Court turns down Nixon bid for control of papers, tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A three-judge deral appeals court said Wednesday rmer President Richard M. Nixon might listort or destroy" the records of his years office and refused to give him control wer presidential tapes and documents from is administration.

The court said the former President

Labor head may close up entire office

> By RALPH FRAMMOLINO State News Staff Writer

Using his own powers, the state's Labor Department director has threatened to ondemn and order evacuation by Feb. 1 of the building where his own departmental ffices are located.

Director Keith Molin said Wednesday hat he and roughly 80 other employees are being "held captive" by the state Senate in a building which violates the state's ouilding safety code. He said he and his taff are being held by the Senate because it efuses to consider seven House bills that all for the Labor Department and other state agencies to move into a new $10.5 ion complex in Dimondale

There is considerable question whether e bills are constitutionally valid since the 963 Michigan Constitution maintains that principle departments . . . shall keep their ffices at the seat of government except as otherwise provided by law."

The bills have also met with opposition from Lansing area legislators, including Sen. Earl Nelson, D-Lansing, who say that noving such major state offices would result in the decentralization of state government and slow down the legislative process. Nelson cited this reason in opposigovernmental agencies would make access these offices by the people of Lansing extremely difficult.

The Dimondale Complex was commis-sioned by the state legislature in 1964 as a secondary office building and is still being onstructed. Several buildings are still on he drawing board. The complex now houses the Dept. of State, State Police District Headquarters, General Services Division and the Highway Dept. Photo and Testing Laboratory. The building which could house the Labor Dept. was completed in late 1975, with the exception of inner partitioning. Partitioning is done when the builder finds out which office is to be moved in and how much space will be used.

The 13-month old cabinet of Moro's Christian Democrats and the small Republican party was the 32nd Italian government to collapse since the end of World War II.

In withdrawing their backing in parliamentary voting, the Socialists — a Marxist group that is Italy's third largest party — complained that the Moro government had ignored their ideas for solving the country's economic ills. They also charged non-Com-munist prejudice against the Communist

The government's end came as an authoritative Washington source claimed that the CIA is funneling $6 million directly to members of the Christian Democratic party and the Democratic Socialists, a party distinct from the Socialists. There was no known link between the funds report and the government collapse

The 59-year-old Moro resigned after a 15-minute meeting with his cabinet and was to present his resignation to President Giovanni Leone. Based on past practice, the president will open consultations with party leaders and designate a new premier to try to put a government together.

If that fails, he would have to dissolve parliament and call a national election within 70 days. Elections are now scheduled for the spring of 1977.

The reports of financial support to Italian politicians from the U.S. intelligence agency followed a warning by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger last month that the United States is determined to do whatever it can to prevent Communists from joining coalition governments in Europe.

The Italian Communist party, which disclaims subservience to Moscow, received 33 per cent of the votes in nationwide regional and local elections last summer, pulling to within two percentage points of the Christian Democrats.

At the national level, Communist party Undersecretary Enrico Berlinguer has been talking of what he calls an "historic compromise" - a governing alliance beeen the Communists and the Roman Catholic Christian Democrats.

The Socialist party, which is considered slightly to the right of the Communists, said a new government must have a "broad parliamentary base," and not have any prejudicial notions about the support of the Italian Communist party."

Despite Socialist pleas to remain openminded on the Communist party, the Christian Democrats appeared unlikely to accept any Communist overtures at this time, preferring that the party congress settle the issue at its scheduled gathering in Black enrollment levels in colleges

By CAROL KLOSE

State News Staff Writer
The percentage of black students enrolled in the nation's colleges has steadily risen over the past decade, according to a recent U.S. Census Bureau report. Other reports, however, show that the increase has been leveling off since the early 70s and MSU appears to be reflecting that national trend.

Th U.S. Census Bureau report says that while blacks made up only 5 per cent of the college population in 1964 they made up 9 per cent in October '74.

The percentage of black freshmen among total students enrolled nationwide last fall was 12.3 per cent, exceeding the percentage of blacks (11.4) in the total U.S. population.

At MSU, in the fall of 1974, 2,567 blacks vere enrolled at MSU, or 5.9 per cent of the total enrollment. Figures on minority enrollment were not kept in 1964 because they were not required by the Health, Education and Welfare Dept., MSU's Institutional Research department said, though University officials say there was a surge in black enrollment during the late 60s and early 70s.

"There was a big increase in the number of blacks coming to MSU from about 1968 through 1972," said Lloyd Cofer, director of MSU's Developmental Program, "but that increase began leveling off in the last year or

The Developmental Program is responsi ble for recruiting students who would not normally be admitted to MSU because of low high school grade point averages. Originally it recruited only minority students but now it recruits educationally and economically disadvantaged students as well. Cofer said minority students still make up the majority of students recruited by the program.

Cofer sees the leveling off of the percentage of black college students as due more to an increase in the number of whites attending college, thus lowering the percentage of blacks enrolled, than a decrease in actual numbers.

Other University officials, however, contend they have noticed a decrease in the number of blacks coming to MSU.

James Tate, associate director of admissions, said he had noticed "to some degree" a drop in the number of black admissions Tate said he thought one reason for the decline was the area immediately surrounding MSU does not have large numbers of lacks residing there and the economy is forcing many blacks to attend schools closer said a decline had been "quite the case." University figures show a slight decline of eight black students attending MSU from the 1978-74 year to the 1974-75 year. The percentage of blacks in the total MSU enrollment has remained around 6 per cent for the last three years.

Joel Bryant, asst. director of admissions

Some, however, dispute the accuracy of MSU's figures. Tate said that there is no systematic way at MSU to classify the racial and ethnic backgrounds of students.

"I've tried for several years to have a place on the application for background, but the idea has been rejected," Tate said. "The figures may be close, but they are not accurate," he continued. The breakdown of MSU students racially and ethnically is computed by MSU Institutional Research. The figures are gathered from cards passed out at fall registration which request the student to check off his or her race and ethnic background. Filling out a card is optional. Lynn Peltier, asst. director for Institutional Research, said that he felt the figures gathered from the cards were "fairly accurate." Only 680 persons of those who went through registration did not respond, Peltier said. He said he thought few of those who filled out cards falsified the information. MSU does not have a minority quota in admissions that it tries to meet, though all University officials connected with programs for minorities contacted by the State News felt the University was committed to enrolling minorities.

Cofer does not feel that because MSU is 3 points below the national average, it indicates that MSU is lagging.

"We could make 9 per cent, too, if we went ahead and lowered our standards," he said. "We want to admit kids who have a fighting

If admitting students who will stay in school is o e of MSU's priorities, finding out who actually does stay in does not share in that priority. The State News could not obtain the number of students who leave MSU any given year without graduating from any of numerous sources contacted. Not only was a "drop out" rate figure unavailable for blacks but a figure for the total MSU population was also unavailable.

chance out there.'

According to the U.S. Census Bureau figures, only 40.9 per cent of blacks enrolled as freshmen in 1971 across the nation were enrolled as seniors by 1974. In comparison, 55.8 per cent of white freshmen in 1971 were Using figures from the 1973-74 year in comparison with the 1974-75 year, the State News estimates that approximately 4,000 students enrolled fall term '73 did not return in the fall of 74.

The reasons given for MSU's apparent lack of a drop-out rate figure v_{F} ied from person to person. Many officials said that the rate was not computed oecause the definition of "drop-out" was complicated and the figure would not reflect those who returned or later transferred to another school. Others said it was because students did not cooperate with the University's withdrawal procedure so no one really knows who left. Once source in Institutional Research, the department that would be responsible for collecting such information,

Ballot cards for ASMSU, PIRGIM could reveal identities of voters

By CAROLE LEIGH HUTTON State News Staff Writer

MSU students are finding out that a vote at MSU is not always as secret as they may have thought.

Charles Massoglia, of ASMSU Legal Services, has brought to the attention of the State News the fact that the ballots used for the recent ASMSU tax increase vote and the PIRGIM graduate referendum were keypunched with the student number of each student, as are all the cards in a student's fee packet. What this means is that the ballots, when fed into a data rocessing machine, would reveal the student number of the person who cast each vote. A computer could then match the numbers to the names of the students and, therefore, reveal how each person voted.

Results of either referendum are not yet known. Victoria Angell, assistant registrar, explained that prior to registration, Louis Hekhuis, director of student governance, approached the registrar's office and requested that the ballots be ndled with the fee packets.

"It was made clear to Mr. Hekhuis that the cards must be keypunched in order to do that," Angell said. "I understand there was a time factor involved."

According to Hekhuis, the ballots had to be presented with the fee packets. "This was the only way that we could see to provide the opportunity for everyone to vote," he said.

Another potential discrepancy arising from the election is a point brought up by ASMSU Legal Services questioning the absence of the five-member All University Election Commission that is required by ASMSU election regulations to supervise an election or a referendum.

Instead of a five-member commission, two election commission ers, Brian Raymond, president of ASMSU, and Joe Brockington, president of the Council of Graduate Students (COGS), are in charge of the election.

When questioned about the possibility of a conflict of interest concerning Raymond, Hekhuis said, "In effect, they (the commissioners) appointed themselves, with the advice and consent of their respective board members."

Hekhuis explained that the ballots will be kept in a locked filing cabinet in his office after the computer finishes tabulating them in a few days, and that no one will have unsupervised access to them. It is usual procedure to keep the ballots two days after a tabulation, pending request of a recount. They are later destroyed. Brockington said that the cost of any other method of making the ballots available to each and every student would have been unreasonable.

This was the most expedient system we could think of to hold the election," he said.

Raymond could not be reached for comment on his position as election commissioner. Massoglia said that the lack of secrecy of the election bothered him. "I'm sure they could've simply hand stuffed the ballots easily," he said.

The fact that the referendum was not conducted on an absolute secret ballot basis does not directly violate any ASMSU regulation constitutional right. However, ASMSU Legal Services feels that it will come as a surprise to many students and could have subsequent effects on future elections.

Eldon Nonnamaker, vice president of student affairs, did not see the secret ballot question as an important issue.

"I really can't say what effect, if any, it will have on future elections," he said.

Price change limit ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration has ended its requirement that price increases on gasoline and light fuel oils be limited to once a month.

The move, effective retroactively to Jan. 1, leaves refiners, distributors and dealers free to raise or lower prices as often as they wish. It is expected to have little long-range effect on retail prices, however.

Moonshine raids netting less

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal agents seized about 800 moonshine stills last year, the fewest since the repeal of prohibition in 1933, Treasury officials report.

Rex. D. Davis, director of the Treasury Dept.'s Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, attributed the decline in the number of stills to tough law enforcement, a high conviction rate and declining demand due to increased cost.

Agents seized more than 6,000 gallons of moonshine during the year. Davis said, and arrested about 650 persons, down from 1,414 the year before.

SEATTLE (AP) — A program to develop an American supersonic transport has never fully stopped, despite Congress' vote in 1971 to kill funds to continue a $1 billion SST program, a Boeing Co. official says.

Holden W. Withington, the Boeing vice president who ran the full-scale development program, said about 50 persons are continuing to refine SST engine and aerodynamic designs using government and Boeing money.

The American SST was killed after an intense debate over whether it was environmentally safe and could avoid becoming an economic white elephant.

Dump search for Hoffa still on DETROIT (UPI) — A federal source says "logistical problems" may force the FBI to abandon its search in a New Jersey dump for the body of missing former Teamsters President James R. Hoffa.

A U.S. magistrate in Newark has given the FBI three extensions on a search warrant to dig in Moscato's Dump in Jersey City, but a federal source in Detroit said Tuesday it is not likely the warrant will ever be executed.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the FBI in Newark said published reports that the FBI has decided that Hoffa's body is not buried in the dump are "totally untrue." The spokesman said no digging was underway, but added that "no final decision has been made yet."

A key piece of legislation that would license al of the state's auto mechanics and compel them to provide customers with an itemized list of repairs will face a tough battle in the committee of Rep. Lynn Jondahl, D-East Lansing.

The East Lansing representative has to contend with two powerful lobbying groups that are flexing their political muscles over the bill, namely the Michigan Consumers Lobby (MCL) and the Michigan Auto Dealer Assn. (MADA).

Jondahl faces a request from the MCL to kill Senate Bill 822 because of a clause that would not require mechanics to automatically provide a written repair statement to the customer if the work would cost less than $50.

Requiring mechanics to give customers written estimates is not the only feature of SB 822. It also provides for the licensing and regulation of all Michigan mechanics by the Secretary of State, who also investigates all complaints. It also maintains that a customer can waive the right to a repair estimation if there is an emergency and the work must be done immediately. The mechanic is also bound to make another statement after the job, detailing exactly what was done. All replaced parts must be returned to the owner of the car.

Douglas Ross, co-director of the MCL, said that the MADA and particularly lobhyist Jim Karoub, influenced the Senate Committee on State Affairs which worked on the legislation before it was sent to the House in such a way as to "gut" the main point of the bill.

He said that the $50 minimum pushed through in the Senate committee by Karoub would hurt the consumer because, by MAPA statistics, the average cost of auto repair in the state is $44. Ross also added that the MCL is asking for the death of the bill because it believes Karoub could infuence enough House members to pass the bill eventually and put the $50 limit into

"We've asked Jondahl to kill that bill," Ross said. "we're not sure anyone can beat Jim Karoub and the Auto Dealers on the floor of the House

But Karoub thinks differently. He called the $50 minimum level a "consumer protection proposal" because the customer would still have the option to have an estimate list prepared if he or she requested it. The provision would just allow mechanics to work on average repairs without going through the itemization and delay the actual repair process.

Karoub also disagrees about his powers as a lobbyist.

"We (the MADA) don't know how to lobby like they do," Karoub said. He added that the MCL "threatens legislators with numbers and votes" when they encouraged voters to write in about legislation.

He also said that the MADA cannot match the money which the MCL and other groups have poured into the auto repair bill

"The UAW (United Auto Workers),

Common Cause, and the Citizen's Lobby are hand-in-hand on this bill," Karoub said. 'We can't beat that kind of money."

Ross said that the MCL would only support the bill in Jondahl's committee if Gov. Milliken, who favors a $20 minimu repair level, would promise to veto the bill if the $50 minimum stayed intact. But for now, the group is determined to kill the bill in hopes that something they deem more favorable to the consumers will come later.

"We fought 2 years and involved more than 150,000 people to get a strong bill, and we're sure as hell not going to lose a vital part of the bill," Ross said

Ross added that last week, when MCL held a press conference to encourage people to write their representatives to defeat the bill, the MCL had a large response from citizens.

"The lower the relative cost of beer and liquor gets, the greater the consumption will be." Rice said. "Our position is that such low prices will only encourage more and more consumption," he said.

The council is in favor of adding an additional luxury tax of at least a penny a bottle, but powerful lobbying by beer and liquor manufacturers and wholesalers has so far kept the tax at bay.

Though tax on beer in Michigan is relatively high compared with taxes in other states at 45.73 cents per 24-bottle case, Michigan still seems the place to be if you are a beer drinker. The average cost of a six pack in Michigan is only $1.22, while the cost of going for the gusto in, say, Indiana, ia

$1.47 and in Ohio, $1.39. Rice said beer is cheaper in Michigan because it is a bigger beer drinking state, and retailers can get less money because of greater competition.

A recent state Liquor Control Commission report also stated that over six million more gallons of beer were consumed in the 1974-1975 year than during the 1973 1974

A check of Lansing Kroger stores by the council showed during the month of December that beer was slightly cheaper than soft drinks. A holiday special advertised Old Milwaukee beer at $1.19 for a six-pak. Falstaff sold for $2.59 per 12-pak, while an eight-pak of Pepsi sold for $1.79. The Pepsi cost was $.0186 per ounce higher than the 12-pack at $.0180 or the holiday special beer price on $.0165 per ounce.

In Wisconsin, one of the only states which beats Michigan in low beer prices, beer is even cheaper than milk. In Milwaukee, a whole case of beer (24 bottles) sold for only $2.99, while a gallon of milk still sold for $1.49, placing beer significantly lower in

A State News survey of East Lansing prices show it is still slightly cheaper to feed baby milk and orange pop instead of Budweiser At Meijers, the price of a 12-pack of beer was $2.49, milk was $1.49 per gallon, and Pepsi was $1.79 per

may give housing data By FRED NEWTON

Computer name cards

State News Staff Writer

Those hectic minutes you spent filling out your name and address on those little computer cards at registration may not have been totally in vain.

Up until now they have only been used to send grades and outstanding traffic tickets home, but they may help both University and city officials determine the demographics and geographics of MSU students living off-campus.

And it looks as if it may be the first big step for MSU to study its off-campus student population - which critics have previously claimed is a responsibility MSU has ignored.

"How can the University or the city make any good decisions if we don't know what we're talking about," said Wally Piper, off-campus housing coordinator who is overseeing the project.

The idea is basically simple: utilize existing University information about students from registration cards by putting it onto maps and charts to show where students are living.

This can be used by both the University and surrounding communities to help develop long-term planning in housing and transportation.

"We know there is a shifting of students to Lansing but with this data we can now quantify this assumption," said Jim van Ravensway, assistant planner for the city of East Lansing.

Piper recently gathered a computer run off of students living off-campus according to the zip code they put down in registration.

For the on-campus 48824 zip code area there were 15,755 students, followed by 11,650 for the 48823 zip code (East Lansing,

In Okemos there were 1,171 students, and in Lansing there were nearly 4,000 students living in six predominately east

"What we would eventually like to do is go back to previous years, and collect similar information to build up historical data to study trends," said Piper.

He added that his was just the start of a number of various projects that the off-campus housing office would begin researching.

Beginning with East Lansing, Piper will be gathering demographic information such as sex, age, class standing and marital status of the student population. Eventually he hopes to find out where the rental units are, what type of housing exists, housing costs and availability of transportation.

Though all this cannot be done by computer card, off-campus housing people have more time and access to resources than the city staff to carry out these

The city for years has been trying to get ome type of housing study off the ground, but is has usually failed due to political

Now, however, a joint housing commission — planning commission committee is in the final stages of drawing up a housing study that van Ravensway says will complement the off-campus housing office findings.

That study, expected to get off the ground this April, would monitor the effectiveness of the housing and zoning codes, develop neighborhood profiles, check the vacancy rates, determine rent levels and what groups are being excluded from the housing market.

Both van Ravensway and Piper have kept each other aware of what their offices are doing to provide some type of coordination, though van Ravensway says some overlap may be "unavoidable."

"The main reason we're doing it is to help the decision makers," said Piper. "The information we get will be available for dissemination to public officials."

The off-campus housing analysis can be seen as a long awaited committment by the University to monitor and plan for the growing off-campus enrollment.

"It can only have a positive benefit," said van Ravensway. "The cooperation between MSU and the city in this study is a good sign considering it hasn't been the case in

Anti-pelt campaign to start

By MICKI MAYNARD

State News Staff Writer and their wearers will be who wants to participate. the target of a two-week protest on campus

Animals, Inc. One of the aims of the "Kick the Fur Off Campus" campaign is to make fur coat wearing unpopular. Rick Doyle, co-chairman of Fund for Animals, said the protest will be aimed mostly at wild furs. "The majority of coats in the United States are made from wild fur," Doyle said This includes raccoon, possum, wolf and fun furs like skunk and muskrat."

Although mink is not considered a wild fur because it is ranched - raised for its fur - Doyle said his group is also opposed to the wearing of mink.

The "Kick the Fur Off Campus" protest will begin Monday with displays in the Union and the International Center. The group will also have a display at the Meridian Mall. The displays will illustrate the present methods used in trapping wild animals for furs. The steel leg-hold trap is most widely used by fur trappers.

"The steel leg-hold trap is a spring device," Doyle explained. "When an animal steps in it, it closes in intensity — almost like slamming your hand hard in a car door. Then it just holds the animals."

Doyle, who wears a lapel button reading 'Animals have rights, too," said there are no laws which require a hunter to check his traps. He added that animals often remain in traps for weeks or even months.

Sometimes animals have to chew their legs off to escape. As skin and bone wears away, the traps just close tighter.'

Doyle said the American Fur Assn. is against banning the steel leg-hold traps, since over half the fur coats in the United States are made from wild fur trapped in the spring traps.

A major event of the protest will be the picketing of Grand River Avenue stores that carry furs, especially Jacobson's.

"Jacobson's has a large department of furs and we feel they are one of the largest rence, Kan., and Providence, R.I.

Agents seize 12 suspects of Detroit marijuana ring

DETROIT (UPI) - The Drug Enforcement Administration said Wednesday its agents have arrested 12 of 21 defendants secretly indicted last month for conspiracy in a Detroit-based marijuana ring so large it bought and sold pot by the ton. Federal authorities called it "by far" the largest such operation in Michigan history. Agents rounded up suspects in California, Kansas, Pennsylvania, Arizona, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, and officials said a 13th suspect already was in jail in Michigan.

Theodore Vernier, the regional director of the DEA, said agents were hunting the other eight suspects named in the secret Dec. 19 indictment, but he refused to pinpoint their location.

The amount of marijuana involved, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Peter M. Rosen, was at least 15,000 tons with a value exceeding $2 billion.
"It would sell for maybe five times that amount on the street," he said.

One defendant named in the indictment in Detroit was identified as James S. Thorton of Detroit, a prisoner serving life in a Michigan prison for murdering one man and wounding another in a dispute involving 1.985 pounds of marijuana.

Rosen said agents conducted coordinated raids early Tuesday in San Francisco, San Diego, Boston, Tucson, Philadelphia, Law-

Among persons indicted, authorities said, were Maria Blanca Reid, 53, executive director of the San Diego Mental Health Association, and five lawyers. The indictment alleged the ring conspired to obtain the marijuana in "tonnage quantities" and distribute in "multihundred pound" packages.

Holiday thief storms dorm

Campus Police are investigating the theft of approximately $1,000 worth of merchandise taken from 10 East Wilson Hall dormitory rooms which were broken into over Christmas break.

Police said the doors to the rooms were forcibly opened either by smashing the locks with some heavy object or by prying them loose from the casings.

Stolen items included a complete stereo set, a sewing machine, camera, four T-shirts and a foot locker.

Police suspect that entry was gained into the dorm through a ground level window which was found open with its screen slashed and peeled back.

Color him 'clumsy'

The spectacle of the President of the United States sprawling in the snow after an awkward skiing spill is not an inspiring one.

Indeed, some have called it downright disrespectful (to the office, of course, not to the man, they always say) for the newspapers and broadcast media to expose the President's lapses of grace to public view.

Perhaps they are right. But the opposite course is almost surely worse. No one can admire the Soviet press for failing to show Comrade Brezhnev down in his cups, or the Ugandan press, if you can call it that, for avoiding the unmistakeably silly side of Big Daddy Amin.

It is a healthy aspect of the United States that we alone are able to view our leaders as human beings who sometimes slip, or bump their heads, or fall in the snow.

But that still leaves the question: why Jerry Ford? Former presidents have not been portrayed popularly as lummoxeseven though most of them have been far inferior athletically.

Perhaps the answer lies in Ford himself, and in the perception of him as President. Perhaps the popular media are expressing, in the non political arena of coordination, a feeling, whether justified or not, that Ford is a clumsy statesman.

How else can one describe a man who vetoes one tax cut bill, only to sign practically the same thing a few days later? Or a man who hands out WIN buttons and calls for tax increases only months before a tax cut and massive deficit. Or a man who pushes for a bill permitting construction unions to picket an entire construction site, and then vetoes it when Congress agrees.

Clumsy is what most people would call him. Or worse...if they didn't know how honest and decent Jerry Ford is.

Whatever their political beliefs, surely all Americans would prefer that the President's actions and words become more coordinated.

'U' College changes offer hope for future

There has long been serious question whether MSU University Ĉollege classes fulfill their purpose of increasing students' competency in the humanities, social and natural sciences, language and the understanding of the way these areas affect our everday lives.

In response to this situation, the future could be much brighter when the new course guidelines are instituted for meeting the 45 credit general education requirement all students must tackle.

Approved by the Academic Council in 1973, the new system still has a long way to go before it is put into effect. However, the changes may be well worth wait-

The new guidelines would shift the burden of general education from the current unsatisfactory University College structure to the various academic departments, allowing each to design courses which fall into the four areas of humanities, natural science, social science language proficiency.

This shift will not be a mere decentralization, but requires that each new course acquaint students with the issues and explanations necessary to create a critical understanding of the world.

There will also be a decided emphasis upon the use of the written and spoken language. A demonstration of language proficiency will be a requirement for graduation, and this should help stem the calamitous decline in language skills that has become so evident at MSU.

However, several administrative and technical problems need to be overcome before the new guidelines are instituted.

The Curriculum Committee must sift through the numerous proposals from each department and judge which classes meet the new criteria.

Other committees must grapple with the construction of a language proficiency test, and the proper elements of courses designed to give students necessary English

Though still off in the future, the new criteria are a reason for hope for those concerned with the state of university education and will be warmly welcomed when they finally arrive.

Clumsiness of Ford deliberate

Ron Nessen has been complaining about the clumsy image the media has been giving President Ford. Angered by the press coverage devoted to Mr. Ford's fall in the snow while skiing, Nessen told reporters it was "the most unconscionable misrepresentation of a president" he'd ever heard of.

He went on to say that President Ford was the "best coordinated President in Now any press secretary worth his salt should know you don't get anywhere by complaining about the image the media is presenting of a president. What you do is turn an act of clumsiness into one of skill you have on that? A - Yes, the President feli as planned this afternoon in six inches of snow near a large Aspen tree. Q - As planned, Ron?

- That's corrrect. Before he left Washington, the President made plans to fall just once so all the photographers would get the only picture they had made the trip Q - You mean the President didn't have A -- He certainly didn't. As you know, the President is the best skier who ever lived in the White House.

But despite this it took great skill to fall exactly where the photographers were stationed. His Secret Servicemen were against it, but the President overruled them. The President said, "If I don't fall down once while I'm skiing, everyone will think I'm not a nice guy."

Q - Ron, when the President left for his skiing trip from the White House lawn, he tripped over the leashes of his dogs. Was that planned also?

every time the President stumbles, it is thought out in advance?

A - Let's say it's discussed beforehand. As you know, Mr. Ford is the most coordinated President we've ever had, so we don't want him to stumble too often. But when the occasion arises where we think a slip or a fall will help his image, we urge him to do it.

Q — Whose idea was it for the President to fall down the steps getting off the plane in Salzburg last June?

A — Henry Kissinger's. He wanted to show President Sadat that we weren't putting pressure on him.

Q — So you feel President Ford's fall at Salzburg turned President Sadat around? A - Well, the Suez Canal is now open, Q — Wouldn't you say the President was deceiving the American people by stumbling when he doesn't have to?

A — On the contrary, I think it helps it credibility. The difference between E Ford and former presidents is that we only found out how badly they stumble after they left office. President Ford in insisted the public know about his stu-bling while he's still in the White Houa Don't forget the President stumbled in his job; and since it worked then it show help him with his election.

Q - Is that it, Ron?

A — I heard a funny joke about a President the other day. It's really a Poli joke, but we switched it around to fit & Ford. Would you like to hear it? Faults in bottle bill

This letter may fall into the category of "better late than never." Even so, we have just seen the December 4 article by PIRGIM writer Steve Weiss on "Killing the Bottle Bill in Spite of Facts."

(which administers the P.S.C.), was willing to go that far. The "facts" Mr. Weiss Rather than argue evidence in limited headlines and alludes to are no more facts, premises, of one man working under heavy pressure to produce some kind of document after months of taxpayer support.

Like the P.S.C., the State Chamber also has evidence . . . evidence based on the operational experience of the major companies in the field and the experience of Oregon, where the official state analysis of economic impact to the state shows marked losses, not gains. Of course, one can always dismiss businesses' evidence as biased and render loyalty to the government, PIRGIM, et. al. Again, we hope MSU is producing better minds than that!

In summary, let us point out that the same people who gave Michigan the "Bottle Bill" have also helped create a climate where tens of thousands of jobs are being lost, where the state budget is hopelessly in deficit and where the hope of real improvement is just about dead. Students may like PIRGIM's brand of legislation now, but will they like it when they become the unemployed victims of its economic blind-

VIEWPOINT: CAPITALISM

Economy needs revolutionary change

By Paul Kuipers

and Curtis Stranathan The U.S. economy is again in a depression. Workers and students are being crushed between two rocks, mounting unemployment and inflation, while "cutbacks" are worsening essential public and society (which every capitalist country is) the minority and foreign workers are hit hardest of all.

The basic contradictions of capitalism, the tendency of the rate of profit to fall and the crisis of overproduction are pushing the bosses into a corner. The ruling class of this country, in their desperate attempt to insure maximum profits, are shifting the burden of "their" crisis on the backs of the working class.

Through the boss controlled media, we are told that working people are responsible, because we eat too much, use too much energy, etc. We are told racist lies about undocumented immigrants stealing jobs in an attempt to divide workers. What it boils down to is that capitalism doesn't meet our needs, so (we are told) we have to change our needs.

A certain mysticism about the economy is pushed in the media. They say "not even the best minds in Washington understand the crisis" to give the masses the idea that there is nothing that can be done. The bankers in New York City are using the default threat to scare workers into mass layoffs while labor sellout Gottbaum is loaning worker's pension funds to the city to the tune of $2 billion.

These cuts in NYC are just the beginning. What bosses are also after is to smash welfare, stop unemployment insurance and end the entire free public school system.

What we in the Progressive Labor Party (PLP) say is that we have to overthrow the capitalist system and set up a society of socialism, a system based on meeting people's needs. PLP understands the capitalist crisis in terms of its permanent built-in defects, which can and will result in depression, World War III and fascism.

PLP is the revolutionary communist party in the U.S. devoted to uniting men and women, black, Latin, Asian, white and native American into a mass multi-racial force, which guided by the revolutionary science of Marxist-Leninism will smash capitalism, the bosses and their dictatorial government forever. This can only happen when the majority of exploited workers unite behind communist leadership and private services like schools, health care, welfare programs, etc. Naturally in a racist new government of revolutionary workers, the dictatorship of the proletariat. Only then can we live in a society free of exploitation, with a secure and creative future for all workers.

PLP and the Canadian Party of Labor (CPL) the revolutionary communist party in Canada are co-sponsoring an International Trade Union Conference in Detroit on Jan. 17, 18, 1976. This conference will bring together workers from all over the U.S. and Canada from auto, steel, hospital and social services as well as teachers, government and professional workers. The ocus will be on rebuilding trade unions using communist ideas to move labor to the left. We are organizing a contingent of workers from the Lansing area.

Students must mobilize to oppose the cutbacks, tuition hikes and the racist theories that threaten ALL working class students. At MSU, students should join and build progressive organizations such as the International Committee Againist Raciss (INCAR) and the Student Workers Units

If you are convinced that capitalism can work for the masses of people then you logical path is to be revolutionary. We h nothing to lose but our chains and a world win. For more information or to talk more about PLP call Paul at 655-3656.

VIEWPOINT: HUNTING

Resource protection misguided

Jim Corven

The hunting season has gone by and the controversy rises to the occasion. Let's not engage in emotionally charged dust raisers. Let's discuss, straight out, the situation as it has developed. Two major points are fundamental to this topic.

First, the myth of "maximum sustainable yield" (MSY) has recently become clear. MSY says that a healthy population should produce regular, usable surpluses which can be harvested causing insignificant damage to that population. The very biologists who developed this hypothesis years ago have now joined opposition to its application. The MSY supposes some very basic principles about population dynami which are now known to be false. Simply stated, under the pressure of harvest, unpredicted declines in ecological stability will occur.

Furthermore, arguments about why MSY is a failure are academic. The plain truth is that the concept has seen not a single success in wildlife management and continues to promote the destruction of selected wildlife throughout the world. It remains a cloud behind which special interests can rationalize and hide the truth.

Secondly, the economics of wildlife management are easily overlooked. Harvest of an overgrowing surplus seems very reasonable until we clarify how these surpluses came about. The white tailed deer surplus is intentionally created by the Dept. of "This is not, however, a plea against hunting in total. Nevertheless, a basic rethinking of our priorities is called for.

Natural Resources just as a beef herd is expanded by a rancher. This is a very expensive process. The outright goal of the DNR is to double the deer herd size by 1980 to one through "habitat improvement." million through "habitat improvement." Expensive changes within the entire deer range are required and progresses at enormous costs to the taxpayers. A single bulldozer runs at least $50,000. Remem too, that which is improvement for deer not so helpful for other critters but i selective for the deer.

This is not, however, a plea against hunting in total. Nevertheless, a bust rethinking of our priorities is called for the busy and the When MSY was developed it was under the influence of what most people wanted hunters represented a large proportion the concerned persons. Today the situation has fully reversed with hunting demands being only five percent of the picture. The pro-hunting lobbies, while a legit mate concern, must be put in perspectiff.

We all subsidize that sport and associated businesses whether we particularly the substantial to the sub pate or not. My concern then, is not only the emotional or gut feeling toward killing be centers in conservation and econol priorities. The entire crew breaks into helpless laughter as the first commercial break approaches.

Nowhere do we see a trace of restraint on local news shows. What can we expect next? Real clowns squirting each other with soda-water bottles as they recite side-splitting news items of outbreaks of plague, mass slayings and unpleasant suicides in the public square?

But perhaps we should take heart. Perhaps TV news will be the new vaude ville, a medicine show of the air. Perhaps these resolute entertainers will free us entirely of the responsibility of thinking about the serious and vital matters that affect us daily.

Perhaps the logo for the nighttime news will soon become: "Be happy in your

"In other words," Klein quotes Harry as saying, "the supervisor had pulled the plug because they wanted everybody in that building to work."

The B.F. Goodrich company denied the charge through a spokesman.

"I don't see the problem as having sides," he said. "We have to decide as a society how we can establish health standards and with a minimum impact on the economy. I think both sides should stop shouting at each other. We have to assess the benefits and the cost - the social cost, I mean."

The proposed EPA standards might safeguard the approximately 4.6 million people who live within a five-mile radius of ethylene dichloride, vinyl chloride and polyvinyl plants. They would lower plant emissions by more than 90 percent.

By DAVE STERN State News Reviewer

Desperation often brings out a strange nobility in men.

Sidney Lumet's "Dog Day Afternoon" documents an actual 1972 Brooklyn bank robbery in which two small-time crooks held a bank manager and tellers crawling over the body of a go-for-broke attempt at escape. The hold-up men, played by Al Pacino and John Cazale, attempt to trade their hostages for safe passage from the country only to fall prey to the bureaucratic machine that efficiently devours all who cry for recognition of their humanity.

"Dog Day Afternoon" gives the audience a glimpse of many points of view of a single event. For Sonny (Pacino), the fight for survival becomes emblematic of his fight for recognition of his individuality. Early in the film, he wins the sympathies of the crowd by invoking visions of Attica and the suppression of the masses. The crowd becomes fickle, however, when they learn of his homosexual marriage.

This is one of many points in the film when one is impressed by director Lumet's restraint in not overplaying the obviously sensational aspects of the story. The camera always maintains a certain distance from the action and avoids robbing the characters of their humanity by making them heroes.

"Dog Day Afternoon" feaformance to date. He is able to show us the step-by-step evolution of his desperate drive for survival. Were not the clockas they are in his portrayal, the film would have inevitably failed. accomplice Sal Sonny's (played by John Cazale) is involved in a much more desperate struggle. The hold-up is his last chance. Unable to face the possibility of one further failure. Sal makes Sonny agree to a suicide pact as a contingency plan. Cazale's morose, dead end characterization dead-end characterization makes Sal the truly tragic character of the film.

victory for Sonny would have been the implementation of the pact. It is through Sonny's unknowing betrayal of Sal that he loses his struggle.

In Brokhin's estimation it seems that labor changed the monkey into man and gave birth to crime. A cab-driver and student at the Moscow Film Institute before emigrating to the United States, Brokhin may or may not view Imperialism as the highest stage of capitalism, but he indicates that the Russian brand of communism is the highest form of thievery.

"The heroes of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution went to the barricades with the slogan 'Bread and Circuses' (or was it 'Bread and Peace'? No matter). The revolution succeeded.... Many years went by. The bread situation is still tight. Wheat has to be bought from the USA and Canada," Brokhin

Whether or not the average Russian benefitted from the revolution is debatable, as is the validity of Brokhin's conclu-

Selecting the right boat is a course designed for people who like boats but do not know what to look for when buying one. Frank Ingham, associate professor of German and Russian, will discuss the performance qualities of all boats, beginning with canoes and ending with power boats. Course enrollees will learn about the pros and cons of type, design and rigging of sailing boats as well as the hull types, and size and fuel economy of power boats. This course will also deal with the purchasing of secondhand boats --- their construction materials and the techniques of restoring, repairing and maintaining wooden and fiberglass

Hunters, campers and average vacationers may be interested in Paul Riak's class in wilderness survival. Risk, instructor of park and recreation resources, will explain the basics of signaling, fire and shelter building and trapping, snaring and cooking of available plants and animals in desert, cold, snowy and wilderness

The goal of this course is to achieve greater confidence and ability to survive in an unexpected wilderness situation. A required eight-hour, Saturday field trip will be arranged for students to practice the skills they learn.

For students who prefer to spend their winter indoors, the Evening College is offering a variety of craft classes. Silversmithing, painting, stained glass design, construction and off-loom weaving are a few. Some classes are for beginners while others offer sections for both laymen and advanced stu-

Parents of young children aged two to five may actively participate in teaching their child basic safety and swimming skills. Designed also to develop the parent-child relationship, Preschool Swim will be taught by Joan Barch.

Evening College lecturer.

A practical course in self defense and yoga exercises are designed to teach self protection, relaxation or may interest those who desire some type of physical activity during those often sluggish winter months. Evening College courses are open to almost anyone interested. Because they are strictly non-credit, not even a high school diploma is required.

"Our courses appeal to students from 18 to over 60," said Charles McKee, director of the Evening College Program.

"This allows every age group to interrelate, an experience most regular University courses don't offer. I think this is vital to the educational experience." All Evening College courses are taught by either regular MSU faculty members or practicing doctors, lawyers and other professionals.

"This benefits the instructor as well," McKee said. "The instructor may work in an area of speciality that he does not ordinarily teach."

For example, Etta Abraham teaches ATL at MSU. Through the Evening College, though, she can share her knowledge of detective fiction by teaching well known authors like Poe, Doyle, Christie and Chandler. Evening College to achieve more confidence in an area of their interest," McKee said.

"They may want to go back to college, or pursue a personal or professional goal."

Evening College course fees range from $15 to $50. Special rates are available in some courses for MSU students enrolled for six or more credits in the University. These students. may enroll for 10 dollars

Non-student husbands and wives may enroll in these special fee courses for one and one half times the regular fee. Fully retired persons over 60 may enroll free of charge when space is available.

Registration is now on an evening basis only, beginning tonight from 5 to 7:30. For a complete list of courses, scriptions, and special fee courses contact the Evening College, 18 Kellogg Center,

Labor head threatens to close-up entire department

Molin said that he would close the current Labor Dept. building down because of roughly a dozen building safety violations under the Occupational Safety and Health Act. He said that the violations were affirmed in an early September inspection by the department's own inspectors. The violations include the unavailability of fire escapes, electrical and wiring problems and lack of elevator safety.

"Our employes are being subjected for a period of time to conditions that we wouldn't allow in the private sector,

College blacks

Another source in Institutional Research said the information did exist, for the total population and for minorities, but that not released because of political pressure. All other sources denied that the rate was not computed because of political pressures and was due mostly to the difficulty of getting accurate data.

Cofer did say that the dropout rate for developmental students is about the same as the total University drop-out rate but admitted he did not know what either of those rates

Meeting tonight tor volunteers

A meeting for students interested in volunteer work for the East Lansing Drug Education Center (DEC) will be held tonight at 7, 342 Union.

Those attending the meeting will be given information about DEC and its 70-hour volunteer training program.

Each applicant for the training will also be interviewed by a DEC staff member. Training includes empathy, values clarification and problem solving, suicide and psychosis, venereal disease and birth control information, and referrals and Molin said. "The conditions that exist have existed, frankly, ever since we moved in (in Molin added that renting the 20,000 square feet of office space the Labor Department currently uses in a building that was formerly a department store costs Michigan tax payers $96,000 a year. He said that 60 per cent of the office space in the new state building in Dimondale - or 200,000 square feet — is unoccupied.

The building which Molin said should be condemned and where the Labor Dept. is currently located is the Corr Building, owned by Francis J.

Frandor and Pointe North shopping centers. Corr could not be reached but a spokesperson said he was surprised by Molin's move when informed by the State News and added that Corr's office had not been contacted by the Labor Dept. about the building violations. He said that Corr had lowered the rental price from $16,000 to $8,000 a month in November when some of the state departments moved to the Dimondale Complex.

"The Senate doesn't understand fully what the ramifications of this problem are," Molin said. He added that he did not threaten to close down his own department's offices earlier because the new office was under construction and he had assumed the Labor Office would move there. But when the Senate started to procrastinate on the legality of the move, Molin gave the shutdown serious consideration.

Molin said that he was given the go-ahead from Gov. Milliken to bring to light the problem of the Labor Dept. when he talked with Milliken before the first of the year. He pointed out, however, that Milliken was not informed about the specifics of Molin's shutdown scheme.

It took two hours for all of the citizens who wanted to speak to finish their pleas and protests. Most said that all of the programs suggested for funding were worthwhile and that they deserved more money.

However, Councilmember Mary Sharp brought the proceedings into focus when she addressed Charles Ipcar, who was speaking for the Tenants' she said. "But how would you make the choice? "We can't possibly give everybody everything they want.

money On that note, the public hearing ended, with the council set to consider at the Jan. 20 meeting the planning commission's report and citizens' suggestions. In other council action, members voted unanimously meet with the Human Relations Persons shopping at night in downtown East Lansing will also find inflation in one more place - the parking lot. The council voted unanimously to eliminate the 40-cent maximum charge for night parking in city-owned lots. Charges will now be the same at all times of the day or night.

The major controversy of the night came as the council debated whether to change the time of the pre-council meeting. where city staff members are given a chance to make reports and answer questions.

Councilman Larry Owen suggested that the meetings be moved eight days ahead while Sharp said she would like the meetings to be held earlier the same day as the council meet-

The final outcome was eliminating the pre-council meetings completely and moving up the time of the regular meeting to 7:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of the month.

Grads to take reading exam

LOS ANGELES (AP) - High school graduates must be able to pass a reading proficiency test before being awarded diplomas, the school board has decided.

The Los Angeles Board of Education voted this week to We just don't have enough make a reading proficiency test mandatory for graduation beginning with next fall's 10th

The students will be given four chances to pass the test. which is described as a practical measure of a student's ability to terial as voting directives, driver's tests, job applications and resumes, advertisements, bank account forms, maps, cash register tapes, television guides and income tax forms.

Harry Handler, associate superintendent in charge of instruction, stressed the new test is intended to supplement not to replace - the district's current academic requirements for graduation.

Handler said students who fail the test will be given remedial reading help. The test material will be changed frequently to prevent students from memorizing the answers.
