END TO COAL STRIKE POSSIBLE

Tentative contract reached

WASHINGTON (AP) - The striking United Mine Workers and a major independent coal company reached a tentative contract settlement Monday that could set a pattern for an industry-wide agreement to end the 77-day coal strike.

But Carter administration officials cautioned that major roadblocks remained and began testing congressional sentiment for egislation to force an end to the strike.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall conferred with chairpersons of the House and Senate committees which would handle any legislation to halt the dispute. But congressional sources said proposals for government intervention requiring legislation received a cool response from committee members who expressed concern that such measures would not be very effective and could interfere with Senate debate on the Panama Canal treaties and upcoming labor reform legislation. Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said he favored a negotiated settlement.

After the talks on Capitol Hill, Marshall met at the White House with key admini-stration officials where sources said he discussed the possibility of recommending contract terms to the industry that would bypass the more controversial issues until a permanent settlement could be reached among the parties. This would be regarded to the could be reached among the parties of the could be regarded to t as an interim solution, the sources said, and in order to quickly get the mines back in production while negotiators continued their talks.

The White House strategy session was the third in as many days and was attended briefly by President Carter, Vice President Walter F. Mondale, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and others.

Officials said Carter's options for intervening in the strike include one or a combination of the following: invoking the Taft-Hartley Act ordering miners back to work, seeking legislation for a temporary subcommittee began three days of hearings into problems of handling the explosive substance, said formulating such a policy remains several months away.

The subcommittee chairperson, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., raised the spectre of a tanker collision in a major U.S. harbor or offshore that could release a highly com bustible cloud of gas.

He said such a cloud could drift with the prevailing wind over a densely populated area and "could be ignited by just the spark of an automobile horn."

And Dingell said that clearing harbors of other vessels when liquid gas tankers are being moved - a procedure being followed in Boston harbor — is not the answer. He said that might work in Boston, where there is only one liquid gas tanker every 20 days or so, but would be impractical in sites like the tanker facility under construction at Cove Point, Md., where "almost daily" shipments are anticipated. Dingell said such an accident could also happen in the congested sea lanes off major ports or at liquefied natural gas terminals or storage facilities on land.

The General Accounting Office, expected to give testimony on Tuesday, has accused e government of failing to take adequate steps to protect the public against the hazards of liquefied gas.

The GAO, an investigatory branch of Congress, said in a previously circulated report that liquefied gas terminal and storage facilities in the United States could suffer "catastrophic failure" resulting from natural disasters or terrorist attacks and federal licensing "is clearly inadequate to protect the public health and safety

Dollar plunges to record lows

LONDON (AP) - The dollar plunged to record lows against five major currencies in European trading Monday. Against one of them, the Swiss franc, the dollar registered a 3.2 percent decline for its worst one-day drop ever on the Zurich exchange.

Dealers said the flight from the dollar was like a "free-for-all" with no end in sight. New York money markets were closed for the Washington's Birthday holiday, and the U.S. Federal Reserve did nothing to stop the slide, dealers said.

The price of gold soared, and one bullion dealer said it was "just reacting to the dollar's fall."

Gold rose above $180 per ounce for the first time in nearly three years in London, closing at $182.45, way up from $179.60 per ounce on Friday. In Zurich, the price soared from Friday's $179.125 per ounce to $182.375 Monday.

Senate resumes canal debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate resumed debate on the Panama Canal treaties Monday with one leading opponent suggesting a need to keep U.S. military forces in Panama after the year 2000.

Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., urged approval of an amendment enabling a U.S. president to certify to Congress that forces were required to protect the canal after it was turned over to Panamanian control.

The idea was challenged by treaty proponents who contend amendments already sponsored by 78 senators would be a sufficient guarantee of U.S. rights to send forces to defend the waterway against any threat after it is turned over to Panamanian control.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said the proposed amendments are based on an understanding between President Carter and Panama's leader, Gen. Omar Torrijos, and Allen's amendment would be 'superfluous and unnecessary.'

But Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich. another critic of the pacts, said it was "painfully obvious" that the United States and Panama do not agree on unilateral U.S. rights to use military force to protect the canal, and said the question should be settled with the Panamanian people, not simply their present government.

Meany critical of Carter coal plan

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) - AFL-CIO President George Meany said Monday that if he were President Carter he would seek congressional approval to seize the nation's strikebound coal mines.

He also said he would not be critical of Carter if he ordered the striking miners back to work for 80 days under the Taft-

The 83-year-old labor leader, appearing at the mid-winter session of the AFL-CIO Executive Council, said he was reluctant to second-guess the president.

But, asked what he would do in Carter's place, Meany said, "I'd seize the mines and lay down conditions the miners could accept."

Meany said he discussed the coal strike by telephone Monday morning with Labor Secretary Ray Marshall. He said his talk indicated "the president is thinking in terms of what we term seizure."

The strike by the United Mine Workers entered its 77th day Monday with the two sides still at odds. White House sources have said that federal setizure of the mines and a Taft-Hartley cooling-off period are among options being considered by the president.

Woman arrested on assault charge

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — A 71-year-old reclusive widow was taken into custody Monday after keeping police at bay from her bungalow with a shotgun for 12 days, threatening to kill herself and anyone who approached.

Detective Guido Pettanelli grabbed Mary Regina Connor when she opened the door of her home early in the afternoon. Officers found a loaded shotgun inside the door, Quincy Police Lt. James Fay said.

Paul Graham, a neighbor, said Connor opened the door after Pettanelli had knocked to check on her condition when she did not answer her phone.

She was arrested on an assault charge stemming from a threat she made with the gun, police said. They said she was taken to Quincy City Hospital.

No shots were fired throughout the siege, which started Feb. 8 and turned Connor's little white bungalow with a Valentine heart on the door into a symbol of fear in her neighborhood.

Three teen-agers shot in Des Moines

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Three teen-age boys who were doing remodeling clean-up work were fatally wounded by shots in the back of the head and left side-by-side in a downtown building that had housed an adult bookstore.

Three blocks away, a clerk in an adult bookstore was later found shot to death. But authorities said they had no reason to believe the shootings of the boys were related to the death of the clerk, who they said was ki<sup>ll</sup>ed during an apparent robbery. Two of the boys were dead at the scene Sunday, the third died later in a hospital. They were found lying face down in the former bookstore which had closed a few months ago. Assistant Police Chief Billie Wallace, a 27-year veteran, described the scene as "the most gruesome I have ever seen.

Wallace speculated that whoever shot the boys may have been looking for something in the vacated bookstore

The 5 to 8 year old presents just as much of a problem for the working mother as the school child, she said.

For the mother who prefers licensed family day care homes, they are less available than a few years ago.

The number of such homes peaked two years ago at 10,800 and has declined somewhat since then, according to Jeralyn Harrold, Director of the Division of Family Home Licensing in the Michigan Department of Social Services.

Education is a significant predictor for the professional woman, black or white. Highly educated women work for other than economic reasons and can afford child care. Marilyn P. Nagy, assistant professor of family ecology.

Counting unlicensed ones, about 30,000 family day care homes exist in the state, she said. However, no statistics are available to gauge whether unlicensed homes have increased or decreased, she said.

Another fairly new option for working mothers is the group home which cares for from 7 to 12 children, Harrold said.

Jeanne Brown, MSU child development specialist, agreed that the majority of families are falling back on relatives or family care homes because they can provide the broad spectrum of care needed.

Lansing may gain judge, attracting new business

By DANIEL HERMAN State News Staff Writer

The prospect of bringing a federal judge seat to Lansing is nearing fruition, says U.S. Rep. Bob Carr, D-East Lansing, and city officials are hopeful that with it will come new business.

Currently, a bill is in a joint U.S. House-Senate committee which provides for two new judges for Michigan's Western District. The other seat, according to sources, will be placed in Grand Rapids.

The Western District, which includes 50 Michigan counties, has only two judges, both in Grand Rapids. Lansing currently accounts for 25 percent of the Western Districts's cases, and is one of only four U.S. state capitals without a federal judge seat, Michigan's other federal court district, the Eastern District, which includes Detroit and Ann Arbor, has 10 judges and encompasses 34 counties.

Carr said he believes the bill's chances of passage by the joint committee are "excellent," and that "it should be on the president's desk by March."

The president appoints all federal judges but they must receive final Senate ap-

"We have been waiting a long time for it (the judge seat) and we hope it finally comes," he added.

In testimony before the House of Representatives concerning approval of the judge seats, Carr stated, "The backlog for the two current judges in the Western District is now nearly 800 cases per judge, which is among the highest in the federal judiciary . . this growing backlog long ago reached the point where many attorneys simply stopped filing cases in the district."

Noel P. Fox, chief judge of the state's Western district, said he is also in favor of locating one of the new judges in Lansing.

"Judge (Wendall A.) Miles (the other federal judge in Michigan's Western district) and I feel that Lansing should be the location of a judge," Fox said. "Many important cases are generated in the State

Fox explained that after a judge is placed in Lansing the next step will be to find a building in the city for a court.

Fox suggests that, "where the court is to be depends on many things, for instance, how far along the activities in Lansing have come in building a new federal building."

Graves commented that, "The indications are that the House Ways and Means committee will appropriate the room by either building on an addition to the South Post Office (in Lansing), or by using court room facilities available at the Cooley Law School," he said.

Department formed under two colleges

A new clinical department shared by the College of Osteopathic Medicine and the College of Human Medicine has been formed as a result of the merging of two medical departments. Sister Mary Honora Kroger, an administrative assistant said.

The Department of Community Health Science of the College of Human Medicine, and the former Department of Community Medicine of the College of Osteopathic Medicine became an official department at the beginning of the year. The merger became effective by action of the MSU Board of Trustees

"The goals and objectives of the two departments were so much the same that we found it economically feasible and academically sensible to merge the two departments," Sister Honora said.

The new department has 100 faculty and staff members, a combination of the two former departments. The acting chairperson is Sidney Katz, M.D., she said.

Organized to provide for the needs of each college, the new department will implement policies and procedures to improve and establish required and elective courses that will fit into a unified framework of medical education at the graduate and postgraduate level," department officials said

The classes offered in the Department of Community Health Science are graded on a bass no pass basis, Sister Mary Honora said.

The new department is under the administration of two colleges and that makes it a little unique," she said.

By KEVIN O'BOYLE

"The Voyager missions are one of the more exciting space adventures yet," Jim Loudon of National Public Radio said in a recent talk about the planet Jupiter.

Voyagers 1 and 2 were launched last summer and are bound for Jupiter and Saturn and their many moons, with the possibility that Voyager 2 will also make it

"The Voyagers will fly past and take photos of 15 different worlds," Loudon said. In explaining that the worlds were planets and moons Loudon added, some of the moons are bigger than Mercury.

"It will be an exciting time when 15 new worlds, twice as many as known previously are revealed." For four months the Voyagers are expected to make almost continuous observations of Jupiter and her moons, Loudon said.

After visiting the planets closer to earth,

"Everything about Jupiter is alien," Loudon said. "The inner core of Jupiter is six times hotter than the surface of the sun, and as a result the planet's heat is internal Therefore, there is no temperature difference between the poles and the equator or between night and day."

Not only is Jupiter the largest planet, but it weighs about 2 and one half times the amount of all the other planets, moons and asteroids in our solar system combined,

"Jupiter has no solid surface. It is made entirely of gas and liquid, "Loudon added. Explaining the bands of Jupiter Loudon said, "the white bands are clouds of frozen ammonia which are higher and cooler than the dark bands which are probably clouds of ammonium hydrosulfide." The reason the clouds form bands is because of the strong Coriolis force, caused by the fast rotation of Jupiter, Loudon added

This Coriolis force makes it difficult for storms to persist. However, the fluid nature of the planet allows the giant storms, like the Red Spot, to continue, he explained.

"The Red Spot is thought to be a phosphorous storm, although the possibility of organic matter can not be ruled out. It has existed for at least three centuries," Loudon added.

"Jupiter has at least 13 moons, and perhaps 14," Loudon said. Callisto, the furthest out of the four largest moons, was described by Loudon as a "giant snowball," since it is made mostly of ice.

Io, the closest to Jupiter of the four largest moons, was described as red, radioactive, and mostly rock by Loudon. It is devoid of water, although great oceans once existed there, Loudon said

Europa was described as "about half rock and half ice." Loudon said Ganymede is the largest and may account for short-wave radiation usually attributed to Io.

Loudon's next presentation will be "Be ond Jupiter," and will be given March 9th. The Loudon lecture series is sponsored by the Abrams Planetarium, and all of the lectures will be given in 109 Anthony Hall at 7:30 p.m. The "Sounds of Earth" will begin at 7:05 PM.

Stoeckley said enrollment increases this year were largely in lower-level courses. For instance, enrollment in Astronomy 217, an introductory course designed primarily for physical science majors, almost doubled that of last "We're trying to accommodate the

"Our second priority for the department this year was approval and funding so that we could hire more

Stoeckley said that while the teaching assistants were requested to reduce the teaching load on the faculty, they have also been useful in meeting the increased enrollment this year.

"Our number-one priority for the department this year was to obtain approval and funding for an additional faculty member, but this was not approved," Stoeckley said.

Women: the struggle goes on

The women's Movement is still alive and vibrant. But events, both here at MSU and on a national level, underscore the fact that reactionary forces could blunt the drive for full equality between the Speaking at the University Auditorium last Wednesday, Betty Friedan, feminist author and founder of the National Organization of Women, admonished her audience to realize that there is still serious work to be done in women's battle for full equality.

She said many younger women and men have become accustomed to the rights of "personhood" generated by the women's movement, but that "dues" for these new-found rights must now be paid.

Friedan appeared as part of the very successful "Women's Week" series sponsored by the ASMSU Great Issues Cabinet, a program which also brought Feminist Party founder Florynce Kennedy and authors Barbara Pletcher and Barbara Seaman to campus.

The latest battle for feminists, Friedan said, is the fight to get three more states to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment by the March 1979 deadline, a difficult task indeed.

Several insensitive state legislatures have failed to ratify this necessary constitutional amendment, including our southern neighbor Illinois. As Friedan correctly stated in her lecture, nothing earth-shaking can be promised if the ERA is passed, but at least the letter of the Constitution would guarantee equal treatment under the

As it now stands, the ERA will probably not be ratified by the March 1979 deadline, if for no other reason than the irregular schedules of legislative sessions. We hope an extension of the deadline will prove unnecessary, but a "lifeboat," as Friedan terms it, is good insurance against the clock.

She also correctly stated the already evident problem of backlash in court decisions against women, such as denying disability benefits to pregnant women and refusing poor women the use of Medicaid funds for

A flood of reactionary forces have swept onto the scene, spreading warped interpretations of the effects ERA would have, interpretations geared to exploit already existing fears and prejudices.

Women's equality would seem a self-evident prerequisite for a free, democratic society, but apparently this is not yet the case. It can only be hoped that those blinded by fear and prejudice will gain insight through programs such as Great Issue's "Women's Week."

Take the case at hand. Why were the annoying lights needed once the offender had been stopped? It's frightening enough to see the blue and red whirling on top of the car and the white spot shining in your rear-view mirror. A purpose is served—cat the person's attention and signaling that it's the police in pu But once the presence of police has been acknowledged properly acted on, why continue with the lights?

The police - garbed in the ultimate symbol of authority uniform — resort not so much to the power vested in them b law, but to the crude authority they maintain by virtue of flashing lights, uniform, clubs and guns. In certain situs perhaps this is necessary, such as when the police enco dangerous criminals.

But, on the whole, cops choose to impose their law-enfor authority through a vulgar use of intimidation. "Hold the club their heads, partner. That'll show 'em who's boss."

Rather than relying on law, the police rely on the kin intimidation and terror so instrumental to a fascist state.

Better facilities, not expansion

On Feb. 16 you published an article stating that the Ingham County Jail "must increase capacity by almost 50 percent to meet state regulations," and you quoted Sheriff Kenneth Preadmore as saying that We have exhausted that alternative (the halfway) . . ." As a member of the County mittee I would like to clarify a few points.

First, the committee is considering several actions, only one of which involves expanding capacity of the jail. The first step is to develop an intake service center, where persons arrested can be interviewed, booked if necessary, or referred to other agencies, such as Mental Health or Pretrial

The second is to establish a minimum security housing program, hopefully with facilities for work release, rather than "just more bars." Thirdly, the existing jail will be renovated to meet state requirements.

As for having exhausted the alternatives, I disagree with the sheriff. Many more minimum-secruity prisoners could be accommodated in half-way houses such as New Way In if facilities were available and the community were willing to cooperate. Sheriff Preadmore has an enviable record with his jail rehabilitation and education program. However, job and family ties are closely associated with rehabilitation, and jail cannot provide these, while work release and halfway houses can.

I applaud the state's upgrading of the regulations for housing of inmates, but providing more space for prisoners will only encourage more judges to commit more offenders to jail. Therefore, rather than expanding the jail, let's provide facilities which will not be obsolete 10 or 15 years hence — as the jail is now.

'Clear. . . danger'

A truly liberal-minded person would have to maintain an extremely conservative attitude when assessing the Skokie situation. The bleeding-heart liberal who expresses a "let them march" attitude has clearly not considered the danger of his thought. Why is it necessary to protect these people through the freedom-of-speech amendment? People who crush civil liberties and lives of others - are they worthy of support by the law? Are we so civil-minded we have gone to the extreme of legalizing and supporting racism and anti-Semitism with our judicial system?

It is ludicrous that there is even an issue concerning the Nazi Party's freedom of speech. Knowledge of the "Clear and Present Danger" doctrine, initiated by Justice Oliver Wendall Holmes in 1919, should straighten out any confused individual. Weighted by degree and proximity, the Nazi Party in Skokie presents a clear and present danger. Does anyone submit to having such a dysfunctional mind that the performance of the Nazi Party — just over 30 years ago — has been forgotten?

A fine way to open a rock album — if you don't couple it with "We Are the Champions" a listless song, with a moronic lyric that the band does deadpan. It could have been really funny. Instead, with all the other good things on this record. Queen wants us to take this seriously permitting us to laugh at, instead of with them.

News of the World, then, is flawed, not all Queen could do. But it has some remarkable moments, some exciting rock music; and that's nothing to laugh at, especially at this very low period in that

It's been said that Queen is confused: they can't decide whether to be the Beatles, the Who or Led Zeppelin. While this statement shows the group's need to overcome its stylistic indecisiveness for a more integrated group consciousness, it also indicates an attractive group of options to choose from.

Symphony premiers 'Piano Concerto No.1'

By BOB BAKER State News Reviewer

Sunday's MSU Symphony Orchestra concert was, to say the least, kinetic.

The featured soloist was pianist John Ogdon. Ogdon, born in England, has won the Busoni, Liszt and Tschaikowsky Competitions. He has toured entensively and has many recital and festival appearances to his credit. Ogdon and his wife have also toured in duo, playing the two-piano repertoire. They recently moved to Bloomington, Indiana, where he teaches at the University of Ogdon also has had a formidable recording career, most notably Scraibin's complete piano works for Angel (EMI); and this year he will have a new release of Shostakovich's "Preludes and Fugues."

Ogdon's performance Sunday included these, as well as Beethoven's Second Symphony in D major. This symphony is influenced by the harmonics of the earlier classicists, but its style and tenor are far removed from their work. Beethoven was already moving toward Romanticism; it was only a few opus numbers away from his Third Symphony, Opus 55, the monumental Eroica.

The Beethoven symphonies must be included in any orchestra's repertoire, and the MSU Symphony shows an adequate grasp of this work, in spite of a few slips in the third movement.

After intermission, they performed Berlioz's "Overture to Beatrice and Benedict." In this piece the low brass and percussion were raucous, in the best sense of the word. And, as in "Francesca" da Rimini" earlier this year, they shone.

The final piece performed was the U.S. premiere of Gerard Schurmann's Piano Concerto No. 1. The piece, written in 1973, is dedicated to Ogdon. It has been performed in Scandinavia and France; and Conductor Dennis Burkh and Ogdon originally planned to first perform it in Prague.

The piece employs serial technique and is technically demanding, requiring the full resources of the soloist, orchestra and conductor alike. The effect was powerful and grotesque in places, and lyric in others, well-handled in all sections.

It is refreshing to hear modern work performed locally, as the Music Department is fairly conservative. Further, Burkh is to be again thanked for his organization of the International Season.

This series next year will include the premier of a major modern opera Krutnava (Whirlpool) by Eugen Suchon, which will be performed in English.

In our present stage of 'advancement," cultural shock is a thing of the past. (Elvis' demise was more a cultural acceptance of mortality than cultural shock.) Was the concert at Shea Stadium really that monumental? After all, more recent acts like Elton John and Peter Frampton have had little trouble filling much larger stadiums like the one in Pontiac. Most of The Beatles' achievements have been surpassed by others from a bestselling standpoint in this decade. It is difficult to comprehend their superstar innocence in this age of the egotistical "Greek god complex" rock 'n roll star. remainder of this column to an extended essay on the significance of Beatlemania, but I suppose it no longer really matters. If you experienced it, you understand, and no matter how disoriented perspectives become, some memory will always linger on. If you didn't experience it, there's no real way to explain.

Besides, listening to a series of old Beatle recordings (God, they were great!) while writing this has made me realize that the initial feeling can never be recreated again. This is why, unlike other fans, I do not hope for an eventual reunion. Too much has happened for it to ever be the same. The Beatles as an entity are as dead as Elvis, and I couldn't bear to see an audience of aging "flower

Above all, we must strive to keep it in the proper perspective. The Beatles? They once reflected everything we were, everything we will be, and everything we could ever hope to become. By GAYLE JACOBSON State News Sports Writer

It will be a reunion of sorts for MSU women's basketball coach Karen Langeland and players Kathy DeBoer and Diane Spoelstra when the Spartans face Calvin College tonight at 8 p.m. in Jenison Fieldhouse.

Both DeBoer and Spoelstra played two years of ball at Calvin, while Langeland is a graduate of the school.

The Spartans, 15-5 on their season, will be going up against Calvin's 6-6 record.

MSU has won it's last four games and Langeland is basically satisfied with the performances she's been getting from her "I think we're starting to get some of the little things ironed out as far as defense, offense, and rebounding are concerned," Langeland said. "I think we'll be in fine shape when tournaments come up in another two weeks." Concerning Calvin, Langeland isn't too worried about the matchup, though she did mention that the Knights had some good ballplayers who had been playing with the team a few The Knights are under a new coach this year, Karla Hoesch.

King 98 percent through with tennis

DETROIT (UPI) - Billie Jean King, rejuvenated by a Hawaii vacation, has decided to be a full-time tennis player again and hopes to make this week's women's tournament in Detroit her first step toward a record-setting 20th championship at Wimbledo

"I told the company I was going to drop out," King said Monday.
"I'm really going to drop back to being a full-time athlete again. They told me to go ahead and do whatever my little heart desired," she said, laughing and clearly pleased with her decision. "I told husband Larry just this morning I was 98 percent finished with tennis — but there was just this two percent more. "I'm ready for the part of my life that isn't tennis. But why not enjoy some of the fun part?"

King, 34, meets Helena Anliot in today's opening round but is unseeded for the tournament, which somehow seems as silly as pantyhose on football players. However in her previous two tournaments, in Washington and

Los Angeles, she lost in the first round then defaulted her opening match. That's what prompted the vacation.

"Larry and I were supposed to be in Hawaii at Christmas time," King said, "but I got sick. Then I just kept pushing myself - you know how energetic I am, I tend to run, run, run.

"I guess subconsciously I felt cheated at not being able to go. Ask Larry — he's the one who must have really felt cheated," she said. "Anyway, we went. And just getting away made me feel better." The publisher of her magazine for women athletes dropped it which lead to some restructuring of the couple's enterprises so they could keep putting it out.

Sino-Japanese deal signals 'new era

by JOHN RODERICK TOKYO (AP) — Japanese businessmen have made a multibillion dollar trade deal with China that promises "a new era" of economic and political ties between the two nations as well as important advantages over the United States and the Soviet Union.

The agreement was signed Feb. 16 in Peking after a year's intensive negotiation. Discussion had been initiated by the late Chinese Premier Chou En-lai even before Japan and China established diplomatic relations in 1972.

The pact, which will provide Japanese industrial plants for China and Chinese oil and coal for Japan, envisages two-way trade of $20 billion over the next eight years.

That would bring the projected eight-year trade figure to about $40 billion including areas outside the new pact — textiles, food, chemical fertilizers and machinery. Japanese trade with China last year was $3.4 billion, less than the $4.3 billion traded with Taiwan.

The Japanese signer of the new agreement President Yoshihiro Inayama of the Japan-China Economic Association — says it lays the basis for "spectacular growth" in trade and "a new era in bilateral relations." He said it is intended to be 'endlessly renewed."

The agreement means Japan is getting in on the ground floor as communist China - governed utward-reaching pragmatists who triumphed in 1976 over inward-looking radicals — shops the international marketplace in its drive toward a goal of full industrial modernization by the year 2000.

In concluding the pact, China apparently stole a march on its ideological foe, the Soviet Union, and Japanese businessmen on their U.S. trade vast oil and gas fields.

Those talks have been unsuccessful partly because China, apprehensive of the 1 million Soviet troops on its border, objected to Japanese financing of the railway Moscow wanted to build to transport the oil to Siberian ports.

As for the United States, many American businessmen hope to get a slice of the expanding Chinese trade pie. But U.S. reluctance to extend full diplomatic recognition to China at the expense of Taiwan is believed to have influenced the Chinese to serve the Japanese first.

The Sino-Japanese trade pact also paves the way for the signing of a peace treaty, possibly in the next few months. China and Japan never concluded a treaty after World War II, and recent negotiations have been snagged by Chinese insistence that the document include an anti-Moscow clause opposing hegemony in Asia. Under the new pact, China will get Japanese technical expertise and new industrial plants worth $7 billion to $8 billion; $2.3 billion in construction material and equipment; and two mammoth integrated steel mills costing a total of $9 billion and designed to boost China's annual steel production by six million tons from its current 30 million tons.

The Chinese will pay in fossil fuels. In the first five years, Japan will import about 8.8 million tons of coking and steam coal and 47.1 million tons of crude oil. By 1985, China's share of the Japanese oil import market is expected to have risen from 2.6 percent to 4.9 percent.

A new aviation accord, reached the day after the trade deal, anticipates more travel between

China and Japan by increasing flights of the countries' carriers from two to three weekly each, beginning in April.

The trade agreement does not appear overwhelming in light of Japan's global trade, which

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A Harvard doctor believes coca leaves — now legal only for medical use in cocaine and for the coca flavor in Coca-Cola could be a beneficial stimulant, antidepressant and remedy for stomach aches.

Andrew Weil, a physician working at the Harvard Botanical Museum, hopes to win government approval to develop a prescription chewing gum as a safe and useful addition to the medical cabinet. It is not addictive.

The leaves of the South American shrub are illegal in the United States except for limited use. The cocaine used illegally is 30 to 70 percent percent cocaine and when the leaves are chewed. the little cocaine they contain enters the bloodstream slowly through the stomach and membranes of the mouth and throat.

"That's very different from snorting cocaine or injecting cocaine when there's a sudden rise in blood level." Weil said.

Coca - which is different from cocoa powder made from cacao seeds - has been chewed for centuries by the people of Peru, Colombia, Bolivia and Equador.

"Coca is one of the most important medicinal and stimulant plants in the world and is also one told an American Association for the Advance ment of Science syposium last week.

But little basic research has been done on the plant's medicinal properties, he said. Once cocaine was isolated from coca in the 1870s, work with coca itself stopped, Weil said. Scientists incorrectly assumed the properties of coca would be the same as cocaine. But cocaine is only one of a number of alkaloid compounds in coca, and Weil believes the others modify and may act with it to produce therapeutic results when the whole leaf is used. Weil has spent many months in South America studying coca, and said coca leaves taste good. One kind tastes like green tea and another resembles wintergreen in taste.

"The next effects are a pleasant warm feeling in your stomach and then a kind of subtle feeling of muscular energy and clearheadedness and an elevation of mood.

He said in Indian populations, coca "exists in a very stable pattern of use and has easily documented beneficial effects."

Weil said it may be used as an anti-depressant, as a remedy for stomach disorders and possibly as a coffee substitute for those who can't drink

Even though his student business has dropped to about 30 percent this year, Mazany said he is still "running close to capacity." About 5 percent of his business comes from women, he said, and the number has been increasing in the past few months.

Mazany said women generally do oil changes or tune-ups. Most of the women who rent stalls have had an automotive repair class or learned from someone in their family, he said. "Some of the women who come in here know more about cars than I do," Mazany said.

Bays rented out to auto owner

Dan Mazany has a novel approach to running a business: let the customers do all the work. And what's more, they pay him to do it.

Mazany, a 1971 MSU education graduate, owns two of the only do-it-yourself car repair services in the Lansing area. He rents out the "bay" areas of his gas stations (the garage part where cars can be worked on) and provides some of the basic necessities for engine

With each bay area, customers have use of a hoist, an oil drain, small tools, equipment and a warm place to work, he said.

"The hourly rate for a bay is $4." Mazany said. "Actually the charge is $1 for every 15 minutes and the minimum fee is $1."

Mazany provides a small set of hand tools — "just some basic ones" — and some small equipment such as a tire changer, battery charger, lubrication equipment, wheel balancer and a tack-dwell meter, which helps diagnose how in-tune a car's engine is.

"I don't have a timing light," Mazany said. "I used to, but it got broken too many times, mostly from the cord hanging in the fan."

A timing light is used to adjust engine spark to make sure it is igniting gas at the proper time, he explained.

Mazany has been in the rent-a-bay business since 1976. That is when he got out of the full-service business and took over the Mobil station at Oakland and Cedar as a self-serve

"I became less interested in full-service," Mazany said. "I was interested in running a gas station but I had to create an alternative so I could stay in business. Most stations can't make it just pumping gas," he said. His Mobil station has self-serve gas pumps, a snack shop — "kind of a mini 7-11"— and ome auto accessories. Mazany opened his second rent-a-bay station on Feb. 6. It is located six miles south of campus at Holt Road and U.S. 127.

Mazany's Oakland-Cedar station has two bays available and the Holt Road station has one. Both stations are open seven days a week, he said.

"The bays are rented on a first-come, first-served basis," he said. "If all the bays are in use, I start a waiting list when somebody else wants to get in."
