MSU faces 3 year probation

By EDWARD L. RONDERS State News Staff Writer

MSU's football program will be slapped with a three year probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (NCAA) and two assistant football coaches will be fired as penalties for alleged recruiting and aid violations, according to a copyrighted story in the Detroit News Thursday.

The penalties will stand unless MSU wins its appeal before an NCAA board this

However, the State News learned late Thursday that asst. coaches Howard Weyers and Charlie Butler, who, according to the story, will be dismissed, will have legal representation Sunday when MSU presents its appeal of the proposed penalties to the NCAA Council in St. Louis

When MSU first answered charges by the NCAA, Oct. 13-14 in Denver, Colo., Weyers and Butler were not allowed to have their attorney, Anthony DeCello, present during the hearing.

It was his forced absence from the hearing in Denver which caused DeCello to remark that he would pursue the matter in federal court if any adverse ruling were made by the NCAA regarding his clients.

He said that he would base part of his defense on the precept that his clients' constitutional rights were violated by not allowing them due process.

DeCello commented Thursday, "I had requested permission from the NCAA to be present during the appeal and they notified me today that permission was granted. I can't understand why I couldn't do this at the first hearing. To my knowledge there's no NCAA rule which bars me from appearing," he stated.

DeCello continued, "As to whether we pursue any adverse judgement against coaches Weyers or Butler in the federal courts will be up to them. I can't answer that.'

If the University's football program is penalized with three years probation, MSU will be ineligible for post-season bowl games and television appearances during

Soviet-backed Angolans

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) -Soviet-backed forces, led by Cuban troops, have scored major military victories in northern Angola, raising fears of direct intervention by neighboring Zaire, reports reaching Johannesburg said Thursday

In Rome, a man claiming to speak for the Soviet-backed government in Angola said a second attempt by the Luanda regime to buy U.S.-built planes had fallen through, and that it would start talks with the Soviets for the purchase of planes.

In another development, South African oficials at Walvis Ray in South-West Africa have refused to let 23 ships carrying an estimated 2,500 Angolan refugees unload their human cargo and ordered the ships to return to Angola. The ship captains have

The London Financial Times and the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug both reported that forces of the Soviet-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Angola-MPLA-have seized the key Angolan port of Ambriz, its airfield and the nearby city of Ambrizette.

The Western-backed National Front for the Liberation of Angola-FNLA-has maintained its military headquarters at

The MPLA offensive reportedly was led by about 7,000 Cuban combat troops and used tanks, helicopter gunships and concentrated rocket attacks to seize the cities.

U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Wednesday the Cuban forces were trying to take over all of Angola and said fighting in norther Angola "is being conducted almost entirely by Cuban forces without even the pretense of participation' by the MLPA.

Meanwhile, U.S. intelligence sources in Washington said the Soviet Union may be preparing a further buildup of its naval strength off the West African coast within cruising distance of Angola.

The sources said U.S. intelligence has been tracking a Soviet cruiser, which has moved through the western Mediterranean toward Gibraltar in recent days, and a Soviet guided missile destroyer, which has been spotted south of Portugal.

Intelligence reports reaching the Pentagon said the destination of the ships is uncertain, but the reports suggest the ships may be sent to reinforce other Russian naval vessels already off West Africa.

The conservative London Daily Telegraph reported from the Angolan capital of Luanda that the only town held by the FNLA in northeast Angola is Santo Antonio and it now appears threatened.

Angola's richest offshore oil fields are located off Santo Antonio, south of the oil-rich Cabinda enclave. The MPLAcontrolled enclave is separated from Angola by a 20-mile sliver of Zaire.

RED SQUAD CASE IN COURT

By RALPH FRAMMOLINO State News Staff Writer

MSU professor Zolton Ferency may with destruction of State Police files on "subversive activities" and cessation of police operations to gather such material at a hearing today in Ingham County Circuit

But an attorney in a similar court case in Detroit and a state House committee are asking Ingham Circuit Court Judge Tom Brown, who will hear Ferency's arguments, to delay the wholesale bonfire of the files.

Ferency said Gov. Milliken and the attorney general have agreed with him that such an accumulation of informational files on the part of the police is unconstitutional and the files should be destroyed.

"We have now come to an agreement that my complaint was well-founded," Ferency said. He instigated the suit on behalf of the Human Rights Party on April 7, 1975, charging that the two laws — written in 1931 and 1950 — which allowed the police to engage in informational work on "subverwere invalid under the Constitution.

Smoking may be hazardous to academic achievement, if a current ASMSU resolution passes through the required channels

Ken Stebbins, originator of the resolu tion, will make a presentation at the ASMSU Board meeting Tuesday, requesting that the board consider banning smoking in all classrooms and other academic areas.

Preliminary discussion of the matter will be held at the meeting but no vote will be taken immediately.

"COGS (Council of Graduate Students) passed this resolution at their last meeting," ASMSU President Brian Raymond said. "It will have to be passed by ASMSU, Student Affairs and the Academic Council before being brought to the board of trustees for approval. If the board approves it, the resolution Oakland University recently banned smoking in all classrooms, deciding that it was a health hazard to smokers and nonsmokers confined in small areas. Furthermore, it was considered to be a distraction that hinders concentration.

"We need feedback from the students on this," Raymond said. "Tuesday's meeting will only serve as a discussion of the proposal. We need student reaction before making a decision on this.'

Bullard's committee, by a 5-3 vote, will also send a letter to the judge, asking him to allow the files to survive for a while. The committee wants to investigate the files because it is currently working on a bill that would repeal that laws that gave the State Police the power to accumulate the files. The bill would make any gathering of information on "subversive" activities illegal and recognize such an action unconstitutional. The legislators also want the Ferency said that he will draw Corsetti's and Bullard's request to the attention of the judge and that he would not object to the preservation of the files as long as they were put in the care of the court and not kept with the State Police.

Ferency said it is not a critical point

"I don't want to see mine," Ferency said. "I would rather be out doing things that would create new files than looking at my old ones."

The two cases were further confused by the attorney general's agreement in Ing-ham County to get rid of the file. In the Detroit case he ordered the files held. The FDA said the pacifiers could break, posing a potential choking hazard to infants and small children.

Labor trouble leaves one dead

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — One man was killed and four were injured early Thursday morning when 100 angry men stormed a labor-troubled construction site, police said.

The attack at the Jupiter Chemical Co. was believed to be the result of a labor dispute over use of "multicraft" union workers belonging to Local 102 of the American Federation of Independent Unions.

Witnesses said the attack started when an earth-moving machine tore through the construction gate and rammed a nearby trailer occupied by eight or nine workers. Gunmen on the machine and in cars then opened fire on the work site.

The dead man was identified as Joe A. Hooper, 26, an employe of Payne & Keller Construction Co., Inc., the firm building an ammonia plant for the chemical company.

They said that since last summer, when the news media reported the attempt, a Soviet ship patrolled the spot 750 miles northwest of Hawaii where the submarine sank in 1968. Now, the sources said, heavy seas make a salvage attempt impossible and the publicity generated by the first attempt has caused the CIA to abandon further plans to retrieve the sub.

Despite a 10th straight 10-day period in which sales topped a year-ago level, the sales reports from the four U.S. automakers Wednesday didn't live up to analysts' expectations of a 50 to 55 per cent gain and got Detroit automakers off to their second worst start in 15 years.

While the early January sales continue the momentum that began with the introduction of the 1976-model cars in October, they are only strong in comparison with last year which was the worst for the industry since the early post-World War II years.

No replacement was announced for the foreign ministry, but Education Minister Pedro Arrighi was named as acting minister of that cabinet post.

Papaleo did not say whether any more resignations would be accepted by the president. There was no immediate explanation as to why Peron had decided to shake up her cabinet, although the local press had speculated that one of the main targets of an eventual shakeup would be Robledo.

Robledo, who was sworn in as interior minister Sept. 16, 1975, was considered by hardline Peronists to be insufficiently loval to Mrs. Peron, according to press reports Robledo, who is also first vice president of the Peronist party, was considered a moderate and one of the ministers most willing to seek agreements and compromise with opponents of Mrs. Peron, something unacceptable to the hard liners.

HEAVY STORMS DEPLETE SUPPLY

Area faces salt shortage

By JOE SCALES State News Staff Writer

Take a heavy snowstorm, like the one that hit the area Tuesday, and add a shortage of rock salt and what do you get? Slippery roads.

Then take another possible snowstorm and add a shortage of rock salt, plus the already slippery roads, multiply by the fact that the salt companies are not replacing the dwindling reserves of rock salt and what do you get?

You get the problem now facing East Lansing, Lansing, Ingham County and most of Michigan.

And the problem is increased by the National Weather Service forecast early Thursday which called for about four to five more inches of snow Thursday night with possibly more coming on Sunday.

East Lansing's Public Safety Dept. normally has about 300 tons of salt in reserve to clear the streets of snow and ice, but now they are down to 80 tons and Don Gordon, street foreed to salting only major intersections and exceptionally bad hills in an effort to conserve the Lansing's street department usually has about 18,500 tons of road salt in reserve, but they are now down to 500 tons and Howard McCaffery, city en-gineer, says that a normal run to clear up roads after a snow storm would use around 400 tons of the salt.

There would not be a problem if it were not for the failure of the International Salt Co., which is the main supplier of road salt for East Lansing, Lansing and Ingham County, to meet the orders of the area's street cleaning departments.

McCaffery said that the upcoming snow warning makes the situation more critical because the supplier simply cannot meet the demands for more

He said that if the reserve runs dry, Lansing's street department may possibly have to fall back on using a mixture of sand and chloride to pour on the roads, a method that has not been used for years.

William Burchfield, engineer of the Ingham County Road Commission, said that he has agreed to give salt from their reserves to East Lansing if they should run out.

"We have borrowed salt from East Lansing in the past," Burchfield said, "and after all, fair is fair.

He said that they were also short of salt, but not as short as East Lansing.

"It's difficult all over the state to get rock salt," he said. There are no special traveller's warnings being given, other than the usual advisories during a storm situation, but the East Lansing Police Dept. said that the salt shortage would mean that the roads would remain slippery longer than usual.

The finger of blame for the shortage of rock salt is being pointed at a strike of the Morton Salt Co. of Detroit which occurred from May to late December.

The strike resulted in a shutdown of the company's mining of salt.

More complications arose when Diamond Crystal Salt could not get its usual salt supplies from Canada because its barges were icebound on the Detroit River.

Gordan, East Lansing's street foreman, said that he thinks the problem was extended to the area when International Salt Co. tried to meet some of the customer demands of the other salt companies.

Gordan said that East Lan sing is still not salting at full capacity and is watching the situation closely.

The street cleaning departments are not the only ones to feel the pinch either.

Jim Montgomery, foods manager of Meijers in Lansing, said that they had ordered 25 and 80 pound bags of rock salt that amounted to about 12,500 pounds, but received notices from their distributer saying

ADS housing policy causes anger

ADS candidates are high school seniors who have exceptionally high grades and test scores. Over 1,000 come to MSU each February to see the campus and take the ADS test. Ten winners are ch receives an all-expense paid scholarship for four years.

Several persons on co-ed-by-suite floors in various dorms volunteered to house the housing officials, even though there is a shortage of space for the ADSers.

The official reason for the rejection of the offer made by the students of coed-by-suite students is that freshman students are not assigned to co-ed by suite floors.

"There is also a degree of sensitivity to the situation," Katie Large of the ADS program said. "It could be a sensitive area with the parents, as well as the students." The co-ed-by-suite floors were estab-

SN experiments with NewsLine number

So far, the State NewsLine has been an unqualified success. Two major stories in this issue came about from tips phoned in Thursday on our new hot line number. We won't tell you which ones they were but we feel they were important news tipoffs and hope that anyone that sees what they think may be news happening will call our NewsLine at 353-3865, Sunday through Friday. If you're aware of a major problem in the University or East Lansing that you think should be righted or if you know of something that may interest the State News readers, we want to hear about it. The test has been described as a supplement to other requirements, and will test students' ability to use the language in various practical situations such as voting, applying for a job, driving and reading road maps.

Students who fail the test would be given remedial work before being issued a diploma.

However, it is hard to conceive that such a measure, by itself, will do much more than catch a problem too late that has already gone too far.

Future and current teachers here at MSU, administrators who are themselves attempting to stem the language slide and students who must use their skills both here and later on in life must realize certain errors. Bowling liberation Naturally, boys can bowl better than girls.

This is the premise for a separate grading scale that has been established in bowling classes - one that has become an embarrassment to what should be a progressive HPR department.

Charged with discrimination against males by forcing them to meet different grading standards than females — in seeming violation of federal law — the HPR department finds itself forced into defending its policy by citing feminine "handicaps.

It would make more sense to place HPR courses such as bowling on the pass-no pass system for all nonmajors, based on participation.

Most students of this type take HPR courses to learn a new sport, enjoy an old one, and - most of all to relax. Such students wish to avoid academic pressure, and the P-N system would help to give these students the atmosphere they sought in the first place.

As much as some might like to make this issue a rallying point for male backlash, or a further battleground for the advance of radical egalitarianism, it simply is not either of the two.

The course is not such an issue to those who teach it, nor to those who took it in the first place. They simply want to bowl, and learn how to do it well. That is simple

CENTUERS To the Editor

A British view

I read with interest Ira Elliott's article (Jar 12) on the Concorde controversy and would like to present a different, and British, point of view.

The major areas of contention appear to be the noise, pollution and depletion of the ozone level. As a former employe at London's Heathrow Airport, I can say from first-hand experience that the noise and pollution levels are no greater than those of the American Boeing 707. The 'ozone level' argument boils down to whether one believes American projections or Anglo-French statistics.

I feel, however, that the most important and irreputable facets of Concorde are in the nature of aviation progress and development, a process that cannot be halted or by passed, however hard Congress tries. Supersonic transport represents the next era in the history of flight.

Do Mssrs. Cooper and Linvill really expect businessmen who can travel from Paris to Argentina or London to the Middle East in a couple of hours to languish for seven hours crossing the Atlantic? Time is money and surely no one knows that better than the Americans.

How else can one explain the continued development of the Boeing SST despite the years ago?

Concorde represents a tremendous investment of money and the best aviation brains of Britain and France. Together they have produced a remarkable technological breakthrough. It would be a shame, and a loss, if America isolates herself from the benefits and advantages the rest of the world will enjoy from this revolutionary aeroplane.

By allowing Concorde to land Congress would also avoid the unnecessary conflict that will surely follow when American aircraft are boycotted in Britain and

Honoring King

In light of the progressive tradition of the State News, I was surprised and disappoint ed by your recent editorial criticizing my bill to change the Dr. Martin Luther King holiday in Michigan from the second Sunday in January to the nearest Monday to Jan.

My only conclusion is that you failed to grasp the significance of the proposal. The Monday holidays are certainly nothing new in Michigan. A number of years ago, the legislature wisely acted upon popular sentiment and converted four existing holidays to Mondays. Doing the same for Dr. Martin Luther King Day simply follows in the legal tradition of the state. Except for religious observances, there is no other legal holiday in the state on a Sunday.

The fact that the official holiday honoring Dr. King was originally set on a Sunday was a matter of expediency and compromise, necessary to guide my bill through the legislature. The next logical step is to move the holiday to the nearest Monday in keeping with our tradition.

This is much more than just a convenrecognize the stature of Dr. King as one of the greatest prophetic leaders of our times. we must raise our commemoration of him to the level of a rightful holiday, the same as other holidays. The Monday observance would attract greater attention to the holiday and make it much more meaningful.

Although Dr. King was a Nobel Prize winner and a man for all people, he carries a special significance for black people. His concept of universal love did more to bring us together than anyone else in modern times. We owe a tremendous debt of gratitude for his enormous gifts and sacrifices and it can only be repaid by our continuation of his great work and by our fulfillment of his dreams.

We can do no less than to honor him with significant, first class and meaningful holiday. This is the purpose of my proposal.

VIEWPOINT: HUNTING, POPULATION BIOLOGY

In defense of sustainable yield

NICHOLS and WALT CONLEY

Unreviewed but published letters to editors perpetuate the myth that everyone who can write is knowledgeable about his subject. We wish to respond to the view on hunting and population biology expressed by Jim Corven in the Jan. 8, 1976 issue of the State News.

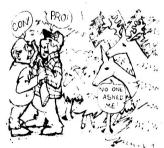

We commend Corven for his abandonment of emotional arguments in favor of the presentation of information which has direct bearing on the issue of whether or not hunting is detrimental to natural populations. Unfortunately, the information presented by Corven had little factual content, and we must, therefore, take this opportunity to correct some misconceptions. Corven addressed two main points in his editorial: the concept of maximum sustainable yield (MSY) and the economics of wildlife management. In the interest of evity, we will address only the first of these points.

Corven states that the MSY concept constitutes a myth, but fails to cite a single reference supporting this assertion. We can cite perhaps 50-75 publications dealing with the MSY concept and have yet to read a single paper which hints that the concept is mythological in nature. As an introduction to the concept, we suggest that Corven consult such basic texts in ecology and population biology as those by Charles Krebs, Eric Pianka, J. Merritt Emlen. Lawrence Slobodkin and E. O. Wilson and Corven states that "the very biologists who developed this hypothesis years ago have now joined opposition to its applica tion." The first concise statement of the MSY concept was by the Russian biologist Theodore Baranov in 1918. Other early papers dealing with MSY were published by M. Graham, E. S. Russell and A. Leopold, while the large numbers of more ent papers on the subject include the work of such notable ecologists as Robert MacArthur, Lawrence Slobodkin and Kenneth Watt. None of these authors, to our knowledge, has ever labeled the MSY concept mythological, and we would be very interested to learn which biologists Corven was referring to.

Corven also states that "the MSY supposes some very basic principles about population dynamics which are now known to be false." As students of population dynamics who have never been exposed to such new-found knowledge, we are rather disturbed by this statement. MSY has been derived using a variety of mathematical population models and has been demonstrated experimentally on several occa-

Corven claims that application of the MSY concept will "cause declines in ecological stability." However, in his two recent monographs, J. Maynard-Smith has provided several examples of stable predator-prey systems, and we recommend this material to Corven.

As definition of that which he labels myth, Corven states "MSY says that a healthy population should produce regular, usable surpluses which can be harvested causing insignificant damage to that popula tion." We find it rather unusual that such a statement is questioned by a student of zoology. The central guiding paradigm of zoology, and indeed of all the biological sciences, is that of Darwinian selection. Darwin himself stated cause of the high rate at which all beings tend to increase, "more indi

Seventeen Bradens will be scattered through federal agencies under the President's bypass "Consumer Representation Program." There has been a great deal of public comment, all of it bad, about Joan's appointment, but nobody denies there's a great deal of room for advice on product safety in American foreign policy output.

William F Buckley

The $6 million the CIA has given or will give to select political candidates in Italy needs to be examined from several points of view before the whole business is dismissed as yet one more venal act by the CIA.

Question No. 1. Is (or was now that the operation is blown, everything is changed) - was the idea a good one? I find it very difficult to answer that question, and wish that others would find it difficult also. Any number of criticisms have been made, some of them suggesting that we were proposing to pay $6 million to corrupt Italian politicians who would simply en the checks over to Swiss bank accounts. Others suggest that we are shoring up a political party that is hopelessly inept - that, in the words of Mr. Tom Wicker, we are "subsidizing ineffi ciency, ineptitude, laziness, graft and

Now I wonder why it is so quickly assumed that the administrators of the Central Intelligence Agency are stupid? I do not doubt that there are stupid men in the CIA, though there is no reason to believe that the level of that stupidity is higher than, say, that of federal judges, or municipal comptrollers, or college professors. But it is a fact that in recent months we are asked to believe that any maneuver by the CIA is presumptively stupid.

The only egregiously stupid thing done by the CIA's principal spokesmen in recent months is to have relied on the word of Congressional committees that their testimony will be kept confidential. But it is a reflection not so much on the CIA as on American institutions, when American officials cannot reasonably rely on the word of other American officials

It is after all possible that the $6 million were discreetly targeted to bolster the very best people within the Christian Democra tic Party. To bolster precisely those who are fighting corruption, nepotism, graft, inefficiency and inflation. Until the contrary is proved, it would make sense to withhold judgment on the matter

Question No. 2 is: Does the CIA have any business getting into Italian politics? I do not see how that question can be answered negatively unless one is also prepared to say that the United States has no business entering into the NATO Alliance. The NATO Alliance was designed (by the way, principally at the urging of the European powers, and for obvious reasons) to prevent effective Soviet control over European affairs. From time to time the Russians have found it necessary to use tanks to run over refractory citizens who reside in the satellite states: but not often.

The NATO powers, in other words, were keenly aware 25 years ago that the chosen manner of the Soviet Union is to work through nationals of the target power. This was done brilliantly in Czechoslovakia through a coup d'etat. Modes change, along with rhetoric. And in an age of detente, there is the accompanying patter about indigenous Communist parties, free of Moscow control. The trouble is, there is only one such in that area of the world. It is in Yugoslavia. And it survives (precariously let us see what happens after Tito dies) thanks to the most massive transfusion of American aid in history. We have spent more money per capita on Yugoslavia than on any other country in the world.

Accordingly, in 1948 we gave massive help to the non-Communist parties of Italy and saved the day there by a whisper NATO survives; its objectives are clearly stated in writing. It is no more an interference in Italian politics to help the Italians who, however ineptly, struggle for national independence than it is to conclude a treaty which envisions the possibility of making war not exclusively against Russians, but against Italian agents of Russia.

The neo-isolationists are pressing us verywhere. Their derogation of the CIA, of foreign aid to non-Communist Angolans their criticism of our attitude toward Allende, pitches us toward a supreme purpose: the abrogation, inexplicitly, of all our mutual defense treaties. It may be that those who scoffed about the domino theory in Vietnam will wake to find that they could not hazard a guess just how far the collapsing dominoes would take us.

9,000 ANIMALS DESTROYED IN '75

By JOE SCALES State News Staff Writer

If last year's statistics are any indication of what this year will be like, approximately 12,000 dogs and cats will be disposed of by the Ingham County Animal Control Dept. this year, many simply because they do not carry identification.

Charles Hubbard, director of the Ingham County Animal Control Dept., said that last year about 12,000 dogs and cats, including road kills, were cremated by the department.

Hubbard said he would guess that up to 9,000 of those were destroyed by the department

Many of the dogs were destroyed either because peo-ple did not claim them or did not want them.

Michigan law requires that dogs wear license tags for identification, but there is no law that requires an owner to come and get the dog if it is picked up as a stray. Cats are not required to wear a license

Hubbard said that the department handled about 18,500 dogs and cats last year and out of those about 16,000 were what he called strays, even though they may have had an

Hubbard said that if animals wore identification it would help reduce the number of animals that have to be destroyed simply because the owner could not be found.

A stray without identification is held by the department four days. If no one claims it or buys it within that period the animal is put to sleep and then cremated. An animal with identification is kept for seven days.

Hubbard said that many of the animals have license tags, but the owners refuse to put them on for a variety of reasons. One of the most common is that the tags have to be attached to some type of collar

Hubbard believes that the dog license tag is an adequate type of identification. "But unfortunately, not enough owners use them," he said.

Apparently, the Society for Animal Rights, Inc. (SAR) does not feel that enough people use the license tags either. The society is offering a

$2,000 award for the patented invention, practical develop-ment and marketing of a permanent method of identifying SAR said that such a device would make it possible for the owners of animals to be identified, thereby reducing the amount of the more than 13 million dogs and cats destroyed each year by the nation's shelters and pounds.

Jody Hoffman, secretary to the president of SAR, said the society is planning to propose new legislation that would govern the privilege and responsibilities of pet owners. If the new identification device is developed, it could be a part of that legislation. In a newsletter, the SAR stated it is offering the award because permanent identification of dogs and cats is the key to enforcement of laws governing animal ownership.

The society said animal own-ership should not be open to everyone and that currently there is no means of tracing the owner of an animal that is either a stray or abandoned.

To be eligible for consideration by the SAR Awards Committee, the animal identifica-

"I said I have no acting experience," Larrowe continued. "She said she wanted me for the role of a cardinal. I said, 'You came to the right man' being a cradle Catholic and all." Larrowe added that opera roductions, including the Met, often get someone known in the community for nonspeaking

"This is as much of a new project for me as running for political office," he said.

"Actually, I'm a retreaded baritone," Weaver said.

"I like to sing with an orchestra. The high point for me was in the bandroom. So much gets lost out there (in University Auditorium)," he

The majority of performers in this production are, however, not faculty but area students Among them is Karen Johnson, an East Lansing High School junior who will appear in the children's chorus.

"I just like music," she commented. "It (rehearsals) keep you out late sometimes like last night when I had to walk home in all that snow. But there's time to study.'

Johnson said she found that the music was not easy. There are prolonged rests and the chorus must come in at exactly the right moment and on exactly the right note. However, the Italian lyrics were not too hard to memorize. She had taken Spanish classes.

The orchestra for "Tosca" is of course, the MSU Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Dennis Burkh. This is almost entirely composed of students. French horn player Kristi Sorenson, a freshman music major, commented that playing for an opera was considerably different than for a symphony

"There are a lot more rehearsals than for a concert, she said. "This is a new experience for me. I never realized there was so much work involved in putting an opera together. Violinist Lisa Gimelli, sophomore in history, found that Puccini's music was not as difficult as regular concert fare. "But you have to play along with the singers and keep the volume down," she said. "A lot of the orchestra players don't like it. It's not symphonic enough for them."

Many who worked on this production will not appear on stage but are equally important

Among them is Tim Thorndike, junior in theater, who helped build the set.

"I've never built an opera Thorndike "There's not as much to build because of drops. (Drops are curtains with scenery painted on them.)

"But the work is concentrated," he added.

The work on the set began Saturday with a 14-hour, nonstop session. This was followed with 12 straight hours Sunday and the work has continued throughout the week

Thorndike will not be working the set during the performance itself. That is because University Auditorium is a union house; only members of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, an AFL-CIO union. may work during any performance.

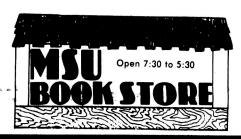

Once again, a bit of the real thing is offered for many opera

You'll find everything Italy is noted for, from congeniality to red checkered table cloths, at Pizza Villa, 2167 E. Gr. River, Okemos. The atmosphere is warm and cozy, with candle lit booths and tables. Instead of the usual restaurant paneled walls, you will be surrounded by hand painted murals of actual scenes from Venice. Take a closer look at the amazing detail and authenticity.

Pizza Villa is continuously working on new Italian entrees, however the current menu would surely please any Italian connoisseur. Most recipes hail from an Italian family restaurant in Grand Rapids, also many faithful customers pass on their recipes. Put a little spice in your life! Favorites at Pizza Villa are manicotti, a cheese or meat filled pasta, lasagna, veal parmigian, the antipasto salad, a tasty, colorful "meal in itself," and of course, pizzas, with fourteen items available. The sauces covering these delicious dishes are all homemade, dinners are well proportioned, at moderate prices. Lunches offer specials on sandwiches with soup or a salad you make yourself.

Lunch or dinner just wouldn't be Italian without a little "vino" to go along with it. At Pizza Villa, the wine list is large, and the price is right. All bottled wines are imported Italian wines, and a fine California wine is the house wine. Or perhaps you would prefer one of the house drinks, made with amaretto, an Italian liqueur, or your favorite cocktail, prepared by one of the expert bartenders at Pizza Villa. In the lounge you will find handmade stained glass decorations, and the 12 ft. Italian marble slab covering the bar is a genuine antique. You will enjoy the pitcher specials on Monday nights, or pitcher and pizza specials on Tuesdays.

For a welcome dining change, Pizza Villa brings Italian elegance to town. Treat yourself to a little bit of Italy tonight.

The year in review: phew, ugh, yeecch!

By ALLAN LENGEL

We enter 1976 with red, white and blue and the presidential campaigns in the air and leave behind 1975, a year designated to patch up a rather inept 1974.

On the road to recovery, gas became more resourceful and meat prices stabilized a little, allowing my mother to terminate her once a week economy meal of Hamburger Helper, which she so often turned into Hamburger Helpless.

As always, death took its toll on some prominent personalities which included comedienne, Moms Mabley; the last of the Three Stooges, Moe Howard; Marjorie Main, better known as Ma Kettle, and that great nature lover, Euel Gibbons.

While Henry Kissinger, President Ford and the troubles of the Mideast continued to flood the presses, three personalities, James Hoffa, Patty Hearst and Squeaky Fromme also took up a

Books are likely to be written about the three personalities' experiences. On the Hoffa story: "Guess Who's Not Coming to Dinner?"; from Squeaky Fromm: "I Never Shot a President I didn't like," and Patty Hearst: "I Was an Unwanted Child, but When I Grew Up I was Wanted in 50 States.'

While protest raged over the UN resolution on Zionism and magazines revealed John Kennedy's secret love life, a man in Albuquerque, New Mexico sponsored his own protest as he took maraschino cherries and a can of whip cream and decorated dog droppings in an anti-manure campaign.

And while Congress wasn't laughing over CIA assassination plots, comedian Redd Foxx continued to shower audiences with knee slappers as he explained that he was so poor when he was a kid, that if he wouldn't have been a boy, he wouldn't have had anything to play with on Christmas.

Though Hubert Humphrey may have gained more respect in the Democratic ranks as a presidential contender, there was one man who still got no respect in 1975, Rodney Dangerfield. Dangerfield sent his son to a private school and then his son wouldn't tell him the name of the school. No respect.

Americans saw the return of the popular kids' program, "Mickey Mouse," and also saw the resurfacing of another Mickey Mouse of sorts, Richard Nixon, who began to occasionally appear on golf courses and public beaches.

Television took one of its worse beatings in 1975 as Americans continued to watch "The Rookies," cops who remained rookies after four years of airing, and a depressed "Six Million Dollar Man." who finally filed for bankruptcy and was paying 6 cents on Minority and oppressed groups made advances in '75 and comedian Woody Allen, understanding the bisexual plight, said: "Bisexuality immediately doubles your chances of getting a date on Saturday night."

And television advertising went one step beyond the risque subjects of hemorrhoids, feminine napkins, and gas by airing condom commercials on KNTV in San Jose, California. A suggested ad for the product was to have Mr. Whipple the grocer telling the ladies not to squeeze the condoms.

While Vice-President Rockefeller may have moved more comfortably to the right in Republican circles, Henry Ford II, chairman of the Ford Motor Co., found himself leaning to the left unfortunately it was the left side of a dark California road while under the influence. He was arrested and later released.

In all, 1975 was just another unpredictable year that was difficult to sum up as a whole. When asked for an overall Proudfoot said, There were a few bright apots — but they were taken care now ith a little Roman Cleanser."

Striking bank employes clubbed by Spain's cops

MADRID, Spain (AP) - The drafted postal workers and sent police into the streets to club and teargas striking bank employes Wednesday in attempts to control Spain's growing labor crisis.

In northern Spain, Basque separatists handed the government of King Juan Carlos another challenge by kidnaping the son of an industrialist and demanding $1.6 million ransom to finance anti-government campaigns.

Police arrested and questioned dozens of persons in the Bilbao area while hunting for a clue to break the case, the first action by the Basque guerillas since a reform-minded government took over six weeks ago after the death of Gen. Francis-

The Interior Ministry ordered 4,000 striking Madrid postal workers, already employed by the government, mobilized into military service after 48 hours of work stoppages. Postmen resumed de livery wearing mandatory arm bands with colors of the Spanish flag that bore the initial "M," meaning military.

Fresh labor strife erupted elsewhere, idling dock workers in Barcelona, disrupting telethe midst of the kidnaping and virtually halting banking in Madrid and Barcelona.

The Student Bookstore, 421 E. Grand River Ave., allows a full refund for books during the first ten days of classes if the student retains his receipt. Signs are posted in three different places inside the building to remind students of this.

The Campus Bookstore, 507 E. Grand River Ave., allows a full refund during the first week of classes with, or in some cases, without receipts. Manager Jim Thompson explained that each book is coded so bookstore employes can identify if the book was bought there during the current term.

We've had less grief this term than in previous ones," Thompson said. "For some reason, things are running very smoothly this Gibson's Bookstore, 128 W. Grand River Ave., has also had a smooth term so far and Manager Charlie Poquette estimates that only 1 per cent of the books bought have been returned.

"Usually, if people come all the way out here, they know what they want," Poquette said.

Gibson's allows a full refund during the first ten days of classes if the receipt is retained. Depending on individual cases, some books can receive a full refund anytime during the term.

As long as students and instructors change their minds, the hassles of book-refunding will be with us. The best advice that experts can give is to hang on to those receipts and buy only those books you are sure you'll need.

Several choice four-letter words are what MSU hockey coach Amo Bessone is going to need if his Spartans are to be the patch of ice that sends first-ranked Michigan Tech skidding backwards in the WCHA standings.
That is, some four letter words like Ross, Colp and Rice. After last weekend's two losses to Denver, Bessone said his big men weren't coming through. That situation will have to be remedied if the green and white squad is going to knock off Michigan Tech Friday and Saturday at Munn

"Tech does a great job on the power play and is excellent in forechecking," asst. coach Alex Terpay said. "We're stressing defensive play in our own zone and the idea that the forwards should help the defensemen."

The Spartans took the annual clash away from the Wolverines last year, but due to the Parks doesn't want to make any bets as to the outcome of Saturday's contest.

MSU will have to watch out for the Wolves in several areas. One of U-M's most prized assets this year is freestyler Katy McCully, who is an AAU na tionalist in that event. Parks said she expects U-M, because of McCully and others, to have the advantage Saturday in the ong distance freestyle races.

But Parks does feel confident enough about her team to give the Spartans the odds in certain areas of their own.

"With Sue Tilden, Karen Waite and Vicki Riebeling, we should do yery well in the butterfly, and our diving should very strong but we won't be able to afford making any mistakes," Parks said. "Both teams are pretty much even in the 50 and 200 yard breaststroke, and both relay races should be about the same. Any seconds we can take away from them in any of the races is going to help.'

Among the riddles being asked about this bewildering squad are: What experience do they have? Where are they going to finish in the confer ence? And, of course, the biggest puzzler of them all: Who is their head coach?

Asst. Coach Jim Bibbs, onetime Eastern Michigan sprint ace, is now serving as acting head man, succeeding Fran Dittrich who retired after being on the MSU staff since 1938

But until a decision is made on who will follow Dittrich, the Spartan runners will continue their season without their third and most important coach. "As for the team, we have very little idea on how good we are or where we will finish," asst. Coach James Gibbard The reason for the vagueness

Study invalidates sexist rationale

State News Staff Writer

Wage differences between men and women cannot be attributed to a disparity in their qualifications, according to a recent study by an MSU professor.

Mary Corcoran, asst. professor of political science, recently studied a population of 10,000 white urban men and women in low and middle income groups and found that traditional theories which "blame" women for their lower earnings are not valid for the group studied.

One traditional theory says that women earn less than men workshop, which it had previously supported, because of its current budget problems.

The Board also discussed editorial finances less capable, less motivated and have less work experience. This is not true statistically, Corcoran said, because where men and women are equal in these areas, men, on the average, still receive more pay than women. On the average, the women in Corcoran's study earned 33 cents an hour less than men.

One reason for the wage differences between men and women in this socio-economic group is that men and women are evaluated by employers quite differently, Corcoran found.

Corcoran used 11 measures

For instance, where men's wages increased with work experience, women's did not. Women were less apt to receive increased wages for completed training programs than men and where completing high school was crucial to women for higher wages, it was not as crucial for men.

"There appears to be some truth," she said, "in the wage discrimination theory which says men get wage bonuses for different work, Corcoran said, and the difference in the way employers perceive "men's work" and "women's work" further contributes to the wage gap.

"Getting women into male-dominated fields improves wages slightly," Corcoran said. But women in "men's work" still earn about 20 per cent less than men in "men's work," Corcoran found. Men in "women's work" also earned less than men in "men's work."

"A woman, no matter what evaluated differently," Corcor-can help. Corcoran feels, by encouraging a further breakdown in the division of work by

"Since women's wages improve when they do 'men's work' we should improve the means of opening up men's jobs to women," she said.

"Women's work" should also be made more attractive, she said, to encourage males to traditional "women's fields.

But integrating the work force is still not enough, according to Corcoran. Employers must be monitored, she said, so that the differences in evaluation do not persist.

Corcoran added that in a tight labor market, such as the current one, it is more difficult to change employers' habits. Ending the current recession would help, she says, but she does not have the answers to the economic crisis.

"How you ask employers in a time of allegedly declining profits to give female workers a better share of the pie, I don't

"It's not impossible, but there are more barriers," she added.

The 50th Tech Hifi Grand Opening Sale!

Now there's a Tech Hifi in Mt. Clemens, So now your local Tech Hifi can offer you the purchasing power of 50 stereo stores! Don't miss the Grand Opening Sale this week at the Tech near you.

Right now, during Tech Hifi's 50th Grand Opening Sale, you'll find the latest hifi components, as well as many complete systems, at prices that are lower than ever!

For example, you can get a fine system with full-range Studio Design 15 loudspeakers, a versatile Concord CR-50 am/fm stereo receiver and a light-tracking BSR 2260X automatic turntable with a Shure magnetic cartridge for only $199.

And for the duration of our Grand Opening Sale, we're also including a free pair of Mura stereo headphones (or an equivalent value) with this system.

(Also included at no extra cost when you buy any system at Tech Hifi, are our fourteen important Customer Satisfaction Guarantees. So whether you buy a system that costs $200, or $2,000, your happiness is guaranteed in writing.)

And for only $399, you won't find a better-sounding music system than this one with components by Cambridge Audio, Advent, BSR and Shure. The Cambridge Audio 2500 am/fm stereo receiver delivers a full 25 watts minimum RMS per channel into 8 ohm loudspeakers at any frequency from 20 to 20,000 Hz. with no more than 0.9% total harmonic distortion. This is ample power to drive the wide range Small Advent acoustic-suspension loudspeakers at room-filling levels of volume. We've also in included a BSR 2260X automatic turntable in this $399 system. It comes complete with a base, dustcover and a Shure magnetic cartridge.

With distinguished components from Nikko, Microacoustics, Sansui, and Stanton, this $769 system has capabilities beyond those of many systems available at any price. The Nikko 7075 stereo receiver incorporates a direct-coupled OCL pure complementary power amplifier that delivers a room-filling 38 watts minimum RMS per channel into 8 ohms from 20 to 20,000 Hz. with no more than 0.5% total harmonic distortion. A unique 5-tweeter high frequency array in each Microacoustic FRM-1 loudspeaker solves the problem of high frequency "beaming" inherent in almost any other conventional loudspeaker. The Sansui 212 belt-drive turntable performs flawlessly. It comes complete with a wood base, dustcover, and an excellent Stanton 500EE magnetic cartridge.

While you're here, pick up your free copy of Tech's 1976 Hifi Buyer's Guide. It contains 80 pages of use-maintaining hifi components. You'll also find a special 10-page section devoted to the creative uses of tape recorders. And a whole page of discount coupons that can save you money on everything from a pair of KLH 32 loudspeakers, to an Advent Chromium Dioxide cassette.
