To encourage lending agencies to make the loans, the bill would change the government incentive, which now provides up to 3 per cent special allowance for the lender. The new formula, based on the Treasury bill rate, would provide up to 5 per cent and would be calculated more

The bill also contains incentives for states to set up their own agencies to administer the guarantee program, as a result of findings that the repayment record is better in states already having such agencies. The Education and Labor Committee reported the default rate in the 26 states with such agencies averages 7 per cent while in the remaining states that leave administration to the federal government the rate is 18 per cent.

Other changes were designed to make sure the borrowing student clearly understands his obligations and to provide for a one-year moratorium on repayment if the debtor is unemployed. The bill also would raise the ceiling on family income that determines whether a student is entitled automatically to a subsidy for part of the interest paid on a come under the $25,000 limitation. The limit on the amount an undergrad uate may borrow would remain at $7,500, but the maximum for graduate or professional students would be increased from Another provision was designed to prevent student borrowers lightly resortng to bankruptcy to wipe out their debts. It would provide that the educational loan could not be discharged by a bankruptcy proceeding begun during the first five years of the repayment period. This provision would become effective a year after enactment of the bill.

Ferency may encounter conflict in nomination

By ANNE E. STUART State News Staff Writer

Though already on the November ballot as a Human Rights Party (HRP) candidate for a six-year term in the state Supreme Court, Zolton Ferency may be nominated again by another party at the Democratic convention in Detroit this weekend.

The MSU associate professor of criminal justice campaigned unsuccessfully in 1966 for governor as a Democrat and in 1974 as

The residents were also asked if they would support stop signs at every corner, blocking of through-streets and lowered speed limits, all of which were rejected by over half of those questioned. Similarly, the residents were against a parking ban during certain hours of the day.

The seat is currently held by incumbent Republican Lawrence B. Lindemer, a former state representative and regent, who was appointed by Gov. Milliken after Kavanaugh's death.

If Ferency were to be nominated by the Democrats it would cause some legal problems, according to state Democratic Chairperson Morley Winograd.

"The law says a person's name cannot appear twice on the ballot. Ferency is already on the ballot," he said. "Maybe he intends to accept the nomination and then Democratic officials were uncertain whether Ferency would attend the convention this weekend.

"It's just a rumor. We don't know that he will be there," said Beckie Brenneman, a spokesperson for the state Democratic party office in Lansing.
"He has not contacted us to say that he will be there.'

Democrats at the two-day state convention will choose Democratic candidates for state offices including the Supreme Court, the State Board of Education and the governing boards of MSU, U-M, and Wayne State University.

Ferency could not be reached Thursday for comment on whether or not he would attend the convention. But he indicated earlier Thursday that he would be willing to cooperate with the Democratic party order to accomplish his objectives as a State

While trustees and regents at some universities are appointed by the governor, MSU trustees are voted in through the November general election. Nominations are made at the state party conventions to be held this weekend.

Trustee Huff has been on the board for fifteen years and Trustee Martin are seeking renomination completing his first eight-year term.

There are nine other candidates, four Democrats and five Republicans, joining the incumbents in their attempts to capture the convention nominations this weekend.

The Democrats in the race are Mike Smydra, Lansing; Carole Lick, Kalamazoo; Stevenson, Chelsea: Adeline Griner, Traverse City and the two incumbents.

The Republicans vying for the nomination are Norm Jamieson, Howell; Nick Smath. Addison; Dr. Michael Fleck, Kalamazoo; Larry Goodrich, Lansing; and Robert McCauley,

Each party will nominate two candidates at the conventions and the four nominees will compete for the two seats in November.

MSU Trustees are not paid for their position but they do receive compensation for expenses incurred in serving the University. Trustees also receive use of a University. vehicle for transportation to and from University business.

The trustees meet publicly each month, except in the month of August. Meetings usually held on campus but can be held elsewhere at the discretion of the trustees. Occasionally the board goes on a weekend retreat to discuss one particular problem, like the budget.

The board also has the right to meet in executive session behind closed doors when they wish. In recent years the open meetings promise has been a major issue and is a big one in this election. Most of the candidates, incumbents included, have promised more open meetings if elected.

Ford names new campaign chief

VAIL, Colo. (AP) President Ford shook up his campaign staff Wednesday, naming James Baker, his chief pre-convention delegate counter, to replace Rogers C.B. Morton as director of the fall campaign against Jimmy Carter.

The President told reporters that Morton will continue to be active in the campaign as head of a special multi-man steering committee. Responsibilities of the committee will be announced later, Ford said.

Baker, 46, a onetime Houston corporation lawyer, was instrumental in pinning down the last 100 delegates for Ford during the period before last week's Republican National Convention when the President was in a tight struggle with Ronald Reagan.

Young, Kelley plead Detroit's case

DETROIT (UPI) — Mayor Coleman A. Young has made it clear he's going all-out to end the soaring youth gang crime that has terrorized Detroiters this summer.

In a 30-minute address Wednesday night on Detroit's three major TV stations. Young explained steps taken to combat the youthful violence, detailed future plans and appealed for "everyone's help in combatting crime.

"Let me tell you as strongly as I can," Young said. "I will not...permit anyone, young or old, black or white, to take our city over because they cannot find a job or find a park to play in."

He referred to a number of recent incidents, such as the robbery of passengers on a city bus and the slaying of a priest at a local church, in his stern

message

"There is no excuse to terrorize a city bus...no excuse to shoot and to kill a gentle priest," he said. "We will stand for it no longer.

Meanwhile, Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley Thursday urged the state to lend a hand in giving Detroit the financial resources it needs to fight crime.

"Detroit is our largest city," Kelley said. "In many respects the reputation of this state is based upon how the people outside of Michigan view that city.

Kelley said he believes juvenile offenders — such as members of the youth gangs that have terrorized Detroit should be put to work in civic improvement projects.

bags are used to control pollination by either allowing the pollen from one particular plant to fertilize the ear it is a part of. or by bringing pollen from a different ear to a particular plant. The former method creates an inbred ear of corn, the latter, a cross of two inbreds.

The pollen-producing portion of the corn plant is the tassel. The ear must receive pollen from the tassel to produce a fertile ear of corn. When an inbred ear is desired, both the tassel and the ear are covered to keep other pollen away. But if a cross of two inbreds is to be achieved, the ear is covered to protect it from foreign pollen while another ear is covered to collect the grains. Then the bag collected pollen is transfered to the protected ear and cross pollination occurs.

Then a crew must follow to collect the tassels so they cannot fertilize the plants. This method demands more machinery and manpower than the MSU method and becomes more expensive.

This is the cheapest method of

After the ears are harvested, they are tested for the presence of desirable characteristics.

Directorship open following resignation

The position of the director of former Office of Equal Oppor the Human Relations Dept. at MSU will become vacant Sept. 1 with the resignation of Joseph McMillan. Robert Perrin, vice president for University and federal relations, said Thursday that the search for a new director has begun.

In order to secure applicants of the highest quality, the position will be advertised nationally, Perrin said. Applications should be sent to Perrin's office and will be accepted through Sept. 30.

Once the applications are received, an evaluation committee representing interested constituencies within the University will be formed to assist Perrin and President Wharton in reaching their decision on a person to be recommended to the MSU Board of Trustees.

Trustee choice must reflect commitment to higher education

The state Republican and Democratic party conventions will be held this weekend to decide a number of important party mat-ters. Not the least of which, though certainly treated in the past as inconsequential, will be the nomination of candidates to run for the two open positions on the MSU Board of Trustees.

Normally, neither the party nor the public at large care enough about these positions to give any more than a perfunctory glance at the candidates.

Without the necessary concern, it is unlikely that these positions will be given any more than their traditional thoughtless attention: candidates will be chosen on irrelevant criteria such as party service or to give the appearance of racial and genderic equality.

Ordinarily, this sort of party shennanigans would pass unnoticed, but the past two years have been a time of crisis for higher education in the State of Michigan. Those who are to be entrusted with the welfare of an institution of higher education must be aware of the situation they face.

State support of higher education plummeted from seventh in the nation to 39th. Some of those who currently sit on the board of trustees have admitted that we face the point where further budget cutbacks will deleteriously affect the academic services of the University.

The crisis is indeed serious.

The state party conventions should take note of this fact and attempt to choose their candidates on the basis of long standing knowledge of and commitment to higher education in the state. To this must be added the capability of dealing with the hard fiscal realities of 1976-77 without giving up this commitment.

Serious attention must be given to the problem of representing everyone's interest in quality higher education for the future on the MSU Board of Trustees and not merely one particular party or MSU's effectiveness as an institution of higher learning depends on this commitment.

KANSAS CITY — Everyone has his own poignant memory of the 1976 Republican National Convention. My favorite took place in the large Kemper Arena. It was Wednesday night and the band was playing "God Bless America" for the tenth time to shut up the raucous Reagan demonstrators who were blowing horns in support of their fearless leader whom they knew in their hearts would lose.

A correspondent with a notebook sat down next to me. He said he was a Soviet newspaperman and asked me if I had any comments on the convention

I knew what I said could affect Soviet public opinion of the American electoral system for years to come, so I chose my words carefully. "The voice of the turtle can be heard through the land."

He wrote it down. Then he read what he wrote: "The voice of the turtle?" "Or something like that," I told him. What you are seeing is democracy in action. You are a very lucky Russian. I have never seen so many Americans blowing horns for so long in all my years of attending political conventions. As a matter of fact, I haven't heard 'God Bless America' played so much to shut them up either."

Do you think this is the way to select a leader for a country?" he asked me, in what I detected was a critical tone. "You mean you don't select your leaders like this in the Soviet Union?" I asked in

"We do not," he said. "We have a Soviet Congress every four or five years, but since we have only one party we do not have to put on a circus like this."

"A band?" I asked. "You must have a band at a Soviet Communist Convention." "NO BANDS."

"But how do you keep the people quiet if you have no band to play 'God Bless America'?

"We don't play 'God Bless America' at a Soviet Congress and the people stay quiet when they are told. We are very serious at our conventions."

"If you don't nominate someone at a convention of the Communist Party, what do you do?"

"We sum up. We only meet every four or five years so our ministers report to us on what has happened."

"The speeches must be long," I said.

"Only six hours each. That is not very long when you are summing up the last five

Atrocity

In Dr. Hamermesh's letter on August 23 he stated that "yet another atrocity to the language" has been introduced by the State News when they use the word handicapper to mean a person with a "physical incapac (the State News did not ever use handicapper to mean this, rather a handicapper is a person who has a physical characteristic that is labled, by society, as a handicap).

If there has ever been an "atrocity" it was when society decided to call handicappers the handicapped, abnormal, disabled, crippled, freaks, etc. because these words have highly negative social meanings attached to them which contribute to negative attitudes against us, such as the feeling that we are not quite human, that we are not as capable as "normal" people and thus cannot hold jobs. We face extreme prejudice and discrimination because of these attitudes and we have been taking it since the

We will take it no more! We have finally come out of the closet to fight for our rights and that includes the right to develop terminology that relate to us the way we see fit. If the new use of the word handicapper is an "atrocity to the language" so be it! We would rather see an atrocity to the language than an atrocity against us.

Handicapper!

In regard to the letter to the editor from Dr. Hamermesh concerning the (mis)use of the terminology handicapper to denote sone with a "physical incapacity":

The State News is simply respecting the wish of a group of people to be called handicappers instead of handicapped. The State News also respects the wish of a group of people to be called Black rather than "nigger," Chicano rather than "spic," and Jewish rather than "kike."

Handicapper is a word coined by a group on the MSU campus — Students for Total Integration thru Greater Mobility and Accessibility (STIGMA). A handicapper is a person who experiences handicaps due to the limitations of their environment. To be labeled handicapped implies the total mental and physical incapacity of a person. Those handicappers on campus who are in the process of earning their degrees are certainly not incapacitated.

May we suggest to Dr. Hamermesh that through his preoccupation with proper English and lack of concern over people's feelings, that his mind is indeed handi-

Indian art reveals mood of Southwest

By KATHY ESSELMAN State News Reviewer

"American Indian Artists" engages the viewer in its exploration of Native American art in the Southwest.

The series explores the major forms of expression which dominate art in this region. The six-part program ranges in subject from pottery-making on the Santa Clara Reservation to a jet-set painter in Scottsdale.

It ranges in mood from devout prayers to Clay Lady digging her clay for pot-making portraits of the drunks propping themselves against the doorjambs in Phoenix. There is more than physidistance between potters Medicine Floser and Lonewolf and fashionable painter and print-maker Fritz Scholder. They stand at two ends of a spectrum of experience and attitude connected only by their racial identity.

Upcoming episodes introduce R.C. Gorman a Navajo painter and printmaker. Helen Hardin Santa Clara painter and Charles Loloma, renowned Hopi jeweler. Unique, elegant and intelligent each episode seeks to illuminate the art,

'Luv' ends Boarshead seaso

By PETER J. VACCARO State News Reviewer

The Boarshead Theatre completes a bright and happy summer season with its production of Murray Schisgal's comedy "Luv," a left-handed salute to love and marriage in America.

Schisgal's farce is dark, low-brow, indelicate and irreverent. Its objects of attack are divorce and marriage, the rights to happiness and self-esteem, the right to life and whether or not it is worth it after all. Schisgal's ideas are hardly new and theater these days may seem to have a surfeit of exactly such plays. But "Luv" stands apart from the rest. "Luv" has style.

The Boarshead company of three has style as well. Ensemble performances by John Peakes, Phil Heald and Kristie Thatcher are all first-rate.

Peakes is a thorough delight as the down-and-out Harry Berlin, a failure at life, a failure at love, a failure at suicide. Peakes' stage manner is broad and he explodes his character beyond the already outrageous exaggerations of the script. He unashamedly borrows technique and business from other actors who have handled the role — most obviously from Jack Lemmon — but he is a gifted actor and he makes the borrowings his own.

Phil Heald is strong as Milt Manville, "Berlin's best friend." The character is hardly likable, but Heald wants us to like him and we do. Kristie Thatcher is equally strong as Ellen Manville, the wife who is passed as a parcel from husband to best friend to husband again. Heald and Thatcher play off of each other well and their extended romp in the play's second act makes a New York City street bench as worthy a marital playground as any Feydeau bed.

Robert Miller's direction is true to the spirit of Schisgal's sense of farce. Movement is broad but fluid, sight gags for the most part

Provide Michigan with fairer tax system by shifting some of the tax off middleincome and retired taxpayers onto wealthier taxpayers;

·Ensure that the state loses no money by requiring that all revenue lost through a middle-income tax cut be replaced with somewhat higher tax rates on people with higher incomes.

Bernie Apol, director of the Michigan Elections Division, Thursday confirmed that the board was split down party

"I presented to the board the report of our check which showed an excess of 40,000 signatures," Apol said. "But the Republicans feel that a test sample should be made to determine if the signatures are all of registered voters."

However, Esther Waite, a Democrat who is chairperson of the board of canvassers, does not believe that party politics

"The board split, but you can't say along party lines," she said. "I voted for certification because the petitioner filed a petition with an excess number of signatures that were duly processed by the staff of the Elections Division. I don't think the Republicans are using delaying tactics. I think they voted in good faith, but they honestly believed that if a sample of the signatures wer analyzed, the petition would fall short of the necessary amount."

However, Waite added, examining a portion of the signatures is not a normal procedure. "The board has not followed this procedure in the past several years," she said. The citizens lobby, which has advocated a middle-income tax cut for the past several years, does not plan to let the proposal die without a fight.

"We are going to the Court of Appeals to demand that our proposal be placed on the ballot. We are confident the court will do it since we have met all of the qualifications," Ross said. "We expect to be placed on the ballot by the court sometime before next Emil's atmosphere is perfect for a cozy dinner of Lasagna, which they claim has the best sauce in town. Another favorite at Emil's is Canelloni, rolled Italian pastry filled with meat. smothered with mozzarella cheese and covered with Emil's spaahetti sauce.

Even though Emil's is a genuine Italian restaurant, they offer items for the vegetarian, including Fettucini, Manicotta or Italian Sea Shells. The menu at Emil's is rounded out nicely, they also offer seafood and American house specialties. Everyone should be happy eating at Emil's

Every evening Emil's offers a dinner special. Monday nights they offer Fettucini with your choice of their special cheese sauce or shrimp sauce. Tuesday nights are very popular at Emil's, it's their all you can eat Spaghetti and meatball special for $1.50. unfavorable and metered parking was rejected unanimously. But 60 per cent were in favor of parking on one side of a street only.

Street safety, speeding and traffic congestion were most often cited as problems in the neighborhood.

Of those surveyed who park on East Lansing streets, 86 per cent do so for less than three hours. The two most popular reasons for parking in the city are going to class (37 per cent) and going shopping (24 per cent).

Surprisingly, the question of whether these people have difficulty finding a parking space was not asked. But the survey did probe the reactions to a total ban of on-street parking in the city. Fringe-lot and ramp parking were offered as possible choices if a ban occurred. Over half of those questioned rejected these alternatives. And over half again were against taking a bus instead

MSU students were asked if they would use the commuter lot for parking and ride the commuter bus to campus. Seventy-four per cent were against this system.

One of the most important duties of the board of trustees is the final decision in the budget process. Though the University administration does the work of formulating the budget and deciding what to trim and what to fatten, that work is actually only a suggestion to the board.

The board recently voted to adopt the budget guidelines proposed by the administration for the 1976-77 academic year. The trustees still, however, must approve the final budget formed by those guidelines.

more money from the legislature, but that was not possible. Jamieson was in favor of requiring the University to install the $12-million precipitator on the power plant smokestack so that it would be in compliance with the Michigan Air Pollution Control Commission regulations.

"I don't think there should be double standards." he said. "Michigan State should be (treated) like a private enterprise. If the legislature won't appropriate the money, some compromise will have to be made between the University and the state.

Jamieson said the board of trustees should have executive sessions for personnel matters, but he added that the closed meeting could be abused by the trustees. If the trustees go into a closed session, he said, it should be to discuss only one issue and not to delay discussion of other issues in the open meeting.

The present Student Advisory Group to the trustees, the candidate said, should be enlarged from three members to possibly six or seven student representatives.

Jamieson said he feels the board is presently "pretty well constituted" with members other than business people persuade the legislature to give us more monies. Fleck suggested that a zerobased budget may be a good idea for MSU so that colleges and departments would have to prove their need. He approved of the administration's handling of the recent University cutbacks, saying the retrench-ments should always be selective instead of across-the-board cuts. "I don't like it at all." Fleck said of the recent tuition increase. "I could understand a tuition increase if students had access to other monies such as loans and scholarships to make up the difference. I detest the increase in tuition but I accept it as a fact of life, but we'd better make some compensation for the students and families of students."

Fleck said he feels student accessibility to the board of trustees is important, saving he would like the trustees to meet on a regular basis with students than once a month.

But he questioned whether or not the student groups on campus are representative of the student body.

"I'd like to be able to spontaneously walk in someplace (on campus) and say, 'What's up? That should be part of the responsibility of being a trustee.'

Martin said he would not object to either faculty or student unionization, because "both need representation."

"If there is enough student support for a student union, I wouldn't be opposed to it," he said. On the subject of affirmative action

Martin said he didn't think the University could ever do enough. "I do think the University administration has made every effort to even exceed minority hiring goals," Martin said. "But we need something with more clout, maybe more money for the department heads, as unrealistic as that sounds, to hire more minorities."

On women's athletics at MSU, Martin said that he feels the new athletic director. Joseph Kearney, "has some definite ideas about how to increase the level of support of the women's sports."

"They should be increased substantially." Martin said. "After all, women's softball was our only championship team last year. However, Martin said that the University would have a problem justifying taking money away from the men's department since it is a money-making proposition.

Martin said the administration should definitely keep a closer watch on the activities of the athletic department this year to avoid duplication of last year's problems.

After serving on the MSU Board of tion to the platform of the Democratic Trustees for 15 years, Warren Huff, party." D Plymouth, has decided to run for renomination once again.

The 67-year-old Huff has long been the board's open meeting advocate, particularly in dealing with matters that affect the students gravely.

"I am the only trustee who ever walked out of a meeting because it was secret." Huff said. "There isn't anything I can say anywhere that I can't say in public."

Opponents of the incumbent have criticized him for acting "like a Democrat only when it's time to be renominated." Huff, however, refutes this claim.

"I have never, in my career on the board, voted for or against any policy in contradic-

"I don't vote with the party simply because it's the party." Huff said. "I do it because I happen to agree with the platform. I've served on platform committees and I believe in it, so I vote with it."

Huff said that he definitely does not think the present board has done all they could to secure more public and private funds for the University.

"In spring Trustee Stack (Jack Stack, R-Alma) and I urged the board to make more of a public display of the difficulties of the University," he said

"We have the job of educating the public," Huff said. "We should speak to any group that will hear us to make the situation known.

In recent years the University has trimmed its budget by some $6 million. Huff said, and he added that it cannot realistical ly trim any more.

Huff is also an advocate of improving faculty relations. The problem, he said, lies in the changes the administration has made in recent years in the faculty grievance procedure.

Five years ago the University instituted grievance procedure that took so much red tape to complete the administration finally had to modify it, Huff said.

This left the faculty with the impression that the board is less interested in their concerns," Huff said.

On the possibility of faculty unionization, Huff said that if the faculty were organized into a union the channels of communication would be improved

Huff said he feels that the present athletic department will be better in-tegrated with the University because it is better organized.

He is not, however, pleased with the status of women's athletics at MSU

"We're still not doing what we should be doing for women's athletics," Huff said. "I happy with the attitude of the new athletic personnel but not with the results."

"As a trustee I would want more involvement with the legislature," she said We should work toward finding better ways of funding the University as well.

"The problem with state funding right now is that Gov. Milliken is not sympathetic to the needs of higher education in general." Lick said. Smydra warned against cheapening the bachelor's degree and the institution to the point where neither are credible.

Though he recognizes that "the ramifications of a faculty union are great," Smydra said he would not oppose the move because "the board has got to learn to deal with the

But when the Academic Council expanded, McCauley said, it became "totally ineffective" and "a debating society." He would like to return to the smaller council

He said he was sympathetic to the idea of better student representation to the board of trustees, but added that it is hard to find representative students because they stay on campus for a short time. McCauley was particularly concerned about the faculty at MSU.

"I've seen gross injustices in this University," he said. "Men and women who have contributed most to the University have received the least. I've seen valid

"MSU has the worst relationship with the sity themselves to improve relations with faculty in an intelligent and humane way."

Marketable jobs needed at MSU, Jamieson says

Norm Jamieson of Howell, a Republican candidate for the MSU Board of Trustees, graduated from MSU with a bachelor's degree in social sciences. He is now an insurance agency president.

"We've got to study the possibilities of working into the social sciences and liberal arts areas a 'mini-major' - maybe in accounting or business - so that when they (students) graduate they have a marketable skill," Jamieson said.

He said most students attend college to increase their job potential but jobs are not available for everyone. President Wharton, Jamieson said, has done a "fine job" in handling the University's fiscal crisis "Like any other governmental agency in the State of Michigan, they have to do the best they can with the money available," he said. "No trustee can solve every problem. The board was faced with a situation where they had to raise tuition. The first choice was to get

Goodrich criticizes tuition hikes

Larry Goodrich, 23, the youngest candidate vying for a seat on the MSU $\rm Board$ of Trustees, graduated with a bachelor's degree in French last year.

'I would vote against any tuition increase within one year after I was elected, just as a matter of principle." Goodrich said. "I'd like to see the board of trustees come up with

As an alternative, Goodrich suggested a reworking of the budget-making process, saying that at the end of each year the University departments hurry to spend all their allotted money so that they can get at least the same amount appropriated for the next

"The way the budget is put together encourages inefficiency and waste," he said. "As a trustee I'd work to institute a better budget-making process, both at MSU and in the state legislature.

Goodrich complained of politicking in some of the colleges but said he didn't think it would be possible to eliminate it.

As far as input in the board of trustees' decisions, Goodrich said he would like to see board meetings conducted more like city council meetings to encourage more participation from students and faculty.

CANDIDATE SUGGESTS BUDGET REVISION

The Republican candidate from Lansing criticized the current board for continually raising tuition, saying games are being played with the public.

another way to keep the University solvent." Goodrich called tuition increases the easiest answer to MSU's budget crunch and only a short-term solution.

Lick suggests office hours

for board members

Student input into the budgetary process is another issue Lick said needs to be altered.

"The University is here for the students," she said. "It's very important to consider what their needs are when considering something as major as the University budget."

Lick said that she is "very much in favor of open meetings" but realizes that certain subjects — such as strict dealings with personnel - should be dealt with behind closed doors. In reference to the recent athletic housecleaning in the wake of the NCAA discoveries and hearings, Lick said that the new people in the athletic department "seem to have the utmost intentions of preserving the integrity of the job.

However, the candidate did say that the University administra-tion should "take more of a role than previously" in watching over the athletic system. "This type of thing is actually built into the system," Lick said.

"So we must watch it. The pressures of winning sometimes create these problems. The possibility of faculty unionization was a real one at MSU this past year and Lick is fully expecting it to arise again. "If the faculty feel there is a major need for collective bargaining, they should have it," she said, "and the administra tion and the board should bargain in good faith. Lick said that while it would be better (for the University) if the faculty did not unionize, especially in the light of the current budget squeeze, she feels the faculty are second in importance only to the student. One of the new ideas Lick would like to see instituted as a board member is trustee office hours on campus. She suggested that the University provide an office where students and faculty could meet with trustees, "because they're not always available."

Larry Goodrich proposes alternative budget process

"I would like to see more students come to the board of trustees meetings and speak up." he said. "The University administration has one perspective but there are other sides that ought to be heard when there's a decision to be made.

The current Student Advisory Group to the trustees, consisting of three student representatives, is inefficient student input,

Goodrich said. But he questioned whether or not student groups are representative of the student body. 'I certainly don't think ASMSU represents all the students," he said. "Unfortunately, I'd say about 99 per cent of the students, don't give any input. I wish the student body would get off its duff and do

Griner advocates budget increases in women's athletis

On the issue of faculty unionization, Griner said she prefers that differences in bargaining could be worked out without a union, but if it were necessary, she sees no objections to it.

"I think that a faculty union has become an inevitability." she Concerning student unionization, Griner said she would be inclined to question and more thoroughly investigate the situation-

Griner said that the funding problem the University must deal with "boils down to a greater percentage of the tax base in the state being appropriated to higher education.

"Until that is changed to provide enough revenue for education, it will remain a real problem," she said.

Griner advocates a greater percentage of the athletic department's budget being spent on women's programs. She said that if more money were put into the women's programs, they might generate more revenue.

McCauley criticized the various methods of student evaluations

McCauley said he supports affirmative action programs which would encourage minorities and women into fields where they have not been represented, but he said he would not be willing to see the quality of education suffer as a consequence.

Saying he was equally concerned with student problems as faculty problems, McCauley said he would like students to have more choice in their living environments, including making their own rules in dormitories.

said. "To us, it's very positive terminology." Sawisch, who is a dwarf, spoke of the difficulties he experiences in the built environment. He said if anyone were to visit his house, they would "experience a handicap."

Recognizing handicappers as a minority group is essential in order to get their civil rights, Sawisch said.

"We have to segregate ourselves to the point that we can raise ourselves," he said.

Sawisch said that minority children have generally been raised by similar parents, but that handicappers are not.

John Hogg, chairperson of the Sign Language Action Movement, is partially deaf and said one problem the handicapper movement must alleviate is the segregation of blind, deaf and other groups from each other.

way is not consequential, Stevenson said. He would like to begin to change the structure of the board gradually to bring students and "Then we could go to the legislature and say 'look, it has worked beautifully for two years'," he said. Stevenson favors both faculty and student unionization because he said each and every group on the University must be officially represented "Lack of representation strains relations," he said. "The administration has a voice to the trustees, but the faculty and students really don't."

The candidate stressed the importance of the board being able to see all sides of an issue, not just the presentation of the University administration.

Stevenson does not believe the board of trustees should be involved in the day-to-day operations of the University on a departmental level.

There's smoke rising in other areas, like engineering, not just athletics," Stevenson said. "But I don't believe the trustees ought to be involved." The board of trustees, Stevenson said, should lay down the edict for the administration to follow. "If the administrators do not carry out the policy of the trustees, they should get rid of them," Stevenson said.
