Atty. Gen. Kelley asks delay in file destruction

By RALPH FRAMMOLINO State News Staff Writer

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley has asked that an order allowing the destruction of State Police subversive activities files after March 16 be delayed because of recently revealed illegal distribution of data from Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Thomas Brown, who issued the order and has jurisdiction over the files, said Wednesday that he would "probably" honor Kelley's request if MSU professor Zolton Ferency would agree to the move.

Ferency, who represented the Human Rights Party (HRP) in a court case against the State Police, said the judge indicated to him later in the day that he would hold on to

"My understanding is that he (Brown) is not going to destroy the files until the investigation is completed," Ferency said.

The HRP won a decision from Brown earlier this year that the gathering of data by the police on subversive activities was unconstitutional. Brown ordered destruction of the files sometime after March 16, the deadline for citizen petitions to see their Kelley asked for the destruction delay because he became aware for the first time last week that the information in the subversive activities files was reviewed and given out to private citizens and businesses.

The attorney general became aware of the situation last week in a conference with Gov. Milliken and State Police Director George Halverson, A spokesman for Milliken said that the governor did not know

Halverson became cognizant of the file distribution only shortly before the meet

"All those involved in the case, including Gov. Milliken and Col. Halverson, have been operating on the premise that information in these files was never disclosed to any source other than law enforcement agen cies," Kelley said.

Disclosure of information from the files to private citizens is illegal under the 1950 law that set up the subversive activities section in the State Police.

Milliken directed Halverson to investigate his department for further information on the illegal distribution of subversive activity files data.

Ferency said that he would have no qualms with a decision by Brown to extend the destruction deadline until the police finished with the internal investigation

"If the State Police have violated the law. then I think that should be determined and the appropriate action be taken," Ferency said. He pointed out that Kelley's request for preservation of the files was an about-face from his "adamant" position against the preservation of the data.

Ferency also said an internal investiga-tion by the police may not be believed by the citizens

'I do know that by asking the State Police to investigate themselves, the governor would be throwing a cloud over the investigation," Ferency said.

Kenneth Frankland, legal counsel to Milliken, said that Halverson has been "open and above board" on the subversive activities files since he assumed the State Police directorship in July 1974 and that he sees nothing wrong with an internal investigation.

Rep. Perry Bullard, D Ann Arbor, said Wednesday that the State Police subver sive activities files played "a role in two separate employment termination actions one at Eastern Michigan University and the other at Macomb County Communit

Bullard is chairman of the House Civil Rights Committee that has been trying to investigate State Police procedures for gathering data for their files. During a committee meeting last January, the com mittee heard testimony that the State Police also allowed Chrysler Corp. use of their files.

The court case by Ferency in Ingham County is one of two that involves the files. Another case in Wayne County is pending a decision by another judge on what to do

Grad employes attempt to unionize

The other Amherst group attempting to unionize is the Graduate Employes Union consisting of teaching and research assistants. The graduates are just now collecting authorization cards to present to the labor board as proof of student interest in such a union. The board would then rule on the legality and feasibility of the union, unless the university challenged the move and hearings were required.

While MSU students consider the pros and cons of the Student Workers Union some students at the University of Michigan are looking back over the accomplish-its first contract almost exactly a year ago. The structure and history of that union, the Graduate Employes Organization (GEO), serve as examples of what SWU might do at MSU if it has a chance and how the University might react.

SWU and GEO are different in several ways. GEO represents about 1,900 graduate student assistants - who serve in teaching, research and administrative positions - while SWU would represent nearly 7,000 undergraduate student workers in a variety of jobs. The manner of payment of the GEO members differs from MSU student workers, as does their length of However, several clauses in the GEO already being renegotiated, reflect on how SWU might structure itself.

The Ann Arbor union has an agency shop clause, which allows workers to refuse membership in the union but assesses those who do a fee usually equivalent to members' dues. Thirteen hundred of the 1,900 workers eligible to join the union did join it and about 600 did not

GEO President Nancy Conklin said that membership plan was set up partly to insure financial stability and also because it was requested by other established unions in the Ann Arbor area. The clause was approved by a majority of the members before the first contract was negotiated. The democracy of the union is important too, she said. An elected executive committee can make interim decisions between monthly meetings, but those decisions can be altered by vote of the membership at the next meeting. Also, those items to be bargained for in new contracts must be voted on by membership, and important decisions - such as a recent one m GEO to affiliate with the Michigan Federation of Teachers - are decided referendum of all members with a 50 per cent positive vote required. A crucial question concerning democracy of the union is the attendance of members at the monthly meetings. Conklin said that about 20 per cent of the 1,300 union members show up for each meeting, with attendance rising for major decisions The fear with any union is that too few student members participate in decision making. Just such a fear has been raised by some SWU detractors. Another fear is that the political views of ome of the SWU organizers will manifest themselves in union policy In Ann Arbor, GEO handles this by setting aside $200 a term to dole out to political groups and causes. All donations must be approved by majority vote of the membership, as must any political endorse ments.

Dues and how they are spent is another issue. GEO collects $12 a term in dues from most members, and $8 from some who work less. That money goes, according to Conklin, to rent and staff an office off campus and to pay legal fees for a contract negotiator and grievance proceeding representation. Conklin and other union officers are not paid, she said, though the new contract now being negotiated may contain a provision for a salary for officers.

Lockheed info to be promised

WASHINGTON (AP) President Ford will send a private letter to Japan in the next few days in which he is expected to promise that Japanese authorities will be granted conditional access to U.S. information about Lockheed payoffs, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

This access to information about the Lockheed payoffs, made to Japanese officials as part of the company's efforts to promote aircraft sales, is expected to be given on the condition that it be kept secret unless revealed in criminal

The U.S. officials said the letter will go to Prime Minister Takeo Miki in response to his request for full disclosure of U.S. information about the Lockheed payoffs.

U.S. officials have obtained information which strongly suggests that Lockheed bribe money was paid to high-level Japanese officials during the last 10 years.

The information, according to these officials, is based on the private conversations of a prominent former Japanese official. This official has been a principal focus of attention concerning Lockheed payoffs since the scandal broke last

Gunman jumped by 2 hostages

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Two male hostages won their release by jumping the gunman who held them captive 29 hours in a Frankfurt courthouse while he bargained for a flight to Cuba, police reported.

In the scuffle, the gunman's pistol discharged, wounding him in the right hip, police said.

Police identified the gunman as Rudi Manz, 24. He was immediately seized by police in the court clerk's office where he had held the prisoners in a vain effort to force release of a man on trial for bank robbery.

Manz burst into the courtroom Tuesday afternoon and seized court clerk Dieter Hoss, 32, and Gottfried Schaffrath, 59, a salesman, as hostages. Police said they were unharmed.

Manz demanded ransom money and a jetliner flight to Cuba for himself and the accused robber.

Major military post captured

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Renegade Moslem soldiers captured a major army garrision in the north and a small outpost on the Israeli border Wednesday in a revolt threatening a new round of civil war in Lebanon, army sources said.

Unconfirmed reports said a second garrision came under attack and President Suleiman Franjieh was reported concerned that loyal officers might try to launch a coup to prevent the army's disintegration.

There was no visible effort by Premier Rashid Karami's government to organize resistance to the rebel troops.

Officers convicted in Spain

MADRID (AP) - Spain's military hierarchy punctured the first bubble of dissidence within the armed forces Wednesday by convicting nine officers of trying to foment a liberal military takeover.

A general court-martial of five generals, however, eased sentences proposed by the prosecution., The leniency was an apparent bid to stem unrest among younger officers who might follow the example of the Portuguese revolution. In April 1974 reform-minded officers in Portugal overthrew that country's dictatorial regime.

The trial, unthinkable under the hard-line military rule of Spain's late ruler, Gen. Francisco Franco, caught the na-tion's attention even as new labor troubles erupted in the Asturias coal mining area and thousands remained on strike in the rebellious northern Basque region. Police made new arrests, unofficially estimated to exceed 250 in the past three attempted military rebellion. It said they were part of a secret organization called the Democratic Military Union, known by its initials as UMD, trying for military intervention by infiltrating key command posts.

The military court found the nine officers — one major and eight captains — guilty of

UMD spokesmen said privately ahead of the trial that the organization was dedicated to ensuring democratic reform in Spain and to blocking any attempt by right-wing generals to stage a military coup.

The defendants, given terms from three to eight years, denied UMD membership

Before becoming effective, the sentences must be approved by the commander of the Madrid military region. He was expected to act on the court decision later this week.

WASHINGTON - Richard M. Nixon claims in a sworn deposition that he did not personally select persons who were the objects of wiretaps early in his presidency but says it was the responsibility of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"The last thing we would everdo is reduce the freshman class," Magen said. "But if push came to shove, we might have to do this." Magen told the group that the college admitted 95 freshmen into the program this year after receiving nearly 2,200 applications for the program this year after receiving nearly 2,200 applications for the openings. increase of malpractice insurance premiums.

"Let me throw in the malpractice issue," Magen said. "The cost malpractice insurance will go up for us the equivalent to one full-time faculty." He said insurance costs for the program rose 70 per cent - from $23,000 last year to a current $70,000. He also said that funds from the federal government have been reduced.

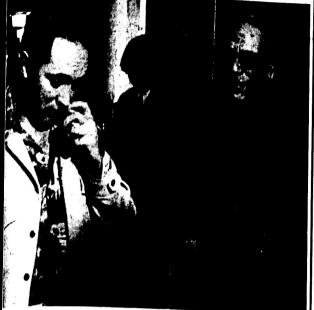

Magen said that if the college was not given its desired appropriations, it would have to cut down off-campus services such as a community medical program at the Ingham County Hospital, clinics in rural areas of the state and the involvement of some of the college's faculty in the Model Cities program.

"We feel it's necessary to send students off of the campus,"

Sen. Earl Nelson, D Lansing, who chaired the joint subcommit-tee meeting, said that the funding of medical schools in the state for next year would be a high priority for the House and Senate Appropriations committees. He also said that cuts are inevitable if more revenue is not generated for the state.

"I see and hear the deterioration of the state before my eyes, Nelson said to Magen and other MSU officials. He added that he would be introducing a tax-increase measure Friday morning in order to generate the needed revenue.

Potential delegates may now apply for Republican or Democratic posts

By JONI CIPRIANO State News Staff Writer

The chance to become a part of the nation's political machine is here for many eligible MSU students.

The requirements for becoming a Republican or Democratic delegate to the national conventions can be met by anyone 18 years of age and over with the desire to do so. In the Lansing area, the 6th Congressional District will require 17 Republican delegates and eight Democratic delegates (including three alternates).

While Republican delegates are not required to declare party memberships, Democratic delegates are required to come enrolled Democrats under a new selection process composed at the 1972 Democratic convention

In order to enroll as a Democrat, a membership form must be obtained from the JFK House, 321 N. Pine St. in Lansing. Cost of party memberships range from the $2 student/retiree membership to a $50 patron membership. However, if you lack funds to purchase a membership, simply fill out the form, indicating lack of funds and sent it to the JFK House. This must be done by April 12. While all precinct members from 1974 are eligible to attend the national convention, only 1976 party members will be eligible to vote.

Neither the Republican or Democratic parties are requiring that a certain quota of minorities be represented in the delegation. Under the rules adopted in 1974, the Democratic party will divide its delegates into an even division of males and females The Republican party will divide the delegation proportionately to the number of males, females and minorities that apply to be a delegate.

The requirements for becoming a Republican delegate differ from the Democratic requirements in that a petition is involved. All Republican delegate hopefuls must pick up a petition from the Republican headquarters located at 416 Frandor Ave., Suite 104, in Lansing. Twenty signatures are required from your district in order to qualify as a delegate candidate.

You must also state your commitment to one candidate or else state neutrality, as in the Democratic delegate process. The petition and preferred presidential candidate choice must be submitted to the county clerk by 4 p.m. on March 26.

On May 18, during the presidential primary, voters in each county will decide who is to go to the county convention. On June 11 and 12, the national convention delegates will be chosen

The threat of SB-1: change it or replace it

The Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1975, or Senate Bill One as it is commonly called, is a massive attempt to bring coherence to the chaotic U.S. criminal code. Unfortunately, it fails in many areas to bring reform along with co-

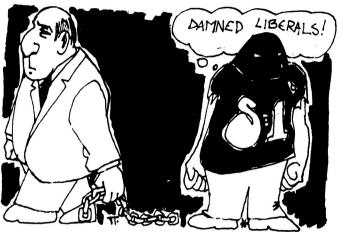

As most are aware, there has been a tumultuous uproar over SB-1 from many quarters. It has been labeled repressive; the call is out for immediate defeat.

Not every objection from the various "Stop S-1" people is unreasonable; some, if not most, are in fact well grounded.

Codification of the criminal code is a worthwhile project that needs to be done. There are those who would be in favor of codification at any cost-including that of our civil liberties. But there are also those who would throw away the attempt to rationalize the unkempt U.S. criminal code without recognizing the value of bringing order to the law of the country.

Thus a third way out-amendment or substitution of SB-1must be taken. To throw away years of effort to bring order to law SB-1 wholesale without looking at the trees for the forest.

more vague, creating an interpretational latitude that may threaten civil rights.

The right of citizens to assemble peaceably might be curtailed by the bill. Demonstrations could fall under broadened definitions of riots, disorderly conduct or failing to obey a public safety order.

It has been suggested that labor strikes and pickets could be lumped under broad categories of extortion and blackmail and thus could be used by an anti-labor president to curtail labor activ-

The federal government's ability to punish the leak of 'classified information" would be extended, and the provisions to keep material that does not warrant classification out of that category does not appear to be stringent enough. Thus revelation of government wrongdoing such as in recent years could conceivably disappear.

Wrongdoing by public officials could be defended by invoking what has been called the "Ehrlich-man" or "Nuremberg" defense; that is, claiming superior order.

There are numerous such objections to SB-1, and most of them seem valid.

A bill in the U.S. House of Representatives, HR 10850, in fact, is also a codification of law and contains more than 1,000 differences from SB-1. The ACLU. which worked on HR 10850. prefers this option to SB-1.

While probably not all of these 1,000 changes are needed, it is clear that the present SB-1 must be either extensively changed or substituted with another bill, possibly HR 10850. Since the House version is already prepared, common sense would dictate that it be seriously examined as the alternative to codify federal

Grudge bites Circle K

The truly delightful rays of the competency of ASMSU once again shine through and enlightennothing.

Tuesday night, this organization, supposedly dedicated to the betterment of student life on campus, rejected a fund request that would aid the advertising campaign of the upcoming Circle K book exchange. The exchange offers students an opportunity to buy and sell class-required text books without having most of the profit go to the bookstores.

For those readers who are interested, the exchange is being held in the lower lounge of Shaw Hall during finals and the first week of class spring term.

LETTIERS To the Editor

Wrong logic

If the State News directed as much effort toward accurately reporting the news as they do toward creating the news, this campus would be the beneficiary of a truly great newspaper. Unfortunately, the State News seems to regard itself as the resident expert on every topic of interest at Michigan State. I view it as unfortunate because it is quite simply impossible for them to fulfill quite simply impossible for them to fulfill such a tremendous undertaking. In Wednesday's (March 3) editorial, entitled, "ASMSU rep system must be simplified," the State News demonstrated the futility of attempting to comment ritatively on every issue of concern to students. Nobody can be blamed for holding strong opinions. That is a right which every person and every newspaper is entitled to But holding strong opinions which are based upon ignorance is simply foolishness.

The State News suggests that the answer to the board's problems is to be found in eliminating the representation of the major governing groups. Thus, the students would be left with only one representative for each college - the college to which each person belongs. This, it is suggested, will be the easiest and fairest method of representa-

Now if we are to accept the logic of the State News, it would follow that the board representatives from the various colleges provide the best representation of students. But this latter conclusion is simply not true.

In a conversation with the representative from the College of Social Science recently, I was told that he had had only three people come to him with suggestions on how to vote on a given issue.

This is in his entire time on the board and it is not an exceptional situation.

The variegation of political philosophy which exists in the several colleges makes it almost impossible for a representative to accurately reflect any given position other than his own. And when students go to the polls at registration they invariably have no idea who they are voting for or what the various candidates stand for. Is it any wonder that the vast majority of students don't even bother to vote?

The fact is that students feel alienated from the board because they are not being represented according to their special interests. The State News apparently wishes to keep Blacks from being represented, for very few black candidates would be elected under such a system. Other minorities, which should be represented, would likewise be ignored in such voting Indians, Chicanos, women and other such groups would continue to be disregarded in the decision-making process of the board.

The State News position that a simplification of the board is the answer is clearly incorrect. I am ready to acknowledge that in matters which are related to the simple, the State News is truly a resident expert.

What is the answer? There is no easy one. But the direction to be heading in is one which will include more minority and special interest groups, not exclude them. The State News would do well to get its own house in order and avoid simple answers to difficult problems. Kent Barry

ASMSU representative for the Interfraternity Council

Contrary to the assertion of Mr. Barry, the State News is less concerned about increased minority representation — we would favor it — than about the overrepre-sentation of such special interest groups as fraternities and sororities.

Considering that Mr. Barry's organization, the Interfraternity Council, does not include any blacks, his protests somehow ring hollow. —Ed.

Tizzy

I would think MSU students are mature enough that the appearance of three men in bed sheets would not throw them into a tizzy. When I was a student at Northwestern University, I heard a young Fascist explain the glories of Mussolini's system and actually weep when we did not seem to appreciate it. Also the German consul spoke in praise of Hitler.

Catholics and Protestants are fighting now in Ireland, but we let them on campus and even Communists, who have extended their empire over nearly half the countries of the world, and would like to direct all our activities and thoughts. Under the guise of helping the "exploited poor" or "democratic helping the exploited poor or democratic socialism" they promote their ideas. A university should be a place where all kinds of ideas can be discussed without violence, and both sides should be heard.

Review panned

Marty Sommerness, the State News Reviewer, seems to feel that Kubrick has risked his reputation in making the "overpraised, overdone, overcritiqued, overpub-licized, overpopular, and underacted" picture, "Barry Lyndon."

While it has been overpublicized, (with good reason, since Warners needs to recoup the expenses), it deserves the praise it has

Mr. Sommerness claims that Berenson's

acting is cold, wooden, and trancolike; yet consider the character she is playing—Lady Lyndon, who is simply cold, wooden, and trancelike. This seems to be his only complaint about the film, aside from the fact that it is "too, too, too, too, too," long and one can't unload one's bladder half way through it. What this reviewer fails to recognize is that the length is an essential part of it; it has the same delicious lengthiness as, say, Schubert's C-Major Symphony, also accused in its time of not being shorter than 80 minutes. Watching "Barry Lyndon," the viewer lives an entire lifetime, so that by the end of the picture the beginning seems long ago and far away. This is intentional.

The film, with its hundreds of exquisite images, gently flows over the viewer rather than hitting him in the solar plexus like the plethora of stark "verismo" pictures of crime and violence our screens (big and little) have lately been deluged with.

But alas, we live in the age of the instant person who cannot remember last Tuesday clearly and who is bored to tears by anything that lasts longer than ten minutes. I sat through "Barry Lyndon" twice and wasn't bored at all. Incidentally, the first time, they did have an intermission.

For those who haven't seen "Barry

Lyndon," I recommend they see they allow themselves to be turned off by a review. Kubrick knows more about how pictures should be done than any reviewer

Has anyone noticed the similarities between the MSU football scandal and Watergate? Not that I want to raise again the specter of our national nightmare, but secrecy and the stonewalling, the payoffs and the press stories are not hard to forget. Look at the situation. There's an investigating committee probing the actions of an administration that denies knowledge of illegal acts. (Sound familiar?) Meanwhile. reporters are digging out the past actions of many important players and coaches in the administration's game plan. The pressure forces one of the president's top aides to resign.

Then the president holds secret meetings with high officials, promising a full disclo sure, but nothing is revealed. Next, the administration may take the investigating body to court; and now, there's revelations of wiretaps and secret tapes!

It's kinda confusing to see how a sport can be raised to the level of national security. Denny Stolz need not be impeached, but what if MSU just dropped football for a couple of years? No way, some say, think of all the money that would be lost. Well, we're not going to be getting any of the juicy TV appearance money, and tuition will have doubled before we receive a Rose Bow bonus. Besides, even with ticket sales and TV money, the football program doesn't make any sizable profit. Or at least that's what they say when you ask why football revenues can't support women's and other non-revenue sports.

After all, who's more important, 22 guys on Tartan Turf once a week or all the other 44,000 men and women in classes every day? Maybe MSU could trade a defensive line coach for a professor to upgrade the Engineering Dept. Or, for the price of a couple of green and white Olds, the metallurgy program could be rescued. For those people who simply must spend Saturday afternoons in Spartan Stadium, the marching band could give two forty minute performances, with maybe a tennis match at halftime.

In this time of budget cuts, the academic program must have priority. After all, you don't major in football, although a player drafted into the pros probably will make more money in his first years out of college than, say, a humanities major. Yet, one of MSU's fastest growing programs also has interesting possibilities. A student can pick up almost enough credits to major in remedial studies. dear, is to impress them, to stand out, to wow them with your creativity. Now, let's

We began. My friend filled out all the dull information about her name and address. Unless she wanted to change her identity, there was not yet much room for creativity.

It was when we got to the "Personal Interest" section that the fun began. "It says, 'What are your hobbies, interests and special skills?" my friend read. What are your extra-curricular activities? What honors and awards have you gotten?" She sighed. "What should I put? I can't think of anything."

"That's easy," I said. "Remember your market. Dig into your past. Write what you think Walt Disney would want to hear."

Surrendering, she kept mumbling things about honesty and accuracy. But soon she began to see the light and started becoming less concerned about the truth and more about being marketable.

And after a few minutes of inspired writing, she read it to me, tentatively, guiltily.

"My hobbies are collecting old Mickey Mouse watches, going to carnivals and reading fairy tales'—this is really stupid. Ellen, I just hate fairy tales.

"Go on, go on," I encouraged.
She read on. "'I love to go to the movies. My favorites are. uh. "Herbie Rides Again" and "Bambi." 'Look, I feel really stupid about this..

"Read!" I shouted. She read.

" 'My special skills are imitations of Donald Duck and Snow White sleeping. I also know all the names of the Seven Dwarves and the 101 Dalmations.

'My extra-curricular activities are sleeping, getting high, opening mail, and'-get this-" she giggled, "'watching Mickey "You'd better take out the getting high part," I said. "Walt wouldn't approve. But the Mickey Mouse part is a great idea." "OK. But anyway, under 'Honors and Awards' I put: 'Third grade, eraser monitor. Fifth grade, service squad. Ninth grade, award for perfect attendance. Tenth grade, award for two years perfect attendance. Eleventh grade, award for three years perfect attendance.

"Twelfth grade, award for four years perfect attendance and voted "Easiet Date" of the year.' "She turned to me, snickering. "I thought I might put that part in just to show them I am human, you know?"

"Yeah, but ... '

"But nothing. Pretty good, huh?" she bragged."And guess what I put for my ultimate career goal? Listen to this-this is great." She sat up straight, cleared her throat and faced an imaginary audience.

"'My ultimate career goal is to be Snow White at Walt Disney World, to help little children, young and old, rich and poor, from all parts of the world, to be a little happier in these troubled times. I would like " she paused dramatically, waving her arms.

"'I would like to show everyone that "it's a world of laughter, it's a world of tears, a world of hope and a world of fears, there's so much that we share that it's time we're aware, it's a small, small world..."

Seems like I'd heard that somewhere before. But my friend leaped from her chair and began to march around the room. "Listen, this is great. This'll really sell.

'It's a small world after all, it's a small world after all, it's a small world after all, it's a small, small world..."

I guess about the time she started bobbing up and down on the table wearing her dusty Mickey Mouse ears (one bent flat from being in a box so long), waving her application in the air. I decided it was definitely time to split with my sanity. "Hey, wait a minute," she screeched after me, while I, a Frankenstein, was trying to sneak out the door

"What if I dressed up like Mary Poppins and tap danced into the interview?" she screamed. "What if I brought in some of my friends and we staged the shipwreck scene from 'The Swiss Family Robinson?' Do you think it would help if I looked like Annette? Like Benji? Like Dick Van Dyke?"

I kept smiling and nodding and backing out the door while she yelled after me, "Like Flubber? Like Julie Andrews? Like Goofy? Like Minnie Mouse? Like Christopher Robin?

Sorry to say, when I finally escaped, she was babbling witlessly and scribbling madly on the application.

'Family History...'" She paused only for a second, then scribbled and shouted, "Eureka! I was a Babe in Toyland! I was the Son of Flubber! I was the Love Bug! I was Hayley Mills! I was Howard Cosell! I was Buffy and Jody! I was Uncle Bill! I was...

Numerous additional facts have come my way since I initiated this proposal. Among

1. An idling cigaret contaminates the air for approximately 12 minutes while the average smoker is usually inhaling on the average for 24 seconds (a ratio of 30:1). Sixty-eight per cent of the tobacco smoke goes into the environment, even though 90 per cent of inhaled smoke stays in the smoker's lungs.

2. The fetus of a pregnant woman can be adversely affected by her breathing second-

3. The trustees recently banned smoking in classes at the University of Kentucky (in a state heavily dependent upon the tobacco industry).

4. The World Health Organization (WHO), states that "control of cigaret smoking could do more to improve health and prolong life than any other single action in the whole field of preventive medicine." 5. HEW, in its first report on the state of tobacco still remains a major cause of discomfort they might be causing.

6. A Scientific American editor states that some smokers "completely miss the most crucial point in the nonsmoker's fight for the right to clean air . . . (that nonsmokers) have no desire to contract lung cancer because of someone else's addiction

Response to the proposal to ban smoking in classrooms at MSU has been loudly and largely in favor of "cleaner air." Letters to the State News have made reference to the undesirable (i.e., unhealthy, unpleasant, distracting, inconsiderate, etc.) aspects of smoking in classrooms.

Surprisingly, perhaps, many smokers support such proposals. One female student circulating petitions on behalf of a class-room smoking ban at MSU has told me that numerous smokers have signed her petition. To their credit, most smokers (it has been my experience) are willing to respect others' rights to clean air and are usually appreciative of being informed of any

Tuition math

In the February 6 issue of The State News you printed an interview with Dr. Wharton about tuition hikes this year. It was stated that tuition had risen 15 per cent this year.

Tuition is presently $19.50 per credit and before we started school this year it was $16.00 The usual way to figure percentages is to put the amount of change over the original amount. This would be $3.50/$16.00 or 21.875 per cent.

Now even if you used the common but misleading practice of placing the amount of change over the present figure ($3.50/$19.50) you still get 17.947 per cent.

We don't feel that either of these figures are close enough to 15 per cent that they should have been rounded down.

It makes me wonder when it is reported that we are going to have another 15 per cent increase next year, how much it really is going to be. Maybe you could tell us the method that you use so we would know.

Unknown rockers excel on new recordings buyers. The group appears as promising as the first classic

By DAVE DIMARTINO State News Reviewer

It is surprising that debut albums by new artists emerge as often as they do. Since more than a few critics have judged the last few years fairly "stale" ones as far as rock-and-roll goes and record companies seem to be making their greatest profits with old, established artists (such as Paul Simon, Art Garfunkel, Chicago, etc.), breaking in new artists doesn't seem as imperative as it once was for record company and critic alike.

New talent does emerge, however, one way or the other. The following albums are works by artists who are either new or genuinely unheard of in this country:

DR. FEELGOOD—"MAL-PRACTICE" (Columbia PC 34098): Though a relatively new group on both sides of the Atlantic, Dr. Feelgood is having little trouble establishing itself as one of Britain's premier rock-and-roll bands. Though there are more than a few elements of nostalgia involved -the band looks, sounds and same depressing manner as the J. Geils Band did. ROY HARPER-"WHEN A CRICKETER LEAVES THE CREASE" (CHRYSALIS CHR even dresses like the early Stones-Dr. Feelgood's talent is sufficient to carry the group 1105): Harper is making some-thing of an American debut, through its initial hype and into the hands of many American though oddly enough, this is not his first LP to be released in this country. Two earlier efforts, "Folkjokeopus" and "Flat Baroque and Berserk," emerged late in the '60s, but unfortunately died slow deaths. Americans were left to believe Harper had suffered the same fate. This was not the case, however, as Harper went on to release several more albums in England. Long a great favorite Zeppelin—the latter band went so far as to write "Hats Off To (Roy) Harper" for their third LP-Harper always records in the company of great musiccians. This album is no excep-tion to the rule. Here Harper plays with David Gilmour, Chris Spedding and Bill Bru-ford, among others, and sounds as fresh and interesting as

STARCASTLE - "STAR-

CASTLE" (EPIC PE33914): This album would be much easier to take seriously if it didn't sound so blatantly like an imitation of Yes during that group's most creative period circa "The Yes Album"). Thus followers of Yes, Emerson, Lake and Palmer and their several imitators, will probably like Starcastle very much, despite the fact that they come from Champaign, Ill.
VAN DER GRAAF GENER.

ATOR-"GODBLUFF" (MER-CURY SRM-1-1069): This British group is hardly a new one—in fact it has released four other albums in this countrybut "Godbluff" is its first effort after a lengthy silence. The group broke up three years ago, due to lead vocalist Peter Hammill's urge to strike out on a solo career, but after several distressingly familiar Hammill LPs, the group wisely chose to reform. "Godbluff" is the perfect continuation of "Pawn Hearts," its last effort, and displays this highly unusual band in full power. The minorchord riffing, spacey effects and Hammill's unusually revealing (and wordy) lyrics provide for one of the finest manic-depressive atmospheres available.

of both Ian Anderson and Led Scaggs' 'Silk Degrees' a winner

By DAVE DIMARTINO

State News Reviewer Boz Scaggs is something of a minor cult figure in music.

His live performances in San Francisco are, without exception, sold out hours after they are initially announced. Unfortunately, Scaggs rarely does any national touring, and most of his following comes from his albums, which are regrettably sparse for an artist of Scaggs' stature.

Now, two years after his last album, "Slow Dancer," Scaggs has re-emerged with "Silk Degrees" (Columbia PC33920), a thoroughly captivating work that is Scaggs' best effort since his classic "Moments."

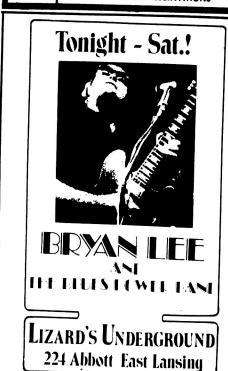

"Silk Degrees," as is the case with all of Scaggs' albums, shows a craftsmanship that is rare in contemporary music. Unlike the soul-filled, upbeat 'Slow Dancer," "Silk Degrees' is a more restful, contemplative effort. It certainly has its rocking moments, but Joe Wissert's production points Scaggs in an entirely different direction than "Slow Dancer's" producer, Johnny Bristol, who stamped Scaggs' sound with his own pop-soulish trademark.

Scaggs' band is probably his best since his large "Moments" ensemble. The five-piece group consists of David Paich on keyboards, Jeff Porcaro on drums, David Hungate on bass and both Fred Tackett and Louie Shelton playing guitars. Pianist Paich is greatly responsible for "Silk Degrees' " sound

- all the arrangements are his, and he coauthored, with Scaggs, five songs on the LP and clearly, Scaggs has never been in a better setting.

Another high point of "Silk Degrees" is Scaggs' songwriting. Scaggs' albums, though all excellent in their own way, vary in quality directly with his songwriting. His first effort on Atlantic, "Boz Scaggs," which featured the best of Mussel Shoals sessionmen, including one Duane Allman, sounds entirely different from any of his later work and not at all like either of the first two Steve Miller Band LPs, where Scaggs was so prominent.

pair of J. Geils albums made that group seem. Hopefully Dr. Feelgood won't fizzle out in the

His next work, Columbia's "Moments," featured a big band intro to "We Were Always Sweethearts" that signified something quite new for Scaggs. "Moments" introduced a softer side of Scaggs, one that had been hinted at in Steve Miller's "Baby's Calling Me Home," and that soft sound took over much of Scaggs' later work.

The only disappointment Scaggs produced was his follow-up to "Moments," "Boz Scaggs and Band," which couldn't quite match its predecessor in style or quality. After that lapse, the encouraging "My Time" followed, with Scaggs back in the groove, and finally, "Slow Dancer" emerged, putting Scaggs back on top again. "Silk Degrees" was obviously a long time coming. Like all of Scaggs' works, it has at least three or four perfect singles that would crack Scaggs wide open, given enough national airplay. Whether Columbia Records can do it is another question, but word is that Scaggs is one of the company's "best-loved" figures - which means that this time out Scaggs has got himself as large a company backing as possible.

There are few musicians extant with taste the likes of Boz Scaggs. "Silk Degrees" is as good an introduction as any to Scaggs' work — and one of 1976's brightest efforts, by far.

UFW reps say pickets

will not quit

A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision which gives shopping center owners the right to drive pickets off their property will not immediately curtail union picketing activities, according to Dan Benavides, coordinator of the Lansing chapter of the United Farm Workers (UFW).

"I don't think this decision will have an immediate effect locally on UFW activities," Benavides said.

The court ruled 6 to 2 that the constitutional guarantee of free speech does not prevent the owner of a shopping center from driving pickets off his property.

"I consider this to be a big infringement on First Amendment rights," Benavides

The right to picket has always been upheld in previous cases, he added. In the summer of 1975, a woman was arrested for picketing in front of a local Meijer's store. All charges against her were dropped.

However, one month later, summer UFW staff member Michael Lenz was arrested for picketing in front of a Meijer's store in Eaton County. That case has not yet been

"The police are very conservative in that area," Benavides said, "and labor power is not strong out there."

Benavides feels this new Supreme Court decision will not affect the Lenz case.

"The charges will probably be dropped eventually because this case is relatively dead now and, furthermore, was not as active as the case against the woman," he

Benavides has not talked to local attorneys as to whether the decision will hinder future UFW efforts. At present, California attorneys are looking into the UAW representative Jim Ramey was unaware of the Supreme Court decision, but said it would not affect any union actions in the immediate future.

"I haven't heard about it and will not change any course of action being followed by UAW members until I hear from our attorneys," Ramey said.

Textbook exchange opens at Shaw for MSU students

By PATRICIA LA CROIX

State News Staff Writer The end of the term brings to mind a lot of things for the average MSU student, among them being finals, registration, Florida and next term. And next term's textbooks. And how much those books are going to cost.

A club in the East Lansing area is offering a solution to the financially strapped MSU stu-dent. For the past 3 or 4 terms, the Circle K club has conducted a book exchange in the lower lounge of Shaw Hall, and they plan to do the same this term.

"The book exchange prevents the student from getting ripped off at the official book stores in East Lansing," Vice President Don Wilson said. "It's a familiar story to all of us that the book stores give 50 per cent of the book's original price to the student, and then turns around and sells the same book for 75 per cent of the original price.'

The group recommends that the student request 65 per cent of the original price for the book at the exchange, although they will allow the student to ask any price that they want.

"At 65 per cent, both the seller and the buyer are getting a better deal," Wilson said.

The procedure for selling books is as follows: the student can bring used books to the lower lounge of Shaw Hall starting today through Saturday, and also March 31 through April 2. The group will then ask the student to complete a computer card and return to them a "claim check."

After the selling period is over, the student can return to the lounge to pick up either the unsold books or money.

"The student isn't going to lose anything on the deal," Ann Shea, president, said. "But they might gain something.

Wilson added that the group never makes a profit on the book exchange, and in fact loses $50 to $100 each time they conduct the exchange.

The organization, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, was first started in East Lansing about three years ago. Since that time, membership has "grown considerably," Wil-"The group now centers its attention primarily on the problems of hunger and the proper care of the young and elderly in the area.

Last year, the group gathered 80 spare MSU football tickets from students weren't using them, and took boys from St. Vincent Home for Children in Lansing to a Spartan game.

"We've also had a Hallowe'en party for the boys, and invited a group to the MSU campus for a weekend so they could see what college life was like,' Wilson said.

Future projects for the or-ganization include working with mentally handicapped children on a one-to-one basis. "The one-to-one basis is im portant to us so that the students will learn to trust us and think of us as friends.

The plot thickens and the competition stiffens as three Spartan grapplers venture to Tucson, Ariz. for the NCAA wrestling meet, with seeding matches scheduled to start this afternoon.

Champions from 11 conferences across the nation will be competing at the tournament that will conclude with finals on Saturday. MSU's hopes for a national champion rest with Randy Miller at 118 pounds, Pat Milkovich at 134 pounds and Jeff Hersha

If Milkovich succeeds in his quest, he will become only the econd man in Spartan history to win three individual national titles. The last man to accomplish this feat was Greg Johnson at 118 pounds in 1970, 1971 and 1972.

title. He finished third in the conference meet, while Chris, Campbell of Iowa took the crown.

Spartan head wrestling coach Grady Peninger has hope for Miller and Hersha. "They're certainly not favored," he said. "But they're capable of beating anybody."

And a lot of anybodies are going to be thrown their way. Some 112 schools will be represented at the meet, with 355 wrestlers participating in the festivities. The Big Ten is expected to do well in the final standings at the meet, with defending champion Iowa picked to repeat as national champs.

Some of the toughest competition for the Spartans could come from the Big Eight, which brings in wrestlers from Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Iowa State. Shawn Garel is the 118-pound champ from Oklahoma. In an earlier meet this year, Garel defeated Miller 13-6. Milkovich could receive competition from Mike Chinn, also from Oklahoma. In the same meet this year, Milkovich narrowly beat Chinn on a 6-5 decision. Willie Gadson of Iowa State is Hersha's worry as he defeated Hersha in a previous match in

Miller probably faces the toughest going, when one considers the list of champions who will compete in his 118-pound weight class. The Big Sky champion and outstanding wrestler at that conference's meet, Bill Murphy of Weaver State, will be there, as will Penn State's Wayne Packer, who was 16-0 on the dual meet

Others that Miller could find himself facing are: Sam Orme of Brigham Young (13-6 this year), Tom Dursee of William and Mary (26-4 on the season), sophomore Southeastern champ Steve Stalnaker of Tennessee, Norm Knight of Oregon, (Pacific-8 champion) and Andy Daniels of Ohio University (11-0 this season and Mid-American Conference title-holder).

Hersha, who led the Spartans with the most pins this season with four, has an uphill battle in front of him. Ron Whitcomb of East Carolina (28-1 this year) will be tough, as will Dave Sevren (17-6-2 at Arizona State), Jerry White of Penn State (15-2 this season), Tim Worsowicz of Florida (Jacksonville senior who season). Tim worsowicz of Florida (Jacksonville semior with finished the Southeastern conference meet with a pin and an eight-point major decision), Rickey Hale of California, Steve Needs of Boise State and Ball State's entry Stu Moyer, two-time

Mid-American champ who finished 20-2 on the season

The competition for Milkovich will most likely come from the season. The competition for minovicin will most many come from wrestlers: Chinn and Mike Frick of Lehigh. Frick is the defendance of the competition of th wrestiers: Uninn and Make a read of Long in the userend champion at 134 pounds. A YES VOTE MEANS THE STUDENT WORKERS UNION WILL LEGALLY REPRESENT YOU FOR THE PURPOSES OF COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.

AREAS OF CONCERN INCLUDE:

HOW DECISIONS WILL BE MADE IN THE STUDENT WORKERS UNION:

UNION DEMOCRACY: The union organizing effort is presently co-ordinated by a four member executive committee. Their term of office ends one month after the upcoming certification election. An election of new officers will be held at that time to provide a broader campus-wide representation in the council which will handle the day to day operation of the union.

Major decisions in the union will have to be made by the membership as a whole rather than by just the executive council. The entire membership will determine what provisions they want included in the contract. After negotiations with the University, the contract will be submitted to the membership for a ratification vote.

DUES: Dues must be approved by the general membership after the election. Misunderstandings have arisen over the unions' publicity concerning the current voluntary dues system. The voluntary dues system was instituted to provide money needed to cover vast campaign costs which include lawyers' fees, mailings and advertising.

TOKYO (AP) - Mao Tsetung has issued a statement to the Chinese people intensifying the battle against Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, target of a nationwide poster and propaganda campaign.

By SEAN HICKEY

Ever since the caveman stepped on his first grape, man has had a passion for making

And through the ages, that passion for purple feet has fermented its way into the hearts of many Michiganders. One of those people is Ed Duke, who owns and operates Wine Art in Lansing.

"Wine-making is definitely not for the novice but for people who know their wines and have developed specific preferences," Duke said. "My customers are not interested in making social, pop or get-high wines but table or dinner wines for tasting. Because my business is not a fad or novelty, I depend upon the regular customers.'

And those regular customers are a special breed, Duke said. "Wine-making is like a big garden, and people who make wine their hobby love to grow it," he said. To set up an Ed Duke wine garden, a primary and secon-dary fermenter is needed. Since this consists of a five-gallon trash can and a five-gallon jug respectively, it can be bought in But the important thing that Duke supplies is the forty different grape concentrates which he imports from France and California. Each of the grape concentrates represents a different grape and produces to escape. "This set-up is comparable to miniature wine factory,"

"In general, 75 per cent of the wine produced in the world is as good when it is a year old as it is ever likely to be and will only deteriorate after its third birthday," Duke said. "Three months is the minimum bottle age but for many wines this is too early."

Duke also supplies the necessary equipment and ingredients for making beer.

Duke also claims that almost any base ingredient will ferment if sugar and yeast are present.

"Fruit juices are very popular in wine-making but my operation is mainly concerned with grape wines. Wine can even be made from dandelions or rose petals," he said.

Though brewing beer is

Graduate student union at U-M compared with SWU organizing

(continued from page 1) SWU now requests voluntary dues of $2 a term, which organizers say will remain at that level until changed by the membership. Organizers have said it is expected that SWU will have to establish an off-campus office as GEO did.

Though SWU denies it would immediately take action to insure a pay increase for its workers, some say sooner or later it will.

Detractors of the union and MSU administrators have said wage increases would be reflected in a room and hoard rate hike because wages for most campus workers are paid out of room and board money. Union defenders say that wages do not necessarily have to come of that room, and board fund, but can be found else-

At U-M, GEO faced that ture. GEO, after eight months of fruitless bargaining and a 20-day strike last February, won a contract that includes salary increases for graduate assistants totaling 14 per cent; and a $440 per term tuition ceiling. Graduate assistants had previously been paying up to about $550 in-state tuition and over $1,000 out-state. GEO President Conklin said she did not know where the money came from to pay the increased salaries and make up the difference in tuition. "They (U-M) said it has to come out of raised tuition," she said. "It's their decision. As long as they won't release (budget) figures in toto, then

"We don't say 'raise tuition', we just say 'cut the bullshit'.' she said, referring to alleged high administrative costs at Bill Forsyth, the U-M GEO administrator, agreed that "no tuition raise is directly attributable to the (GEO) contract.' He did say, however, that students ultimately had to pay for the higher costs.

The ceiling on tuition and ensuing loss of monies to U-M was made up, Forsyth said, by taking individual scholarships and fellowships that different departments awarded to graduate assistants and po them to make up the tuition difference. He said the amount of money paid now to graduate assistants was about the same as previously, but that now it is distributed equally to all and that students had far less chance of obtaining full finaneial support through scholarships. He said that not all scholarship and fellowship money was put into the pool.

The salary increase, Forsyth said, actually cost U-M little extra money. Instead of more total funds being set aside for paying graduate assistant salaries, various departments which can employ as many grads each as they desire — simply hired fewer students, paid them the prescribed higher salaries and ended up spending the same amount.

Before, Forsyth said, "top priority was to give them (graduate students) jobs. Now, maybe, the departments look for efficiency.'

Arsh Derbabian, of the igan Federation of Teac Detroit, said he has closely with GEO sind union decided to affiliate the teachers' with the teache the teachers' union. Der said "there is no indicat (number of) assistants h
