"Official sources in Mogadishu say Russian and Cuban troops and the forces of the Western Somali Liberation Front are locked in bitter fighting near the town of Babile between Harar and Jijiga," he said. Harar is an Ethiopian fortress city and base 40 miles west of Jijiga

"Fifteen thousand Cubans, Russians and other forces are reportedly involved in the fighting, using Soviet supplied long-range artillery pieces and missiles, Soviet T-555 and T-62 tanks, MiG-21 and MiG-23 aircraft and other sophisticated armaments. The rebels captured most of the Ogaden, including Jijiga, in a drive beginning last summer. Most Western observers believe Somalia has sent regular troops to help the rebel WSLF. Somalia denies having sent troops, while acknowledging willingness to do so if necessary.

The WSLF reported Sunday that enemy tanks were airlifted behind its lines

Miners reject pact; Carter ready to act

By DAVID ESPO WASHINGTON (AP) — Striking miners voted overwhelmingly against a proposed contract Sunday and President Carter made plans to step in swiftly to try to force miners back to work in the 90-day-old

Sources said the president was likely to invoke the strike halting provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act today, setting in motion a sequence of events that could lead to a back-to-work court order within a few days

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell told reporters Sunday: "It's clean from the trend in the voting that the president will have to act no later than tomorrow. It will be the primary topic of the Cabinet meeting tomorrow to be followed by a bipartisan meeting of the congressional leadership."

With 482 of the United Mine Workers' 794 locals or about 60 percent reporting, there were 44,666 votes against the contract and 19,885 in favor of it.

"It appears now that this contract isn't going to make it," said Willard Esselstyn, UMW secretary-treasurer.

Esselstyn declined to answer questions except to say he had been in touch with UMW President Arnold Miller.

Administration officials began a new round of meetings to plan their next step in a strike that has caused power curtailments and job layoffs and threatened serious damage to the economy.

President Carter met with Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and other administration officials at the White House when he returned from a weekend stay at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md.

Pending final decisions by the president, one source said, the administration's strategy was shaping up this way:

Carter would invoke the Taft-Hartley Act tonight, appointing a three-member board of inquiry required under the law to make a miners would obey such an order. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said several authorizing a temporary federal seizure of coal companies had been approached about the possibility of paying miners who returned to work more than they received under the expired contract.

It was learned that its members were likely to be Carl Warns, a law professor at the University of Louisville, Eva Robins, a labor arbitrator from New York, and Jack Gentry, a Washington lawyer.

One source said one suggestion was for a raise of $1 an hour, the same as miners would receive if they ratified the contract. Industry response to the suggestion was said to be extremely negative.

The administration apparently was leaning toward a delay in asking Congress for

Taft-Hartley invoked three times for UMW

WASHINGTON (AP) - If President Carter invokes the emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act in an effort to settle the coal strike, here are the step-by-step moves he must take under the provisions of the 1947 law.

•Finding that a strike or lockout threatens to imperil the public health or safety, the president names a fact-finding panel and fixes an early deadline for it to report. Usually the panel has three members. The deadline has ranged from less than one day to 24 days.

•After receiving the report, the president may direct the attorney general to obtain a U.S. District Court injunction sending the strikers back to their jobs and requiring that bargaining be resumed with the help of federal mediators

Before the current strike, the emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act had been invoked 34 times.

Taft-Hartley has been used three times in strikes by the United Mine Workers, twice in 1948 and once in a crippling strike that lasted from mid-September 1949 through ebruary 1950.

During previous strikes, the miners have ignored court orders to return to work.

In the case of the mine workers, the union president then, John L. Lewis, was fined $20,000 and the union fined $1.4 million for violating a temporary restraining order in 1948. The union was cleared in 1950.

"So far as I know, no work is being done on Project Seafarer, and I would like to say that as commander-in-chief of the military forces and as an exsubmariner myself I am deeply concerned about this problem."

Project Seafarer involves underground networks of communications relay equipment capable of picking up the oceanic radio transmissions of submerged submarines. Plans to bury one Seafarer system in opposition from residents there.

Chinese parliament again elects Premier Hua government head

TOKYO (AP) - China's parliament re-elected Communist Chairman Hua Kuo-feng as premier Sunday, solidifying his hold at the top of the Peking hierarchy as both political and administrative leader of the world's most populous nation.

Hua, 57, apparently outmaneuvered Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping for the job as head of government, proving himself a wily and successful political infighter. In the process he has established himself as successor to both Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai, the two great leaders of Chinese communism.

Peking's Great Hall of the People "rang with cheers and there was a prolonged ovation" after Hua was chosen premier at the closing session of the fifth National People's Congress, the official news agency Hsinhua reported in a dispatch received here.

But the 73-year-old Teng did not come away empty-handed. He and his old-guard military revolutionary allies put two of their men into key positions.

Defense Minister Yeh Chien-ying, 81, was named to head the congress' standing committee, and Marshal Hsu Hsiang-chien, 76, was chosen to take over at Defense.

Hua, who had been premier by party appointment for almost two years, left most of his cabinet intact. But a shakeup in the seven divisions of the important Ministry of Machine Building only two of seven ministers kept their jobs - signaled a determination to put new steam into the drive toward modernization of China, a national effort launched by Hua, Teng and their "pragmatist" allies.

The news agency said the closing session of the weeklong congress, which met for the first time in three years, adopted a new constitution replacing a 1975 document, but few details were

Lonely vigil of a night receptionist: silent monotony

By CHRIS KUCZYNSKI

It is 2 a.m. on Sunday.

Yakeley Hall residents are beginning to settle in for a night's rest after an evening of parties, dancing and other non-academic enjoyment.

The maze of hallways weaving throughout the old dormitory is mostly quiet and empty. Occasionally, a voice is heard drifting down a distant corridor, or a resident in a bathrobe is glimpsed hurrying from her room to the floor bathroom.

Yakeley's dimly-lit first floor west lounge is deserted, the silence broken only by the dialogue from a fatigued television set playing before an audience of 14 well-worn pieces of furniture. The spacious lobby is filled only with a monotonous vending machine drone and faint music from an unseen radio. "Currently, the Lansing area metro temperature is eight degrees . . .," the all-night disc jockey says in an energetic voice. Residents returning periodically from a Saturday night of revelry pass with conscious poise through the empty lobby of the all-woman dormitory to retreat to their respective rooms — many with their male companions. In this serene atmosphere sits a lone figure at work reading a chapter from a food science textbook. He is stationed at a small desk outside the receptionist's office, close enough to reach a telephone and only a few steps from the building's front entrance. It is here that, after hours, Dan Winderl allows only those with proper identification to return to Yakeley Hall and denies entrance to unescorted males. It is Winderl's first time as a night receptionist at Yakeley and only his third time on the job.

His watch is primarily a lonely vigil broken by activity only when residents begin to ask for admittance after 1 a.m. But even this "excitement" is short lived. The morning grows older and admittance requests become less frequent. The lobby becomes a Winderl, working a shift from 11:30 p.m. Saturday to 7:30 the hour," Winderl says. The clock in the lobby reads 2:30. "I don't get to meet anybody at this hour," he laments. "I don't see that I could adjust to being a night receptionist. I also like my sleep." The most unusual event to occur during this evening marathon is the filing of a damage report after a hand railing mysteriously fell off its fasteners and was found lying along a stairwell.

While waiting for dawn, Winderl becomes weary of studying and instead reads 150 pages of a novel. He passes the time watching gentleman callers slip out of the lobby and into the night. The last one leaves at 4:45 a.m.

So, during the early hours of Sunday morning, while Saturday carousers sleep off the effects of the night's indulgences, Dan Winderl tallies up a total of 10 pages of food science studied, 22 IDs approved and 35 doors checked — eight times each.

Envoy fails to draw Hussein into talks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — U.S. peace envoy Alfred L. Atherton shuttled from Jordan to Cairo Sunday after failing to draw King Hussein into the U.S.-sponsored Mideast negotiations between Israel and Egypt.

In Jerusalem, Begin told reporters his letter urges resumption of direct Egyptian-Israeli negotiations. He said he sent it to Cairo through the U.S. Embassy communications link for delivery by Atherton. The exchange was the first contact between the two Mideast leaders since their Christmas Day summit in Ismailia, Egypt.

Atherton canceled a planned visit to Riyadh to brief Saudi Arabian leaders on his mediation mission, aimed at restarting the stalled talks.

Soviets attempt to disrupt Arab unity

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet Union has ordered a propaganda barrage against Egypt "to split Arab ranks and disrupt Arab unity," the official Chinese news agency Hsinhua charged Sunday.

Referring to President Anwar Sadat's talks with Israel, the agency asked: "When a leader of a sovereign Arab state took the initiative . . . to preserve national independence and state sovereignty and throw off foreign interference, and, in negotiating with Israel, has stuck to the just stand of calling for the recovery of lost Arab territories and the restoration to the Palestinian peoples of their national rights, how could he have offended the Soviet Union, which has nothing to do with the Middle East?"

The agency, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, said the Soviets have lost control over the Middle East situation and that this has become "a source of vexation" for the Kremlin.

Bargaining on energy bill may resume

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the first time since before Christmas, formal bargaining between the House and Senate may resume this week on President Carter's stalled energy bill.

After months of inaction, the House-Senate conference committee on the energy bill could get back to work this week if Senate conferees can settle their differences on the key issue of natural gas deregulation.

That could come on Tuesday, when the full 17-member Senate delegation considers an "agreement in principle" forged last week by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, chairperson of the Senate Energy Committee, and other top Senate negotiators with the help of Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger.

The full Senate, meanwhile, heads into another week of debating the Panama Canal treaties. It will consider leadership backed amendments to clarify U.S. rights of defense and priority access to the canal after the year 2000. A final vote on the treaties remains weeks away,

FTC chief promises faster pace in '78

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael Pertschuk says he isn't satisfied with the pace of Federal Trade Commission action to protect consumers during his first year as chairperson, but he promises a faster pace in 1978.

The commission used to be known as the "gray lady of Pennsylvania Avenue" because it seldom took strong actions. But, Pertschuk said in an interview, "We're trying to turn the gray lady into a gray panther. We will be doing some tough things."

One of the FTC actions already taken in 1978 is the signing of the largest settlement in its history, a $700,000 agreement with STP Corp., in a false advertising case.

"The STP case really served notice on everyone that we mean business. $700,000 is a lot of money for any company to pay in a false advertising case. That example will not be lost on others," Pertschuk said, mentioning that the price of STP stock dropped 11/2 points at the news of the settlement.

Economists urge self-sufficiency for cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two liberal economists, urging local strategies for full employment, joined Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps on Sunday in calling for efforts to develop "economic self-sufficiency" in the nation's troubled

"It is no solution to the problems of cities with high concentrations of poor to hand out bus tickets and hope for the best," Kreps told the National League of Cities. Instead, she argued for bringing jobs to the unemployed.

The secretary said the business environment is improving in many cities. And she stressed job-creation programs that would stimulate private investment.

Noting that five of six jobs are in the private sector, she said "better economic opportunities for the urban poor will never emerge unless the number of private jobs is growing. Government programs are necessary to ease the pain, but they can't cure the patient."

An earth slide due to heavy rains blocked the northbound lanes of the San Diego Freeway Saturday, backing up traffic for miles as the California Highway Patrol attempted to funnel off traffic at the tip of the hill.

Evidence lacking in murders case

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The FBI says Theodore Bundy was wanted for questioning in 36 sex slayings. Arrested 10 days after he was placed on the FBI's most wanted list, Bundy has not been charged with any new slayings. Some investigators say he may never be.

Bundy, who escaped from a Colorado jail in December while awaiting a first-degree murder trial for allegedly killing a nurse, has been charged here with stealing four vehicles and using stolen credit cards. He was arrested while allegedly driving a stolen car in Pensacola on Feb. 15, just after the FBI skipped over several other criminals to put him on its most wanted

The FBI says he is wanted for questioning in 36 slayings during the past five years in Oregon, Utah, Washington, Colorado and California.

But some local investigators say that although Bundy is a strong suspect in their homicides, they lack concrete evidence against him. Police Capt. Nick Mackie, a Bundy expert from SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Willis W. Ritter, a feisty chief federal judge considered by many as one of the most cantankerous and frequently reversed jurists in the country, is dead at 79.

Ritter, a rotund silvery haired man who was as unpredictable in his private life as he was in court, died at Holy Cross Hospital Saturday night of cardiac arrest. Private services were pending. Ritter had been hospitalized off and on for the past several years, refusing to disclose his illness. It was recently reported that he suffered from cancer. Much of Ritter's workload in recent days was taken over by visiting judges. Last fall, former U.S. Attorney Ramon Child, saying it had become so difficult for his attorneys to appear before Ritter, had the Justice Department ask the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to remove the judge from cases involving the federal government. Shortly after, the Utah attorney general asked that he be stopped from trying cases involving the state. There had been no ruling prior to Ritter's death.

Ritter's supporters and detractors were often in the same camp

Bus schedules available Braille for first time

By DIANE COX State News Staff Writer

The first Braille bus schedules in the country are now in use for riders of the Capital Area Transportation Authority. "It's amazing no one ever thought of it before," said Mike Ellis, co-ordinator of handicapper library services. "It opens up a whole area of transportation for the blind population.

He said the MSU Office of Programs for Handicappers is exploring the similar suggestion to transform the MSU bus schedules to Braille.

Ellis, who is blind, said buses are the main form of transportation for blind students both on and off campus. He said he has received positive feedback on the schedules from blind students.

"I think it is a great idea," John George, a blind MSU journalism senior, commented. "A blind person wants to know which bus goes where.' George said when blind people ask a bus driver which bus goes to a certain location, they are automatically told to pick up a printed schedule. "What the hell good does that do a blind person?" he aked.

J.J. Jackson, a blind computer pro grammer in the MSU Artificial Language Laboratory said he thinks the new sche dules are "fantastic."

"I think it is about time," he added. "It's going to help a lot of people find and hold down jobs.

The Braille bus schedules are bigger than the printed pamphlets. CATA Marketing Manager Steve Guile said they are slightly larger than a paperback book.

They are printed on a placticized sheet from a 'master' cardboard original through Mattel's popular Vac-U-Form toy of the late things in.' Sixties.

The technical assistance, equipment and materials for the production of the schedules were provided by OPH. The idea for the schedules came from Mike Geno, a blind producer and packager for WKAR.

"I was riding the bus and missing it occasionally," Geno explained. So last spring he proposed the project to the East Lansing Red Cedar Lion's Club, of which he is a member.

He found the club receptive, and said it has been funding the project with a promise of grant money to come from the Michigan Department of State Highways and Trans-

He said copies of the first master sheet were given to blind citizens. After they had time to study schedules, a test was given to see how easy they were to use and comments were asked for, Geno said. He said the first master copy contained the route with a street guide listing the streets in the order and direction the buses traveled. Beside this was a corresponding time sheet, he said.

Geno said the original combination proved too bulky to carry around. Comments showed people would rather carry the time sheets and leave the routes at home, he said.

"So now there are separate booklets for each," he said.

In response to other comments, Geno said they are increasing the information on transfers and have cut out the "sales pitch" information found on the printed CATA bus other cities asking how the Braille bus

Other things included in the schedules are the bus fares, the CATA information phone number, information on where to catch buses and how to indentify bus stop

Geno said if blind people have problems finding a bus stop, they can now hail one 30 feet from any corner

Geno said flags with route numbers are also contained in the schedule packets so a blind person can wave un needed buses

Bus schedules can be picked up at the Michigan Library for the Blind, CATA, OPH and the Michigan School for the Blind.

Geno said the Braille schedules are "just a physical form of a bigger philosophy. The blind are in need of and could make good use of much material available only in ink."

He said he hopes restaurants will make Braille menus and that national buslines such as Greyhound will make Braille

Geno said he has already had calls from schedules were made. He said they are forming a kit on the process.

'U' aids tri-county blood collection

By BETH TUSCHAK

Fresh-frozen plasma, gamma globulin and vaccina immune globulin sound like choices from an intergalactic menu. But along with platelets and packed red blood cells, they are the raw ingredients of whole blood and are collected, processed and distributed by the American Red Cross

According to Cathie Pontius, public relations director for the Lansing Red ('ross, blood collection in the tri-county area is greatly aided through MSU student cooperation.

When we have a blood drive on campus we are almost assured of collecting our standard goal of 355 pints," Pontius said.

Nationally, the American Red Cross is the largest collector, processor and distri-butor of voluntarily donated blood, providing over 40 percent of the nation's blood requirements

Donated blood provides half the whole blood used in civilian hospitals and a large portion of the blood products.

Pontius said about 10 percent of the Lansing population donates blood regularly. giving some 250 pints per week. At MSU, bloodmobile equipment is set up

Whole blood is stored at minus degrees Centigrade. If not used within three weeks it is sent to the lab and broken down to prepare anti-cancer research

'We also have an extensive program that meets the needs of patients with rare blood types," Pontius said. "A computerized Rare Blood Donor Registry enables us to locate donors and provide uncommon blood types whenever and wherever they are needed.

She said a leukemia patient in Kalamazoo was aided when blood from the Lansing center was transported during the snow

"During the late January snowstorm we estimated we would run 700 pints low,' Pontius said. "An emergency blood drive was called in Brody Complex, and 600 pints of blood were collected.

"The turnout was fantastic," she said. "Many of the students who came to donate were rather intoxicated, so we told them to go away for awhile and sober up. Lansing is very lucky to have MSU donors, as young,

Esmail investigation completed

The Israeli government has completed its investigation into the treatment of Sami Esmail, an MSU student arrested in Israel. Esmail has been charged with membership in an outlawed terrorist group and contact with foreign agents.

The investigation was requested by the U.S. Department of State after department officials initially claimed Esmail did not complain of mistreatment by Israeli officials.

a statement explaining what the investigation determined, Israeli officials concluded that Esmail was not mistreated The report said Esmail was first interrogated at Ben-Gurion Airport, where he was arrested, and then taken to the local police station for the night. "The next day (Dec. 22), interrogations continued for some hours with intervals for meals and rest," the statement said Questioning resumed on the morning of Dec. 25. That afternoon, Esmail was allowed to see his brother Shukri and, on the initiative of the police . the American Consul.

According to the statement, Esmail said he wished to sign a confession on Dec. 26, and subsequently wrote and signed nine

"It is to be stressed that Mr. Esmail was alone in his cell while writing his confession," the report stated.

"Up until Dec. 30, on no occasion did he complain of mistreatment," the statement continued. "The officers interroga ting Mr. Esmail have emphatically denied using physical force or threats or the offensive behavior alleged."

Jimmy Carter isn't saying a mouthful

"My name is Jimmy Carter, and I'm running for president." "Bert, I'm proud of you."

"There are some things in life that are unfair."

Great leaders are remembered for saying great things. If that dictum is true, Jimmy Carter is a disappointing failure as president. The quotes cited above are the phrases which quickly come to mind when one is asked to reiterate the president's most memorable declarations.

The first quote was the opening statement of Carter's Acceptance Speech at the 1976 Democratic National Convention. The second was praise fulsomely heaped on Bert Lance at a nationally televised news conference about a month before Lance was forced to resign as head of the Office of Management and Budget because of financial irregularities. The third was Carter's way of brushing aside complaints that his policy of opposing federally-financed abortions for poor women was intrinsically unfair.

The dearth of inspiring or meaningful presidential rhetoric underscores a deeper problem. Proponents of the foundering ERA have pointed out that Carter, who supports the amendment, could give it a shot in the arm by appearing on national television and educating the public to the benefits of ERA. Evidently Carter has never even contemplated this course of action. The same holds true for a slew of issues: the budget, urban aid, unemployment and many others.

Carter did deliver a nationally televised speech in favor of the Panama Canal treaties. Since that time, public support for the proposed pacts has increased and it now looks as though the Senate will ratify the Carter's hesitancy to use the mediums of television and radio to promote his legislative proposals and philosophical beliefs is puzzling. Perhaps, as some have suggested, the president has no deep convictions or underlying strategy that would make strong, decisive rhetoric useful. If that is the case — and some of us are beginning to suspect that it is the the Carter presidency is doomed to banality and failure, and these vapid words will haunt future generations:

"My name is Jimmy Carter . . .

Parking's Catch-22

About the only thing in shorter supply in East Lansing than student housing is parking space. So how does an East Lansing city department propose to create more parking space? How else? By knocking down student housing.

The East Lansing Planning, Housing and Community Development Department, in a less-than-inspired move, has drawn up a parking study which proposes that housing units in the 500 south block of Albert Street be knocked down to make room for a surface parking lot. The plan would dislocate about 40 residents, mostly students.

No one disputes the fact that more parking space is needed in the city, but there are better ways to go about getting it than by knocking down student housing. Two locations in the city which are currently surface e been proposed as locations for a new four-level parking ramp, and either one would be a good choice. But opposition to the ramp by some commissioners and members of the Central East Lansing Business Association have stalled any action on the plan.

In supporting the Albert Street site, some commissioners have displayed a rather callous attitude toward its residents. Commissioner Kathryn Boucher, for instance, suggested that they simply move on to the next city if they can not find housing in East Lansing, and ride the bus if they don't have cars.

Extending this line of thought to its logical conclusion, the city could knock down more and more student housing to construct more and more parking lots, thus forcing students farther out of the city then ever, necessitating that more and more of them drive into the city and increasing the need for parking space and bus transportation to ever greater heights. The self-defeating consequences of this Catch-22 are

It is up to the city's planning commission to reject the plan for the Albert Street surface lot at its meeting on Wednesday.

ASMSU candidates should have space

After reading the column by Dan Jones in the Feb. 23 State News, I am left dismayed by the possible political structure at State University. Mr. Jones' ambiguity has led me to believe that the director of Gay Council is heterosexual. If this is the case does it not seem possible that men would be best suited to represent women, whites represent blacks, and Chicanos represent North American In-

If Mr. Jones' article was to explain away a possible voting issue, in my eyes failed. I now ask you if the other eight or nine candidates will receive equal space for columns from their offices? Was Mr. Jones billed for this or was this a donation from the State News? I think that an article by each candidate, clearing up a misunder stood subject, would be helpful to both candidates and voters.

To Dan Chappelle, planning commission

Since when is a parking lot "esthetically pleasing?" We find our home esthetically pleasing, not a slab of blacktop crammed with gas guzzlers and rusted-out junkers

To Commissioner Kathryn Boucher: We don't care to move to a "nearby city." (Let them eat cake, eh?) Why don't all those people who find parking such a hassle rely on the bus system?

To Commissioner Larry Kestenbaum: We commend the fact that he took the time to come out to the people and did indeed find "there is unanimous disapproval from everyone.'

To City Councilmember Alan Fox:

We're relieved to find there are some members of the council who find that housing is more critical than parking.

We are always amazed and appalled by people who think it's more important to find places to "house" their cars than to find places to house people.

An energy waste

In the past few days I have had the opportunity to enter the Central Services building through the loading dock area three times. In this area there are five large doors, four of them big enough to drive a truck through (their intended purpose). On one trip there were no trucks; twice there were two trucks; on no trips were there any people around; on every trip all five doors were fully open and three large ceiling hung heaters were running full blast. This was an apparent effort to heat up all of south campus I suppose, I could see no other reason for their operation.

If these heaters cannot be turned off, it eems the least someone could do would be to push a button and close the doors, since they are power operated. With the emphasis that the University and the world are placing on energy

VIEWPOINT: CRIMINAL CODE REVISION

Interests of public not served by S-1437

By ROGER WINTHROP

The State News is generally a very good source for careful analysis of issues surrounding marijuana decriminalization, but the editorial endorsing S 1437 in part because it would decriminalize possession of one ounce or less under federal law requires further comment.

Federal decriminalization hasn't made much progress. The Javits/Koch bills have been bottled up for nearly six years; newer proposals offered by George Miller (Cal.) and Robert Kastenmeier (Wisc.) are also being hidden away. To be frank, despite President Carter's encouragement on decriminalization, it seems the only marijuana proposal with any chance of moving is 1437.

The temptation is to rush and embrace the first (only?) proposal that has a chance. Marijuana reform is not the easiest issue to carry, and people who have been leading the fight for years are getting tired of running into the same myths and fears time and time again. After all, the marijuana provisions of 1437 are not so different form those proposed in the Hart/Derezinski bill now before our Senate. Obviously, we encourage support of SB 1361. Despite the temptation, NORML condemns S-1437.

S-1437 is a step backward for civil liberties that we just can't afford to take. It is dangerous legislation, and no amount of 'laundering' is likely to change its more chilling aspects. There is a genesis from the original S-1400 of John Mitchell's Justice Department in 1973 through the infamous S-1 of 1976 to this bill that retains the reciprocal fear and loathing of the Nixon Administration and social reformers. The bill has new (represented as a gainst public demonstrations, conspiracy, strikes, boycotts, civil disobeds and Lord knows what else (may I ask how carefully you have read the bill?). Elimination parole and "good time" in trade for fixed sentences with bureaucratic review in mention of rehabilitation, if that is still a concern to modern penologists) ensures punishment, not equal justice.

Passage of S-1437 will put social reform attornies back in the courts, where they see the 1950s and '60s to ensure citizen participation in the '70s. Neither NORML nor last go through that routine again.

S-1437 was raised before NORML's 6th Annual National Conference in Washing D.C. last December. It was the only issue raised during those five days that everyone in total agreement on - S-1437 is such a bad bill that despite the importance of he decriminalization to our reform movement, NORML defers for the moment in its design enact such federal measures.

We are proud to join the ACLU, the National Lawyer's Guild, and the Nati Committee Against Repressive Legislation in condemning the bill. We urge NO supporters to take the broader view and resist the path of least resistance. It hurts to pass by the open door, but that's the price one pays for a "free society."

VIEWPOINT: SEAFARER

Upper Peninsula communications grid neede

By MARC DECKER

There have been many opinions in the State News concerning the proposed Seafarer Communications system in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, all of them against it. I would like to educate some of those who know nothing about the issue. I will counter with three viewpoints: 1. Military, 2. Environmental, 3. UP citizens.

1. The two superpowers of this world have just emerged from the "coldwar" of the 1960s into the "detente" of the 1970s. No one seems to know exactly what "detente" means, except that economic trade and spying can both be practiced simultaneously. Liza Marron's article (SN, Feb. 2) notwithstanding, this system is not a giant "Trigger Finger." That concept is an insult to the intelligence of every responsible person in Washington and to human

The use of the Seafarer system would place submarines at strategic points around the world because, like chess, strategy and position are the name of the game. not suicidal attack. We are at peace, but our intelligence data gathering is always at war. As a former employee in the Air Force working with NATO countries in Missile/ Bomber Early Warning, I can only say that ve have more than our own American interests at heart. The welfare of the Free World countries also relies on us. Besides, country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country."

John F. Kennedy said it beautifully: "Ask not what your most human errors result from the lack of those that could cause harm to humans. communication, not the communication itself. Therefore, Seafarer would result in the control of sea launched ballistic missiles, not the deployment of them.

2. Many "environmentalists" say that the Seafarer system would be hazardous to humans and wildlife in the UP. This is not according to a 12-volume study of Seafarer by the National Academy of Sciences (Detroit Free Press, Feb. 19, 1977) I quote: "No adverse effect on human ability to use the environment for livelihood or recreation) has been substantiated." The only disruption to the environment would be temporary during construction and would thereafter return to normal.

In a conversation I had with a friend, Commander Ken Noyce, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary (retired), I was told that the facility that would pose a potential for harm would be the radar station at Sault Ste. Marie because of the radio wavelengths used, but there have been no casualties. Anyway, Seafarer radio waves are below

Cmdr. Noyce, also a ham radio operator, gave me a technical description about the use of the earth's electromagnetism that is at the core of Seafarer. He said that is why it must be built at higher latitudes. He agreed that my comparison to that of playing chords upon a guitar would be accurate when compared to Seafarer's use of the earth's electromagnetism

According to a Navy policy statement, there would be 2,600 construction jobs per month as well as a $300 million savings to the taxpayers over a comparable system in Nevada. But why have there not been protests over the emission of radiation from watches, color TVs, X ray machines and microwave ovens? Surely microwaves discriminate against a minority that must use pacemakers. Apparently the main objection is that Seafarer is not a hedonistic item as above but a machine meant to keep us, and other NATO countries militarily secure.

3. On Jan. 30, 1978, the State News said the Navy had reduced the grid size of the antenna from 2,400 miles of cable miles. I only wish that the UP were as compromising as the Navy.

During President Carter's campai foolishly promised not to put Seals UP unless the residents wanted it. candidates don't keep their campaign ises, and many countries don't eve local residents for permission. App the UP residents don't want the tho of temporary jobs, the permanent service jobs or the added boost to the economy that Seafarer would bring.

We should be thankful that this c is strong and secure enough individuals do have a choice. But a unsupported will fall. Everyone want 'guaranteed" First Amendment they want the free money from wells unemployment, and they want feder when the snowfall reaches 18 inches.

Surely a small sacrifice by us in Mi ourely a small sacrifice by us in Mi will ensure that everybody will hav "guaranteed" rights. I anticipate cris some who will say, "I was bo American, and no one can deny n rights." You but you can only take so rights." Yes, but you can only take without having to give something duty or service, in return. John F. Ke said it beautifully: "Ask not wha country can do for you, ask what you for your country."

Children flock to MSU Museum

By JIM SMITH State News Staff Writer

"Were elephants really THAT big," asked a wide eyed 6-year-old as he stared at a reconstructed 10-foot pachyderm.

The boy was one of 22 Red Cedar kindergarten students who toured the recently-reopened MSU Museum one morning last week.

The children in this case were students from Sharon Viol's morning class at Red Cedar school, but they were only a small percentage of the hundreds of elementary students who visit the museum weekly.

Viol said the museum brings her classroom lessons alive for her students and prompts

Transported figuratively back in time, the children see in lifelike displays what they had previously only known from books and filmstrips. Faraway places with mystical names become real to the kindergarteners as they tour the museum

Pausing in front of an Ethiopian culture display, Viol told her students, "that's Neeshan's country." Neeshan is one of Viol's students. The children exhibited intense curiosity and interest in detail, down to noting the painted blood on the steps of an Aztec diorama depicting ancient human sacrifice rituals. A replica of an old-fashioned country store and farm kitchen complete with a water pump kept a steady stream of questions flowing from students to teacher. But nothing sparked the youngsters' imaginations as much as the dinosaur section. A fierce plaster recreation of the skull of a Tyrannosauras Rex kept mouths and eyes wide open for several minutes as Viol related the sight to classroom lessons.

The children wandered back and forth, exhibit to exhibit, examining remains of creatures long extinct.

This scene is repeated thousands of times each month as classes from school districts in Ingham and surrounding counties use the museum as a teaching resource.

Museum Direactor Rollin H. Baker said he has received positive reactions from teachers and studens who have visited the newly-reopened facility. He said early worries that shrinking school district budgets would hold down on field

The museum is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays and from 1-5 p.m. on Saturdays

Treatment for poison victims is available in the area from emergency rooms of local hospitals. Ambulance paramedics also carry some poison antidotes in their drug boxes.

STAR, EL RENACIMIENTO PERSONNEL ON CAMPUS

Editors explain necessity of alternatives

By DELINDA KARLE

State News Staff Writer The need is always great for alternative publications, two Lansing area newspaper editors said Friday. John D. Snyder, co-editor of the Lansing Star, and Jose A. Lopez, editor of the bilingual paper El Renacimiento, told a journalism class that alternative papers must report news which does not appear in the established press.

"Alternative papers are a response to the need for relevant, honest news," Snyder

He said the established press is only interested in the financial gains of publishing, rather than the duty of informing the public.

"We (in the alternative press) are dedicated and foolhardy folks who want to inform people," he said.

Lopez said most news in the daily papers is detrimental to the Spanish population. He cited as examples reports on drug raids and "None of our (Spanish-American) achievements get recognition," he said. Lopez said El Renacimiento reports news that does not appear in the regular press.

El Renacimiento began in 1970 as a Spanish-language paper, but by 1974 was printing stories in both Spanish and English. Lopez said he determines which language will be used for a particular story by the contents. "If mostly older people will read it, we will print the story in Spanish," he said. "But if it has a younger audience we will print it in English, because most Spanish youths only read English." The paper is a bi-monthly with a statewide circulation of about 20,000, he

The Star began in April, 1974 as an "uncultured and non-professional" paper, Snyder explained. "Our main purpose was to have a good time," he said.

After six issues the Star collapsed but was resurrected in April, 1975 with funding from MSU's Student Media Appropriations Board. The format of the paper then began to become more professional, he said. We are now the very best in the country of this type of paper (alternative tabloid)

The Star currently publishes every other week and is distributed free at drop-off points in the Lansing area. The publishes between 15,000 and 20,000

"We always have a problem with distribution because people who don't like us pick up a bundle of papers and put them in the trash," he commented.

The Star will soon publish weekly due to the cutting of SMAB funds from $10,000 to $5,000. Snyder said the paper has to publish more often to get increased revenue from advertising.

"We did not want to go weekly, but we have to get more money," he said. "By hook we are going to stay alive

Lopez and Snyder said politicians are afraid of alternative publications.
"We have to gain their confidence." Lopez

Both editors dislike the increasing con centration in media ownership. "It is a dangerous development," Snyder said."In order for the First Amendment to be viable, alternative publications need to be around.

Lopez said some regular dailies, such as the Miami Herald, print news in Spanish, but only use translations of wire-service

"It is one of the downfalls of the established press," he said. "They use canned news and seldom get at the nitty-gritty."

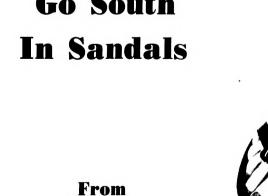

Both editors said alternative journalism is an exciting medium. "It's a very gratifying type of journalism," Lopez commented.

diminutive folksinger sat, exhausted, in the makeshift lounge and dressing room just off McDonel Kiva, waiting it out between his two Mariah shows Friday night.

He straddled a straightbacked chair, resting his chin on the back as he talked between sips of ginger ale. Every ounce of his energy had just been used up in 90 minutes on stage, and he was faced with the prospect of doing it all again in another hour.

The performance had been a typical one for Goodman. Jumping around in his dirty tennis shoes, standing on tiptoe in front of a microphone and screaming out songs in a voice ranging somewhere between Hank Williams and Arlo Guthrie, he used his body, his voice, and his sense of humor to drive his audience to the brink of insenity.

Now he was philosophizing about his career, and refueling for the next show.

"We're blessed to play these gigs," he said. "It's a lucky thing, really.

As he talked, mandolin ace Jethro Burns wandered around the room. For 39 years, Burns was one half of the team of Homer and Jethro, garnering Grammy awards and establishing a world-wide reputation. Now he's working part-time for Goodman. That's luck.

"I'm amazed," Goodman said, burned out from the smoke, the applause, and over an hour of singing at full tilt, "that any one's coming to these concerts. It's fine with me. This is a ridiculous and interesting way to make a living."

"Ridiculous" and "interesting" are two words aptly describing a Steve Goodman concert. Goodman is like a jet engine packed into a Volkswagen body, blasting around a stage and leaving his tired, satisfied audiences in his wake. He's part comedian, part se rious singer, part lunatic.

Goodman talked about luck and fate governing his career, but not about his own talent. Yet his talent is immense enough to draw the biggest names in folk music to the studio to record with him, names like Jethro Burns, John Prine, Jimmy Buffett, Pete Seeger, and Bob Dylan.

"It was a real good twist of fate to get Jethro to play with me," Goodman humble said.
"We both live in Evanston, Illinois. It was because of geography as much as anything. We're neighbors."

"He's played on my records since 1975. It's an honor, man. This fall he wasn't doing much and I had this tour, so I said hey, man, it ain't much, but why don't you come out? He hadn't been on a real tour for so long, that I think he wanted to see the country. He's a good player. Hell, that's an under statement.'

Goodman uses a lot of under statements.

"Well, to be honest, I don't

Jarman's music, which the multi-instrumentalist busily produced on tenor and alto saxophone, flute and vibes. Thus Jarman and his music provided most of the night's inspiration, while Jorjorian added with her dancing the element of theater Jarman himself previously supplied with the Art Ensemble.

Surprisingly, Jarman's play ing with the Art Ensemble never seemed as fluent, tasteful or restrained as it was Saturday night. Of course, the entire "solo musician trip — which some say was pioneered by Jarman's friend Anthony

Braxton, in the late '60s, with his 2-LP set of solo performmances on Delmark Records leaves Jarman in a playing situation far removed from the organic unity of the Art Ensemble. Typically the "live wire" of the Ensemble, always wearing painted face and jumping interchangeably from intrument to instrument, Jarman now clearly understands that showmanship can never replace musicianship in the solo concert setting. Certainly, there were humor ous elements to the show, particularly the segment in which Jorjorian, dancing, placed herself back-to-back to the crouching Jarman Jarman continued playing his tenor sax. There were also elements of raw sexuality: In this same segment Jarman occasionally thrusted his tenor at Jorjorian, who was busy disengaging herself Jarman's back

Yet behind all this lay Jarman's irrefutable talents as a musician, which were never more in evidence than on Saturday night. His tenor style playing several scale-like passages while gradually developing a cohesive theme that rapidly gets frenetically blown to oblivion — hasn't changed much since his appearance with the Art Ensemble in Ann Arbor last term. The preoccupation with minimalism that Roscoe Mitchell's current work displays carries over to Jarman's music as well; a highlight of Saturday night's show was a taped, repetitious synthesizer segment over which Jorjorian

Jarman's simultaneous play ing of tenor sax and vihes was very well done and quite understated, as was his work on flute. In fact, understatement more than anything else seems the watchword of Jarman's current direction, which is quite remarkable considering the saxophonist's relatively chaotic

Such restraint was shown that I, for one, would like to hear more of it — unfortunately, I'm not quite sure Jarman has been recording lately. This is certainly not the case with nis ensemble partners Roscoe Mitchell and Lester Bowie, who generally are more highly regarded by critics than Jarman, and it's unfortunate that Jarman and his seeming new restraint haven't been suitably documented as yet. Hopefully a Jarman solo recording will be forthcoming.

Thanks to Showcase Jazz for a low-key but very well-done show. While most mixed media performances sound better on paper than on the actual stage, Jarman and Jorjorian's tasteful production was a very pleasant exception to the rule

If you're a junior or a senior majoring in math, physics or engineering, the Navy has a program you should know about.

It's called the Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate-Collegiate Program (NUPOC-C for short) and if you qualify, you can earn as much as $650 a month right through your senior year. Then after 16 weeks of Officer Candidate School, you'll receive an additional year of advanced technical education. This would cost you thousands in a civilian school, but in the Navy, we pay you. And at the end of the year of training, you'll receive a $3,000 cash bonus.

It isn't easy. There are fewer than 400 openings and only one of every six applicants will be selected. But if you make it, you'll have qualified for an elite engineering training program. State News Sports Writer
Ah, those Spartans. They not only did it, but they did it in style.

After clinching the Big Ten title and an NCAA berth with a win over Wisconsin last Thursday, the Spartans made it clear that they are truly the champs by pinning a 71-70 loss on Minnesota Saturday.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson's free throw with only three seconds remaining gave MSU the win in what Jud Heathcote had termed a battle for "pride and prestige."

And the Big Ten race, which was so closely contested only two weeks ago, went to MSU by a surprising three game bulge over the Gophers and Indiana.

There is no doubt about it, MSU is the champion . . . and what was more fitting for the team than a champion's welcome?

A crowd, estimated by police at 6,300, lined the east edge of the taxiing runway at Lansing's Capital City Airport to greet the Spartans Sunday afternoon.

With strains of the MSU Fight Song in the air and everyone's index finger raised to signify the Spartans' first-place finish, the crowd erupted when the team's North Central Airlines flight touched down at 1:10 p.m.

After getting off the plane, each player and the coaching staff was presented with a key to the city by Lansing mayor Gerald W. Graves. The crowd, which had behaved well by staying behind the lines set up, then began to swarm around the players.

"Fans, thanks so very much," Jud Heathcote said to the crowd. "A lot of you people are just dumb enough to think that we might go all the way, and a lot of us here (the team) are just dumb enough to think we will too."

It was the final game of Mychal Thompson's career at Minnesota, and he made it a memorable one by scoring 20 points to become the Big Ten's career scoring leader, surpassing Purdue's Rick Mount.

Thompson and guard Osborne Lockhart combined to pace the Gophers to a 38-34 halftime advantage. Lockhart, who like Thompson hails from the Bahamas, scored 17 first half againt Western was the best basketball we've played all year, both defensively and offensively. We came out in a three-two zone against Western. I think we caught them completely off guard. They expected us to be in a man-to-man.

Another major difference in the contest was team work. "There was a big difference in Western's individual play and our team play and our team played well," Langeland said with a smile. "I don't think we can win the big games with individual efforts. We have to have a team effort."

The leading scorer for the Spartans was Mary Kay Itnyre with 24 points. Itnyre had 19 points for the Spartans. Also in double figures were Ann Sober with 15 points, Pam Rendine with 14, and Carmen King with 12. Itnyre also had 12 rebounds.

With the state championship now behind them, the Spartans have the regionals to look forward to this coming weekend. The Spartans, hosts of the tournament, are expecting their toughest test to come from three-time Big Ten champion Ohio State. MSU has lost to the Buckeyes by a one-point margin in both of the previous meetings this year.

"I think that we're capable of doing to them what we did against Western," Langeland said. "We've got the psychological advantage after losing to them twice. I think we can beat them. Playing Ohio State here will make a difference also. We're going to wait to see how the seeding goes though. Both of us are capable of being knocked off by someone else."

Smith wins second straight 60-yard title

State News Sports Writer

Sophomore sprinter Randy Smith won his second consecutive conference championship in the 60-yard dash, but the MSU men's track team still finished in a fifth-place tie at the Big Ten track meet held at Purdue this weekend.

Smith's electronic time of 6.31 was a bit off the record of 6.17 he set in the meet last year. He will compete in the NCAA meet, March 10-11 at Detroit's Cobo Hall.

103 total points, 19 ahead of second-place Indiana, MSU's total of 46 tied it with Illinois for fifth.

One big disappointment for the Spartans was the disqualification of Ricky Flowers after he had won the 300-yard dash. Flowers, who meet officials said stepped out of his lane, had run a 30.4 — the best time in the Big Ten this year. Indiana's Tim Graf was awarded first place, and MSU's Smith was given second. "I was very disappointed for Ricky," MSU track coach Jim Bibbs said. "He worked so hard to win the Big Ten and then it is taken away from him."

Freshman high jumper Dennis Lewis continued to shine for the tracksters as he set a new MSU record 7-feet-2. Lewis, who was third because of more misses, will also compete in the NCAA Shot putter Paul Schneider finished second in the meet with a toss of 57-feet-5. But the 60-foot barrier Schneider once again, so he did not qualify for the NCAA meet. Wisconsin's Jeff Braun won the shot with 59 feet 6.

In quite a surprise, freshman Tyrone Williams finished third in the 600-yard run with a 1:11.6. Senior captain Tim Klein, who was undefeated in the 600 in dual meets, finished fifth in 1:12.1.

Sophomore Keith Moore shrugged off the flu bug to finish fourth in the 1,000 yard run with a time of 2:13.1.

Using the Middle East as an example, Rizoway explained that the type of terrorism Israel faces is one of disintegration terrorism.

"It is possible to bargain with a group wanting to change the authority or regime, but it is not possible to bargain with a terrorist group that means the destruction of a society," he said.

He said everyone has a right to define themselves as a people, including both Palestinians and Jews. "But actually, no one has the right to claim they are more of a people," he continued.

"Any solution to the Palestinian problem should be comprehensive and will demand recognition of the state of Israel and renunciation of violence as a means of achieving peace." Also, he said, Palestinian terrorist groups fail to recognize the rights of sovereignty and self-determination for Jews, and do not mention

He said the Middle East is different from other areas because terrorist groups have more resources than groups anywhere else in the world, since they have access to money from the petroleum industry.

"But they did not succeed in getting mass support from their own people, and that should tell us something," Rizoway said. He added that Israel has offered the Palestinians more than any other country. Palestinians have the right to have elected officials and when no one else would take the Palestinians Israel did, he continued, but pointed out that Jewish people were expelled from Arab countries.

Rizoway defended the acquisition of land by the Israelis during the 1967 and 1973 wars, asking whether the United States would give up territory to a belligerant which could be used as a base from which to attack Americans.

He added that all countries have acquired land during wars and compared the situation in Israel to the way land was taken from the Indians in the United States.

"In the United States Indians were put on reservations, and the Arabs put the Palestinians

SMALL FARMERS IMPORTANT, EXPERT SAYS

No pockets of wealth in Africa

State News Staff Writer

. The universal concept that humans are part of an integrated state system does not apply to Africa, said a professor of political science from the University of Dar es Salaam in Tanzania.

Gordan Hyden, currently on leave at the University of California at Berkeley, told the audience at the African Luncheon Seminar Thursday that countries in subSahara Africa are unique from other third-world countries.

"Ninety percent or more peasants are subsistence farmers." he said. "Capitalism or imperialism has not subdued them, and they are in active competition with international trade."

Hyden said most countries today are dominated by a concentration of wealth, while in Africa small landholders earn a living independently.

"Smallness still matters in Africa more than anywhere else in the world," he commented.

Hyden said the resilience of peasants to traditional methods of farming creates problems for national development.

"Peasants have successfully rejected the penetration of capitalism and socialism and they have failed to engage in surplus production and cash crops," he said.

The rejection creates problems for governments because peasants fail to support them actively, Hyden said. "Peasants don't need the state, but the state needs the peasants."

"Only when demographic problems or soil erosion occur do peasants look toward the government for help.' But in many places, governmental help is not necessary, he continued. For 40 years, Tanzanian peasants have resisted a change in their methods of agriculture, he added. "Production of food is so important to them they do not want to use new governmental policies and take a risk," Hyden said. "Thus, the peasants still use 80 to 90 percent of their time to just Without peasants' help, African governments are helpless to develop their countries on a strong agriculture base, Hyden said. "The peasants can survive without the state by selling their own products," he explained. Hyden said he feels African governments will soon get tougher with peasants as population increases and food production lags.

"But if there is a quick change it will increase problems rather than solve them," he added. "Progressiveness in Africa may paradoxically mean slow development.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Daily News, a leader in the colorful era of journalism in the first half of the century, is dead at age 102 of low circulation and heavy losses.

The final edition carried the paper's own obituary that within 12 hours of hitting the street Saturday was being scalped for up to $20 an issue. "So long, Chicago," was the newspaper's banner headline to its readers. The newspaper, winner of 15 Pulitzer Prizes, had earned a reputation for literary excellence and founded the Chicago Daily News foreign service, the first of its kind, in

Its staff had included poet Carl Sandburg; Ben Hecht, whose cocky play "The Front Page" co-authored with Charles MacArthur dramatized the comic and colorful aspects of Chicago newspapering of the years in Chicago. 1920s; Peter Finley Dunne of "Mr. Dooley" fame; Eugene Field, the children's poet from Denver who became the first daily newspaper columnist in America; Hoosier humorist Ade; and John Howar Vincent Gunther, O'Brien, Lloyd Lewis, Clem Land and, more recently, Peter Lisagor, Mike Royko and Sidney Harris.

The biggest story on the newpaper's final day was the Daily News itself. Major news stories were summarized, and the bulk of the paper was devoted to articles about the newspaper and to retrospec-tives by its writers on recent

The News was born as a four-sheeter in 1875 and reached a peak circulation of 614,000 in 1957. But competition from radio, television and suburban dailies cut the number to 327,000 a day. When the paper closed it was still the sixth largest daily in the nation.
Assistant City Editor Roger Flaherty at the Chicago Sun-

Times, the Daily News' sister paper, said 490,000 copies of the final Daily News were printed, 155,000 more than the usual

SP-10-3-10(8) Magazine catalogs new English words

CHICAGO (AP) — If you don't knw how to "quantitize" or cut find where your "wetware" is, you may want to subscribe to a men magazine called QUARREL, which is going at the bargain priced $250 a year, marked down from $12,000. QUARREL, says publisher Laurence Urdang, is "a service that catalogues all the new words that come into the language that are not already documented in dictionaries. Each day, QUARREL researchers around the world will rummage through dozens of newspapers and magazines, looking by new words, Urdang said. Beginning in September, the discoveries, from "anti-redlining" to "zip trolling," will be collected and offered in an average 350 page issue of Quarrel - or the Quarterly Report on the English Language. It's no small task. The English language "has probably grown more in the last 50 years than it did in the 300 years before that." Urdang said in a telephone interview from his Essex, Conn., offin 'Quantitize" means to express as a measurable quantity.

"Wetware" is the computer expert's word for your brain. To wetware is the computer experts word for your oran. aptrolling," as used in Field & Stream, means trolling - drawing but behind a boat — faster than most other fishermen. Urdant hopes the $11,750 cut in the subscription price will attract 400 or 500 readers. He figures only 15 or 18 would buy the publication at $12,000 a year. But even at $12,000, QUARREL would be a real bargain for some subscribers, such as dictionant
