Call rezoning vote ruled legal by judge

By KAREN SHERIDAN
State News Staff Writer

A vote on the Dayton Hudson mall rezoning is legal, Ingham County Court Judge Ray C. Hotchkiss ruled Tuesday. The ruling was accompanied by statements from Jack Cote, an attorney for Dayton Hudson, that the firm would

"very definitely" appeal the decision to the Michigan Court of Appeals. A staying order, which allows the corporation to appeal Hotchkiss' decision within 10 days, was granted. Citizens' groups calling for the referendum are expected to act on Hotchkiss' decision May 16 if an appeal is not granted. Hotchkiss' ruling came in response to a Dayton Hudson Corp. suit challenging the legality of a referendum on the East Lansing City Council's Aug. 3, 1977, decision to rezone 86 acres of corporation-owned land from agricultural to commercial. Citizens for a Livable Community, Students for a Livable Community and MSU-PIRGIM began a petition drive the night the rezoning was approved in an attempt to reverse the decision. The mall, to be called "The Cedars," would be located on Lake Lansing Road and U.S. 127 in the city's northwest tier. A temporary injunction prohibiting City Clerk Beverly Colizzi from presenting the petitions to city council for action was granted by Hotchkiss soon after they were filed Jan. 25. More than 7,000 residents signed the petitions. After the petitions are presented to the city council, it has the option of setting a date for the referendum or reversing the rezoning. But the injunction issued halting presentation of the petitions was immediately dissolved by Wednesday's ruling despite corporation arguments that a zoning change was an administrative rather than legislative decision, and therefore not subject to referendum. The corporation also argued Wednesday that a referendum on a zoning ordinance would conflict with provisions of the City and Village Zoning Enabling Act. But in a four-page written opinion, Hotchkiss cited a 1975 Michigan court decision stating that zoning changes were "legislative acts" clothed with a presumption of validity. Therefore, rezoning is legislative and subject to a referendum. Hotchkiss further cited a 1972 Michigan court decision stating the purpose of an enabling act was simply to guarantee that "certain procedural steps be taken prior to passage of new zoning legislation," and therefore were not in conflict with the right to referendum. Despite Hotchkiss' decision, however, (continued on page 11)

Committee seeks summer pay for selection process

By DANIEL HILBERT and JIM SMITH
State News Staff Writers

A residential search and selection committee voted unanimously Wednesday to pay its members prior to closing the fourth committee meeting. A motion proposed by Jeanne Gullahorn, professor of psychology, will allow payment of faculty members who are on 10-month academic appointments and four student members for committee work this summer.

Three faculty members with 10-month appointments are Douglas Dunham, professor of social science, Julia S. Falk, associate professor of linguistics, and Gullahorn. She explained that 10-month appointments run from Sept. 1 to the end of June. Four student members of the committee, Anne Crowe, Juana Gonzales, Paul and Steve Spivey, will also be paid.

Members by three MSU Board of Trustees members reached by the State News for their opinion on the committee pay proposal ranged from neutral to negative. "I think they should be paid one penny," said Aubrey Radcliffe, R-East Lansing, "for volunteers to get involved and now they ask for pay. I'm against the idea."

Stack, R-Alma, said that while the committee's request might be reasonable, "I envisioned a committee being paid members."

"I would rather wait and comment on that at our next (board) meeting," said Donald Stack, D-Bloomfield Hills.

Gullahorn proposed paying the members because the bulk of the committee's work is conducted in the summer. She said the members who would not then be on salary would be paid.

Stack cited as precedent a search committee for a dean of the College of Arts and Letters at Michigan University which paid its members.

Norrell, acting committee chairperson, said she researched precedents regarding payment and found that members of an ad hoc committee to revise the MSU were also paid.

Stack said she could find no other precedents, but would continue to research the matter. A sum of money that paying committee members might entail was not discussed in the report as the source of the money. Falk said she assumed payment would not come from the committee's $15,000 budget. (continued on page 12)

Rape threat near Wells reported by 'U' woman

A 21-year-old MSU woman reported to MSU Department of Public Safety officials that she had been threatened with rape Sunday near Wells Hall bridge at approximately 9:30 p.m.

The woman was sent to Olin Health Center for observation and released. Police said she suffered no injuries.

The woman's attacker was described as approximately 6 feet tall, 20 years old, with mid-length hair. The suspect was also reported to have a high pitched voice and to be clean shaven.

Police reported they have no suspect in the case.

Marijuana test kits unreliable

By CHRIS KUCZYNSKI
State News Staff Writer

Home-testing kits used to detect the herbicide Paraquat on marijuana are not a reliable means to test for the poison, according to a California researcher.

John Kotecki, executive director of Pharm Chem Laboratories in Palo Alto, Calif., said Wednesday his laboratory has tested one of several kits available on the market and the results proved to be unsatisfactory.

Tests were performed on samples of marijuana known to contain Paraquat, Kotecki said. Using the same sample of marijuana, the home test kit did not detect any Paraquat in the tainted drug.

"The kit did not produce satisfactory results and was not very accurate," Kotecki said. "There may be some reliable kits that we don't know about, but generally it is not feasible to run a test at home."

The kit that gave unsatisfactory results used a method known as a Sodium Dithionate color reaction test.

Though Pharm Chem has not tested all kits currently on the market, Kotecki said the kits using the Sodium Dithionate method could not be considered reliable.

One kit available to marijuana users was advertised last Thursday in the State News and was promoted as a "Quat Kit." For $4.95 one could test five samples of marijuana with the kit, the advertisement stated.

However, the advertisement did not specify what method of testing the kit used to detect Paraquat. Gerald Rise, a California "scientist" who developed the "Quat Kit," called the kit "quite sensitive and reliable" but would not disclose the chemical means by which the kit worked.

When asked by the State News for a more detailed explanation on how the test worked, Rise said, "You'll have to send for one and find out for yourself," and hung up the phone.

Bill Oberlin, education coordinator for the East Lansing DEC, said he has sent for a "Quat Kit" and plans to have it tested by the MSU Department of Pharmacology for its reliability.

Steven Anderson, director of training programs for Haight-Ashbury in San Francisco, Calif., also cast doubt on the reliability of the home-test kits because of their low cost. (continued on page 12)

State Rep. Monte Gerald, D-Madison Heights, sits in the nearly-deserted House chamber Wednesday as he waits for his Democratic colleagues to decide whether to expel him from the Legislature because of his conviction for embezzlement.

Geralds' future uncertain

By NUNZIO M. LUPO
State News Staff Writer

A sullen state Rep. Monte Gerald sat almost alone in the House chambers Wednesday while fellow Democrats caucused unsuccessfully for four hours to decide his future in the Legislature.

Gerald faces certain expulsion efforts by House Republicans if he does not step down and if Democrats do not act. Republicans are calling for his resignation because of his recent conviction for embezzlement.

Gerald spoke to the Democratic caucus shortly before they met without success to decide the fate of their colleague, who was convicted of embezzling $24,000 from a law client.

Speaker of the House Bobby Crim said Democrats would meet again today at 1:30 p.m. to decide whether to oust the Madison Heights lawmaker.

Geralds' appealing the conviction and the fact that the embezzlement occurred before he took office were concerns some Democrats had about expelling him, Crim said.

Crim, a Davison Democrat, said the sentiment among some caucus members and himself is that Gerald should resign rather than face expulsion.

"That's an option that would settle the process once and for all," he said.

But Gerald is standing firm in his decision to stay in the (continued on page 10)

OPH reps to discuss MSU law compliance

By ANNE MARIE BIONDO
State News Staff Writer

Representatives of the Office of Programs for Handicapped will meet with MSU administrators today to discuss University compliance with a federal civil rights law.

A transition plan drafted by the University architect's office — referred to as the "counter plan" by representatives of OPH, will be analyzed by both groups to determine if it meets the requirements of Section 504 of the Vocational Rehabilitation Act of 1973. Section 504 specifies that: "No qualified handicapped person shall, on the basis of handicap, be excluded from participation in, or otherwise be subjected to discrimination under any programs or activity which receives or benefits from federal financial assistance."

The "counter plan" is the third plan drafted by various members of a task force appointed last year by Robert Perrin, vice president for University and federal relations. The task force was designed to draft a plan of transition to a barrier-free campus, without regards to costs. The plan is required by law to identify physical campus barriers to handicapped students and to outline methods that will be used to break down those barriers, said Jeffrey Knoll, a student wheelchair user and task force member. The task force, headed by coordinator Eric Gentile, submitted a first draft of the plan to Perrin in December 1977, Knoll said.

Handicapper plan controversial

After reviewing the plan with "University officers . . . and appropriate staff members," Perrin issued a memorandum rejecting the plan and listing 14 points of criticism.

The first point stated that while the draft concentrated on physical accessibility, it ignored program accessibility.

The transition plan is supposed to deal with physical accessibility, said Judy Taylor, director of OPH.

The Section 504 regulations stipulate that all University programs should have been made accessible by August 1977, Taylor explained.

However, where it is necessary to make structural changes on the building in order for the handicapper student to get to class, the University has until June 1980 to comply.

The transition plan was intended to deal with such structural changes, Taylor said. In another point of criticism, Perrin's memorandum reported that the plan requires the University to replace all round door knobs with lever handles.

"Just this one change is estimated to cost $2,500,000," the memorandum stated.

Knoll said the task force's intent was to ensure that the University replace such obstacles when they wear out with comparable materials that are accessible.

When asked whether the plan explicitly stated that all door knobs on campus should be replaced with lever handles, Perrin said, "This was undoubtedly a misreading of the transition plan."

In February, Knoll said, he wrote two letters to Perrin listing the immediate concerns of handicappers not receiving sufficient attention.

"I hit on transportation," Knoll said. "Vans (used for handicapper transportation on campus) are falling apart."

In addition, the task force meeting had been unproductive because some members displayed uncooperative attitudes, he said.

"At the meetings we've heard things like 'every dollar going into a ramp comes out of chemistry,'" he said. "This was a prevalent attitude."

About eight days after writing to Perrin, Knoll said he called Elliott G. Ballard, secretary to the MSU Board of Trustees, and asked to speak at the next trustee meeting.

"Perrin called me the next day and begged me not to go before the board," Knoll said. "He said they (the trustees) would ask him questions that he was not capable of answering."

But Perrin said he did not stop Knoll from speaking to the trustees.

"Anybody can go before the board," Perrin said. "I was trying to explain how I intended to proceed — that I was going to chair the task force," he continued.

Knoll said he agreed to compromise by not going to the board when Perrin assured him that he would take a more positive approach to Knoll's complaints.

"Perrin hadn't been at meetings before, but said that he would take charge to unify (the task force members) and end the disagreement," Knoll said.

Knoll said Perrin was successful in so far as "there were no more snide remarks" at the meetings. However, at that point Gentile was phased out of his leadership position, Knoll said.

"It (the transition planning effort) was taken out of Eric's hands — because he's in a wheelchair. Eric's viewpoint is too close to the consumer's perspective," Knoll said.

Though Gentile is still officially the compliance coordinator, Knoll said he holds the position "in name only."

When asked if Gentile has lost his authority as compliance coordinator, Perrin replied, "I can't comment on that." (continued on page 12)

Israel escalating conflict, Syria says

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria accused Israel Wednesday of "seriously escalating the Middle East conflict" by planting a booby-trapped eavesdropping device in Syria that exploded and emitted lethal "radioactive particles."

There was no immediate comment from Israel on the charge.

A Syrian government statement said the device exploded April 1 near the Damascus-Jordan highway, killing 12 persons.

The statement, saying Syria had complained to the United Nations, charged Israel with a "barbaric and savage violation of international rules forbidding the use of such atomic cells in civilian territory."

The Syrians did not suggest the device was an atomic bomb. They said it was planted inside a radio receiver and emitted radioactive particles from atomic cells made in the United States.

The statement, issued by the Syrian Arab News Agency, said the device was rigged to a radiotelephone cable linking Damascus and Amman, Jordan.

London hotel copes with strike

LONDON (AP) — The "Spirit of Dunkirk" has emerged at strike-beleaguered Claridge's Hotel as the management and customers in London's famous hostelry suffer an austerity regimen.

With a stiff upper lip, the somber-suited assistant manager of Claridge's said Wednesday the hotel was "coping admirably" with its strike of 120 kitchen workers, waiters and chambermaids.

"Dunkirk Spirit Breaks Out at Claridge's," said a headline in the Times of London, after reports that sympathetic guests were offering to help out by making their own beds in their $73-a-night art deco suites.

Management politely declined the offer.

But pickets say they have forced a cut in deliveries of food and liquor to the hotel. The usually lavish menu has been reduced to simpler fare.

Carter pressures for energy compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration kept the pressure on Congress Wednesday to accept a proposed White House compromise on natural gas pricing. But Republican energy conferees said the president told them he'll take anything he can get.

Key House-Senate energy negotiators left a three-hour White House bargaining session with Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger without reaching agreement on an administration plan designed to rescue Carter's energy bill.

But they expressed optimism that one eventually would be reached as a result of the administration's direct intervention — although possibly not this week.

Another White House negotiating session was set for early Thursday on the new compromise proposal, which includes a provision to lift price controls from newly found natural gas by April 30, 1985.

This is a middle ground between dates advocated previously by bargainners for each side.

Nixon defends actions in memoirs

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Nixon defends in his memoirs his actions just before the Watergate break-in and reiterates that an otherwise illegal act becomes legal if done by a president, according to the Soho News.

The Soho News, a weekly newspaper here, said it obtained five random galley's of the former president's book earlier this week and is satisfied they are authentic.

According to the newspaper:

"Nixon cited the 'Huston Plan,' drawn up by aide Tom Huston as 'justified and legal because he saw a higher obligation,' even though it called for widespread domestic surveillance and intelligence gathering, including burglaries.

"Nixon compares his approval of the Huston Plan to President Roosevelt's order incarcerating Japanese in America at the start of World War II, and to President Lincoln's suspension of some civil liberties during the Civil War.

Flood fight hampered by weather

EAST GRAND FORKS, Minn. (AP) — Near-gale winds of 45 mph, rain and snow aggravated the problems of fighting floods in the Red River Valley on Wednesday, and military units began evacuating farm families north of Grand Forks, N.D.

The Air Force set up a mobile command post about 20 miles north of Grand Forks and provided buses. The National Guard provided an amphibious vehicle and boats, the Coast Guard two boats with crews.

The river had stopped rising — at least overnight — at Grand Forks and its sister city of East Grand Forks, Minn., and the winds were blowing against the current there. "The wind has a tendency to keep the water back a little," said east Grand Forks Mayor Louis Murray.

But the same winds, coupled with snow and rain, convinced a number of families outside the cities to "hang it up" and abandon their farms, said Mike Varchek, a flood coordinator at Grand Forks.

He said some had been without power or telephone service for days, and now the weather was breaking some farm dikes.

Ohio schools' plight nears crisis

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Financial problems which have plagued Ohio schools for months approached crisis levels Wednesday in Cleveland and Toledo, two of the state's largest systems.

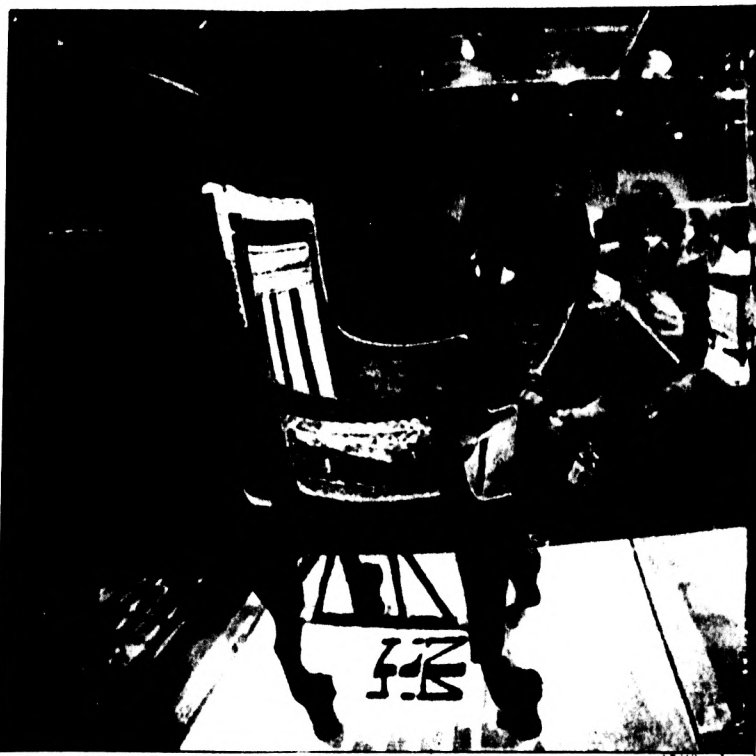

In Cleveland, teachers have not been paid since March 17 and there is no money to meet the next $5 million bi-weekly payroll due Friday. The teachers are voting this week whether to strike, and the Ohio Supreme Court is considering a request to order Cleveland's schools closed so teachers can qualify for unemployment compensation.

On Wednesday, the court ordered state school officials to file their side of the argument by Monday, and scheduled a hearing for Tuesday.

The system serves 113,000 students. Some teachers have already begun signing up for food stamps.

In Toledo, a strike over the size of a pay raise has already begun — and has been disrupting classes for 52,000 students since Monday.

On Wednesday, school officials asked a judge to order teachers and other school workers back to their jobs.

Acts of vandalism pose problems for museums when they try to display pieces while protecting them from damage. Glass cases may be the answer for large objects such as this chair from the King Tut show in New Orleans.

Vance sets goals for negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Broad based black rule in Rhodesia (Zimbabwe) and a nuclear weapons limitation treaty that can get through the Senate are the goals of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's trip to Africa and Europe.

The mission beginning Wednesday night is open-ended. Vance hopes it will lead to a Rhodesian conference in Malta or Geneva, with the militant Patriotic Front sitting beside moderate blacks and representatives of Prime Minister Ian D. Smith, leader of the white minority.

If Vance can set up new negotiations for black rule in Zimbabwe, the administration will have fulfilled President Carter's pledge to black Africa earlier this month on a trip to Nigeria.

If Vance's effort fails — and so far the country's interim government has rejected British American proposals for a new conference — U.S. standing in the Third World could take a nosedive.

Despite intensive negotiations, the United States and the Soviet Union have been unable to complete terms for a new treaty that would impose ceilings on their long-range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

A tentative agreement reached by former President Ford in November 1974 with Soviet President Leonid I.

Brezhnev has run into a number of obstacles. Among them are U.S. efforts to restrict the Soviet bomber known to the West as the Backfire, parallel attempts by Moscow to slow down development of the low flying U.S. cruise missile, and differences over how to verify that the two sides are living up to the eventual treaty.

Vance said this week that the United States would sign a weapons agreement with the Soviet Union only if it improved Western security.

Vance will try to break the negotiations deadlock in talks with Brezhnev in Moscow beginning next Friday and lasting through that weekend. Once optimistic about a substantial cutback in weapons far below the totals envisioned by Ford and Brezhnev three and one-half years ago, the Carter administration now apparently will settle for a 10 percent reduction.

That would limit the two superpowers to a combination of 2,160 strategic nuclear weapons each.

U.S. penny-pinching: a bird in every pot

WASHINGTON (AP) — More poultry and less beef may soon show up in military mess halls and school cafeterias as part of President Carter's new anti-inflation program, administration officials said Wednesday.

Tom Joyce, a spokesperson for the Council on Wage and Price Stability, and Lester Fettig, who is in charge of federal buying policy, said meat is a "hypothetical" example of where the government might economize. The price of meat is expected to rise 10 to 12 percent this year.

The Pentagon buys large quantities of beef for the military, and the Agriculture Department makes purchases for the school lunch program.

"Maybe this is chicken month," Fettig cracked. The government may also be buying cheaper copying machines or finding ways to buy plastic items to replace metal ones.

U.N. official may quit job

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Arkady N. Shevchenko, the Soviet U.N. employee who has been in hiding for a week, has said he will quit his job under certain conditions, a U.N. spokesperson said Wednesday. Sources said he was seeking assurances he could stay in the United States.

The spokesperson, Francois Giuliani, said Shevchenko indicated he would resign "once a number of points have been clarified."

The Russian disappeared last Wednesday from his $76,000 a-year post as undersecretary general for political and Security Council affairs. His government says it wants him fired, and wants him back.

International civil servants are entitled to remain in a host country as long as they maintain their employment. There have been conflicting reports whether Shevchenko should seek political asylum.

The U.N. sources said he wanted to get back to his job because of "difficulties" he has paid toward a pension, for which he is not eligible.

A U.N. statement said the 47-year-old Russian's job because of "difficulties" with his government. Shevchenko reportedly refused Soviet order to come home, indicated through his attorney, Ernest A. Gross, that he would not return to the Soviet Union.

The Soviet U.N. spokesman accused American intelligence of holding Shevchenko incommunicado and demanded he be handed over. But Gross said Shevchenko was in voluntary seclusion near New York, awaiting a talk with Secretary General Kurt Waldheim's return from Europe.

Waldheim said in Vienna, Austria, on Wednesday he also understood Shevchenko intended to resign.

Gross declined comment that report. The lawyer said Tuesday that he "has no intention of releasing" and "intends to remain a U.S. citizen."

In Washington, State Department spokesman Reston repeated Wednesday the U.S. rejection of the charge and said Shevchenko was not being detained against his will. "He is free to leave here or go back to the Soviet Union or to another country," he said.

The Soviets have said they would ask Waldheim to release Shevchenko. Gross said that would violate a U.N. provision forbidding the secretary general from taking action from a member government.

Senate committee vote results: tuition credit: yes, tax cut: no

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Budget Committee approved a college tuition tax credit Wednesday and rejected a Republican plan for a much larger income tax cut than President Carter wants.

On a 94 vote, the committee agreed to leave room in the budget for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 for a tax credit to help offset the cost of college tuition, a proposal opposed by the administration.

Then, by a 7-5 margin, the panel declined to reduce income taxes below the level recommended by Carter. That vote did not represent an endorsement of the specific tax cuts proposed by the president, but it did put the committee on record against a larger reduction as proposed by Republicans.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., had asked the committee to endorse an across-the-board 30 percent reduction in tax rates, phased in over three years. That tax reduction, endorsed by various Republican organizations, would save taxpayers about $25 billion in 1979 — the same amount Carter's tax plan proposes.

But by 1983, the GOP proposal would have reduced federal taxes $130 billion, compared about $44 billion under Carter's program.

The committee's chief economist, Van O. O'Connell, cautioned that a tax cut as large as the GOP's would result in sharply higher inflation unless federal spending by 1983 were cut to current levels.

There is no way to anticipate such a sharp increase in federal spending, said Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, chairperson of the committee. Muskie and five other Democrats were joined by Oklahoma Sen. Henry Bellmon, senior Republican on the committee.

The Senate Finance Committee had approved the credit to eventually be $500 a year student, and be available to full-time, part-time graduate and undergraduate college students as well as to students in private elementary and secondary schools that charge tuition.

But the decision of the Senate Finance Committee would allow a credit only for undergraduate college students — nothing for elementary and secondary students. The maximum credit eventually would be $500 per year.

FJ will not hear Furbush case; denies jurisdiction in job disputes

... the right of suspended

... decision, the first of its kind from ary. Justices said they did not have on over employee-employer dis-

... and were not qualified to make decisions on constitutional matters.

Furbush was suspended from his position
in November after admitting to Williams Hall head adviser Eric Parks that he had smoked marijuana once in his room. The suspension was upheld by a Residence Hall Programs Office arbitration panel earlier

This year. The board, composed of four representatives of management and one student, was selected by Residence Halls Programs Director Gary North.

"Mr. Furbush may have exhausted his remedies within the University, but it is always open to him to go outside the University," the judiciary stated in its majority opinion.

Though Furbush is a student, the judiciary argued that the University's relationship with him as resident assistant is that of an employer and employee.

The Academic Freedom Report, which outlines students' rights at MSU, does not apply to this kind of relationship, the judiciary said.

Furbush said he would take the matter to Eldon R. Nonnamaker, vice president of student affairs. And if necessary, to President Edgar L. Harden and the MSU
Board of Trustees.

"We will try to exhaust all internal remedies before going to any external remedies," he said.

By declining to rule on the Furbush case,
the judiciary has set a precedent for decisions on future student employee cases.

The justices said in their majority report that they lack the expertise to rule on complex questions of constitutional rights.

Downs said the amount of activity sponsored by MSU will depend on the enthusiasm of the students and faculty.

Two meetings have been held for students and faculty interested in planning activities. Building a paddle wheel on the Red Cedar River, having energy conservation contests in the dormitories, banning traffic on campus and building solar collectors were some projects discussed.
Another meeting will be held at 4 p.m.
today in B102 Wells Hall for anyone interested in organizing Sun Day activities.

Organizers in the area plan to celebrate the sun from May 3 to May 7. Possibly the largest solar display in the state will be set up in downtown Lansing, according to PIRGIM, the main organizer of Michigan
Sun Day activities.

"Already 70 exhibitors have signed up,"
said Steve Freedkin, Energy Projects director at PIRGIM. "We expect to have around 200 by May 3."

Most exhibits will allow people to feel or see power alternatives, he said, including wind and water energy as well as solar.

Other activities will be the construction of a windmill on the front lawn of the Capitol, a solar energy statement by Gov.

William G. Milliken and energy workshops and teach ins at Lansing Community College.

Elsewhere in Michigan, organizers are planning workshops, exhibits and contests with a solar energy theme. The United Auto Workers will sponsor a rally in Detroit on May 3. Grand Rapids residents will be able to attend a sunrise ceremonies at the City County Building and organizers in Flint are holding a poster contest in the schools and sponsoring films and speakers in shopping malls.

MSU enrollment up; women offset decline

The third highest spring term enrollment in MSU's history was reported Wednesday by administration officials, who said 39,897
students are currently enrolled.

The increased number of women students offset a decline in the number of men.
Statistics released by Ira Polley, assistant provost for admissions and records, showed an increase of 336 women and a loss of 218 men over last spring's figures.

Compared with the 1977 spring term figures, MSU enrolled 98 fewer graduate students this year and there is a continuing decline in the number of married students.

Large percentage increases were recorded in the colleges of Business, Communication Arts and Sciences, Engineering, James Madison, Osteopathic Medicine and Urban Development.

The colleges of Arts and Letters, Education and Justin Morrill all showed significant percentage decreases. Justin Morrill College is in the process of phasing out of its undergraduate degree program.

REVISED APPLICATION ACCEPTED TWO WEEKS LATE

Family violence program proposal OK'd

By JANETH HALFMANN
State News Staff Writer

Submission of a $294,000 proposal for a comprehensive family violence program was approved by the Ingham County Board of Commissioners Tuesday almost two weeks after the deadline set by the federal agency seeking the applications.

The original application prepared by the Ingham County Prosecutor's Office was defeated by the board at its March 28 meeting.

Major objections to the original grant application centered around failure of the prosecutor's office to seek input from the board or to give members sufficient time to review the completed proposal.

After the initial defeat, six board members were appointed to work with area agencies interested in the proposed project in order to rework the original application.

Major changes in the revised application included a provision for a coordinator of all services and a transportation provision to help abused persons to get away from abusive situations, said Commissioner

Thomas M. Mitchell, chairperson of the special committee.

In the revised proposal, the board — in contract with the Council for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect — is the applicant rather than the prosecutor's office.

A grant administered by the council would provide greater flexibility and input since that agency is composed of a broad range of community people, Mitchell said.
Commissioner Carl Evanoff, who also served on the special committee, voted for the original application but against the revision.

The more he looked into the proposed project, Evanoff said, the more convinced he became that it was not as good as it could be.

Some type of shelter for abused persons is needed, he said, but certain services to be provided under the proposed program are already in effect.

He also questioned whether the county
could adequately evaluate the program after only one year to determine if it should be continued. The program could become very costly, he added.

The project would be 75 percent federally funded the first year, 75 percent the second year and 50 percent the third year. After the third year, the project would become the county's responsibility.

Commissioners are unsure whether the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which is seeking the proposals, will accept a late submission.

A letter to the agency from the board requesting an extension has as yet received no reply, according to Mitchell.

After the proposal's defeat two weeks ago, Daniel D. McLellan, Ingham County chief assistant prosecutor, said the county had "thrown away any possibility" of receiving the grant by not adhering to the April 1 deadline.

Edward Grobe, Ingham County grants administrator, had agreed that a late submission had little chance for acceptance.

In other action, the board approved the contract and the issuance of over $1 million in bonds for the Lake Lansing improvement project.

"There are no longer any snags to the project from any governmental source," said
Commissioner Mark Grebner, D-Eighth District.

Dredging of the lake will begin soon, he said. Plans also include creating sand beaches all around the lake, he added.

New evidence presented in Lamb candidacy case

The All-University Student Judiciary was unable to decide the future of the ASMSU College of Business representative elections Wednesday after new evidence was presented on behalf of Kathy Lamb.
The judiciary scheduled to rule on Lamb's candidacy for the College of Business seat
Wednesday, but Lamb's counsel, Jeff Meyers, presented new evidence to the judiciary after the initial judicial verdict had been reached. Lamb was refused certification by the All-University Elections

Commission last term for being dually enrolled in the College of Business and James Madison College.

Jeff Block, chief justice of the judiciary, said the evidence was significant enough that the entire judiciary should hear it and decide on its relevance before a final decision is made. He would not say what the initial verdict was.

Block said the final decision should be made available by Friday afternoon.

Who knows for whom the truck tows... it tows for thee and with the approval of the University, two trucks are rapidly clearing illegally parked cars out of University lots and fire lanes. If your car is missing, try looking in Y Lot or the gas station.

Tow business booms

By DANIEL HERMAN
State News Staff Writer

At the beginning of each term, the Department of Public Safety begins its traditional practice of having illegally parked cars towed. And for many unthinking students, this "problem" is a costly one.

"The problem is, you don't think about towing until your car is towed," one student pointed out.

The DPS reports that since Feb. 13, 1978, more than 2,500 cars have been towed for parking violations. Currently, 40 to 50 cars are being towed daily, DPS said, with towing charges ranging from $20 to $25.

The two companies doing most campus towing are Roger's Marathons, 3495 Okemos
Road, Okemos, and Jack's Metro Auto Service, 3003 E. Kalamazoo, Lansing.

Although the University does not have contracts with these companies, they receive most campus business because "they are easy to work with, cooperative, and respond to our calls quickly," said DPS Capt. Ferman Badgley.

The DPS does admit that problems such as resulting car damage "do occasionally arise" with towing.

"It's bound to happen with all the towing that happens," Badgley said.
One student whose car was damaged when it was towed complained that he was not treated "fairly."

"I was treated abusively, and I think I was not treated as fairly as a non-student," one student maintained.

Indicting Gray, indicting the rule and spirit of law

J. Edgar Hoover. Richard Helms. Richard Nixon. John Mitchell. Richard Kleindienst. L. Patrick Gray.

It reads like a dishonor roll in the Hall of Shame.

On Monday former FBI Director Gray was indicted — along with two other persons who were key figures in the agency at one time — on charges relating to illegal break-ins and wiretapping against left-wing organizations.

It would be presumptuous to find Gray guilty of these allegations on the basis of news stories

That is a matter for the courts to decide. However, it is difficult to forget Gray's timid and amoral performance during his brief stint as FBI head under Richard Nixon, and it is even more difficult to overlook the fact that those lofty government officials who have been found guilty of crimes in recent years have, almost without exception, escaped the harsh penalties they richly deserved.

It is also intriguing to note that Gray's indictment was made public concurrently with an announcement that the Justice Department will not prosecute John J. Kearney, a former FBI agent who a year ago earned the dubious distinction of becoming the first agent ever to be indicted.

Kearney's case has raised the hackles of civil libertarians, who contend that the charges leveled against him were of sufficient import to warrant a trial. Attorney General Griffin Bell argues that responsibility for Kearney's wrongdoing must rest at the top — with Gray.

This is convoluted reasoning. The so-called Nuremberg Defense was established as legally unsound a long time ago. Our system of justice does not permit a person to justify breaking the law on the grounds that an official "higher-up" ordered him to. Moreover, if Kearney can be held blameless because Gray is ultimately responsible, for keeping the FBI pure, it seems obvious that Gray must first be convicted before Kearney or any of his underlings can be fully absolved of any potential guilt.

In any event, history teaches us that even if Gray is convicted, his penalty will probably amount to a tap on the finger. Richard Nixon is safely ensconced in San Clemente, hawking his memoirs. John Mitchell is out of jail on a "medical furlough." Richard Helms, who lied about CIA involvement in Chile to a Senate subcommittee, was given a suspended sentence. The list rambles drearily on.

Justice in America? Nixon's memoirs will cost a tidy $19.95, we are told. Order yours now, before it's all sold out.

President: pick and choose

Now that the presidential search and selection committee has closed its deliberations to the public, it is all the more important that all of us speak out on what qualifications we feel the next University president should have.

The MSU Black Faculty and Administrators Group took a step in this direction last week. They sent a letter to the committee which delineated a set of criteria they feel should be followed in the selection process.

The letter stated that MSU's next president should have "a proven record of support for innovative programs that help to bring non-whites into the mainstream of American society." It included various suggestions as to how the prospective president's stand on this issue can be determined.

Specifically, the letter requested that candidates be asked their reactions to the Allan Bakke case.

This is all very good. However, is it enough? We think not.

Affirmative action is only one of a veritable myriad of issues which the next MSU president will have to deal with. He or she will be held accountable for his or her decisions on a whole range of subjects, and it would be ideal for all prospects to be questioned, not only by the search and selection committee itself, but by all the student and faculty organizations and groups which have a vested interest in the judgments the next president will make.

What makes this impossible, of course, is the fact that the meetings of the search and selection committee are held in secret. Whether or not this practice is illegal is still uncertain; but there is no doubt that the ethics of this move are extremely questionable.

Unfortunately, we seem to be burdened with the process as it is for the time being. Given this, various political groups on campus should follow the precedent taken by the Black Faculty and Administrators group, and make some constructive recommendations of their own.

...to Harden...

We feel it is exceedingly important that this dialogue take place. Therefore, the State News is requesting input from readers on what qualifications they believe the next president should have. We will open the Opinion page to comment and recommendations from all interested parties. Send us some mail. The search and selection committee evidently doesn't care what any of us think.

No bleaches, please

I sincerely hope that Kris Alfredson's letter was supposed to be regarded in a satirical light. Even so, it was in very poor taste. The views expressed in your position are every bit as ignorant and asinine as you accuse Ira Combs'. Very few if any blacks want or need to be white to survive in this world. If blacks take to bleaching creams and hair straightening for the purpose of physical assimilation, is it also true that our newly tanned white classmates are

"dyeing" to be black?

Also, to the editorial staff of the State News: Without your help, Ira Combs would not have been able to make the spectacle of himself that he has. It is one thing to honestly report the news and yet another to distort and exploit it. The latter appears to be the doctrine of the State News staff.

VIEWPOINT: AFFIRMATIVE ACTION

Rally to protest Bakke

By THE NON-INTERVENTION IN CHILE COMMITTEE

This spring the U.S. Supreme Court is expected to make a decision on the Bakke case. The specific case involved Allan Bakke, a 34-year-old white engineer who sued the University of California's medical school at Davis after his application for admission was rejected, claiming that he had been victimized by reverse discrimination. The California Supreme Court agreed with Bakke, but an appeal by the university has sent the case to the U.S. Supreme Court for a final decision.

This case goes much further than simply determining the outcome for Allan Bakke. Indeed, the future of all affirmative action programs may rest with this decision. Thousands of people across the nation have thus come together to protest this decision; an expected 10,000 people will march on Washington, D.C., April 15 to demand that the Bakke decision be overturned.

Affirmative action was one of the gains achieved as a result of two decades of civil rights activities during the '50s and '60s. It is meant to attack the institutional racism and sexism embedded in the businesses, educational facilities and institutions of the Affirmative action is a step toward granting equal opportunity, and a step which we women, minorities, and all people from socially oppressed backgrounds cannot afford to let back and lose.

United States. Without affirmative action, women and minorities are only left with equal opportunity — that is, they are free to apply for any job, but if they lack qualifications due to the cumulative effects of generations of past discrimination, they will still be excluded from the better paying jobs and occupations and from institutions of higher education.

The current economic recession has resulted in bitter competition for jobs and admissions which are becoming less and less available. Racism and sexism are promoted as minorities and whites, males and females, are pitted against each other for the shrinking number of new positions. Minorities are being blamed for problems which have more basic economic causes. For example, Bakke blames a minority admissions program of 16 positions for his non-admission to U. of C. Davis Medical School, instead of asking why there are few admissions openings (100) in his place. Over 3,700 students applied for 100 openings in 1974.

It will take the united efforts of all occupations, ages and sexes to fight against racial inequality and injustice. This kind of anti-racist effort which is necessary to force the U.S. Supreme Court to overturn the Bakke decision and affirmative action and civil rights.

The National Committee to Overturn Bakke Decision is encouraging concerned people to attend the demonstration in Washington this Saturday. Chartered buses are leaving from Davis at 7 p.m. this Friday and returning Sunday for $32.

For more information about the demonstration and possible car pools, call 332-8953.

Stereotypes have truth

There's this woman in a bar; she has a dark tan. It's March. We look at each other. Compared to her I'm an albino.

She smiles at me. I return it. "Have you been to Florida," I ask, "or is that some kind of skin disease?"

Her tan was a stereotype: the I-went-to-someplace warm-over-break. It reminded me of others meandering around this University town.

I'm going to change the world/lookit - what I'm doing for you: the ASMSU representative.

The assmasyoo rep stereotype is the pompous impotent politico. He believes he is doing everything when actually he is doing nothing. He is Ira Combs writing "I, Ira Combs, resign" as if 40,000 students cared what his name was, much less rather or not he resigned. He tries to convince himself his formal actions really do have impact on how University administrators administrate. He tries to be a politician and provides a tragicomedy instead.

Watch me play games/don't I look pretty?: the jock.

The jock stereotype, male, is an adult who thinks he can spend his life playing games. At 38, he can be a has-been like Mickey Lolich saying, "I'd like to be a starting pitcher one more time... honestly, it's the only goal I have." He hangs around Jenison Field House and the IM Building and talks as crudely as he smells. He flexes muscles, but never intellect. He is a vapid airbrain, and proves it when he doesn't know the meaning of words like vapid.

Worst of all, even if he is intelligent, he'll have a hard time convincing people of it, because the words "dumb" and "jock" are as complementary as "shoe" and "lace." The jock doesn't care, though, he's too busy doing important things, like running faster. But then he can't gain fame and fortune any other way, can he?

Don't "Miss" me: the radical feminist. The feminist stereotype is an emotional masochist. She is paranoid about any person, institution, country, magazine, word, or fire hydrant that in any detail is or appears to have something or anything about it "sexist." She wants to be equal, but doesn't see that masculine cannot equal feminine. She gets irate if anything even appears to be making fun of feminists or The Cause. If she's not a lesbian she would marry a eunuch and then bitch to it about their sex life.

We're-all-brothers: the Greek.

In a previous decade, the Greek was known as the frat rat. Today, he's trying not to be. He (and for sororities, she) passes off insecurity with the opposite sex as brotherhood (sisterhood). Being Greek gives him/her, an excuse to act weird and throw boring parties. Also, to cheat on exams by studying from stolen (frat property now) exams. Sure, rush the Eata Piece-a-Pi fraternity. You too can find security.

Can-anyone-tell-I'm-high?: the dooper.

The dooper stereotype spends all his time trying to look, talk, walk, and act as if he wasn't high. When he's high, much of his conversation is about being high. When he's not high, much of his conversation is about being high. He's either rich or he spends $35 a week and complains about being poor. He can't understand why he does so bad academically. His eyelids have crease marks.

What-is-life? the weirdo.

The weirdo stereotype does anything, as long as it's strange. He climbs trees to study. He sings out loud while riding his bicycle. He asks pointless questions as if they had some great philosophical profundity to them. Like everyone else, he questions his sanity. "Professor? Why don't ducks have lips?"

Do-you-know-where-I-am?: the frat term frosh.

The first term freshman stereotype is always lost. Mentally, emotionally, physically, and socially, he's in a white-out. He tries to make his distinction less obvious by being casual, but himself away by asking "Is this the Clinic?" when he's standing outside his son's. If he's lucky, by the time he's his ignorance will be replaced by and futility. He'll have to find a job.

Boy-do-I-ever-hate-this-job: the University employee.

The University employee stereotype is trapped. Unlike students, they can't after four years and have even less in their daily activities. Serving machine, they are more consumed by computer tapeworm than students. Behind the counter, trapped behind the counter, they take it out on everyone with a bored blank face. "I'm sorry, it's two minutes to twelve, you'll have to come back at one." On bad days they come back at one. At five o'clock they become normal again.

Stereotypes are exaggerated. They are composites of haphazard behavior. If any of you fit any of these stereotypes in any aspect, I hope you are offended.

Everybody does it, but nobody likes it

Waiting. You know, passing the time of day. Some can do it and some can't but, for those who do... it's a real art. Freshmen at MSU learn it fast with their first trip through registration. Sophomores and juniors create a system to beat the system for class cards, dorm rooms, football tickets and front row center concert seats. Most everyone has a method. Most everyone has learned to wait. Most everyone hates it.

Beginning with two elementary education majors Tuesday at 5:15 p.m. the classic waiting marathon began outside the offices of Placement Services. Their mission: to sign their name on a form to obtain a job interview with the Troy school system. Ho hum? That's exactly what seven people said Wednesday morning after spending the night occupying linoleum floors and lumpy chairs.

The maintenance people swept slowly around the corner and down the hall, their brooms scratching the backs of the tile with a quiet rustle. People began to awaken. Silent sunlight flowed across the floor warming the bodies stretching, yawning there. The doorway sprung lines of newcomers, which unfurled unevenly down both sides of the corridor.

Waiting.

Barroom Boogwabazh

By RENALDO MIGALDI
State News Staff Writer

Irish Pub
1910 W. Saginaw St.
Lansing

A while back, my old highschool buddy Ingo Schraft spent six months in Ireland and drank much Guinness Stout and Harp Lager for 25 pence a 20-oz. pint (25 pence equals 63¢) in real West Irish pubs which he says are "everything our bars aren't" — very friendly; intense political discussions; "strangers buy you drinks, only they're not strangers." Today, I asked him his opinion of this Lansing bar and he said: "I've been to the Irish Pub, and I think it stinks."

Wellll, Ingo, it all hinges upon expectations. If you sashay into the Irish Pub expecting what the matchbooks so quaintly promise ("a wee bit of Ireland"), you will be disappointed. For the Irishness of the Pub appears to reside mainly in a few key details like paper shamrocks, a sign that spunkily says "ERIN GO BRAGH!" (Ireland Forever!), and Guinness Stout/Harp Lager for $1.25 a 11.5-oz bottle.

What the Irish Pub really is, though, is a converted supermarket. It seems that four years ago, someone hauled out the grocery shelves and hauled in some cheap wall paneling, tables, chairs and various other accoutrements got a liquor license, and called it a Pub. But it still has all the atmosphere of a supermarket.

And what else? — An impressive array of athletic trophies on display; three pinball machines; two pooltables; a ten-foot-wide TV screen for ballgames; and an excellent stereo system that plays FM radio so you can sit drinking your 45-cent Budweiser draft, chewing your fries, and listening to commercials for Highland Appliance.

Also: a dart board, which is in a nasty, nasty spot. If you were standing in front of the first pinball machine and a drunken darts player missed the target by two feet on the right, you might well wake up in the hospital with a bandage over the hole in your head.

But the crowd doesn't seem to mind; I was one of about 50 customers present there last Thursday after midnight. Most of the people appeared 20 to 30 years old; real Lansing people, most of whom probably worked at Oldsmobile of Fisher Body or Lindell Drop Forge. They went around greeting each other by name, like the whole bar was one big relaxed gathering of familiar acquaintances.

Oh, well.

Both Jackson Browne and Karla Bonoff were superb in Jenison Fieldhouse Tuesday night, which was no small feat considering the horrible acoustics the artists had to contend with.

In fact, both Browne and Bonoff boasted a superb sound system, one of the best ever to be heard in Jenison. Unfortunately, an intolerable echo masked the voices of each artist while they spoke between songs. Thus, while their songs sounded as clear as could be desired — since the lyrics were generally familiar to most of the audience — little else could be heard between songs.

Bonoff was excellent, though her set did not drastically differ from the one played at Dooley's last fall. She was warmly received by the audience, as were her most familiar songs, "Someone To Lay Down Beside Me," and "Lose Again," both which Linda Ronstadt has popularized.

Bonoff's debut LP has sold remarkably well; hopefully a new LP will be forthcoming. Though her voice makes comparisons with Ronstadt inevitably, she is clearly her own woman, and a still-growing talent.

On to Jackson Browne. Browne put together a fine group, consisting of pianist Craig Doerge, guitarist David Lindley, drummer Jim Gordon, bassist Bob Glaub and backing vocalists Rosemary Butler and Doug Heywood. The band's sound was perfectly mixed, and Browne's voice, which used to suffer from projection problems, has never sounded stronger.

Most of Browne's set consisted of his earliest, and best material. It was surprising to hear "Doctor My Eyes," "Rock Me on the Water," and "These Days," — but a marked relief compared to the reworking of Browne's more recent and drearier material. In fact the concert was well underway before Browne and Lindley, on violin, broke into "Cocaine," from Running on Empty.

I must admit to being of divided mind about Browne's current status as an artist; much as I liked the performance, I disliked the fact that not a single piece of new material was heard. Furthermore, I am extremely disappointed with Running on Empty, an LP which I feel bears an extremely appropriate title. As a whole, the album scores a few points for its title track, which is Browne's best piece of rock in ages, but ultimately it reveals a disturbing lack of new material by Browne. His "on the road" concept is disappointing on many levels, particularly since it is best expressed through Danny O'Keefe's "The Road," and not through Browne's own writing.

Much of Browne's current material sounds similar to his earlier and better work, a fact made quite clear after almost two hours of live performance. This, incidentally, might explain why a non-Browne composition like "Stay" brought such a rousing audience response.

Most depressing is that Browne's current material seems almost exasperatingly shallow when compared to earlier comparative masterpieces like "Song For Adam," "These Days" and "Late for the Sky." For me, the low point of Running on Empty is Browne's "amps . . . ramps/you guys are the champs" lyric on the closing track, which is, I feel abysmal for someone of Browne's stature.

Browne hasn't had a totally successful LP — at least on the aesthetic level — since Late For the Sky, though two or three songs on The Pretender made that LP worthwhile. Running on Empty certainly hasn't done the trick for Browne, but oddly, it is selling faster than any of his previous LPs. As for a new LP, who knows what might be on that?

Aside from these gripes, there's no question that Browne's performance Tuesday night was top-notch. I can't quibble with the musicianship or showmanship displayed on the stage — and, as always, guitarist Lindley continues to be an amazing performer. I hope that Browne's touring and "Cocaine" sessions, both real and allow him the freedom to create new songs in his earlier, more vital so much better.

ABC takes rating race

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The 1977-78 prime-time season is over and ABC has won!"

That was how an ABC memo on the Nielsen ratings began and while the claim may be premature there's no doubt that's the way it will all come out.

When the season ends depends on who's counting, but in the week ending April 9, 28 shows were on repeats, with only a handful of the programs whose season began in September, 1977, still offering new segments this far into '78.

There's no way CBS or NBC can catch up with ABC, which now owns a 20.8 rating for the season and a 33.7 percent share of the audience.

ABC also won the week past, with its broadcast of the 50th annual Academy Awards the top show of the week.

The season-to-date scores for the runners-up show CBS in second place and NBC in third, and it will take a Herculean effort for NBC to overtake CBS.

NBC did overtake CBS for second place in the week just past, in part thanks to Helen Hayes and Fred Astaire in A Family Upside Down, which rated among the top 10.

The Barbara Walters special had one of its best outings, with a 34 percent share of the audience.

Among the programs to make their debuts in the week past, CBS had great success with Amazing Spiderman, the chap who got bitten by a radioactive spider and wound up eighth in the ratings.

Other good beginnings were racked up for ABC's Harvey Korman Show, in a three-way tie for ninth place, and the network's Pat Boone and Family, which tied for 31st but scored a 33 percent share of the audience in its time period.

Disappointments for CBS were the openings of The Ted Knight Show and Another Day, both of which were in the bottom 10.

Among the new shows to come along late in the season, The Incredible Hulk continues to score incredible ratings, How the West Was Won remains a winner. Fantasy Island isn't fantastic but certainly it's respectable, as is A.E.S. Hudson St. Even Richie Brockelman, Private Eye is doing well enough for a possible return next fall.

Suddenly, people who had called the Airplane names only a few years before were rushing out to buy a copy of "Miracles," making both the LP and single platinum sellers, symbolically proclaiming Gracie, Paul and Marty as members of the Establishment. Although it didn't compare to the Airplane's best, Red Octopus was a nice album, at least as good as Fleetwood Mac's recent two albums. Add to this a superb performance by the band at Munn Arena that same year, and I thought the Starship was still in the midst of a renaissance.

But then came Spitfire, a terribly dreadful album. Even the bandmembers agreed that the record was a flop, promising that the next LP would be a continuation of the "renaissance." Well, here we have it — Earth: "the next LP" — and I hate to admit it, but it's also pretty dreadful considering what we've come to expect from the Starship/Airplane. That isn't to say that the record is unlistenable. It's just to say that it's boring. There isn't anything here that wasn't done much better on Red Octopus or Dragon Fly. Of course, Marty, Grace, and Paul once again sing great solos and superb harmonies (haven't they always?), but great harmonies don't necessarily mean a great record. It's really not necessary to go into great detail, since "boring" seems to pretty well encapsulate the whole record.

A great deal of the LP sounds like the band is possibly returning to the Blows Against The Empire pre-Dragon Fly period, a move that would be unfortunate. However, not all is lost. There are some nice hooks, riffs, and melodies scattered throughout the record. Unfortunately, every song seems to taper off before the end, with the exception of one. "Fire" is a truly GREAT song, perhaps one of the best in the band's career. The song would make a great single, however, and save everyone from buying the LP.

Probably the worst aspect of the new Starship is their lyrics. Love this and love that and love, love, etc. Now, I've often been accused of being in love with love, and I love a good love song when I hear on. And I really want to say that Grace Slick is keeping the faith and will be right on top of things when love comes back in fashion (if that's possible). However, the "love" she and Marty are singing about on this LP seems to have no meaning whatsoever. As a fellow reviewer recently commented: "They make it sound like something you can buy at a drug store."

The Starship hasn't sold-out artistically to the extent Steve Miller has, but it's really difficult to get very excited about this LP.

Rock hits new Lowe

By DAVE DIMARTINO
State News Reviewer

Nick Lowe is currently riding the crest of the new wave, a relatively strange position for the artist, since he has been involved in the "old wave" since the late '60s.

Lowe's newest album, his debut LP for Columbia Records, is called Pure Pop For Now People (JC 35329) and is simply the most potent piece of music Lowe's produced throughout his long career.

Lowe's membership in the British pub band Brinsley Schwarz lasted long enough to produce six albums of consistently excellent material, four of which were released in this country. That band's initial entry into the pop music industry was such a gross miscalculation on the part of its record company that it's still being talked about today, something which has clearly affected Lowe's perception of the entire music business.

The incident is almost laughable now, but bears re-telling. United Artists, the company which handled the band in the U.K., flew over a plane full of British journalists to New York's Fillmore East to witness Brinsley Schwarz's American debut. Few companies have ever gone to such expenses to promote an act; naturally the hype couldn't help but produce such a backlash of sentiment against the band, who were placed in the unenviable position of attempting to please an entire plane-load of extremely skeptical British journalists who were thoroughly enjoying their joyride.

Naturally, the band didn't live up to whatever expectations were held, thus they were dutifully panned by the journalists after the entire crew returned to England. The seeds of Lowe's discontent with the music business were planted soon after.

Several years later, Brinsley Schwarz disbanded. Two members of the band formed Graham Parker's Rumour, and Lowe went about his own the lines: "Well I heard they castrated Castro/Cut off all he had") are prime melodic pop much in the style of Roy Wood's best work.

Despite whatever derivation might be found, Pure Pop proves that as a pop synthesist Lowe ranks right up there with Dave Edmunds, his friend and occasional band member. Pure Pop is an important work, and certainly one of the year's best LP's. Ironically, it comes on the tail-end of the punk explosion

Auger and Tippets together for one-time reunion LP

By DAVE DIMARTINO
State News Reviewer

BRIAN AUGER & JULIE TIPPETS — ENCORE (Warner Bros. BSK 3135)

This LP marks a welcome one-time reunion of two major figures of '60s British rock, organist Brian Auger and vocalist Julie Tippets, who married jazz pianist Keith Tippett a while back. Happily, it is not marred by Auger's current penchant for funk, and in fact sounds much like the duo's classic recordings of the '60s, particularly Streetnoise.

Julie Tippets' voice is in top form here, a point of concern to those who are solely familiar with the avant-garde recordings she's been making lately with her husband. Further contributing to the sense of '60s deja-vu is the excellent choice of material Tippets sings, including classics like Steve Winwood's "No Time to Live" and Jack Bruce's "Rope Ladder to the Moon."

Auger is outstanding throughout on key boards, and particularly heartening is the sound of his organ, an instrument he lately seems to have disregarded in favor of newer, more technologically-impressive instruments. His one vocal outing is a highlight of the LP, a superb version of Milton Nascimento's "Nothing Will Be As it Was."

In all, the album is a welcome breath of fresh air, one that sounds new despite whatever '60s associations are to be had. As a reunion outing, the LP will probably serve as the only legacy left by the re-formed duo, which certainly seems a shame. Most likely Tippets prefers her current work with the British group Voice and her husband Keith Tippett (who, incidentally, is mistakenly called "Keith Tippets," like Julie in the liner notes, undoubtedly to his dismay) to this more commercial venture with Auger, and one supposes she can't be blamed. But Encore is the best piece of work produced by Auger in years, and hopefully, with or without Tippets, he'll continue on in this direction, and finally put his funk associations to rest.

business, soon forming a fruitful association with the Stiff Record label. On that label, he produced a series of extremely interesting, very poppish singles that emerged on the Bunch of Stiffs sampler LP and his excellent Bowi EP.

Lowe's come a long way since the countryish rock of Brinsley Schwarz. Most of Pure Pop is indeed pure pop, in its highest form. Influences abound: "So It Goes," the opening track, sounds directly like a salute to Thin Lizzy's "Boys Are Back in Town" sound; "I Love the Sound of Breaking Glass" sounds very much like a recent Bowie/Eno collaboration; "Rollers Show" and "Nuttid by Reality" a fine tune containing "power-pop," rock media assure us, is the next big thing), and pretty much sets the guidelines for further work in the form.

Lowe's work on Stiffs Live — along with other former Stiff acts such as Elvis Costello and Ian Dury — is thoroughly excellent, and worthy of being heard. The scheduled appearance of Lowe with Rockpile, Elvis Costello and Mink DeVille in Royal Oak April 22 should be one of the most exciting shows to hit the Detroit area in years. With Pure Pop, Stiffs Live and the upcoming concert, Lowe's American exposure is now at an all-time high. My advice: check Nick Lowe out. You won't be disappointed.

Spartans split with Tommies; Spada's homer wins nightcap

By MICHAEL KLOCKE
State News Sports Writer
MSU third baseman Tony Spada is beginning to show people why he bats in the cleanup spot.

Spada put on a power-hitting exhibition Wednesday at Kobs Field to lead the Spartans to a doubleheader split with previously unbeaten Aquinas College. Spada's two-run homer in the fifth inning of the nightcap broke a 1-1 tie and gave MSU a 3-1 win. Aquinas had won the opener, 12-6.

The split gives the Spartans a 12-9 record while Aquinas is now 13-1. Aside from Spada, the story of the second game was the pitching of freshman Mark Pomorski. He mixed up his blazing fastball with a deceptive curve enroute to his third win of the year against only one loss.

Aquinas put two men on in the top of the seventh, but Pomorski regained his composure and set down the next three batters.

Spada, who hit only .178 a year ago after transferring to MSU, was rattling the fences all afternoon at Kobs. MSU head coach Danny Litwhiler has said the real difference in Spada's play this year has been his confidence — both in the field and at the plate.

In the first inning of the opener, the Spartans dug themselves in a hole they couldn't get out of. Second baseman Randy Hop booted a two-out grounder, and the Tommies went on to score five unearned runs.

Aquinas' diminutive second baseman, Rob Hogg, was a thorn in MSU's side all game. He cracked a two-run triple in the first inning and a three-run round tripper in Aquinas' four run third.

Spada was about the only bright spot for MSU, in an otherwise very dismal first game. Spada, who is now hitting .467, had a home run and two doubles.

First baseman Jerry Weller also homered for MSU.

Chuck Baker, 1-2, who was ripped for nine runs in three innings of work, took the loss. Dave Gumpert, 3-0, got the win with relief help from Kevin Chaney.

The Spartans open their Big Ten season this weekend with doubleheaders at Minnesota Saturday and Wisconsin Sunday.

Softball team now 2-1 host Grand Valley next

By GAYLE JACOBSON
State News Sports Writer

Winning won't be the only thing on the minds of MSU's women's softball team as it takes the field against Grand Valley at 3 p.m. on Old College Field behind Jenison Fieldhouse.

"Hopefully the weatherman will allow us to play this one," MSU coach Diane Ulibarri said.

The Spartans, 2-1 on their season following Tuesday's 2-1 victory over Michigan in extra innings, will be up against an experienced softball team when they face Grand Valley, also 2-1 for the year.

Grand Valley finished third in the state last year, losing out to Western Michigan and MSU in the state tournament, but compiled an impressive 23-3 record nonetheless. Their only defeat this year came in their opening game, a 1-0 loss to Michigan.

Since that loss, Grand Valley has taken a doubleheader from Hope College by scores of 13-1 and 15-4. It's a team Ulibarri is definitely concerned about.

"Grand Valley State's always been strong," Ulibarri stated. "They were third in the state last year and they're going to be very strong again this year. They should give us a run for our money."

In order to get by Grand Valley today, the Spartans are going to have to have hot bats. No one is more aware of this than Ulibarri.

"We're definitely going to have to hit against this team. Two or three hits isn't going to do it for us," she said.

In Tuesday afternoon's scheduled doubleheader with Michigan, the Spartans went extra innings to win the opener 21-10 in the bottom of the ninth.

Wendy Greenwood, the first of three MSU pitchers, started the game and was pulled in the fourth inning for Nancy Lyons. Lyons herself yielded the mound following a 15-minute rain delay in the seventh inning. Cheryl Sprangel, who then went on to complete the game.

Greenwood gave up the only earned run of the game and was also responsible for two Wolverine hits.

The Spartans scored two runs on six hits in the contest, while leaving eight runners on base.

The Spartans scored the first run of the game in the bottom of the third. With two outs, Michel Van Howe singled and Tony Strahan followed with a double to bring Van Howe home. The rally was short-lived, though, as Gayle Barrons grounded out to the infield.

Michigan came right back in the fourth even the score at 1-1 when they took advantage of a walk and a couple of strikeouts.

Opportunities existed for the Spartans to score again, but none were taken advantage of until the ninth inning. In the meantime, both sides suffered through biting weather rain and hail.

In the ninth, Pam Berlinski singled to set up MSU's half, and Jennie Klepinger was in as a pinch runner. Klepinger then bunted by Carmen King. Van Howe singled Klepinger in for the winning run.

The second game of the doubleheader with Michigan was canceled and will not be made up.

Women expect invitational win

Despite a rash of injuries (over 30 of them), coach Cheryl Flanagan still expects her women's track team to win the Bowling Green Invitational Friday and Saturday.

The Invitational will open up the outdoor season and will include fifteen colleges.

But Flanagan is only concerned with Ohio State and Bowling Green.

"Bowling Green is good as a team, but they don't have any individual stars, which is needed to win these invitationals," Flanagan said.

Flanagan expects the team to excel Sue Latter in the half mile, Lil Warnes in the middle distances and Lisa Berry in the sprints and long relays.

"If I knew what the other teams had, it would make things easier, but I still think we should be walking home with the victory," Flanagan said.

"The injuries will not make things easy next weekend against Penn State and Tennessee," Flanagan said. "We'll be hurting in the quarter mile, long jump and mile relay."

MSU is coming off a successful indoor season and a satisfying spring trip. The Spartans won the Pittsburgh Invitational along with victories over Western Ontario and Toronto in the winter. "The spring trip was like a training camp, and it worked out well," Flanagan said.

The only school in the Mid west that Flanagan feels might be better than MSU is Wisconsin, the team that beat out the Spartans for first place in the first Big Ten Indoor Invitation at last March 3-4. MSU is anxious to get another crack at the Badgers at the Big Ten Outdoor Championship. (May 5-6)

Ali-Spinks largest gate ever?

By PETER J. FINNEY

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The second pairing of Muhammad Ali, dethroned as heavy weight champion in February, and Leon Spinks, his embattled successor, is expected to earn the biggest live gate in boxing history.

Spinks and Ali flew to New Orleans Monday for today's signing ceremony to formalize the Sept. 15 rematch.

Bob Arum, president of Top Rank Inc., which helped arrange the match, said last week his company and Louisiana Sports Inc. promised the largest live gate in boxing history. The previous record was $2.5 million for the Ali Joe Frazier "Thrilla in Manila" bout Oct. 1, 1975.

Arum said the fight in the Louisiana Superdome was expected to draw 85,000 spectators, with tickets priced from $25 to $200.

Ali flew into the city Monday afternoon and was met at New Orleans International Airport by Councilman Philip Ciaccio and Jake DiMaggio, principals in Louisiana Sports Inc.

"All I predict is I will be the first man to get the heavyweight title three times," Ali said. "This will be a big event — the biggest."

"I promise you one thing — I shall return," Ali said.

Spinks, arriving from a visit with former Marine friends at Camp LeJeune, N.C., was booked on a flight arriving late Monday night.

"We can't take nothing from Leon Spinks," Ali said. "You'll have to agree he surprised all of us."

Spinks is considered the World Boxing Association's heavyweight champion but the World Boxing Council stripped him of the title when he refused to give their No. 1-ranked contender — Ken Norton — first shot at the heavyweight title.

Fencers begin practice

MSU fencing coach Charlie Schmitter is holding spring practice for everyone on, and anyone interested in joining the men's or women's fencing teams.

The fencing room, on the fourth floor of Jenison Field house, is open from 2:30 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays, and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesdays. On Tuesdays and Thursdays it will be open from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

SERIES RESUME IN DETROIT TONIGHT

Red Wings have playoff edge

By RICHARD L. SHOOK
UPI Sports Writer
DETROIT (UPI) — The Detroit Red Wings, their first playoff victory in 12 years a reality, have a 1-0 lead plus the home ice advantage tonight in what could be the last hockey game of the season for the Atlanta Flames.

The Flames started out Tuesday night in Atlanta trying to outmuscle the Red Wings in the opener of the best of three series but in a span of 2:40 suddenly found themselves overpowered.

Detroit stunned Atlanta with three power play goals in the first 7:32 of the game, first scoring at the 4:52 mark, added a short handed goal at 15:18 of the opening period and went on to a 5-3 victory.

The Red Wings are now favored to eliminate the Flames, unless they revert to the defensive play that almost cost them their first playoff victory since they advanced to the Stanley Cup finals in 1966. Montreal beat Detroit, 4 games to 2, in the last round that year.

Since that time the Red Wings had appeared in the playoffs only once until this season's remarkable rise from being the worst team in hockey in 1976-77. Detroit lost four consecutive 4-2 games to Chicago in the opening round of the 1969-70 playoffs.

Detroit's trouble in recent years has been making the playoffs — Atlanta's has been surviving once it did. The Flames have yet to advance beyond the first round in three previous tries and with Tuesday night's loss are 1-9 in post-season competition.

Coach Fred Creighton has a tough task on his hands if Atlanta is to win on Detroit's ice and return the series to a deciding game Saturday night in the Omni, where he vows "there's no way that team is going to beat us."

Creighton will have to get his club to eliminate the penalties which put it in the hole so quickly — but at the same time the Flames must retain the aggressiveness which enabled them to trim the deficit to a single goal, 4-3, with 11:53 left in the opening game of the series. This could be as difficult as making pie without crust.

Coach Bobby Kromm must get his Red Wings to avoid sitting back and letting the Flames carry the play to them. Detroit displayed no aggressiveness or inclination to score the whole second period and first nine minutes of the third — until Dick Redmond brought his team back to within a goal of tying.

The player who really hurt Atlanta was Vaclav Nedomanek. The transplanted Czech oslovakian who came to Detroit via the World Hockey Association assisted on the Red Wings' first two power-play goals and scored the third.

Nedomasky, who opened this season with Birmingham of the WHA but was traded across leagues, has prospered since being switched by Kromm from center to right wing late in the season.

"Now they have to come to our building," Kromm said, "and we'll definitely play differently at home. Atlanta tried to play a different game than they have all season and it hurt them.

"They went out to intimidate us and they paid the price. It cost them the game," he said. "They've been getting a lot of press saying they're a big, tough club even though they haven't played that way."

"I expect to come back," Creighton said. "It's a very difficult situation for us. But if I didn't think we could win, I would send someone else to Detroit."

"If we come back for a game Saturday night, there's no way that team is going to beat us," he said.

Atlanta Flames goalie Daniel Boudreau blocks a shot on goal by Detroit Wing Andre St. Laurent (16). Red Wings stunned Atlanta with goals in the first period of Tuesday's game in Atlanta to take a 1-0 lead in the best of three series. The series resumes for game No. 2 tonight in Detroit.

Liz Taylor: age making its mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Many movie stars are pursued by fans for their autographs, but Elizabeth Taylor says people who try to rush up to her are looking for "wrinkles and pimples."

"And I don't disappoint them. This face has been around a lot of years," the 46-year-old actress said in a story in the current issue of U.S. magazine. "People want to see if my eyes are really violet or blood-shot or both," said Taylor, who was recently voted one of America's 10 most beautiful women by another magazine, Harper's Bazaar.

Terrorism is an evil that must be eradicated. It advances one's cause. It sets back the cause of human freedom everywhere.

The terrorist attack in Israel on March 11 must be condemned for what it was, murder. We are still waiting for such an absurdity as the resolution equating Zionism with racism. That resolution was possible because the world had lost its morality in the flames of Auschwitz. As yet to be regained.

In our view, the terrorist murders are the direct result of a world gone mad that in the United Nations could pass such an absurdity as the resolution equating Zionism with racism. That resolution was possible because the world had lost its morality in the flames of Auschwitz. As yet to be regained.

The resolution raised up again the spectre of anti-Semitism, that blames the Jewish people for all evils in the world. We call upon all people of conscience to deny the validity of this equation and to continue to support freedom, and the honest search for truth and peace. We are not being intimidated by terrorism so that the process of peace will be halted. The answer to terrorism must be peace.

U-M SCHOLAR GIVES ISRAELI VIEW

Palestine state not peace key

By JEANNE BARON
State News Staff Writer
Peace in the Middle East will not be accomplished by establishing a Palestinian state, a researcher in Israeli domestic politics and visiting scholar at the University of Michigan told a small crowd Tuesday.

The majority of Palestinians live in the Arab countries, he said, and the Arabs were not willing to give them a homeland. Also, he said, Egypt and Jordan currently do not support the PLO.

Additionally, Israel has tried to give Palestinians on the West Bank more autonomy, Diskin said. Israelis now have their own law and can elect people who support the PLO.

most consistent positions. "He declared he would not annex the West Bank as long as there were any kind of negotiations or change of negotiations with the Arab world," Diskin said. "He wanted to show the other side he was willing to negotiate territory."

as well, he said, so Israel had no negotiation partner and has reverted to a "hawkish" stance publicly until one is found. As for the Israeli settlements in the occupied territories, Diskin said almost all of them are in the areas Israel will retain control of in the territorial plan, and exist for security reasons.

In order to give a clear picture of the Israeli viewpoint, Diskin first explained his conception of the Arab viewpoint. "The existence of Israel is evil because it was based on throwing the Palestinians out of their home," he said. The Arab solution was to throw the Jew out of Palestine, so they were unwilling to negotiate a peace settlement, he added.

"So if we want a just solution, we don't have to withdraw from any part of the occupied territories," said Abraham Diskin, a researcher in Israeli domestic politics. "But if we want peace, we will have to make concessions."

The territorial settlement would involve giving up almost all of the occupied territory, keeping only minor portions for security reasons if those areas were not populated by Arabs. According to the plan, Israel would retain control of a strip of land in the Sinai Desert along the Gulf of Agolfa to ensure Israeli shipping in the gulf. Israel would also retain control of a corner of the Sinai in the southeast to cut off the Gaza Strip.

From the Arab point of view, Israel was taking a tough stand and Sadat rejected all of the proposals, he said. Sadat wanted all the territory given back as a precondition for negotiation.

Jack Bass, MSU coordinator for the group, said the organization was created to provide "scholarly rather than polemic" dialogues concerning the deeper meaning of the Middle Eastern situation. The group's first lecturer presented the Arab and Israeli points of view, while the second lecturer presented the Palestinian-Israeli point of view.

Since 1947, he said, the Arabs have been unwilling to accept any kind of Jewish state. They initiated all the fighting between Arab countries and Israel, and subsequently lost territory. "So if we want a just solution, we don't have to withdraw from any part of the occupied territories," he continued. "But if we want peace, we will have to make concessions."

They have the opportunity to join the negotiations but have refused because the PLO is opposed to their participation, he said. Diskin said while the Arab world has been firm in its commitment to destroying Israel, Israeli leaders have always wanted peace.

On the West Bank, the northern and southern areas would be occupied, but Jericho would be left open, he said. Begin was willing to make major concessions in the West Bank as a prelude to negotiation, Diskin said, but King Hussein of Jordan wanted all the territory. Diskin said after Hussein rejected the territorial plan, Begin proposed a functional partition plan, which would give Jordan full sovereignty over the West Bank except for the military function. The second plan was rejected.

Legislature unless forced out. "That is absolutely out of the question," he said Wednesday. Gerald said he has talked to key district supporters and made a commitment to them and his family to stay unless he is ousted by the House. Gerald has said he may even seek re-election in November if expelled. Expulsion requires a two-thirds vote of the House.

Attorney General Frank J. Kelley said Tuesday the House has the power to oust him if he does not resign. Kelley ruled that Gerald's conviction does not constitute a breach of public trust — which would automatically expel him — but said the House has the power to oust him. Kelley said lawmakers could remove him on the basis of his felony conviction regardless of the outcome of court appeals. Gerald maintains that he is innocent of the embezzlement charge on which he was convicted.

Jack's Metro Auto Service (which has two wreckers) said they tow about 10 cars per wrecker each day.

"I know that a lot of students get mad over what we're doing but we're not just sitting around putting the hook into people," said Jack Woodward, owner of Jack's Metro Auto Service.

Currently the University receives no revenues from the towing, although the fines for illegal parking go to the University.

The question of whether the University should get some revenue from the towing, or operate its own towing service has been a topic of discussion on various levels at the University.

Elliott Ballard, secretary to the MSU Board of Trustees said a University-run towing operation is very unlikely.

"In terms of a philosophy, we would hope there are a very limited number of people who want to undergo such an experience before they would be convinced not to do it again. For these reasons we don't think the University should get involved in something where profit would be considered the sole criterion."

Bardot against baby seal pelts

TOKYO (AP) — French actress Brigitte Bardot used a little friendly persuasion in urging Japan to halt imports of fur from baby seals.

Bardot, a critic of the clubbing of baby seals by Canadian hunters, told Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda in a letter: "I understand Japan is one of the major importers of seal furs, but it is necessary for Japanese women, famous for their natural beauty, to further adorn themselves with such furs? The answer will be definitely no."

Bardot also criticized the recent slaughter of dolphins by Japanese tuna fishermen.

OPH to discuss 'U' compliance

Taylor said there is definitely a disagreement between administrators and handicappers on what the transition plan should entail.
"Perrin is complying with legal mandates to protect the University," she said. "I want compliance with the rules and regulations for meeting the needs of the students."
Since the task force was not satisfied with the first draft of the transition plan, Taylor said, Gentile drew up a second draft which was submitted to Perrin in March.
The second draft has not been officially recognized, Taylor said.
However, Taylor said that of 386 University-owned buildings, the second draft of the plan has identified between 70 and 80 needing structure changes.
Taylor explained that the "counter plan" was drafted by the architect's office and examines 50 campus buildings.

"This plan is different from ours — not in what it explains but in what it excludes," she added.

Taylor explained that OPH was established to provide information and expertise to assist in University compliance with federal laws.

Test kits unreliable

Pharm Chem, an independent laboratory funded by the federal government, is reputed to be the only lab in the country to accurately test for Paraquat-tainted marijuana.
For $5, Pharm Chem will test marijuana for Paraquat. However, there is a three-to-five-week waiting period for test results.
Marijuana samples may be sent to Pharm Chem Laboratories, 1844 Bay Road, Palo Alto, Calif., 94303.
Kotecki said Pharm Chem is testing about 300 samples each day and so far has tested 2,000 samples. Of the 1,400 samples tested last week, 23 percent were contaminated with Paraquat, Kotecki said.
Paraquat poisoning began in 1975 when, in an effort to curb heroin traffic, the U.S. State Department began supplying the Mexican government with the herbicide to spray on brown heroin.

"The position should be recognized as a summer appointment," she added.
Falk said she does not feel that the member's committee work justifies 30 percent of their regular salary.
Falk and Gullahorn then agreed that 30 percent would be just a preliminary bargaining figure with which they would enter negotiations that might result to determine the actual amount of compensation.
Norrell, in trying to assess and define adequate compensation, asked that the three

Presidential committee seeks summer part

The committee also set a June 10 cut off date for nominations to be received for the president's position. However, according to the procedures, names may be added throughout the process.
They also discussed whether the committee chairperson should be granted the right to screen applications and discard those that do not seem to fulfill the criteria.
After debate among the members, a motion was passed stating that the chairperson will break the committee into sub-committees.
Each smaller committee will help screen the candidates.
Falk volunteered to act as secretary to the committee.

Norrell was elected as presidential committee vice chairperson. The committee is meeting in private sessions to determine the permanent chairperson.
The committee heard plans of a subcommittee for four public open sessions, meetings with former MSU presidents and interviews with top MSU administrators to determine presidential criteria.
Gullahorn said former MSU President Walter Adams had already agreed to meet with the entire committee and efforts were underway to schedule similar meetings with former presidents John A. Hannah, Wharton and Harden.
In addition to four scheduled public meetings, committee members agreed with E. Guyer, director of the fifth Extension Service, that meeting should be held to accommodate the concerns of out-state students.

Guyer said he had approached his agricultural interest groups who had expressed a desire to have into the naming of the president.
Public meetings scheduled far are: April 20 at 7 p.m. in the Conrad Auditorium, April 27 at noon in the Engineering Building Auditorium and May 1 at 7 p.m. in the Auditorium.

Karla Bonoff's voice is the instrument her songs were written for.

You've heard Karla Bonoff's songs before: "Lose Again," "Someone to Lay Down Beside Me," and "If He's Ever Near the Wind." Linda Ronstadt's last album, "Hasten Down the Wind," "Home" closes Bonnie Raitt's newest album. These four songs, along with six previously unrecorded compositions, appear on her first Columbia album, "Karla Bonoff." Crawdaddy raved, "Her songs have the timeless feel of classics," while Playboy called them "sensitive, moving and elegant." Everyone agrees that Karla writes wonderful songs. Her voice is the instrument her songs were written for. "Karla Bonoff." On Columbia Records and Tapes.

Antibiotic aids travelers

ANTON (AP) — Doctors that regular doses of a pre-emptive antibiotic can prevent the onset of traveler's diarrhea, a common ailment of tourists in underdeveloped areas.

Researchers said the drug was given to most people at the onset of the month's protection against the unpleasant malady, known as Delhi Belly, or simply traveler's diarrhea. They predicted that the drug, called doxycycline, will be routinely prescribed for Americans who travel to underdeveloped parts of the Middle East, South America, Africa and Asia.

The drug was tested on Peace Corps volunteers in Kenya by doctors from Baltimore City Hospitals.

Dr. R. Bradley Sack, one of the researchers, said Americans have a 50 percent to 60 percent chance of getting traveler's diarrhea if they go to countries where it is prevalent. "This is the first drug that has really been shown to be highly effective," Sack said in an interview. Several drugs currently in use are said to help ease the symptoms.

STARS PROMOTE ASPIRIN, AUTOMOBILES

Money lures celebrities to TV ads

By DOLORES BARCLAY

NEW YORK (AP) — And now, a word from our sponsor . . . And it's coming from, of all people, John Wayne, using the gruff voice that used to rout rustlers to harass headaches, for Datril. Or it's Gregory Peck for Traveler's Insurance — how could you NOT listen?

Swamping the home screen like a parade of Saturday morning cartoons, celebrities and superstars are turning television's wasteland into a cornucopia of old familiar faces.

Everyone from Muhammad Ali to Sir Laurence Olivier is touting everything from popcorn poppers to mattresses to automobiles. Even James Longley, the "independent governor of Maine," appears on the tube to sell America the Maine potato. And why are superstars, who years ago saw TV ads as demeaning, now sandwiched between programs instead of appearing on them? Advertising experts say the lure is daily publicity and big money.

The contracts involved often are substantial. Farrah Fawcett-Majors, for example, reportedly signed a multi-million dollar deal with Faberge for hair products bearing her name. It is rumored that O.J. Simpson got between $100,000 and $250,000 for running around an airport advertising Hertz. John Wayne got $450,000 for Datril.

Even super-superstars eventually need cash to pay taxes, furnish $1 million homes and otherwise keep themselves clothed, fed and pampered in a manner befitting celluloid royalty.

The contracts involved often are substantial. Farrah Fawcett-Majors, for example, reportedly signed a multi-million dollar deal with Faberge for hair products bearing her name. It is rumored that O.J. Simpson got between $100,000 and $250,000 for running around an airport advertising Hertz. John Wayne got $450,000 for Datril and Gregory Peck took home $1 million for Traveler's Insurance.

"Everyone wants to be in television now and they're kidding you if they say they don't want the exposure," says Carolyn Jones, vice president and creative director of the Mingo, Jones & Gilmenot advertising agency. "Whether or not a celebrity can convince someone to use the product is another consideration. It can't be denied that Avis was doing very well with its 'Number Two' campaign until Hertz came out with O.J. Simpson."

Those in the advertising industry were willing to spend $115 million on talent last year, although not all of it was for stars, says Lloyd Kolmer, a celebrity headhunter.

"The celebrity gives the commercial added impetus and it grabs you a little sooner just by virtue of the fact that he or she is recognizable," said Walter Kaprielian, executive vice president of creative services of the Keenan, McLaughlin & Ketchum agency. "You could take a model and make her Catherine Deneuve. But it would take her a long time before she could become what Deneuve was on the first day she did the Chanel ad."

Many performers still look down on commercials. Others say they simply do not need the money. But many consider the filmed messages just another form of their craft.

"I'm an actor, but before that I was a door-to-door salesman," said Robert Morley, actor and a spokesperson for British Airways. "And I learned more about acting doing that job than I have since. I'm the sort of man people would buy a secondhand car from — provided it was my car. It's important for actors to be plausible."

Though growing thinner, the list of "virgins" — Madison Avenue for people who've never ventured into commercials — is still impressive. Barbra Streisand, Paul Newman, Sidney Poitier, Liza Minnelli and Mary Tyler Moore are among the holdouts.

Carol Burnett turned down a $1 million contract from Jello. Steve McQueen reportedly won't do a commercial for under $4 million, putting himself outside the market. Elizabeth Taylor was offered $750,000 from Lincoln Mercury, but the deal never materialized.

And does all that money pay off for sponsors? Hertz did a nationwide poll of its car renters earlier this year, and Thomas Elliott of the car rental firm reports: "The customers perceive O.J. as standing for fast service. Sales were up 7 percent last year. Profits were up 42 percent corporately. It's partially due to the O.J. ad."

Not all star ads are as successful. Some stars simply do not come across. Others, such as Bill Cosby and Catherine Deneuve, may become identified with too many products and strain their credibility. And some have enough stature to simply overwhelm the product.

Robert Blake, star of television's "Baretta," did a spot for the STP gasoline additive, and singer Petula Clark did one for Burlington Mills. Tom Westbrook of the audience response firm Tell Back Inc. says tests of public attitudes toward STP and Burlington showed the two stars were less than super sales people.

"No matter how many times we ran the test or where we ran it in the country, the attitude people had about Burlington and STP was lower after the test than it was going into the test," he said. Blake had been paid a rumored $400,000 for the STP commercial.

Lizzy Williams listens to the proceedings of an extradition hearing in Lansing that is aimed at sending her back to Alabama where she fled a prison farm 27 years ago.

SHE ESCAPED ALABAMA PRISON IN 1951

Woman asks Milliken to let her stay

By ED LION

State News Staff Writer

Sixty-year-old Lizzy Williams asked Gov. William G. Milliken Tuesday not to send her back to Alabama — where she escaped from prison 27 years ago after serving nine years of a 218-year sentence on robbery charges.

Williams said if she was sent back, "It would be heart-breaking — it would tear my soul apart. But I must repeat that the will of God will be done."

She said the only crime she did was lie to protect her lover. Her lawyer, Neal Bush, said to a representative of Milliken, "It is very possible if she is sent back (to the Alabama prison system) she might not survive."

"She lived an exemplary life here under very harsh conditions without things she would take for granted," Bush stated.

Williams was sentenced by an all-white jury in 1942 to a 218-year prison term for robbery. Her lawyer said she had three trials on three different robbery counts in less than two days.

Williams said she was imprisoned at a women's institution near Montgomery, Ala., for nine years before successfully escaping to Detroit.

There she lived with her sister, never applying for Social Security or welfare out of fear that her fugitive status would be discovered. She received money from church donations and by working as a cleaning lady.

Williams was arrested in January by Detroit police after her sister, Annie, turned her in during a domestic fight.

"I'm going to tell you how dirty I can be," Williams quoted her sister as saying before calling police.

Alabama Gov. George Wallace has asked Michigan to extradite her because of her unserved sentence.

Williams said her legal problems began when her lover, Turner Washington, came home one night in 1942 and said he had stolen some chickens and had been seen. Robbery was sometimes punished by electrocution, she said, so she agreed to lie and provide him with an alibi.

As it turned out, Washington was wanted for the robbery of three men, not chicken-stealing, and she was convicted along with him. He was imprisoned and she has not heard from him since.

Milliken has the power to block her extradition. A spokesman said the governor will review the case and determine "whether justice would be served by her extradition."

Peter Ellsworth, the governor's legal adviser who presided over the hearing, could give no hint as to the governor's final decision, but he said a verdict should come soon.

Asked to predict the outcome, Williams' lawyer replied, "I don't predict what other people are going to do. I know what should be done."

Bush said it is "absurd" to think that justice would be done by having Williams extradited.

"That's a joke," he said. "She's been out of prison for 27 years and there's been no trouble. She's 60 years old and it's absurd to think she's a threat."

Williams, appearing to be a deeply religious woman, said she made her successful break after prison authorities curtailed her preaching activities.

After being arrested by Detroit police she spent a week in jail and was then released in the custody of a Detroit church group.

Eugene Smith, a cleric, vouched for her character and sending her back to Alabama would be a mistake.

Bush said the poor conditions of the Alabama prison system might lead to her death and said the nine years she served were too severe.

Asked if she harbored ill feelings against her sister, Williams replied, "God, bless her."

Milliken had received at least 50 signatures yesterday calling on him not to extradite Williams.

PURINA FEED POISONED BY PCB

Contaminated chickens destroyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration said Wednesday thousands of chickens have been destroyed and many more may be because a Ralston Purina subsidiary has been distributing contaminated animal meal for the past year.

The feed was contaminated by polychlorinated biphenyls during a warehouse fire in Puerto Rico a year ago, said Nancy Glick, a spokesperson for the FDA. But the FDA learned of it only recently.

She said the contaminated fish meal may have been mixed in swine or other animal feeds in addition to poultry feed, and the FDA does not yet know if any pet food is involved.

Most of the contaminated feed appears to have been shipped to Texas, although at least some has turned up in Idaho and Arkansas, Glick said.

"We don't know how many chickens or eggs were sold before it was discovered," she said. "We know several hundred thousand chickens containing excessive PCB levels have had to be destroyed, and eggs from contaminated laying hens are being destroyed daily."

Polychlorinated biphenyls are highly stable chemicals that were used extensively for many years in insulators and electrical equipment. As a result of their heavy industrial use, they have become persistent environmental contaminants that get into the chain and turn up in the tissues of many animals, especially fish.

Consumption of large amounts by humans can cause skin eruptions, darkening of skin and nail, excessive charge from the eyes, swelling of the eyelids.

FDA spokesperson said.

Vegetarian dinner, nuclear talk slated

U.S. Rep. Bob Carr, D East Lansing, and Marjorie Boehm, national president of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, will speak on nuclear disarmament 7 p.m. Friday at the All Saints Episcopal Church, 800 Abbott Road.

The speeches will follow a $5 per person vegetarian smorgasbord. Proceeds will go to the league and the National Mobilization for Survival, two groups advocating nuclear disarmament.

The dinner, being sponsored by the Ingham County Branch of the league, will include main dishes, salads, desserts, homemade breads and wine.

For tickets or more information call 482-4843.

Free lecture on space

"Black holes," the theoretical stars on which gravity is so intense that nothing can escape from them, will be the topic of a free lecture tonight in 109 Anthony Hall.

Jim Loudon, commentator on space and astronomy for the National Public Radio, will explain the theories of "black holes" and the possibilities of their existence.

The lecture will begin at 7 p.m. and is sponsored by the Abrams Planetarium.

Astronaut to speak at awards banquet

Guion S. Bulford, one of three black astronauts chosen recently for the Air Force space shuttle program, will speak at 8 p.m. at the Minority Engineers Award banquet.

The banquet, which will begin at 6 p.m. in the Kellogg Center Big Ten room, will honor minority students who have excelled academically in engineering fields. Coordinators also said it is designed to thank faculty, staff and companies which have contributed to the minority engineering program.

The banquet will honor 14 students chosen from 180 minority engineering students.
