfpack ran just three plays before defensive back Hannon jarred the ball from Wolfpack tight end Pat Hovance he had gained 15 yards on a pass. Hannon recovered the h and the Spartans were rolling again from the Pack 40.

A 16 - yard pass to split end Dane Fortney and runs of 24 a yards by Jackson put six more points on the board, and a 14.0 after Hans Nielson added the extra point.

It took MSU five plays to score their third touchdown linebacker Paul Rudzinski recovered the third N.C. State fumb their 25-yard line.

Nielson added two field goals in the second quarter for the MSU scoring. He put the ball through the uprights from 25 a yards out; the latter a career record for Nielson,

State News Sports Writer contend with more than just cameras and cables while covering the college grid games.

Stampeding Ohio State band tuba players, football players running into the side nes and overzealous glitter gradding students all tend to get Jim Lampley down.

"Literally, the ... State band ran me down at last year's game against MSU," Lampley, the young fair-haired announcer for ABC said. "With eight minutes to go in the pre-game show, someone cued the OSU marching ban to start marching and one of the tuba players marched right over me, tuba and all."

"Someone later said it was the first time in 30 years the band was out of step.

Lampley said he was obliterated once again after the MSU-OSU game last year, which he covered for the national broadcast. En route from the OSU locker room to the MSU locker room, Lampley said he was desperately trying to find a game official for a ruling on the

"All of the sudden they announced MSU officially won the game and I was sacked by a million students," he chuckled.

One of ABC's prime reporters, Lampley roves the field during the game to conduct on-the-spot interviews with coaches and players, and whatever other personalities he feels might produce interesting jive for the TV cameras.

"Denny Stolz, MSU's head A television announcer has to coach, is one of the most congenial coaches I've interviewed," Lamplay said, nodding his head in the direction of the Spartan team. "He's great; he's always got time for you." The coach of MSU's opposing could be better

This here is your basic "We just won a football game, yah for our The sun was shining Saturday and so was the MSU football team, which finally looked as good as it was supposed to look. Right now it's hard to say if the Spartans are really all that good or if North Carolina State just played a really bad football game. After all, the first three MSU touchdowns were set up by North Carolina fumbles. But the Spartans didn't blow it by fumbling the ball back to the opposition so things are looking up. The real test will come when MSU plays Notre Dame this weekend down in South Bend. If the Spartans win that one then, golly gee, we can all get ready to go to one of those good old post-season extravaganzas known as a bowl game. Unless of course the NCAA makes some trouble. Now back to the North Carolina game. I won't sit here and try to analyze the entire game because I only saw it once, without benefit of instant replay, and hell, Denny Stolz has coaches who get paid to do that stuff. They probably know a whole lot more about it than I do anyway.

After the Ohio State game, Joe Falls (he's the guy who does this sort of thing for the Detroit Free Press and gets paid a whole lot more than I do even though he doesn't have a mustache) said MSU played a very dull game against the Buckeyes.

Basically, the North Carolina game was pretty dull after the first quarter, so I suppose I could say the same sort of thing. I mean, after the first quarter it wasn't even fun anymore and I was beginning to feel sorry for the Wolfpack.

They took the trouble to come up here, all the way from Raleigh, N.C., and after the first seven minutes they were already out of the game.

And the fans were pretty bored in the second half and most of them were just watching the ABC cameras move around the field or looking at the cheerleaders and baton twirlers (how come North Carolina has six and we only have two?) or else they just kept glancing up at the sky, trying to spot the Goodyear blimp which never showed up.

So come on Denny, let's show a little courtesy for all those loyal fans and give them 60 minutes of excitement. You know, like you did last year against Ohio State. First of all, tell Levi Jackson not to gain over 100 yards in the first half. Make him wait until late in the fourth quarter and put it all into one long 88-yard run. People like that sort of thing. Second, let the other team stay kind of close and then make a controversial goal line stand right at the end. It makes the game more like a suspense movie where nobody knows how it's going to Third, if the game should get out of hand and we are winning by a big margin, put Tyrone Willingham in as quarterback because he's my hero.

Tyrone is great because he is only 5-foot-8 (which is my approximate height, though I sometimes imagine that I am taller) and one of the greatest moments in my life occurred in 1973 when he came in to quarterback the team after Charlie Baggett got hurt. Tyrone proved that you don't have to be a giant to play Big Ten football and, after seeing him tear apart those big guys, I was ready to try out for the team. Anyway Denny, I think if you follow these suggestions you will have some real exciting football games in the future.

Levi Jackson powers through the N.C. State Line on his way to one of three touchdowns for the day - and the first six - and - a -half SN photo/Bob Ki minutes of the game. He finished the afternoon with 137 yards, 108 of which came in the first half.

Cleanup commences in disaster stricken east

With the sun shining brilliantly and rivers and streams receding, the cleanup began Sunday throughout the Northeast after hurricane - spawned flooding that left at least 10 dead and drove thousands from their homes from Virginia to New England.

Twenty thousand people started returning to homes in Pennsylvania, hardest hit of a dozen states inundated by the torrential rains generated by tropical storm Eloise, the remnant of a hurricane.

An 11 - mile section of the New York State Thruway, closed by the flooding, was reopened Sunday. National Guardsmen continued to patrol in Harrisburg, Pa., where water from the Susquehanna River had lapped at the front door of the sand bagged governor's mansion.

In Connecticut, the search continued for the body of 14-yearold Daniel Byrnes, swept from a raft in the rain - swollen Steele Brooke in Watertown and presumed drowned.

There was one confirmed death in Connecticut from the flooding. Six died in Pennsylvania, two in New York and one in

The U.S. Geological Service rated it a 60 - year flood, the kind that can be expected, statistically, once in 60 years. The floods produced by tropical storm Agnes in 1972 had a 200 -

Repair of roads alone in Steuben County, N.Y., will cost at least $2 million, officials said. Damages to homes, apartments and businesses in Alexandria, Va., were estimated at $9.9 million and one elementary school was closed indefinitely. State officials in Pennsylvania said damage to roads and crops alone would probably total $100 million.

All or parts of 21 Pennsylvania counties were declared eligible for federal disaster relief by President Ford after the Susquehanna River poured into the state's agricultural and industrial heartland.

The river crested early Sunday morning, washed over low lying areas and towns and then receded. Dikes and levees protected the major cities along its 450 - mile path.

Campaign funds may run

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON - There may be a long line at the cashier's window when the government starts subsidizing presidential campaigners in January. Candidates who get there late could find the money running short.

The Federal Election Commission estimates that there will be about $95 million available for campaign payments during 1976, though about onethird of that is expected to come in from tax returns that won't be due until next April

By then, seven states will have held their presidential primary elections, and the campaign for White House nomina-

The calculations you face require no less.

Today, even so-called "non-technical" courses (psych, soc, bus ad, to name 3) require a variety of technical calculations-complicated calculations that become a whole lot easier when you have a powerful pocket calculator. Not surprisingly, there are quite a few such calculators around, but ours stand apart, and ahead. We started it all when we introduced the world's first scientific pocket calculator back in 1972, and we've shown the way ever since.

The calculators you see here are our newest, the first of our second generation. Both offer you technology you probably won't find in competitive calculators for some time to come, if ever.

Our HP-21 performs all arithmetic, log and trig calculations, including rectangular/polar conversions and common antilog evaluations.

It's display is fully formatted, so you can choose between fixed decimal and scientific notation.

Our HP-25 does all that-and much, much more. It's programmable, which means it can solve automatically the countless repetitive problems every science and engineering student

With an HP-25, you enter the keystrokes necessary to solve the problem only once. Thereafter, you just enter the variables and press the Run/Stop key for an almost instant answer accurate to 10 digits.

Before you invest in a lesser machine, by all means do two things: ask your instructors about the calculations their courses require; and see for yourself how effortlessly our calculators handle them.

See both the HP-21 and HP-25 on display today at your bookstore. And ask the Hewlett-Packard representative to show you just how valuable an HP calculator can be.

Richard Gillies, college dean of students, said the FBI questioned him last week about the three students. Gillies said identification was not required for registration and any registered student could get a photo ID card from the student association for $1.

Gillies said Mrs. Harris enrolled in data processing, Harris signed up for a general education course and Hearst enrolled in business English, secretarial practices and intermediate typing.

He said the three apparently never attended any classes and were dropped from enrollment lists after a few weeks.

Sacramento Sheriff Duane Lowe said, meanwhile, that "the possibility existed" that Hearst and the Harrises, using their aliases, attended the murder trial of SLA members Joseph Remiro and Russell Little but that he doubted they did.

The trial, conducted under heavy security, ended with both men convicted June 9 of the murder of Oakland schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

Sacramento County Deputy Dist. Att. Geoffrey Burroughs has said Hearst is under investigation for possible involve-ment in a $15,000 bank holdup in the Sacramento suburb of Carmichael in which a woman customer was killed on April 21. Hearst already faces federal bank robbery charges for a San Francisco holdup one year earlier.

It also has been reported that detectives believe some of the same people involved in the Carmichael robbery may have taken part in the Feb. 23, 1975, holdup of a Sacramento savings and loan in which $3,729 was stolen. Sheriff's spokesman Bill Miller declined comment on how closely the incidents may be connected.

And authorities reportedly also are studying the possibility that an execution-style slaying in Sacramento on April 26 was committed with a gun found in one of the San Francisco houses used as SLA hideouts.

Investigators said the AR 15 rifle may have been the weapon used to kill Ronald E. Winter. 36, a narcotics user believed involved in illegal weapons sales who was shot 12 times in the chest and stomath. Philip was arrested a few days later in that shooting and faces trial next week, but no murder weapon ever was found.

Meanwhile, defense attorney Terence Hallinan said Sunday she is suffering mental anguish from taking psychological tests and should be moved from her jail cell to a hospital.

Hallinan said he watched while Hearst took a three-hour battery of tests Saturday including the Rorschach inkblot test - administered by courtappointed psychologist Dr. Margaret Singer.

Further examinations were scheduled Sunday and Tuesday at the San Mateo County Jail in Redwood City, where Hearst has been held since her capture on Sept. 18.

Hallinan said attorneys would try again Tuesday to convince U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter to transfer the 21-year-old newspaper heiress to a hospital.

Hearst is due back in court that day for a progress report on the tests, ordered by Judge Carter when her attorneys claimed she was mentally incompetent to undergo cross examination in her bail hearing. The judge at that time turned down a defense plea that she be moved to a San Francisco hospital for the tests.

Prison officials say all Hearst's conversations with jail visitors are taped as a routine security measure. Excerpts from one conversation were made public by Judge Carter as material to aid the specialist examining her.

Attorney F. Lee Bailey, a recent addition to the Hearst defense team, said he thinks Patty can get as fair a trial in San Francisco as anywhere.

keeping in the Middle East. In taking up the natural gas bill the Senate is resuming its dispute with the administration over energy prices. Ford wants price controls removed from Federal Power Commission Chairman John N. Nassikas told a House committee Friday that the natural gas shortage could be eased if Congress would give his agency authority to lift price controls on a spot

But a Getty Oil Co. report, considered by the company to be a confidential internal document, forecast a 430 per cent increase in the price of new natural gas if price controls are lifted. And it predicted a steady rise in prices even if

The majority of Senate Democrats would prefer to avoid the fight over long-range natural gas pricing until the emergency legislation is approved. But Republicans and senators from energy-producing states want to tie the two matters in the same bill.

Under the emergency measure, pipelines that will not have enough natural gas to serve their customers this winter would be allowed to buy gas from producing states-mainly Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma-at prices up to $1.25 per 1,000 cubic feet.

This compares with the curper 1,000 cubic feet that most pipelines serving nonproducing states pay for the gas.

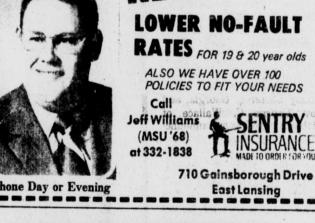

The Ford administration has its own proposal which would allow pipelines to pay whatever price the market will bearrather than the $1.25 limit-for the gas they have to buy directly from the producing states.

The Federal Power Commission has estimated that approval of either the Ford or Democratic plan will make enough gas available to hold this winter's shortage to the proportions of last year.

The shortage is expected to be most severe in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, Delaware, Missouri, Idaho and California.

The city maintained that those services were indeed available all subscribers and should not be classified as a "payment.

Robert Muhlbach, chairman of the ELCC, said that since fi the petition, the commission has recommended that the city coudeal with the FCC solely on the subscriber rate issue and leave other points of the franchise between the National Cable Co. East Lansing.

"We have recommended to the city that we do not recognize FCC's authority to void a contract," Muhlbach said. "We've advised that we can go into local court against the company (if National Cable Co. does not live up to their contract)."

Muhlbach said that the city would abide by the FCC decision the rate issue and take only 3 per cent if their petition is denied. also said that the commission is going to restudy the franch agreement. The franchise is to be renewed in 1980 and may have be changed if the National Cable Co. refuses to adhere to the provisions as pointed out by the FCC.

Ted Pregitzer, director of programming services for the cal company, said that the station will continue to provide the service as agreed with the city.

BEAL FILM GROUP PRESENT FOR PERSONS 18 YRS. OF AGE OR OLDER AN INCREDIBLE 8 UNIT

HARDCORE SHOW

Raunchy, Wild, Hardcore Cartoons. All in co unbelievably explicit. These films were made solely for amusement of the animators and their friends. These II were never intended for public exhibition. This program absolutely unique.

No. 1 Hansel & Gretel — and a witch you won't believe No. 2 Sex Saffari — a carnal excursion into the Heart of All No. 3 Sex Sheik — Lust in the harem No. 4 Snowy & the Seven Dwarfs — Snow White gets fall

No. 5 The Unsatisfied Wife — her cures for bad loneliness most unique

No. 6 Sex Machines — Technology & Lust make a biza No. 7 Jolly Roger — a French cartoon, a wild combination pain & blasphemy No. 8 The Good Girl — when she was good she was very 9

but when she was bad she was dynamite O PLUS O

A short film so extraordinarily bizarre that the acceptability standard of this newspaper will not permit Film Group to print either the title or its subject matter. We got it & it's absolutely uncut, you won't believe this even a you've see it!

Back-to-school HIFI SALF

or just want to get back to music, don't miss this chance to buy quality hifi components made by Nikko and other respected manufacturers at specially-reduced prices. You'll find the Tech Hifi near you listed at the bottom of this ad.

See you this week!

Here's a fine component music system that's typical of the values you'll find at this week's sale. The Nikko 1010 am/fm stereo receiver is an able control center for the system. It's Pure Complimentary solid-state power amplifier delivers ample power. The tuner section provides the kind of high sensitivity and low distortion we've come to expect from a Nikko receiver. The loudspeakers are famous KLH 101's. And the turntable is the reliable BSR 2260X. The sale price of this great system is more than $100 below the regular combined list prices!
