MSU student pleads innocent to charges made saying Esmail's trial will be a military By JEANNE BARON

Sami Esmail pleaded innocent Tuesday to charges of belonging to an outlawed terrorist group and contact with two foriegn agents.

Esmail, a 23-year-old MSU student and a U.S. citizen, was arrested Dec. 21 in Israel. He is charged with being a member of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, whose stated aim is the destruction of Israel.

According to the charges, Esmail was recruited in the United States by Abu Bakr

Madur, a Libyan active in the front. Sources here said the charges refer to Abu Baker Madur, an MSU student in soil science now working in Libya.

The charges also say Esmail distributed the PFLP's journal, collected money for the organization at MSU and underwent weapons training in a Libyan training camp for terrorists during August 1976.

Israeli officials have acknowledged that Esmail went to Israel to visit his dying father, who subsequently died Jan. 4, and did not commit any terrorist act while in the country.

However, he is being charged under law that allows prosecution for violations of Israeli laws occurring abroad.

The charges add up to a maximum of 25 years in prison, but officials say under Israeli judicial procedure, sentences are usually no more than 15 years. Esmail's attorney, Felicia Langer, said she has asked for a "mini trial" in which he will contest the admissibility of a confession Esmail signed Dec. 26, that she contends was forced.

The trial date has not been set, but Abdeen Jabara, legal adviser to Esmail's defense committee, said Langer expects it to be held the first or last week in March. He added that Langer said the mini-trial will be held the first day of the criminal

Jabara relayed a message from Esmail saying he is innocent of the charges and thanking the MSU community for its

In the message, Esmail quoted one of his interrogators as saying "there is no democracy in Israel, you left it on the plane, democracy is only for foreign consumption."

Esmail also said it is important to reveal to the public what Israeli police do and how human rights are violated.

Jabara corrected an earlier statement he

one. He said the mix-up occurred because it was assumed that since there are only one or two civilian courts that handle residents of the West Bank, the trial would be held in a military court.

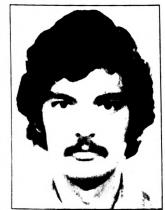

He stood by an earlier statement that the three judges who will hear Esmail's case are the same ones that heard the case of Terre Fleener, a U.S. citizen recently sentenced in Israel for spying.

A member for the Committee for the Defense of the Human Rights of Sami Esmail said the committee will continue its work in support of Esmail's human rights. Richard Greene said they will keep collecting funds to maintain the national campaign and for the time being, focus on circulating a petition asking that Mark Davidson, an American embassy official who witnessed the effects of Esmail's mistreatment, be allowed to testify during

Arms sale OK'd for Middle East

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, in a major policy shift announced Tuesday, approved the sale of war planes to Egypt for the first time as part of a $4.8 billion Middle East weapons package that would send more sophisticated aircraft to Israel and Saudi Arabia.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, declaring that the weapons sales would not upset the balance of power in the region. said Carter will soon seek congressional approval for the sale

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan had a lukewarm reaction. He told reporters in Los Angeles that the proposed sale is "premature" and should have been included in any overall peace settlement. He said the sale would shift the balance of power to

The proposed sale involves sending Egypt 50 U.S.-made F-5E jet fighters. Sixty of America's most advanced jet fighters, the F-15, would be sold to Saudia Arabia. Israel would get 75 of the F-15s and 15 F-16s. Both the F-15 and the F-16 are more advanced than the F5-E.

The Carter Administration said that if the Egyptian deal is blocked by Congress, it might reconsider the entire Middle East sales package including sales to Israel.

Because Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Israel all pressed for a prompt decision on their arms requests, "we thought it was important to bite the bullet now," said a top State Department official, who declined to be publicly identified.

Congress will have 50 days to veto any or all of the items in the arms package after receiving what is called "advanced noti fication" next Wednesday. Congressional forces sympathetic to Israel and others generally opposed to arms shipments already have signaled their resistance. Rep. Lester L. Wolff, D.N.Y.. signaled their immediately announced he will introduce a resolution to veto the sale of F-15s to the Saudis.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said the Common Market countries do not had warned last week that delivery of planes to Egypt would have a negative impact on peace negotiations.

Ethiopia may break U.S. diplomatic ties

By BRIAN JEFFRIES

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) -Ethiopia's head of state threatened on Tuesday to break diplomatic relations with Ogaden. the United States, Britain and West Germany, accusing them of cover Somalia and "creating bloodshed" in Africa.

The United States is trying to conceal its "bloodstained hands of involvement" in the Somali-Ethiopian war over the Ogaden region of eastern Ethiopia, Lt. Mengistu Haile Mariam said in a rare news conference appearance.

"There is no question that the government of the United States is giving political and moral support to the ruling class of Somalia. Since the support is being provided indirectly, the U.S. policy is given the semblance of neutrality," Mengistu

He said Saudi Arabia, Iran, Pakistan, Spain "and other reactionary countries" are supplying arms to the Somalis, and their stockpiles in turn are being replenished by the United States.

Mengistu, whose Marxist regime is receiving heavy Soviet military aid, also singled out Britain and West Germany as supporters of Somalia and said that unless the policies of the three countries are changed, "maintaining diplomatic relations these nations becomes totally meaningless.

American and British diplomats here said statement represented Ethiopia's strongest warning yet to the West over support for Somalia

But they noted that similarly worded statements have been issued previously by the Foreign Ministry and other Ethiopian officials, and they said they doubted any break in relations was imminent.

Mengistu also charged that the Egyptian government has decided to send 5,000 troops to help the Somalis in the Ogaden, but he did not say whether any had arrived in Somalia. He referred to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's statement to the U.S. Congress that he was considering sending military aid to Somalia.

Kelley requests refunds for electricity customers

LANSING (UPI) — Attorney General Frank J. Kelley today asked the Public Service Commission to order a refund of almost $1.2 million to Consumers Power Co. electric "We maintain that during the period from July 1977 to December 1977, Consumers Power improperly overcharged its customers $1,175,520 through improper use of the fuel adjustment clause," Kelley said in a brief filed with the PSC.

The fuel adjustment clause allows electric utilities to pass along to customers 90 percent of the increased cost of fuel needed to generate power.

Kelley said Consumers overcharged customers $842,886 by arbitrarily changing the salvage value of its spent nuclear fuel to zero, thus increasing the charge being passed

In previous decisions, the PSC has agreed with the attorney general's position and as a result, the company has made refunds of $8.6 million to its customers. Those refunds covered the period prior to July, 1977. Kelley said the other portion of the alleged overcharge resulted from inadequate inventory control methods used by consumers at its Cobb generating plant

Vance, however, said he believes the roposed sale: "vill foster and be supproposed sale: portive" of the negotiations. Interviewed late Tuesday on the Public Broadcasting System program "MacNeil Lehrer Report, he said the decision was based on the administration's feeling that the arms sales would be consistent with security requirements of the countries involved and would not upset the balance of power.

The pill may be 99 percent effective but there can also be harmful side effects. See page

Toxic gas kills seven in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Toxic gas killed seven persons and sickened at least 28 others Tuesday after a chemical was pumped into the wrong vats at a blocklong tannery, officials said.

Workers dropped one after another as the fumes spread.

"I seen one guy pulling another guy out of the basement," said James Reynolds, 50, an employee who was sickened by the fumes. "The guy who was pulling the man out, he went down too."

When we arrived, it was an eerie scene," said Deputy Fire Marshall Charles Pierce. "People were lying on leather belts. One man had a severe cut over his eye. They were all unconscious.'

A city Environmental Protection Agency official said sodium hydrosulfide brought to the tannery in a tank truck was "erroneously pumped" into storage tanks containing an acid. He said the combination created hydrogen sulfide, a poisonous combustible substance that smells

Seeding may have intensified Calif. storm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hours before a rain storm that devastated the Los Angeles area last week, the county Flood Control Department was seeding clouds to increase rainfall, officials said Tues-

County officials denied that seeding caused the floods, but National Weather Service officials said their investigation of the storm would consider the possibility that flooding was intensified by the seeding.

The seeding took place 10 miles from a canyon where some of the most devastating flooding took place, county flood officials said. But they said this would be farther away than would normally be affected by seeding.

Hank Martin, an engineer for the Flood Control District, said the seeding, which officials say increases natural rainfall as much as 15 percent but does not start storms, was conducted from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, when the rain from the storm was already falling heavily in some

Nuclear test veterans worried about effects

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 2,500 persons, concerned about possible radiation exposure from nuclear tests, have telephoned the Defense Nuclear Agency to say they were present at U.S. atomic tests as far back as the late 1940s, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

The agency has been ordered to collect records and to contact veterans of such tests to determine whether they have suffered serious illnesses such as leukemia as a result of any exposure to radiation at the tests.

In its statement, the Pentagon stressed that "the scientific and medical community has not reached agreement on any relationship between these test exposures and incidence of cancer.

But it said concern has risen in recent months "that exposure to low levels of ionizing radiation in these tests . . . might result in some increased risk of leukemia or other cancers in later years of life."

Last week in Boise, Idaho, 44-year-old Paul Cooper died from leukemia he claimed was caused by a 1957 atomic explosion he witnessed while in the Russian flu sweeps naval academy

BALTIMORE (AP) — Russian flu has been confirmed as the disease that swept the U.S. Naval Academy last week, Maryland's health secretary said Tues-

Dr. Neil Solomon, the secretary, said seven of 12 academy specimens sent to the department's laboratory had tested positively as A-USSR 77, the formal name of the ailment that was first spotted in the Soviet Union last year. The outbreak was the first time the disease was confirmed

A spokesperson for Solomon said the five other specimens are still being tested, "but those results don't matter. Medically, we're convinced it was the Russian flu that put the academy to bed."

More than 3,000 of the 4,300 midshipmen at the academy, in Annapolis, reported to sick bay with what school spokespersons described as a "shortterm viral infection."

Dal Malkey, an academy spokesperson, said no new cases of the flu had been reported today and that all but two of the middies stricken with the illness were now back to full duty.

World population growth declining

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rate of the world's population growth has unexpectedly peaked and is now actually declining, according to reports from population experts Tuesday.

The decline was attributed mainly to "a sizable and generally unexpected decline in fertility in the poorer countries of the world," according to Nick Eberstadt, an associate at the Harvard Center for Population Studies.

"This fertility decline is good news for the world — especially the poor world," Eberstadt told the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advance ment of Science.

Eberstadt reported that the rate of world population growth had reached a peak of 1.9 percent per year "somewhere around 1970" and was down to 1.7 percent in 1977.

"The drop in fertility means that world population will stabilize sooner and at a lower level than previously expected," according to the Eberstadt report.

Strikers asked to resume talks at White House

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter called Tuesday for striking miners and the coal industry to resume negotiations at the White House "to end the present stalemate." He said if that does not produce a settlement he will take "stronger measures."

'I continue to support the collective bargaining process, however, the welfare of this country must be my overriding concern," said Carter.

"The negotiations at the White House must be viewed as a final opportunity for the bargaining process to work," Carter said. "If it does not, I will have no choice but to resort to stronger measures." Asked at the conclusion of his statement if the stronger measures would include invoking the Taft-Hartley Act to order the

In announcing his request that the coal talks move to the White House, Carter said he was directing Labor Secretary Ray Marshall to participate personally in the negotiations and to give him a daily

Meanwhile, a top industry official called for the union's bargaining council to review the contract it rejected overwhelmingly last Sunday.

The request, made in a letter sent to UMW President Arnold Miller from Joseph P. Brennan, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, gave no indication of whether industry bargainers are ready to return to the negotiating table. Brennan sent the letter before Carter issued his statement

"In view of the high cost of the settlement, and its solutions to many of the major problems concerning both the industry and the UMW, we find it difficult to believe that the contract has received fair and adequate consideration." Brennan wrote. "We urge that the bargaining council now review the contract carefully and in its entirety, and we feel sure that such action will result in approval of our agreement," the letter said. A union spokesperson had no immediate comment on the letter. Earlier in the day. Carter had summoned Marshall and Energy

Secretary James R. Schlesinger to the White House for a report on Administration officials had continued to rule out the possibility that Carter might immediately invoke the Taft-Hartley Act, in which the government would seek a court order directing the 160,000 striking miners to return to work for an 80-day cooling off period. A White House official, who asked not to be identified, said he expected Carter to act quickly. Any new administration move would be directed at alleviating job-threatening coal shortages and promoting an early resumption of industry union negotiations, the White House source said.

Argentina decrees sects must register with state

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) - All religions except Roman Catholicism must register with the state or be banned in Argentina, the military government declared in a de cree published by newspapers Tuesday.

The decree says registration can be refused, providing effectively for more religious bannings by the two-year-old government of this 90 percent Catholic country which has already outlawed three sects. The law, partially reproduced by the newspapers, will take effect in a month's time when it is published in the government's official bulletin. Religious sects will then have

90 days to register on an official list, the decree said. Religious organizations seen as "injurious to the public order, national security, morality or good habits" can be kept off the register.

Soviets make offer to replace planned U.S.-Phillipine plant

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - President Ferdinand E. Marcos' wife said Tuesday that the Soviet Union has offered to replace a planned U.S.-built nuclear plant whose design and financing arrangements are now being questioned by the Americans. Imelda Marcos, one of her husband's chief advisers, made the disclosure as a U.S. scientists' group leveled the latest blast at the power project, whose main developer is the American firm Westinghouse International. The Union of Concerned Scientists said the design for the 620-megawatt, $1.1 billion plant 45 miles northwest of Manila is unreliable and probably unsafe. Foundation work has begun on the project, scheduled for completion in the early 1980s.

U.S. news reports last month implied irregularities in the financial arrangements for the plant, saying Marcos' golfing partner, Herminio T. Disini, made millions of dollars on the deal as Westinghouse's representative and as owner of several companies with subcontracts.

Westinghouse and Disini, who is also husband of a cousin of Mrs. Marcos, denied wrongdoing.

Mrs. Marcos told The Associated Pra Tuesday that Soviet Ambassador Valen Michaelov offered to replace the Westin plant last month, the day after an angry threatened to cancel the U.S. deal because negative reports: Michaelov offered her "a complete plant, a reactor, to replace the Westinghouse on even offered to help us develop our un resources," Mrs. Marcos said.

She said her husband has not decided to accept the Russian offer. An aide to Mid said the ambassador would not comment. Daniel F. Ford, executive director of the of Concerned Scientists, said Tuesday the financial questions about the plant as "What they should be worried about is what the thing will work, and whether it will safely," he said.

Mild recruitment programs for the college have been begun. While the college has traditionally sent letters to eligible students urging them to join and explaining the advantages of membership, now the program officials are using follow-up calls after the letters have been mailed.

RHA TO RULE THIS WEEK

Movie tax violates code?

By KY OWEN

As a result of a Monday night hearing, the Residence Halls Association Judiciary is expected to rule this week on whether the new RHA movie tax violates the organizaton's constitution.

RHA members attended the hearing, though they had said earlier they would not.

The issue surrounding the hearing stems from the RHA plan to charge all dormitory residents a refundable $3 movie tax beginning spring term. The tax will allow students to see RHA movies for no admission charge. Off-campus residents could also purchase tickets Wonders Hall resident Bruce Guthrie brought the case to the RHA judiciary, challenging the constitutionality of the tax collection on the basis that it is inconsistent with the preamble of the RHA constitution.

The preamble states in part that RHA was formed to help promote campus activities. Guthrie argued that the movie program will not fulfill that goal. He criticized the provision in the new program which would allocate 15 percent of the total tax monies collected to an alternative movie fund. Of that amount, $3,000 has already been allocated to the Union Classic Film Series, and students with the RHA movie passes will be able to attend Union Classic films for no charge.

Guthrie said the program might actually decrease campus activity, because the result will be a lack of diversity in film offerings. The additional funding will "help destroy RHA's competitors," because the groups will have to give RHA a list of films to be shown a term in advance, he said, adding that RHA is given an unfair advantage.

Guthrie said only student groups may apply for funds. Beal Film group and Directors Choice, the two largest alternate groups, are not registered student organizations and cannot apply for funds. Leach said he did not realize Beal and Directors Choice were not registered student organizations.

"I hope in the future they can apply," he said. RHA president Robert Vatter reminded the judiciary that all results of the new program are speculative at this point. "It's a question for the future. I'm confident the movie program is step forward. Don't condemn it yet," he said. Guthrie also charged that once the program is established, RHA will not be pressured to show the high-demand popular films, because students will have paid the tax in advance But Leach said RHA "will still use the same criteria" for choosing

Guthrie said the campus film program is controlled by a group representing 40 percent of the student body. "The on-campus students will be determining what off-campus students see," he said. "The almost certain effects will be immediate and permanent. Beal and Directors Choice will Vatter told the judiciary he did not think the preamble to RHA's constitution binds the board on specific action "A preamble is set up as a summary of what we do. I don't think a preamble binds any group," he said.

"I never considered the preamble to be part of the constitution. The articles (of the constitution) bind us.

Vatter also said that in Black's Law Dictionary, a preamble is defined as an explanatory statute, not an essential act, and is Guthrie argued that a preamble is "more or less a moral obligation that a group adheres to.

Though MSU Board of Trustees will not consider raising room and board rates for next year before April, conditions are now developing that may make a hike necessary, housing and food administrators said.

"With the state of the economy the way it is, I think it would be safe to say there will be a raise in room and board for next year,' said Lyle Thorburn, assistant vice-president for housing and food services. But despite rising food and transportation costs, two years ago we stopped. We use pure there will probably not be a room and board hike for next term.

MSU has to buy larger quantities of lettuce in order to make up for the rotten heads that come in, Eckel said.

Yet the current prices will not affect room and board for next term "if we can help it," Thorburn said.

Orange juice has just come up recently, too," Eckel said, because of the Florida frosts. Fortunately, MSU ordered its stock a few days before the juice rose two dollars in price.

Transportation costs also may have an effect on food costs. Rail prices, the charge of railroad companies for hauling products may go up from 6 to 10 percent next year, Eckel predicted. "We know transportation costs have come up primarily because of labor costs," Thorburn said.

Minimum wage went up 35 cents an hour - from $2.30 to $2.65 - on Jan. 1, 1978 with an additional raise in 1979, Eckel said. Social Security payments have also gone up. The result of the benefits will increase labor costs, eventually raising room and board fees, he said.

Yet it remains to be seen if MSU can continue to effectively cut back on prices to keep from raising board rates.

"We know the cost of food is up about 6 percent from last year," Thorburn said. "Of course we feel pleased to know we're lowest room and board rates in Michigan, but not the lowest in quality. That's been done by holding the increase down," he said.

electoral scene. William Milliken has announced he will seek a third term as Governor. His decision is hardly a surprising one, but his choice for a running mate - former Lieutenant Gov. James Brickly - is. Milliken's announcement was quickly followed by a major surprise. U.S. Sen. Robert Griffin, who last year announced that he would retire at the end of his current term in 1979, changed his mind and Monday said he would seek re-election.

The more things change, apparently, the more they stay the same. The Republicans now have political candidates much to their liking; they are the same candidates they had the last time around. How this situation came about seems at once random and contrived. There is, evidently, a method to Republican madness.

Consider: Lieutenant Gov. James Damman has been craftily squeezed into political oblivion. Damman, a liability to Milliken in the 1974 race when allegations of unethical conduct were leveled against him, had announced his candidacy for Griffin's Senate seat. Now that Griffin has decided to seek re-election, Damman, a realist if nothing else, recognizes the futility of challenging Griffin for the Republican nomination and has withdrawn from the race.

At the same time, Milliken's decision to make Brickley his running mate has left Damman in a political vaccuum. This squeeze play has effectively removed the current Lieutenant Governor as an issue in the upcoming campaign.

Consider too the fate of Oakland County Prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson, an announced candidate for Griffin's seat. Patterson is an extreme right-winger and an embarrassment to both Michigan and the Republican party. Patterson announced his candidacy on Friday which, he alleges, immediately threw the Republicans into turmoil and prompted Griffin's candidacy.

Unlike Damman, Patterson no intention of withdrawing plan to attack the bosses," he Monday. "They are making sions behind closed doors in rooms.

If Patterson entertains serious notions of wresting nomination from Griffin, the tional antecedents of much of policies he espouses become apparent. Milliken will be Republican nominee for Gove and Griffin will be the Repub nominee for the Senate. much is certain.

What is also certain is that will be an interesting year Michigan politics.

Thanks a lot, Anthony

Anthony Braxton is one incredible musician and artist, and it only seems proper to go back and talk about what made his residency last week such a special happening.

Yet it is difficult to know where to begin. I'll start at the end: the Starboard Tack restaurant Saturday night after the big concert. Members of the MSU Jazz Band and others were taking part in a massive energy release, taking turns jamming the old favorites musicians didn't know what to make of this cat Braxton at first.

When the Jazz Band, for instance, ran through his material for the first time, they looked a bit bewildered. Apparently they were not used to playing music that had no key signature, that didn't even deal with accepted Western notions of harmony. An alto player said, "It would help if we could go a little slower." The other musicians laughed and instantly agreed. Anthony obliged

Anthony Braxton

I also think the people at Showcase jazz deserve to be mentioned for coming up with the idea of bringing a great musician to MSU to work with student musicians in a learning experience situation. They definitely made some mistakes in organizing the thing, but as Gary Wilson said at the Starboard Tack, "Anthony was the perfect person to have doing this, because he was so good about the difficulties. We thought of this as a first,

back and forth, getting up and taking spur-of-the-moment solo

The prevailing atmosphere was not that of a nightclub, and certainly not that of a concert. It was a party. Most everyone there had just shared a very inspiring experience, and was full of enthusiasm and good feeling.

"Seems there's an intensity that develops," student pianist Dean Di-Pierro told me. "He makes just regular musicians able to express what he has on his mind. Each individual musician has that free style in them, but they're afraid to let it out. But when a guy like Braxton comes along, he reassures everybody that this is really it, and all that music flows out."

I thought back on how only four days before, I was in a little office in the Music Practice Building talking to Gary Wilson of Showcase jazz, who was smoking a cigarette and looking nervous. His colleague Bob Gold was on the phone calling musician after musician. trying to round up enough people for Anthony's chamber music Anthony was downstairs rehearsing what people he had, but the music was full of strange silences due to all the missing parts.

"We went into this idealistically," Gary said. "Maybe we just miscalculated or misunderstood the community or something. I'm mystified."

Lack of response was a big problem all through the residency. In fact, the Saturday concert was almost called off.

I hung out at the various rehearsals, partly to write things down, partly to listen to the music. Seems a lot of the at first, but after a few minutes said. "We can't play this too slow. I prefer By the end of that first Jazz Band rehearsal, it was apparent that another one would have to be scheduled for immediately before the Saturday night concert. None of these people would be getting any compensation for their hard work except the pleasure of playing the music. "I wish there was some way we could adequately thank them for what they're doing," Bob Gold said to me. "Let's just hope they don't blow themselves out." They didn't, of course. I have tremendous respect for all the musicians who

Like Anthony said to the audience in the music building Auditorium Saturday night, "You have a terrific creative orchestra right here in this town." At any rate: Thanks a lot, Anthony, for everything. We're all looking for ward to seeing you again when you bring your quartet here in April.

Spirits defended

After reading Tom Shanahan's column I as convinced it was merely a replica of the Joe Falls and Lynn Henning articles concerning the Spartan Spirits' "maniacal" members. I see no reason for unimaginative repetition. And Shanahan's column was indeed unimaginative. But more importantly, it was a distortion of the truth

Of course, I must admit that as an avid fan of Michigan State basketball and as a proud member of the Spartans Spirits I am omewhat biased. However, unlike Shanahan, I don't let my biases distort the truth. Shanahan, in fact, seems to know very little about the Spartan Spirits and what they have contributed to MSU basketball. The Spartan Spirits are without question part of the magic behind Jenison's unprecedented sellouts. They ignite the crowd with their undying enthusiasm. They are, to be sure, a of the long-awaited pervades the whole of MSU

In Shanahan's column he unjustly persecutes the entire 300-member spirit section based on the actions of a few front-row members. But who is Shanahan to sit in judgment over 300 people and decide if they have class or not? I cannot help but believe had the Spartans been victorious over U-M, the Spartan Spirits would have been saluted instead of stabbed! In closing, the only lack of class concerning this matter is the distortion of truth in Shanahan's reporting.

Fun, games, sex

I quite agree with the prudish prejudices of the "students of journalism" who were

Seriously, though — if it's possible to be serious on such a subject — you should have realized that SEXUALITY is the great sacred god (or goddess?) of this sexrepressed society, and s/he is not to be spoken of, photographed or written about in such respectable medium as the public press. S/He is only to be worshipped in grafitti on the walls of the latrines on the campus, spoken of only in raucous accents in bars and taverns after midnight, and pictured only in "hot" media - in Laurel and Hardy films, Tarzan and Jane, Batman

Unless you have something bad, evil, sinful, naughty, to report about H/im/er. Why don't you save up and print full-color shots of a rape victim (male or female) after the act? If these are in the nude, then I am sure you "students of journalism" will applaud and call it "hard facts reporting."

Go back to you New York Timeses, you "students of journalism," and leave us to our fun and games

Smith is continuing her media here with a compilation of poetry itten since 1974. A collection of photographs, sketches and an song lyric, Babel puts down in white the artistry that Smith has mpted to transfer to vinyl. Away rock-and-roll context of the Patti oup, Smith's poetry/lyrics stand d are in many ways more revealing not much Babel can be compared one book of poetry that does come Jim Morrison's The Lords and The New Creatures. Ironically, both Morrison's and Smith's careers are inversely related -Morrison's poetry saw publication after his success with the Doors, while Smith's poetry was published long before her current band's formation. Thus Smith's poetic talents can hardly be as suspect as the late-blooming Morrison.

Yet ironically, much of Babel is reminiscent in style and structure to Morrison's own work. Certainly, Morrison and the Doors have influenced both Smith and her guitarist Lenny Kate on purely musical vels; though Smith might not admit to it, the subliminal image from which she pulled her Horses LP's title at least partially resembles that of Morrison's Horse Latitudes both in theme and setting.

In fact much of Babel conveys the same poetic landscape Morrison continually chose to dwell in. Both poets profess deep affiliations for French symbolism, and names such as Rimbaud, Verlaine, Genet and even Allen Ginsberg often have been cited as influential figures in both of their

For example, in Morrison's Lords: Snakeskin jacket Indian Eves Brilliant hair He moves in disturbed Nile Insect

And in Smith's Babel: we scratch across the sands scale the seizure the immediate terrain stretches of sandpaper stroking perfect skin i am silent and setting w/ hands folding before my flabby

Aside from the obvious geographic similarities, there is an underlying sexual tone in both Smith and Morrison's work. Interestingly, Morrison's tone is one of the sexual aggressor, Smith's that of the passive recipient. Morrison used to enjoy making distinctions between Appollonian and Dionysian personalities, and surprising ly the dichotomy fits the relationship between Smith and Morrison well. Smith, despite the almost continual sexual revelry displayed in her poems, never really seem to escape the role of the cool, detached intellectual observer. Morrison, on the other hand, has not only displayed his driven, wild eyed temperament in Lords, but also in his entire career with the Doors, from the black-leather-snakeskin mythology, to the wild genital exhibition that peaked his career in Miami in 1968.

Rock, art and poetry may describe what Patti Smith is attempting to blend as a writer and as a musician; related though those three terms may be, they are not wholly synonomous, as parts of Babel, make evident. As poetry alone, there is a wordiness in Smith's work that occasionally is marring, making her more concise poem stand out as clearly being better. The best selection in Babel is "jeanne d'arc," which couldn't in any way be more concise:

i feel like i feel like shit i need a drink and not vinegar neither i dont want to die i feel like a freak dont let me cut out i wasnt cut out to go out virgin i want my cherry hammer amous love me

And by and large, it is this more direct, less "literary" style that suits Smith best. Allusions to the French symbolists or modernists aside, Smith's very rock-oriented nature makes rock themes like sex. drugs and depression the very best subjects she can work with. When she does so Babel, she excels.

After the Punk Rock implosion

1988: The New Wave Punk Rock Explosion Hawthorn Books

By John Neilson

As Caroline Coon points out, the Punk Rock movement of 1977 was in many respects similar to the Psychedelic music of 1967 – both alienated at least as many people as they converted, and therefore each had to build up its own subculture to accommodate a lifestyle subversive to the mainstream of society. Both movements created their own network of clubs, shops, magazines, and boutiques, forming an "underground" from which they could verbally assault either a war-torn America or an economically floundering England.

When seen on a philosophical and musical level, however, the two eras could not be further apart. The summer of Peace, Love and Hope gave way to the summer of Hate as flowers and sitars were replaced by razors and Sten Gun guitars. (It's no coincidence that the Clash named one of their songs "Hate and War.")

When the smoke and dust cleared away at the end of the turbulent '60s, it became obvious that the counter-culture had barely dented the monolith of "straight" society. Despite all the idealism and protest. Nixon was in the White House and the war in Vietnam lumbered on. Jim Morrison said, "We want the world and we want it NOW!" but neither he nor anyone else figured out

It is unlikely that Punk Rock will do any better in the political arena than its forerunners did. Johnny Rotten's scathing diatribes of England's monarchy and crumbling economy were great pieces of publicity-fodder, but the only political actions to result from these were almost total bans on the public performance and airplay of the Sex Pistols' music. The reactionary backlash did not prevent the Pistols' singles from leaping to the top of the British charts, however, and a New Wave of rock music was born.

Rock bands, which are different from their American counter rock music. If by the end of its lifespan, Punk Rock has infused parts in many ways. Younger, less intellectual, and less any of its energy and conviction into the mainstream of rock, who avant garde, the British "punks" come mainly from low-income could say that the trouble was not worthwhile?

working-class backgrounds. In fact, some of the musicians could not afford to play were it not for the country's welfare system, commonly referred to as "the dole." (One might almost expect to find this book in the Sociology section of the local book store, rather than under music.)

What the English Punk bands lack in sophistication they more than compensate for in power. At its best, this brand of rock is pure gut level fury - born in the spleen and aimed for the jugular. When Rotten snarls "We mean it, maaannnnn!" you know playing for keeps, and even after repeated listenings, songs such as "Anarchy in the U.K." and the Jam's "In the City" lose none of their original kick.

Even the scores of bandwagon jumping "me too" Punk bands display more energy than your standard American radio fare. They also have something that has been absent too long from the rock music world — commitment (even if it's only commitment to the idea that they have a right to play).

Perhaps the key to Punk Rock's popularity lies in its relationship to its fans. Coon points out that many of the newer bands were formed when enthusiastic followers of the leading Punk bands were persuaded to take up their own instruments and have a go at it." This "anyone can do it" philosophy is a far cry from the aloof stances taken by the jet-setting superstars of contemporary rock. When ex heros like Mick Jagger and Rod Stewart spend their time with royalty and Hollywood stars, it's only natural for working class kids to look for new heros.

The Sex Pistols played their first gig in November, 1975, and they reportedly had their power turned off by the show's sponsor after only five minutes. Coon, who was writing for the music weekly Melody Maker, caught their act soon after this, and by her own admission she was hooked. Much of 1988 consists of articles that appeared in Melody Maker as the Punk Rock scene unfolded.

The interview/articles manage to touch all the bases of the movement (up through July, 1977, at least). The top bands (Sex Pistols, the Clash, the Damned, and the Stranglers) are all highlighted; but to keep things in perspective, even non-entities like the Slits receive coverage. Also a file in the back of the book briefly describes some of the up-and-coming bands, some of which (the Jam) have since joined the top ranks of the movement.

Coon was one of the most outspoken proponents of Punk during her stint at Melody Maker. Her book also displays this partisan feeling, although she never lets it get in the way of her reporting. The book is profusely illustrated, and there are several tastefully done montages of pictures and news clippings.

1988 is being released at a crucial point in the evolution of Punk Rock. With the breakup of the Sex Pistols the movement may lose some of its focus, although it will undoubtedly continue to evolve and improve. If nothing else, the fact that the Pistols did not slowly degenerate into self parody like so many of the bands they criticized adds validity to the music they left behind.

The Psychedelic movement of the '60s may not have changed Coon's book focuses almost exclusively on the English Punk the world, but it did have an immeasurable impact on the face of

THIN CITIES I

Isaura, city of the thousand wells, is said to rise over a deep, subterranean lake. On all sides, wherever the inhabitants dig long vertical holes in the ground, they succeed in drawing up water, as far as the city extends, and no farther. Its green border repeats the dark outline of the buried lake; an invisible landscape conditions the visible one; everything that moves in the sunlight is driven by the lapping wave enclosed beneath the rock's calcareous sky.

Consequently two forms of religion exist in Isaura.

The city's gods, according to some people, live in the depths, in the black lake that feeds the underground streams. According to others, the gods live in the buckets that rise, suspended from a cable, as they appear over the edge of the wells, in the revolving pulleys, in the windlasses of the norias, in the pump handles, in the blades of the windmills that draw the water up from the drillings, in the trestles that support the twisting probes, in the reservoirs perched on stilts over the roofs, in the slender arches of the aqueducts, in all the columns of water, the vertical pipes, the plungers, the drains, all the way up to the weathercocks that surmount the airy scaffoldings of Isaura, a city that moves entirely upward

Grover Washington eloquent

By REGINALD THOMAS State News Reviewer

It was to be the second apearance of Grover Washington Jr. at the Lansing Civic Center in a year. Everyone who appreciates the artistic flow and ability of Washington and the great pianist Ramsey Lewis there.

Washington had just released his new album Live at the Bijou and Lewis was riding the popularity of Love Notes. The crowd was ecstatic with joy when classic jazz pianist Ramsy Lewis came on stage.

To the delight of the audience members, Lewis broke into a mellowly sweet tune entitled "Kufanya Mapenzi (Making Love)." This tune featured Lewis on acoustic piano, and an elaborate guitar solo.

Lewis performed in his usually classical manner and the audience showed its appreciation. Shouts of "Play it Lew." and "Jam Ram" gave it an informal touch while Lewis' attire gave the concert a formal Grover introduced his backtune "In Crowd" as his encore up group as the one that played with him at the Bijou. This was to let everyone know it was not a studio trick to get them to the concert, said Washington.

From there they went into "Lock it in the Pocket" and "It's star time," shouted delighted the audience with the soulful flair of his saxophone. Grover continuously alternated between saxophones during his set. But the thing that stood out most was his blending of electric violin and saxophone.

> John "Munchkin" Blake showed that he too is a masterful musician in his own right. Adapting his electric violin to blend with the percussions of Dr. Gibbs and the other members of Lock Smith, Blake demonstrates that a violinist can travel with a jazz saxophonist and produce music that people will accept.

> The group played two tunes that are to appear on Washing-ton's next release, "Santa Cruz" and "The Trio Tune."

> "The Trio Tune" begins with the violin, soprano saxophone and bass fiddle - explaining the reason for its name. The rest of the group comes in and sets a mellow mood with this tune. The violin on this tune adds much to the sound of Washington.

> At last year's concert, Gibbs first introduced Lansing-area residents to the Chekeree. Now he was returning with it as a buildup to the tune many were waiting for - "Mister Magic."

> Grover took the show out with this tune and played it as intently and eloquently as ever before. No matter how many times this tune is performed by Washington, it always sounds as good as or better than the time before.

Grover too left the stage, only to be called back for two encore numbers. Grover completed his set with "Funk-foot" and "Paradise." And the audience was still hollering for

Joel Mabus: country

By STEVE SZILAGYI State News Staff Writer

Big, bearded Joel Mabus could look pretty scary if it weren't for the slight twinkle in his eye that doesn't quite fit with his large, six foot plus frame. Playing a banjo or a tiny mandolin, Mabus looks more jolly than frightening as he whips through an old country ballad or lightning-fast bluegrass tune.

The local folksinger-musician has quite a bit to be jolly about these days. After 15 years of playing bluegrass, the East Lansing favorite and former MSU student has released his first record

The album is called Grassroots, and features Mabus singing and playing guitar, banjo, and mandolin. Mabus admits it won't set the music world on fire, but he is happy with the way the final product turned out, and is optimistic about how it will help his career. Mabus said it has taken just about a year for the album to be made. He said he started to get the ideas for the album last year at about this time, and by March was ready to take his musicians with him into the recording studio.

The recording was done at ATP Studios, "an operation out of a guy's house near Potterville." The mastering — transferring the music from tape to a metal disc to be made into record stamps was done in Nashville

"It surprised me when I heard the final product, after hearing all the steps it had to go through," Mabus said. "It all baffles me what they do to turn the tapes into an album. But I was surprised when it came back with such a nice, professional, album-type sound."

Mabus hopes to see his album distributed nationally, possibly through Rounder Records. 'When you're talking about bluegrass and folk music, though, distribution channels are a lot different than when you're talking about Columbia or RCA," he said. In this case, we have to get a lot of different people to distribute the album, but with the big companies there's a big machine ready to go.'

Mabus was also happy with the musicians who helped him record. Foremost in the credits is Frank Wakefield, who played mandolin on some of the cuts. Wakefield is a popular bluegrass star, and a protege of Grateful Dead guitarist Jerry Garcia. Mabus considers it a stroke of luck to get "a talent like Frank Wakefield" to join him on an album.

Also on the album are some of Mabus friends but Lansing. On guitar are Brian Bishop and Joe Fitzpatrick, the Mabus and Ray Kamalay make up the Native Sons bluegual Playing bass is Frank Youngman, who plays for the led World String Band.

Mabus' background in music actually goes back to before born. His parents were part of a band that played when time was hard to find during the Depression. They traveled the Illinois selling "Prairie Farmer" magazine, and at night give a show to induce people to buy it.

'That was in the days of the big 'barn dance' shows on Mabus said. "My parents worked for station WLS out of which was owned by Sears, which owned "Prairie fa

Though Mabus never got to hear his father play (an emple tells about in the song "Daddy Played the Fiddle" wha the album), he grew up close to bluegrass music. When about nine years old, he and his brother searched all our Louis just to find a five string banjo so they could learn to He came to MSU in the fall of 1971, armed with a National Scholarship, as a freshman majoring in anthropol eventually left school without taking a degree, and ha

In East Lansing, he can often be seen at Lizard's and the World, and has opened shows for Mariah Coffeehouse, in the Norman Blake concert last week. He also gives less Elderly Instruments.

Mabus has a hard time categorizing the type of music h on the album.

"I've played bluegrass from the beginning," Mabu "There's sort of a link that ties all this music together some I can't put a name on it."

"It's not really country music. That's why I picked the 'Grassroots.' It's as close as anything to what the must

As the deal was announced eports circulated here that Begin was being asked to make an early visit to Washington to confer with Carter. The Israeli leader was due sometime in late March or early April to participate in celebrations marking Israel's 30th anniversary.

Reliable sources said diplomatic feelers had been sent to Jerusalem asking Begin to move that visit up.

The arms package provides 50 F-5Es for Egypt, at a cost of $400 million; 60 F-15 Eagle jets for Saudi Arabia, at $2.5 billion; and 15 F-15s, worth $400 million, and 75 F-16s, at $1.5 billion, for Israel.

The sale of warplanes to Egypt would begin with the delivery of 10 jet fighters next fall. Delivery of the F-15s and F-16s to Israel and the F-15s to Saudi Arabia would begin in the second half of 1981, U.S. officials said.

The State Department official said one factor in approving arms for Egypt was Soviet-supported build up in Libya. A Defense Department official, who declined to be identified, said the Saudi sale was prompted partly by "a substantial threat from Iraqi forces." These forces, with Soviet aid, are growing as rapidly as any in the Middle East, he said.

The Saudis "are very con-cerned and rightly so," the official added.

Vance said the administration refused to grant Sadat's request for the sophisticated F-15s. Disputing Sadat's assertion that the F-5E is a "tenth rate plane," Vance called that aircraft "one of the best short-range fighters that exists.'

He said the U.S. commitment to Israel's security remains firm and that Carter's decision reflected Israel's needs. As for the Egyptian arms sales, he said the United States has a basic interest in responding to Egypt's "legitimate needs."

And Vance paid tribute to

MSU-Purdue game in late afternoon

Due to the recent energy crunch in Indiana, Thursday's MSU-Purdue basketball game will be played at 4:35 p.m. Indiana state officials do not want any sporting events played

The way the MSU hockey team has played this season, it wouldn't be too surprising for the players to hope that it would hurry up and come to an end. But for Tim McDonald, it's a different story.

"Up 'til this point I never realized that there were only six games left," said the senior from Grand Rapids, Minn. "If it was last month, I really wouldn't have minded if the season ended but now that it's almost over . . . I know that I'm going to miss it."

This has not been one of McDonald's best seasons as a Spartan, but he's been a steady performer for coach Amo Bessone and he has played in 29 of MSU's 30 games this year.

"Tim has played well for us," said Bessone, "I bet you Tim played at least 30 minutes for us in Saturday's game. By LARRY LILLIS State News Sports Writer 23-1 There is so much to do in the world today that it is hard to 19-2 find someone who is dedicated to doing something for the sheer enjoyment of it.

MSU has such a person in its midst in Stan Dziedzic (Dess-20-2 ick). Dziedzic is the assistant > six years. Dziedzic won three college division championships and one university division championship before graduating from Slippery Rock State in 1972 and becoming MSU head coach position he has held for the last

Grady Peninger's assistant.

Dziedzie scored two major international wins in 1977 to gain himself a nomination for the James E. Sullivan Memorial Award. It is an award given to nation's the nation's outstanding amateur athlete of the year.

"This is an honor for me," Dziedzic said. "I am really pleased because this is a great award. What I am glad about is what this will do for wrestling. The people that usually win this award are the swimming and "There is no difference this year as John Nabor, a swimmer, has already won the award. What this nomination does, though, is give wrestlers some exposure which they really need.

To gain the nomination, Dziedzic won the 163-pound title at the World Cup meet in Toledo, Ohio last April. Six months later in Lausanne, Switzerland, he earned the United States' lone gold medal at the World Freestyle Championships.

Already a winner of the bronze medal in the 1976 Olympics at Montreal, the only thing left for him to win the gold medal.

Dziedzic doesn't think he will wrestle anymore, let alone in the 1980 Olympics, which is right around the corner.

"Wrestling has become a part of my life," Dziedzic said. "Because of this it is making it very difficult for me to retire hate to leave, but I won the World Championships, which was a goal I had set for myself. Right now I have too many responsibilities, which is making it very difficult for me to train. "I say that I won't wrestle anymore now but this doesn't mean that I won't change my STUDENT WORKERS! READ THIS!!

LABOR RELATIONS IS ON CAMPUS TO HELP YOU!

If you feel "screwed" by management at MSU, let us know. Our staff of knowledgable students will inform you of your rights as a university employee. We can advise and assist in settling any conflicts between you and your employer.

But, you must HELP US HELP YOU. To be most effective, our staff is searching for one responsible person, like yourself, in each work setting on campus. This person must be concerned enough to:

- 1) Counsel any worker, who may have been taken advantage of, toward our office;
- 2) Inform our staff if any unsafe working conditions exist in your area.

This is a chance to gain valuable experience dealing with management. and yet we ask no time commitment.

If you want to help yourself and other student workers, contact us today. Thank you.

Few graduates evade loan payments and NANCY OSTRANDER Alex graduated from the MSU School of Veterinary Medicine last June, owing $10,000 on his guaranteed student Only a few MSU graduates owe such a large amount on their guaranteed student loans. And only a few, like Alex, skip town to avoid payment. "Our default rate for guaranteed student loans is less than 5 percent," said Henry Dykema, MSU director of financial aids.

"We do have some gyp artists, though, and we do our damndest to find them. We have the top man in the country collecting for us."

The "top man" is Warren McAlvey, manager of MSU loan collections. McAlvey said that after an account has been past due for 130 days, it is turned over to the state of Michigan for collection.

Of the nearly 4,600 students who have taken out guaranteed student loans from MSU since 1973, only 196 have defaulted, McAlvey said.

MSU loses only the interest on a defaulted loan because the state purchases the loan and then pursues the borrower, he explained.

"The principal is guaranteed 100 percent," McAlvey said. "We collect either from the student or the state."

The state has already paid MSU nearly $250,000 for the 196 loans defaulted to date an average loss of $1,250 per defaulter.

"People from all types of backgrounds default," Dykema said. "There's really no way of predicting who will default, but it's usually the person who gets too big a burden to pay back."

Student loans put people under an obligation to pay for them later, he continued. The problem is that the loans may be large and most people do not high-paying positions immediately after graduation. Before Sept. 30, 1977, Alex could have declared bankruptcy to avoid payment of his loan.

It would have been legitimate because Alex got married and bought a house, a car and furniture - all on credit.

But Congress has eliminated bankruptcy as a way to wipe out guaranteed student loan debts for five years after the student leaves school.

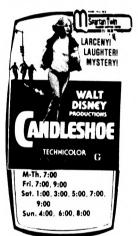

The only option left to Alex and others like him, besides starting renayment, was to skin town. Dykema explained why that choice is not a good idea.

"If MSU can't find these delinquents, we turn their names over to the state of Michigan collection agencies. he said. "If the state can't find them with the use of IRS files. they turn the names over to the federal government."

MSU developed the guaranteed student loan program in 1973 to aid students who had been denied loans by banks or other lending institutions.

MSU and the University of Michigan are apparently the only universities or colleges in the state still using such a

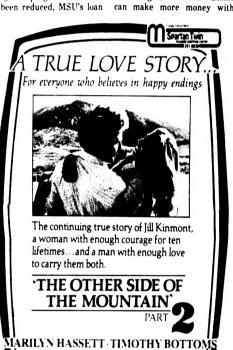

John Wesley College, the only other Michigan school approved as a lender, had discontinued its program. Though the program at U of M has been reduced. MSU's loan volume has steadily increased over the past four years.

Dykema said MSU became involved in the guaranteed student loan program out of necessity.

"When the prime rate of interest goes up, money be-comes tight," he said. "Banks can make more money with higher rates of interest and shorter payback periods."

Thus he said, banks see student loans, with their percent rate and maximum 10 year payback period as unprofitable.

This happened about five years ago," Dykema said. "The prime rate went up to 10 percent. Banks just quit giving guaranteed student loans, except for a few to keep up community relations, so MSU had to get involved."

MSU has a $2 million drawing account with Michigan National Bank for its guaranteed student loan program, he said.

Recause it costs MSU money to run the program and it is not quite meeting costs, Dykema said the University has limited its guaranteed student loans to out-of-state students whose home states have no comparable program.

MSU sends applications from in-state students who have been denied bank loans to the state of Michigan, which has now become a direct lender.

Either way, Dykema said, they like to keep the loans down to a minimum if possible.

Dykema said students cannot financial aid. He said he likes to keep the loans down to $400 or $500 a year. The absolute maximum for guaranteed loans at MSU is $2,500 for both undergraduate and graduate students.

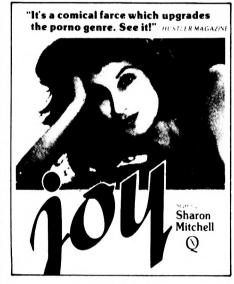

About 1,500 MSU students took out guaranteed student loans from the University last year, representing more than $2 million, McAlvey said.

Students who take out guaranteed student loans have nine months from the time they leave school to start payment.

According to the National Council of Higher Education Loan Programs, the student defaulter is more often male than female, more often married than single, likely to be older than the average freshman when beginning college and is usually from a financially modest background.

Students who enter government programs like the Peace Corps, VISTA and the armed services have their loans de-ferred for as long as they serve.

The current card catalog system of the MSU Library may become as obsolete as the horse-and-buggy or ten-cent phone calls if Richard Chapin, director of libraries, has his way.

Chapin must change or restructure the current card catalog system because the Library of Congress in Washington D.C., which the system is based on will adopt new guidelines January 1,

The result of the switch will be that the MSU Library will either have to change the numbering system of the entire card catalog to match the new Library of Congress guidelines, or develop a new cataloging system using computers. Chapin said he hopes to do the

"Actually," Chapin said, "our current system is inefficient and impractical whether the Library of Congress changes or not."

Chapin said he foresees a gradual change to computer terminals, which would be easy to operate. The average student or faculty member using the terminals would not have to be a computer programmer merely to locate a book.

"Hopefully with a computer-based system, we'd be able to improve access to information, speed up the process with modern technology, and eventually reduce costs by eliminating the hundreds of man-hours of work needed to constantly update the old card catalog." Chapin said.

He said he also believes that text searches and subject heading changes would be made easier through computer use. Eventually, he said he would like to see 70 or 80 terminals available, located not only in the library but also in residence halls.

This way, Chapin noted, students could check to see if a particular book they need is available and possibly save themselves a needless walk to the library if it isn't.

He emphasized that all improvements are currently only in the planning stages. "We will take into consideration the opinions of the students, faculty, and administration, as well as of our own library staff, before implementing any changes," he said. "But we would like to make a definite decision within the next six months because of our 1980 deadline.'

Cost would be a primary factor in any major change such as the one described by Chapin but price estimates on the installation of the computer system are not yet available. Chapin said the operating costs of such a system, once in full use, would probably run about $300,000 annually, but added he has no definite cost estimates yet.

"Before we buy anything, we'd have to be assured of some type of backup system," he said.
"I'd hate to be in the library on a Tuesday night during midterms week if the computer broke down or malfunctioned. You could imagine the chaos.

Chapin said he and his staff will discuss the library changes with the Advisory Consultation Committee on Libraries at 3:30 today.

Betty Freidan to speak

Betty Freidan, founder of the National Organization of Women and author of "The Feminine Mystique" will speak at 4 today in the MSU Auditorium. She is the second speaker in the Great Issues "Women's Week" series Great Issues director Fred B. Jones called Freidan the "undisputed champion of women's rights," adding that "her coast-to-coast lecture tours have raised the consciousness of the

Jones quoted Freidan as separating the revolution into three stages. The first is consciousness, which she has said began a

"Once outside the house, women found massive social discrimination. This realization ended phase one of the revolution," Freidan has said.

Phase two involved organization, including the formation of NOW. Changes which have begun to develop in recent years such as the Equal Rights Amendment and the prohibition of sexual discrimination, are also part of phase two

"Phase three must liberate both men and women from the obsolete sex roles so they can look at each other for what they are," Freidan has said.

DPS to begin towing autos

Rv MARK FABIAN State News Staff Writer

The Department of Public Safety will ticket and tow all unregistered cars in MSU parking lots beginning Thursday at 8 a.m. to combat the latest surge of illegal parking.

Unregistered cars are again jamming the MSU parking lots and hundreds of persons with valid parking permits have complained to DPS they have no place to park.

About one out of every three telephone calls DPS received the last two weeks were from angry MSU faculty or staff members complaining about the lack of available parking spaces.

DPS will also crack down on people driving unregistered vehicles on campus between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. Persons driving without a proper permit will be issued a $10 ticket, a DPS official North campus parking lots are in the worst shape, DPS

Captain Ferman Badgley said, particularly A and G Lots.
On South campus, Badgley said valid parkers are having a hard time finding spaces near Fee Hall, Cherry Lane Apartments, and at the Life Sciences, Pesticide Research and Biological Research buildings. "All areas will be hit," Badgley said, "but those areas (the most crowded) will be hit the hardest.' DPS cracked down on illegal parkers fall term, writing

4,000 tickets and towing 120 cars the first week of school. Towing has been limited the last few weeks because the recent blizzard made legal parking difficult, Badgley said.

"We had the campus in pretty good shape," he said, "but it (illegal parking) has built up since the snowstorm. We've got to get it back under control.'

Badgley said DPS plans extensive towing because people will not respond to parking tickets.
"Writing tickets just isn't doing the job," he said.

Badgley warned MSU staff members driving loaner cars to obtain temporary permits or use their gate cards to park in visitor lots or they will be towed as well.
