Senate approves return of Panama Canal

Carter victorious, calls treaty vote 'beautiful'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to yield the Panama Canal to Panamanian control at the end of this century and President Carter, who had staked his prestige on that outcome, called it beautiful.

The vote was 68-32 in favor of the treaty that concludes the two-part canal accord. The roll call was identical to that by which the Senate approved the initial treaty, which guarantees canal neutrality, a month ago.

In both votes, the margin was one more than the two-thirds required by the Constitution for approval of treaties. The first treaty commits the United States and Panama to maintain the neutrality of the international waterway, which is open to ships of all nations. Tuesday's vote completed the deal, providing for actual transfer of the waterway to Panama on Dec. 31, 1999.

Less than an hour after the vote, President Carter met with reporters at the White House and said he had received a call from Panama's ambassador informing him that Panama would accept the treaty as passed.

Carter said Panamanian Ambassador Gabriel Lewis told him that Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos also had invited Carter to visit Panama.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia cast the 87th vote, which assured the outcome, explaining afterward that "I wanted to take the heat if anybody had to."

Minutes later Carter had Byrd on the telephone. "You're a great man," the president was quoted as telling the senator. "It was a beautiful vote."

In reporting that conversation, White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter and Byrd had conferred by telephone at least a half dozen times in the 24 hours before the narrow victory.

In his own appearance, Carter praised the 68 senators who voted for ratification, noting a special gratitude for those "who have done what is right because it was right despite tremendous pressure and in some cases political threats."

Meanwhile, thousands of Panamanians filled the streets of Panama City in cheering celebration. There also were small anti-treaty demonstrations from those who opposed the pact.

ABC News said Torrijos and other Panamanian officials listened intently to the Senate vote at Torrijos' home. When the treaty was approved, ABC said, Torrijos got up and hugged those around him, saying he had been worried up to the last moment.

The vote came after nearly 40 days of Senate debate, and after intensive lobbying by Carter and his associates, who said that rejection would undermine the president's ability to conduct foreign policy.

Carter and Torrijos signed the treaties in a ceremony in Washington last fall, and the administration has contended that their ratification is crucial to the president's ability to conduct an effective foreign policy.

To gain the votes for victory, Carter and Senate leaders had agreed on an amended version of a treaty reservation sought by Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

The reservation spells out U.S. rights to take any action, including military force, to keep the canal open in case of work stoppages or other internal disruptions.

DeConcini, Senate leaders and Carter agreed to a compromise giving the United States those rights. The compromise also asserted, however, that the United States would not be permitted to intervene in Panama's internal affairs or violate its sovereignty.

Shortly before the final vote the Senate rejected an effort by Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., to send the treaty back to Carter for renegotiation. The vote was 64-36.

The original treaty which allowed construction of the canal was signed in 1903. The canal actually opened in 1914, linking the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. It cut 7,000 miles from sea voyages between the U.S. East and West coasts.

Supreme Court blocks release of Nixon tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon won a Supreme Court victory Tuesday — copies of his most famous White House tape recordings will not tour the cocktail circuit.

The high court voted 7-2 to bar immediate public release of the 30 tapes played at the 1974 Watergate cover-up trial of Nixon's top aides.

But the justices steered clear of the ex-president's contention that allowing the public to hear the tapes would invade his privacy.

Nixon challenged a 1976 decision of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington that would have made copies of the tapes immediately available for broadcasting and commercial reproduction.

Lawyers for Nixon argued that home sales of 22 hours' worth of White House conversations among Watergate figures would lead to the tapes being "played at cocktail parties and in satiric productions." They said such exploitation of the tapes would cause Nixon great embarrassment, even "mental anguish."

"We're gratified with the decision," said Nixon attorney William B. Jefferson Jr., who argued the case for the former president. "We have informed him of the decision and he is pleased, but other than that he has no particular comment."

The court's decision centered on its narrow view of a common-law right older than the Constitution.

"It is clear that the courts of this country recognize a general right of the public to inspect and copy public records and documents," Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. wrote for the court.

He added, however, that "the right is not absolute."

"Every court has supervisory power over its own records and files, and access has been denied where court files might have become a vehicle for improper purposes," Powell said.

During arguments over the tapes case, the court was told its decision could return to haunt it — in lawsuits seeking access to tape recordings of its own public proceedings.

Transcripts of the White House tapes were widely publicized during the criminal trial of former attorney General John Mitchell and Nixon aides H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman.

Dem leaders ask ouster of Gerald

LANSING (UPI) — Top officials of the Michigan Democratic Party have unanimously demanded the ouster of one of their own — convicted embezzler Monte Gerald — from the state House.

"The crime of embezzlement for which Representative Gerald has been convicted is a major crime — a felony involving a breach of the public trust which carries a potential penalty of lengthy imprisonment," state Democratic leaders said in a statement Tuesday.

"Under these circumstances, we believe he has forfeited their right to hold public office."

The Democratic leaders, which include the party's 21 top ranking officers, said they are "deeply aware of our responsibility to Democratic voters and to the public at large."

Gerald said he believed the call for his ouster from the state House was politically motivated.

The Madison Heights lawmaker said he assumed the statement was issued in anticipation of "strong partisan statements from the Republican Party leadership."

The House approved a resolution Monday directing its 11-member policy committee to study the case and make a recommendation within 30 days on expulsion, censure or "other appropriate action."

It would take a two-thirds vote of the House to expel the second-term lawmaker, who was convicted last month of embezzling about $24,000 from a former law client.

No representative or senator has ever been expelled from the legislature.

Gerald has insisted he is innocent. He is appealing the conviction and insisting that he be allowed to keep his seat.

ENDOWED CHAIR PROPOSAL APPROVED

Council nixes anti-pay resolution

By MICHELLE CHAMBERS
State News Staff Writer

A resolution expressing regret over presidential search and selection committee members requesting payment for summer work was voted down at Tuesday's Academic Council meeting.

The council also passed an amended proposal establishing a University committee on endowed faculty chairs to serve as an advisory body to the provost in selection of faculty for the positions.

The resolution, presented by Chitra M. Smith, assistant director of the Honors College, stated that "the Academic Council views with regret recent suggestions that members of the presidential search and selection advisory committee be paid for their participation."

Smith's resolution was defeated by a 36-24 vote after several speakers presented their views on the pay request.

Arguing against Smith's motion, professor of romance languages Ann T. Harrison commented, "the IRS does not understand our desire to work without pay."

Referring to the consultative role of the committee, Harrison used the analogy of lawyers and doctors in defending pay for presidential committee members.

Ralph E. Taggart, associate professor of botany and plant pathology, said in supporting Smith's resolution that prospective committee members had to have been aware of the time their work on the committee would consume.

Douglas Dunham, professor of social science and presidential committee member, outlined work accomplished by the advisory group.

Referring to press coverage of selection committee meetings Dunham said, "contrary to impressions directed in other places, we have not been spending our time in secret meetings and seeing how to milk money from the University."

Dunham pointed to the establishment of four subcommittees to investigate chairperson selection, records and files, criteria and job description for the next MSU president and the process for receiving and screening nominations as achievements of the selection committee during the last month.

Closed sessions were employed by the committee to discuss candidates for the committee's permanent chairperson. Dunham said.

Gerald R. Miller, professor of communications, asked Dunham whether he thought a permanent chairperson would be selected

House approves bills aid battered wives

LANSING (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee has approved most of a package of seven bills providing new protection and help to battered wives who, it is claimed, are often ignored by police and society.

The bills sent to the House floor Tuesday make it easier for police officers to arrest violent husbands and strengthen the hand of the courts in making sure that victims are protected from further abuse.

Other measures approved by the committee require local law enforcement agencies to file reports on abuse cases to the Michigan State Police and allow judges to sentence husbands found guilty of spouse abuse to mandatory counseling programs.

A bill providing funds for shelters serving battered spouses is to be acted on later. Another providing for better police training was sent to another panel.

Attention was focused on wife abuse last year with the publication of a 141-page report by the Michigan Women's Commission. The report concluded that abuse is widespread, afflicting all groups in society, and that current means of dealing with it are inadequate.

The bills, sponsored by Rep. Connie Binsfeld, R-Maple City, were introduced last fall after a year of extensive committee hearings in several cities throughout the state.

The special House-Senate committee also has been looking into the problem. Binsfeld said her legislation is necessary to combat "degrading and inhuman physical attacks" in the home — attacks in which men as well as women can be the victims.

Birth control ad disputed

Encare Oval challenged

By CHRIS KUCZYNSKI
State News Staff Writer

Women who are leary of possible side effects from using oral contraceptives could be equally leary of the claims made for a new contraceptive known as Encare Oval.

Encare Oval is a solid vaginal insert which, when inserted high into the vagina 10 minutes before sexual intercourse, is supposed to render the man virtually impregnable. The product may be purchased without a prescription.

Encare Oval advertisements boast that the product is as effective as oral contraceptives — without possible pill effects — and will prevent pregnancy "99 percent" of the time.

However, a recent study by the Medical Letter, a noted medical journal, concluded that Encare Oval has "no established advantage over other spermicidal products that have been available for many years."

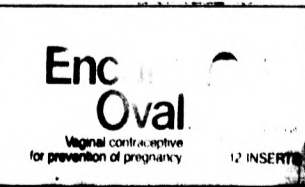

Medical Letter consultants believe Encare Oval will fail as often as other spermicidal creams, foams and gels which studies indicate fail about 15 percent of the time.

Patricia Catto, director of pharmacy services at the MSU Clinical Center, expressed skepticism over the products effectiveness because its active ingredient — nonoxonyl-9 — is also found in other spermicidal foams.

"As a woman, if I did not want children, I would be hesitant to rely on Encare — or Delfen (a foam product), for that matter," Catto said.

Catto said physicians have been uneasy about recommending the product to their patients because it has not been thoroughly tested in the United States.

Speculating on why the product has not needed specific U.S. Food and Drug Administration approval, Catto said it may be because the essential ingredient, nonoxonyl-9, has already been approved for use in other contraceptives.

Though she has had few women ask her about Encare Oval, Catto said she does not discourage women from using it.

She said she tells both doctors and patients of the product's claims and counter-claims and lets the person make the final decision.

Meanwhile, the product is proving to be a boom for local pharmacies.

Campus Drugs, 501 E. Grand River Ave., reports Encare Oval is selling two to three times faster than other over-the-counter contraceptives.

Encare Oval sales are higher than expected at Gulliver's Drug Store, 1105 E. Grand River Ave., and sales of foam products have dropped.

Muir's Pharmacy, 1399 E. Grand River Ave., reported it is selling two to three dozen packages of Encare Oval each week.

Spokespersons from both Campus Drugs and Muir's Pharmacy said women are buying Encare Oval because it is more convenient to use than foam and requires no applicator.

Catto attributed the high sales in part to women becoming more aware of some reported dangers of using oral contraceptives such as high blood pressure.

But Encare Oval is not without its own side effects. Catto said she has known of instances where women have complained of irritation from using the product.

In some cases, their partners have experienced similar irritation, she said. Reactions from some area women

Turks riot over killing of mayor

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Mobs rioted in the streets of Malatya in eastern Turkey on Tuesday to protest the bomb killing of Mayor Hamit Fendoglu. The government clamped a night curfew on the town and two commando units were sent in to quell the disturbances.

The rioters stoned and pillaged shops, set dozens of buildings ablaze and threw fire bombs in the streets before the commandos, using tear gas and firing into the air, restored order Tuesday night, officials said.

Malatya's schools were closed indefinitely, and troops erected barricades in the streets and around government buildings to keep protesters away.

Fendoglu, a former member of Parliament, his daughter-in-law and two grandchildren were blown to pieces Monday night when they opened a booby-trapped gift package that was posted from Ankara 10 days ago. A postal clerk in Ankara was taken into custody for failing to inspect the parcel-bomb, officials said.

Southern tornadoes kill four of family

MONTICELLO, Miss. (AP) — A string of tornadoes plowed through the Southeast late Monday and early Tuesday, and one killed four members of a family when their frame home was flattened, authorities said. More than 40 other persons were injured.

"It sounded like a big jumbo jet when it's landing — then it was just quiet," said Gary Thornhill of Forest Grove Community near Monticello.

Four of Thornhill's relatives were killed when a twister destroyed their home. Killed here were his grandparents, Walter McNease, 72, and Janie McNease, 62; their daughter, Christine McNease Polk, 46; and their son, David, 18.

The McNeases' frame home collapsed and their bodies were found on the ground nearby. A car and a pickup truck that had been parked in front of the house were blown 200 feet away.

Hawaiian legislature OKs wiretap bill

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaiian law enforcement officials hope a new wiretap law that makes it easier for them to eavesdrop on telephone calls will help curb what they see as the growing menace of organized crime in the 50th state.

The measure, recently passed by the Legislature, must be signed within 60 days by Gov. George Ariyoshi, who has said he favors it.

Current law allows electronic eavesdropping only with the consent of at least one party to be taped, or if federal officials are involved. Hawaii Crime Commission studies show that the FBI has used wiretaps only three times in the state. The new law permits state officials to seek court authorization on their own for secret wiretaps.

The American Civil Liberties Union objects that the more flexible law would not help round up organized crime leaders and would infringe on constitutional rights to privacy.

Fish sent to control Panama mosquitoes

CHICAGO (AP) — Some 230,000 weed-eating fish from Arkansas have been sent by the United States to the Panama Canal Zone in an effort to control mosquitoes without using insecticides, an entomologist said Tuesday.

"The fingerlings arrived in tanks in U.S. military planes last February and are being held in lagoons until they grow to a foot long," said Dr. M.M. Boreham, medical entomologist of the Canal Zone government since 1956.

"They will be released later this year to eat an aquatic plant, hydrilla, where disease-transmitting mosquitoes feed. We hope the program will be an alternative to insecticide spraying."

Boreham, in Chicago to address the American Mosquito Control Association convention, said the hydrillas are massing in lagoons and in parts of the channel of the Panama Canal.

They are a hindrance to navigation in some areas, as well as to recreational facilities, he said.

Cause tells Brown to return donations

LANSING (UPI) — State Sen. Basil Brown, chairman of a committee which is considering a lobbyist reform bill, has solicited campaign contributions from lobbyists, according to Michigan Common Cause.

"In light of Senator Brown's unique position as chairman of the committee now considering lobby reform legislation, we call upon him to return any contributions given to him by registered lobbyists who stand to benefit from the action or inaction of his committee," said Common Cause Chairperson Jan Elmsan.

"There is a clear and blatant conflict of interest caused by soliciting money from lobbyists while examining lobby reform legislation."

Common Cause, an avid supporter of tighter lobbying controls, said lobbyists have been asked to buy $50 ticket to "Basil Brown Night," a cocktail party and reception scheduled for Tuesday night.

Committee not to rule on Nelson loan

LANSING (UPI) — A joint legislative committee said Tuesday it has no authority to rule on the propriety of a $5,000 personal loan state Sen. Earl Nelson received from a dog racing backer before introducing a bill to legalize the sport.

The six-member committee suggested that if Nelson wants a legislative forum to rule on the matter, he could ask the full Senate to create another special committee. Nelson said he would consider that suggestion.

The Lansing Democrat, who has admitted taking the loan from attorney John MacLellan, said the decision left him "running around trying to find a jury to try me."

The loan was first revealed in newspaper reports. Nelson has not been charged with a legal or ethical violation.

However, he asked the joint Legislative Committee on Conflict of Interest to investigate — a step he said he believes would clear his name.

Only the bell tower was left standing after fire burned King David Baptist Church on Chicago's south side earlier this week.

Divers search lake for Moro

CORVARO, Italy (AP) — Divers scoured a mountain trout-fishing lake Tuesday but failed to find the body of Aldo Moro after a message purportedly from his terrorist kidnappers said the former premier had been killed and his body dumped into the icy waters.

The search in shallow Lake Duchessa, 72 miles northeast of Rome, was suspended at dusk and officials said the message, which also threatened other politicians, may have been a ruse to divert the attention of the police.

Rome police said that earlier in the day they had found what appeared to be a hideout used by the Red Brigades, the feared urban guerrillas who kidnapped the 61-year-old Moro and killed his five guards in a Rome street ambush March 16.

The failure to find any trace of Moro "might lead us to think that no body or anything like a body has been thrown into the lake," one searcher was reported to have told Rome headquarters of Moro's Christian Democratic Party. Still, the hunt was to resume today.

Search parties were dispatched by helicopter to the lake, in a hollow of the Apennine Mountains three miles from Corvaro Village, after the Rome newspaper Il Messaggero received a message bearing the signature of the Red Brigades. The terrorists announced three days ago that Moro had been convicted in a "people's trial" and sentenced to die.

Tuesday's message said: "We inform you of the execution of Christian Democrat President Aldo Moro, by suicide. We shall allow you to recover his body, giving you the exact location where it is. The body of Aldo Moro is submerged in the muddy waters . . . of the Lake Duchessa . . . . Police and colleagues of Moro said the new message, delivered the same way as others from the Red Brigades since the kidnapping, doubtless was authentic.

NEW PACT WITH SOVIETS SOUGHT

Vance arrives for talks

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance arrives in the Soviet capital today for talks with Kremlin leaders aimed at breaking down the barriers holding up a new strategic arms limitation treaty, seen as the linchpin of U.S. Soviet detente.

Both sides recognize they risk unraveling the whole process of negotiations if progress is not made soon on a new SALT pact to replace the one that expired last Oct. 3. The high stakes have made Vance's visit here a turning point for U.S. Soviet relations.

During his last trip to Moscow, Vance came away empty handed following SALT talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in March 1977. The American offered several proposals which Gromyko rejected, saying they would give the United States a "one-sided advantage."

The U.S. envoy, who will be accompanied by chief U.S. arms negotiator Paul C. Warnke, meets again with Gromyko in the shadow of the Kremlin Thursday and Friday. Vance said he would extend his stay another day, especially if it meant seeing Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Investigations find CETA fund abuse

(AP) — A federal and local campaign to root out fraud and abuse in the federal public jobs program is revealing cases of political favoritism, kickbacks and mismanagement across the nation.

Investigators are finding that some of the $11.8 billion in public jobs money that is supposed to provide useful skills and employment to the disadvantaged is instead being used for such things as teaching Islam to New York City jobholders.

In Texas, an aide of Gov. Dolph Briscoe was found paying employees of a department store he owned with federal jobs money. The sons and wives of some Oklahoma politicians are allegedly on CETA payrolls.

Last week Labor Secretary Ray Marshall announced the formation of a permanent office of special investigations to hunt down "corruption, mismanagement and financial abuses" in the department's Comprehensive Employment and Training Act jobs program.

Targets of the first investigations announced by Marshall included two states — Texas and Oklahoma — and nine cities: Atlanta; Indianapolis; Gary, Ind.; New York City; Cass City, Mich.; Los Angeles; East St. Louis, Ill.; Washington, and Baltimore.

Marshall said 17 other local governments were undergoing preliminary investigations, but declined to name them. However, it is known that local and federal law agencies are investigating jobs program abuses in Boston, New Jersey, and Westchester and Putnam Counties, N.Y.

One Labor Department official speculated that fraud and other abuses may be squandering $25 million to $50 million nationwide in public jobs money, but others contacted said it was impossible to guess the final figure.

Federal investigators declined to specify what abuses they were looking into, but an Associated Press survey of the 11 local governments under active investigation turned up a variety of allegations.

•Indianapolis — Local and FBI agents have for the 19 months looked into the fact that CETA officials were giving kickbacks and were promoting for sexual favors and that some persons on CETA payrolls were doing so. The Labor Department in February withdrew $1 million in CETA funding to the city because it was too late to place the jobs in the program.

•Gary, Ind. — City manager Theodore Karras was sued for charging Mayor Richard Hatcher with using federal money to supplement salaries of city employees in violation of state statutes.

•East St. Louis, Ill. — Money at government headquarters a week ago brought to light the fact that mismanagement of public jobs money in the program increased the cost of the program per employee to five times the national average. The national average is $3,781 and East St. Louis employees cost $17,872.

In February, Secretary Marshall removed the program from the city, citing evidence of political patronage, nepotism and improper hiring procedures.

•Texas — Alleged CETA appropriations for a key issue as Gov. Briscoe seeks re-election. Briscoe charged Briscoe's management of CETA programs in the Governor's Office of Migrant Affairs.

•Oklahoma — Secretary Marshall sent investigators to the state a month ago to look among other things at embezzlement of $500,000 CETA funds from a shelter in Enid, the husband of state representative Caldwell with CETA money and charges that the state labor commissioner Foster was hired with CETA funds to help relocate Vietnamese refugees in Arkansas.

•Los Angeles — Steventer, assistant general manager of the LA Community Development Department, said an annual evaluation of the CETA program found that programs, run by West Angeles Service Employment and Redevelopment and Teamsters local 911, were significantly underperforming.

Dan Jones changes ASMSU meetings Thursdays; location may rotate

By Kim Shanahan
State News Staff Writer

Dan Jones, ASMSU Student Board president, said he decided Thursday would be a better night for meetings because the East Lansing City Council also meets Tuesday nights.

In addition to moving the meetings to a different day, Jones plans to rotate the meeting place among four campus locations — Student Services Building and three residence halls.

Not everyone is looking forward to the new meeting plan, however. The Michigan State Radio network will no longer be able to carry live broadcasts of board meetings.

Lansing delays funds for lake

By JANET HALFMANN
State News Staff Writer

The city spends $500,000 a year on Potter Park, he pointed out.

Councilmember Jack Gunther said it is unlikely the funds for Lake Lansing will be appropriated until a regional parks committee, at least with Ingham County, is formed.

The city recently received $1.7 million in federal funds to finish acquiring and preparing the 32-acre Capitol Commons site southwest of the Capitol.

Resolution called for a lump sum of city funds pledged to the county for the $2.5 million project. It also stipulated that Lansing is not to be charged fees for use of the park, swimming and bathing facilities and boat landings.

DREDGING PROJECT TO BEGIN SOON

Lake Lansing to be revitalized

By JANET HALFMANN
State News Staff Writer

Dredging is scheduled to begin in 30 days, according to Richard Sode, Ingham County drain commissioner and director of the Board of Public Works which is in charge of the three-year restoration project.

The lake, which now averages five feet in depth, will be dredged to an average depth of 10 feet, Sode said.

Esmail trial delayed; verdict due in June

Sami Esmail's trial, scheduled to resume Sunday, was postponed when his attorney's mother suffered a stroke, a Department of State official said Tuesday.

Esmail, 23, has been charged with membership in the outlawed Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and contact with two foreign agents. He is an MSU graduate student and U.S. citizen.

Dredging has never been used on a research basis to restore an inland, fresh water lake, Sode said.

Teacher licensing bill dropped

By JOYL HAENLEIN
State News Staff Writer

The Michigan Education Association, the state's largest teachers' union with more than 90,000 members, is pushing for teachers to be licensed, just as lawyers, doctors and other professionals are.

The MEA will have too much say in who gets licensed for what reasons, he explained.

Committee member Rick Green said he was encouraged by the recent press coverage of Esmail's case, adding that the public is now more concerned about whether Israeli security constitutes an infringement on all political thought.

The county will monitor how ground water will be affected by water placed on the deposit sites. It will also test the quantity and sedimentation level of the water returned to the lake from those sites.

Dayton Hudson: settlement time

Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Ray C. Hotchkiss has ruled that it is legal for the fate of the proposed Dayton Hudson mall to be decided by a public referendum.

These groups have collected more than 7,000 signatures on their petitions. When the city council is presented these petitions it has the option of setting a date for the referendum or reversing the original move to rezone the land, which made the mall's construction possible.

We have already gone on record as opposing construction of the mall. And we continue to hold this position, for various reasons, of which the following are primary:

First, such a mall may be harmful to the local environment, primarily by aggravating various water drainage problems the area already has, and creating new ones.

It seems the local community would be unable to adequately support a new supermall in competition with existing businesses. We believe that East Lansing, indeed the Lansing area in general, simply does not need the Dayton Hudson mall.

It would be ideal if the city council were to reverse its original rezoning decision if and when it receives the opposition petitions. However, as this seems rather unlikely, we urge that the Dayton Hudson issue be put to a public vote, and the entire unpalatable matter be put to rest once and for all.

House: amoral and dumb?

State Representative Monte Gerald's, a Democrat, is a convicted embezzler.

State Representative Monte Gerald's is also — a state representative.

It doesn't make much sense, does it?

It seems illogical that a convicted felon is still representing constituents in an elective body, not so much because of the outrageously bankrupt ethics of this situation, but, practically speaking, it defies common sense for the House not to expel one of its own in an election year when so much political hay stands to be made by Gerald's — and the Democratic Party's — detractors.

It is easy to become discouraged about politics, and it is convenient to accept the stereotype that politicians are concerned about image and self-aggrandizement, almost to the exclusion of any interest in ethics and morality.

House has already articulated volumes on its institutional amorality. But our representatives in Lansing are evidently ignoring the public's perception of their own honesty, which is politically explosive.

House Speaker Bobby Crim and officers of the Democratic Party are clamoring for Gerald's expulsion. The House has referred the matter to its policy committee, with the proviso that the matter be debated three times a week — implying that the issue could drag on for quite some time.

We believe persons who break the law or make mistakes should be given a second chance, and we would not oppose convicted felons running for office — although federal law prohibits this.

Judicial confusion

Sometimes it is questionable whether Resident Assistants have any rights — rights as students or rights as persons — once they become employees of this University.

The John Furbush case reinforces this premise. It is a prime example of an R.A. who has been denied his rights as a student and a person because the Student Faculty Judiciary has decided not to hear his appeal.

Furbush was suspended because he admitted to smoking marijuana in his room — on one occasion only.

The judiciary said it does not have jurisdiction over administrative actions regarding the employment status of a student and therefore could not hear Furbush's case.

Before Furbush could become RA, he had to first be a full-time student at MSU, since the job is student oriented — rule number one.

Rule number two — he could hold another job. Because of the status of student is obviously inseparable from status of RA.

The judiciary contends this may be true, it does establish that his student status and RA status are inseparable and the same situation may apply to a student discharged from University as a bus driver or as a private company as a dishwasher.

This is inexcusably weak. A driver for MSU does not have a student and private company status. SFJ evidently does not understand its role at MSU and seems unaware of the fundamentals of being student employees.

If the judiciary is going to handle future incidents involving RA's the same way, it is time to go again at the Academic Freedom Report and find out precisely what students' rights and responsibilities are.

There is no place for Furbush at MSU after the Judiciary ruling but to Eldon Nonnamaker vice president of student affairs. Even if Nonnamaker should be in favor of Furbush, this would resolve the problem encountered with SFJ and the vagueness of Academic Freedom Report.

But if Nonnamaker rebuffs Furbush, it is hoped that the student will take his case to court.

It they cannot accommodate the needs of the students with a system as it stands, it needs to be revised.

Probe MSU on Title IX

An area of discrimination which has been tacitly overlooked for many years is that suffered by women's athletes. The members of MSU's Women's Basketball team would like to make public the fact that they are charging the University with outright violation of federal law, Title IX of the higher education amendments of 1972.

Michigan State annually receives millions of dollars in federal funds, yet its intercollegiate athletic program is discriminatory in virtually every area examinable. Unlawful discrimination is practiced in the division of facilities, the quality thereof, the size of budget allotments, the size of coaching staffs, their salaries, and the amount of scholarship compensation available.

Michigan State has had six years to implement a program which complies with Title IX regulations. There has been no serious attempt to do this. In fact, University officials have only recently begun to even estimate the scope of Title IX implications for their program.

As members of an intercollegiate team we have unanimously filed a complaint against the University with Title IX coordinator Mary Pollock. Further, we will send this complaint to the Office of Civil Rights and request a federal investigation of the University.

Blatant discrimination against women has existed in intercollegiate athletics for many years. If the University will not voluntarily act to remove it, we will force their hand.

Check for checks

I am addressing this letter to the students at MSU and the local establishments in the East Lansing-Lansing area which refuse to accept or are unenthusiastic about accepting checks drawn either from local or "foreign" banks. I am sure that many students at MSU have had the same problem of trying to write checks for purchases of have encountered the "No Checks Accepted" signs that decorate some store windows and doors.

I appeal to these same store owners not to punish those who faithfully use the check system without abuse. I also believe that the way to decrease (and hopefully prevent) the number of bad checks is by the enactment of stricter laws and stronger enforcement of these laws which take direct aim at the abusers.

Punk punks

On Monday night (April 10), the Stranglers and Tuff Darts, two punk rock bands, were scheduled to appear at Dooley's. It makes sense that they would appear at the biggest meat market in East Lansing.

The songs these groups sing and behavior they display show that they condone, support and encourage the degradation of "wimmin." "Wimmin" are displayed as toys, play things, whores, whipping posts, and other sub-human categories. All of these are very offensive to "wimmin," and should be to all human beings.

The night of the concert my friends and I picketed Dooley's on the basis of our firm belief in human equality. We conducted ourselves in a peaceful, orderly manner. We were non violent, sure of ourselves and our cause.

I have never received such abusive treatment while picketing before. We were taunted, harassed, laughed at and spat upon.

Lion Says . . .

...Griffin Bell needs to put his own house in order before indicting others

Things will probably be getting pretty hot around the justice department soon. But Griffin Bell and his gang will deserve everything they get.

Earlier this month the department successfully pressed for indictments of a former FBI director and two top assistants. The charges were handed down in connection with alleged illegal break-ins and wiretaps by the FBI during its campaign to crack down on the radical Weatherman Underground.

It seems likely that questionable activities did occur and should be investigated. But before Bell pressed for the indictments he should have taken a closer look to make sure his own house was in order.

J. Wallace LaPrade, head of the New York FBI office, told the press last week that the FBI, at Bell's direction, is presently conducting activities similar to those which led to the indictments. It's clear LaPrade was trying to save his own skin.

But LaPrade did raise an important point. Bell's actions could reek of hypocrisy. If in fact LaPrade's charge is true and similar activities are now being conducted, how could Bell seek indictments of past officials for actions still being carried out?

Bell has dodged the question by raising legal technicalities.

As the law currently stands all domestic-related break-ins need court authorization, while those involving suspected foreign agents don't. The double standard is ridiculous.

He did admit that the similar activities — wiretaps authorized without legal warrants — are being taken. But only involving, he said, cases in which foreign agents are suspected. The Weatherman Underground campaign, he asserted, was illegal because it involved warrantless actions in a domestic case.

As the law currently stands all domestic related break ins need court authorization, while those involving suspected foreign agents don't. The double standard is ridiculous.

Who can determine if some cases such as those involving the Weatherman Underground are only domestic? Reports have circulated that Cuban and other foreign intelligence groups had contact with the Weatherman Underground. If that is a fact the indicted FBI men are facing prosecution for exactly the same type of action that the nation's chief law enforcement official admitted doing.

The only rational approach is to request court authorizations for all such break-ins. Measures can be taken — perhaps establishing a special tribunal of judges — so that security leaks won't develop. Uniformity must be developed, otherwise security officers will feel hamstrung whenever they act — worrying they someday be prosecuted.

Obviously, LaPrade's action will help the justice department's dirty linen. The agency where there's much dirt, slinging is perhaps the best way to clean up.

Ginsberg's 'Mind Breaths': songs of a free man

Breaths: Poems 1972-1977
Allen Ginsberg
City Lights Books

Over: The Collected Correspondence
Ginsberg and Neal Cassidy
Five Arts Book Co.

By RENALDO MIGALDI
State News Reviewer

The poets and novelists associated with the "Beat Generation" literary circle flourished in the American 1950s. They seem to have been recognized by the literary world as the major novelists Jack Kerouac and William S. Burroughs, and poet Allen Ginsberg. Perhaps the greatest of the poets, died in 1969, leaving behind twenty books of "spontaneous poetry." Burroughs is still around, but his reputation has dwindled somewhat in the days when he was writing books like Lunch, Junky, and The Soft Machine. However, Ginsberg — the dark Jewish father of painful madman poetry — is still, bless us all, writing important work.

Breaths, Ginsberg's latest volume of poems, is book number 35 in the Poets Series published by City Lights Books, San Francisco, and has the little square shaped format with black and white cover design similar to the earlier volumes Howl (1956), Wichita (1961), Reality Sandwiches (1963), and Planet News (1968).

It has 36 poems (or groups of poems under a single heading) that sum up Ginsberg's directly poetic activity in the years.

A large portion of Mind Breaths reflects Ginsberg's brand of Eastern metaphysics. Breaths, for example, chronicles the journeys of a breath exhaled during the day, across the U.S.A., the Ocean, over Hawaii a balmy wind from palm trees; Australia, China, "a vapour out of a mouth yellowed in the Middle East," "Mediterranean leaving Tel Aviv, over Crete" — Europe, the English Channel and the Atlantic, back to New York, Chicago, "Nebraska's fields harvested and stubble bending delicate in evening airs" — finally arriving back in the welcoming nostrils of the serene Rocky Mountains mediator. Similarly, "Thoughts Sitting Breathing" attempts to chronicle the various mental pictures that pass through the poet's head as he meditates, haiku like images arresting in their non-intellectualized simplicity: "Impercipience, cat meows natural words at the window, dog barks cheerful morn, cockroach feelers touch the wall, the fly buzzes long long on the sunny window sill lying upside-down in deathly prayer exhausted, man bends over oblivious books, buds stick forth their heart-tips when ice melts New Year's eve green grass shoots 'neath melted snow, screams rise out of thousands of mouths in Hanoi." Ginsberg is famous for his long line inherited from Walt Whitman style with the hysterical flow of electrically charged imagery that begs to be shouted aloud; words that climb trees and scream into the sky. There is still plenty of that in Mind Breaths. However, he has also made a confident foray into another form which he in the magnificent summary blurb on the back cover which is itself a poem) refers to as "Chinese American imagery." This style is perhaps best exemplified in this book by "Sad Dust Glories," a quietly moving evocation of glorious melancholy expressed in short lines of transcendental visions: "So I said glory be looking down at a pine feather risen beside a dead leaf where a fly wavers an inch above ground midsummer." In each verbal picture is packed a yearning for the infinite — once again, an intensity approaching that of Japanese haiku. Many of the other poems deal, as in Ginsberg's previous collections, with political concerns. These should all be required reading for those who believe that art is irrelevant to the concrete needs of the world, artists should isolate themselves from the flurry of argument over world and national affairs controversy, art based on political statement must necessarily be hollow, strident, or laden with rhetoric. Ginsberg kicks all these notions in the teeth. Whatever you may think of his political opinions, you will find he expresses them in a style consistently fresh, powerful, and amazing.

"Jawah and Allah Battle" puts the two superdeities against each other in a bitterly ironic parody of the Arab-Israeli dispute which seems to go on and on. "Hadda Be Playing on the Jukebox" screams: "CIA & Mafia are in Cahoots." Both poems start out angry and end explosive-hysterical.

"Hadda be CIA & Mafia & FBI together bigger than Nixon, bigger than War. Hadda be a gorged throat full of murder Hadda be mouth and ass a solid mass of rage

A red hot head, a scream in the back of the throat

Hadda be in Kissinger's brain Hadda be in Rockefeller's mouth..."

Of all the various stages in which Ginsberg works in Mind Breaths, this mad hysterical one is perhaps the most familiar. It echoes the young enraged voice of the Ginsberg who wrote Howl. But that voice has mellowed; the edges are not quite as jagged, the tone is less shrill and strident. This is even more true of the book as a whole. Ginsberg seems to have moved into a whole new mental realm, his work pulsates with as much energy as ever, but the energy is more serene. Energy and serenity mix very well indeed; the result is some of the richest, most lyrical poetry he has ever come across with.

"Over and over thru the dull material world the call is made over and over thru the dull material world I make the call..."

Night Glean

Here the voice is like that of a lone aboriginal in the soft heavy spring darkness. Just how far Ginsberg has traveled can be readily seen by taking a look at another new volume, As Ever: The Collected Correspondence of Allen Ginsberg and Neal Cassidy.

Neal Cassidy was a close friend of Ginsberg, Kerouac and Burroughs; he appeared as a central character in two of Kerouac's autobiographical novels, Dean Moriarty on On The Road, and Cody Pomeroy in Visions of Cody. Cassidy — who died in 1968 after mixing alcohol and barbiturates — possessed a genuine literary talent, as evidenced by his autobiographical The First Third, as well as by his letters in this book. However, he lacked the commitment to realize his artistic ambitions by writing anything more. "Dear Neal: letters between you and me is like conversation between two equally beat bums; either we are garrulous and complaining or short-wit and enigmatic; but I dont think we make sense."

Ginsberg, May 1949
As Ever is a book for hard core fans of Beat writing. The letters serve as a chronicle of Ginsberg and Cassidy's relationship, stretching from 1947 to 1967; and very little has been edited from them. Ginsberg and Cassidy were, for a time, lovers as well as friends; the intensity of their relationship is apparent in the 1940s letters which make up nearly the first half of the book.

"I am lonely, Neal, alone, and always I am frightened. I need someone to love me and kiss me and sleep with me; I am only a child and have the mind of a child. I have been miserable without you because I had depended on you to take care of me for love of me, and now that you have altogether rejected me, what can I do, what can I do?" — Ginsberg, Fall 1947

Through the 1950s and into the '60s, we see the fascinating evolution of a relationship between two people who held an almost holy regard for it. Ginsberg goes spiritual, Cassidy goes to San Quentin for marijuana possession, and even though letters get shorter and shorter with the passage of years until they begin sounding like "wish you were here" postcards, they keep in touch until the end.

The epilogue is a Ginsberg poem and a reflective letter he wrote to Neal's wife Carolyn in 1970, just a few months after Kerouac's death, in which he describes Jack's funeral, and ends with "Sad I didn't see you before, but the much woe, life and business in my dress, all this dusk. Take care of yourself."

It takes courage to allow letters like this to be published while you are still alive. But then, Ginsberg doesn't hold back much in his poems either. Perhaps the commitment to openness and sincerity, which seems so characteristic of the best of the Beats, is one of the things which helps separate truly great writers from those who are merely good.

To my right there is nothing. Silence and solitude stretch their plains. Oh world to populate, blank page! Pilgrimages, sacrifices, hand-to-hand combat with my soul, conversations with the snow and salt, how many whitenesses waiting to erect, how many sleeping names soon to be the wings of the poem! Shining hours, mirrors polished by expectation, trampolines of vertigo, watchtowers of ecstasy, bridges suspended over the chasm that opens between two exclamations, momentary statues that for a fraction of a second celebrate the descent of the Ray! The grass wakes, begins to move, and covers the arid lands with living green; moss climbs to the rocks, clouds open. Everything sings, everything bears fruit, everything prepares to be. ## 'Holocaust' mini-series: Kaddish for the dead

Series betrays history

By KATHY ESSELMAN
State News Reviewer

When even roots' complacency is disturbed
They may console themselves, safe in the clouds, and say:

How easy indeed we were to hide so deep."
But what will God's birds do
When hailstones pelt them in the open sky?

"Hail" by Avrakam Shlonsky

Modern Hebrew and Yiddish poetry is seared through with images of the Holocaust. The state of Israel owes its existence to the debt of guilt for the six million Jews eradicated by the Nazis.

Who will avenge the blood of brothers and sister, of fathers and sons, drunk in like wine by the earth — and she, the whore, has not spewed it out? There is no way, none! roars even mute and empty space. Continents, seas and heavens have conspired against the few of us, and all the gods and devils have joined in the conspiracy and signed it with our blood.

"Massadah" by Isaac Lamdan

Modern poetry of the Jewish people, like "Massadah" and "Hail," seek an understanding of the Holocaust. It tries to come to terms with the horror of annihilation, the soulless goal of the Nazis to eliminate a people from the earth.

Much modern literature, drama and film has sought to purge communal guilt, and assess the impact of the Holocaust on Western man. Such works as Alain Resnais' "Hiroshima, Mon Amour," Resnais' "Night and Fog," Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett's "The Diary of Anne Frank," Abby Mann's "Judgment at Nuremberg" and Leon Uris' "Exodus" attempt such interpretation.

Holocaust, currently being broadcast on NBC, has been described as a "docu-drama." Gerald Green's original script attempts to relate the entire scope of the persecutions of Eastern European Jewry through the experiences of an imaginary family, the family Weiss.

Holocaust runs 6 and one-half hours, after commercials and station breaks are subtracted. The work is hampered by Green's overwritten script and Marvin Chomsky's uninspired direction. The cast's performances range from the sublime to the incompetent.

Rosemary Harris and Fritz Weaver as Berta and Josef Weiss are luminously accurate in their portraits of the stoic, grief-riven parents. Of the remainder of the cast, only David Warner as Heydrich, head of the SS, the Nazi secret police, turns in such an interesting multi-faceted performance. Most of the other performers have elected to look brave, craven or coldly impassive depending on whether they play the good or the bad guys. Unfortunately, neither life nor art are that simple.

Hannah Arendt has reminded us of the banality of evil. Anyone who has seen film of the Nuremberg Trials, the Eichmann trial, or photographs of the plump hausfrau who made lampshades out of human skin cannot help but be struck first by that very banality. Michael Moriarty's portrayal of the script's Nazi protagonist Erik Dorf as an icily-contained theoretician of extermination evades coming to grips with the character by reducing him to a caricature of the Nazi menace. They did it better on Hogan's Heroes, and that shouldn't be.

Monday night's installment opened consideration of the Warsaw Ghetto uprising, obscuring the grim prospects of the ghetto with gauze filter loveliness. The unpleasant realities of starving children with bloated bellies huddling in the doorways when families have been broken up, and old people aimlessly wandering the streets in search of food is here related with an offhand irreality.

The plight of those who go "over the Wall" to the Aryan part of town is related with a breezy Our Gang characterization of a young smuggler. The historical event of the hanging of six adults caught going "over the Wall," here (presumably for emotional effect) is translated into the execution, by a firing squad, of six women. The actual took place on December 1, 1941, and marked the first time the Nazis imposed the death penalty for this crime. They erected the gallows before the main gate of the ghetto and left the corpses of the four women and two men to hang as a warning to others.

The re-writing of this historical event, raises again the question of the degree of historical accuracy necessary or desirable in a docu-drama. History and fiction are entwined with blithe disregard. Fictional characters interact freely with historical figures. One State News editor assumed that Erik Dorf was a real person, and one would be at pains to distinguish him from the historical characters such as Adolph Eichmann depicted in the drama.

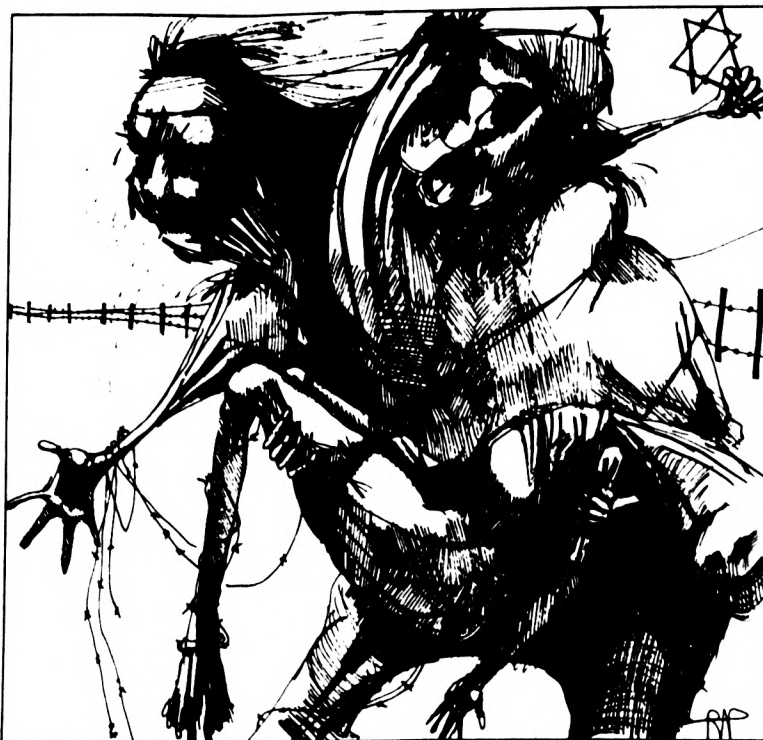

This leads to best to perceptual distortion, at worst to a reduction of historical tragedy to the level of soap opera. As TV Guide describes Tuesday's episode, "Fighting alongside Russian partisans, Rudi and Helena take time out to get married. Meanwhile, Karl and two fellow inmates are tortured by the Nazis." Somehow, it seems inappropriate to be able to reduce one of the central tragedies of the 20th century to such capsule plot descriptions. It trivializes reality to intersperse events like the massacre of 30,000 men, women and children at Babi Yar with Ultra-Brite commercials.

The Warsaw ghetto is interpreted with a panvision prettiness that betrays the memory of the people who died there. Tuvia Borzykowski, a member of the Jewish Fighting Organization who participated in the Uprising, described the plight of the people in the summer of 1942 after the first large-scale deportations by the Nazis, in his memoir of the Warsaw Uprising:

The broken windows and doors, scattered ownerless property, the feathers from pillows torn open lying on the ground like a writhing white blanket, told something of the holocaust that had raged here. Among the heaps of clothing and shoes, of books and photographs rotting in the dried blood, one could see Jews wandering about, Jews whom some blind fate had left alive.

Between Tumbling Walls

As long as the Warsaw ghetto is pictured in terms which soften or glamorize this reality, then it not only fails as drama, but bears false witness to history.

'Roots' still rating leader

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 65 million people watched the first part of NBC's Holocaust Sunday evening, the network estimated Tuesday. But reruns of three shows on rival networks outdrew the program in the week's ratings.

NBC's audience projection for the opening installment of the four-night docu-drama on the plight of Jews in Europe during World War II was based on A. C. Nielsen Co. figures for the week ending April 16.

The nationwide rating for the Sunday evening episode was 27.1. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 27.1 percent watched at least part of the three-hour telecast.

Holocaust has been compared — though not by NBC — with Roots, ABC's highly successful eight-part miniseries aired in January 1977. Roots averaged a 44.9 rating for eight nights, far surpassing any other previous series.

The second episode in the Holocaust miniseries, Monday evening, fared better than the first in three big cities checked overnight by Nielsen. The rating service said 41 percent of the homes with TV in New York were tuned to Chapter 2, compared with 29.3 the first night, and 33.3 compared with 28.7 in Los Angeles.

The relatively strong showing for Holocaust helped pull NBC from last place in the networks' weekly rankings for the first time since late February. But it was ABC — with the week's two most-watched shows — in first again, for the 28th time this season.

There was little distance between the networks in the standings — ABC at 17.8, NBC at 17.4 and CBS at 17.3. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute, 17.8 percent of the homes in the country with television were watching ABC.

The three shows that topped Holocaust in the ratings were reruns — Three's Company and Laverne and Shirley on ABC and M-A-S-H on CBS. ABC listed four shows in the Top 10 for the week and CBS had five.

Holocaust horror Memory of past

By DAVID MISIALOWSKI
State News Staff Writer

It was a war, and a period of history, but of course it was much more than that. To speak of the bloody conflict which buzzsawed Europe from 1914 to 1918 is to talk of World War I; the description fits. But the historical dateline "World War II" seems, in the context of that period and the events embracing it, somehow impotent. The epoch of Hitlerian rage and bloody misery write large demands a broader definition. Today we call it the Holocaust.

The Holocaust. A war. A society — Germany — ensnared in the razor hooks of the Swastika, battered and bent out of human form. It was the kind of society which, after the combined might of Allied forces had finally subdued its leaders, could trot out a group of citizens who denied all knowledge of the Ovens — even as the stench of incinerated human flesh hung heavy in the air.

Millions of Jews were killed. Hundreds of thousands of Poles and Slavs, Russians and French, even Germans. They were not treated or killed as persons. It would not even be accurate to say they were slaughtered like cattle, in a depersonalized, dehumanized manner.

The Holocaust demands a more esoteric analysis. Whether the present television series will evoke any enduring and edifying memory of the Holocaust is debatable. The television classic drama a brief time raised public consciousness to the plight of blacks, but its insights quickly faded. It may seem trite to recall Santayana's classic dictum: "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it" — but even this can be instructive. For, yes, on the other hand, it is an excuse for not wanting to remember.

Response mixed to docu-drama

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The episode of NBC's Holocaust dramatization of Nazi persecution against the Jews in World War II, outdistanced the networks in three major categories but fell short of winning records set by other series.

Half of all the viewers in New York and Los Angeles watched the first of four consecutive chapters of the series, according to early ratings. NBC officials had no immediate comment on the initial ratings.

The network reported that telephone calls it received in New York and Los Angeles were almost evenly split between praise and complaints. New York had 388 favorable calls and 368 complaints. Los Angeles had 122 favorable calls and 111 complaints, plus another 214 protesting the number of commercial interruptions.

Ten uniformed American Nazis and about 25 civilian sympathizers marched in protest against the series Sunday outside NBC's suburban Burbank headquarters. In New York, about 20 persons identified as belonging to the Ridge-wood groups of Queens, composed of German-Americans, demonstrated outside NBC's main offices. They carried placards saying "NBC is Anti-Christian." Demonstrations in both cities were without incident.

A small plane flew over Dodger Stadium during a baseball game in Los Angeles

Sunday, towing a banner reading, "Holocaust is a hoax."

In Miami, concentration camp survivors Gerhard and Ursula Maszkowski watched the first chapter at home and relived the nightmare of almost 40 years ago. Afterward, they fell silent until Mrs. Maszkowski said, "It can't happen again. People can't be like that again in one lifetime. I don't think . . ."

In Skokie, Ill., Erna Gans also again felt the terror. She said, "Finally people are recognizing the importance of knowledge and what happened during the Holocaust. And instead of silence they're now talking about it, learning about it and maybe will have a lesson from history, instead of forgetting about history."

Gerald Green, author of the screenplay and novel, said in a telephone interview from New York, "I wrote it, then I saw it last week and saw it again last night and I was moved each time. Not because I wrote it but because it is truthful."

Ulibarri waiting for hits

MSU softball coach Diane Ulibarri is hoping the Spartans are about to experience a change of luck beginning this afternoon in Kalamazoo.

The Spartans, 4-5, are at Western Michigan today facing the Broncos in a doubleheader.

"I feel quite confident with our defense," Ulibarri said. Ulibarri has been working with the ballplayers on their hitting following the team's 1-0 12-inning loss to Minnesota and 2-0 loss to Illinois State over the weekend in their second place finish at the Illinois State tournament.

Consistent hitting is definitely what MSU will need if they hope to win against the Broncos, who go into the 3 p.m. match-up undefeated at 6-0.

"We've been working on our hitting," Ulibarri said. "When we hit, no team in the world is going to stop us. If our hits come, and they come together we'll be fine."

Despite the lack of hitting, the Spartans have three players who are leading the team in batting with fairly exceptional averages. Denise Bundo is hitting .571, followed by Carmen King with a .464 average and Jennie Klepinger is batting .375.

In today's doubleheader Western will probably be going with freshman pitcher Chris Juszczyk, 3-0, and senior Ann Kasdorf, also 3-0.

It is still uncertain who the starters will be for MSU, though Ulibarri may go with Nancy Lyons. Lyons possesses the best of the Spartan hurlers' records, with a 4-2 mark. Wendy Greenwood follows with a 1-0 record.

The April 6 home game against Western, which was postponed due to rain, will not be made up.

Detroit Red Wing Goalie, Ron Low (30), eyes the bouncing puck as Montreal's Jacques Lemaire (25) follows in hot pursuit during Monday's 6-2 Montreal win.

TOM SHANAHAN Baseball not so popular

MONDAY MSUNGS (ON WEDNESDAY) . . .

There won't be any Monday night baseball broadcast in the Lansing area until June 26.

Unless you pick up channel 41 on your UHF antenna. ABC's Monday night baseball has been blacked out by channel 12 - WJRT TV in Flint.

Channel 12 station program manager Steve Fisher said they won't be broadcasting the network's first nine telecasts on Mondays because its rating survey says there is a larger demand for movies and other entertainment besides sports.

The only exception, Fisher said, would be if the Detroit Tigers were featured and the station knew about it in advance. Last year channel 12 didn't know ABC would broadcast Detroit until the day before and wasn't able to make the switch.

When an ABC affiliate turns down a network program, ABC can go to other stations in the area and try to sell the program. Unfortunately, no one has bought the baseball games in the Lansing area.

"Baseball is not one of our most popular programs," Fisher said. "We receive an awful lot of flack and criticism from men and women who are not sports fans and who are fed up with sports after the weekend."

"We're trying to serve everybody, but people who are not sports fans are in the majority. We will broadcast games in July, August and September and the All-Star game and the play-off games when the games mean more so we can satisfy the baseball fans also."

It sounds like a logical reason, but it is disappointing because Monday night is a good night to relax in front of the television.

The advantage is I don't have to make a choice on Mondays between baseball and Lou Grant on CBS . . .

I am also surprised I can't find any radio stations in Lansing that broadcast Tiger baseball. WJR in Detroit comes in too fuzzy on my radio to enjoy listening to the game. What kind of summer season is that for a young baseball fan, home with nothing to do, not even listening to the Tigers?

"Yea, I guess about half of the business is gone," said Martin, half owner of the company. "And I think my half is still standing."

It was just one of those nights, but there was a serious side to honor the players.

Senior goalie Dave Versical, who appeared in 84 games as a Spartan and wound up with 3,108 career saves, received the Outstanding Senior Award and The Blue Line President's Scholar Athlete Award. He was also honored as MSU's most valuable player for the second year in a row.

Versical, a winter term graduate, finished up with a 3.84 grade point average and was a finalist for a Rhodes Scholarship.

"We (the seniors) have no regrets for the four years that we played," Versical said. "We loved playing for MSU."

Other Spartans honored were freshman Leo Lynett as the outstanding rookie and junior Jeff Barr as the most improved player. Barr was also named as the 1978-79 team captain. Sophomore Russ Welch won his second straight team scoring championship and senior Joey Campbell was selected as the All-Around Team Player.

MSU hitters rained out

MSU's scheduled baseball doubleheader with Central Michigan Tuesday was rained out, and a decision will be made later this week on whether the games will be rescheduled for Sunday.

The Spartans will host Ferris State in a 2 p.m. doubleheader today at Kobs Field. MSU will also have home doubleheaders Friday against Wayne State and Saturday versus Detroit.

The women's softball team's doubleheader at Calvin, in Grand Rapids Tuesday was postponed because of a scheduling conflict on the part of Calvin.

JOE CENTERS

Loyal fans still around

The MSU hockey team finished in last place this season, but that didn't keep the loyal Spartan fans from honoring their team Friday night at Long's Banquet and Convention Center.

"This turnout is symbolic of the most dedicated fans at Michigan State — the hockey fans," said Athletic Director Joe Kearney.

No one wanted to remember the season, but all of the speakers took their turns poking fun at everyone in sight.

"I remember talking to Amo (Coach Bessone) after the season and he told me he had some good news and some bad news," said Al Renfrew, former hockey coach from U.M. and long time friend of Bessone. "First the good news," Amo told me. "The hockey season is over." But what's the bad news I asked him? "Most of the players are coming back next year."

Bob Martin, president of the Blue Line Club and master of ceremonies for the banquet, did a fine job. Also, he was in good spirits even though he was up the night before watching his business, the Schultz Snyder and Steele Lumber Co., get wiped out by a fire.

"Yea, I guess about half of the business is gone," said Martin, half owner of the company. "And I think my half is still standing."

It was just one of those nights, but there was a serious side to honor the players.

Senior goalie Dave Versical, who appeared in 84 games as a Spartan and wound up with 3,108 career saves, received the Outstanding Senior Award and The Blue Line President's Scholar Athlete Award. He was also honored as MSU's most valuable player for the second year in a row.

organist was playing throughout the whole game.

And when that wasn't enough, there was always the CHOO Girls (Detroit's answer to the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders) doing their thing on the field.

Even though Detroit lost the game 2-1 to the Rowdies, the day was a success for the organization. But the question is how can the success last?

Gordon Preston, part owner and Director of Operations for Express, said for the team to break even it will have to attract about 18,000 fans every home game.

"I think it will be difficult to repeat this crowd," said Klaus Boer, assistant coach and former MSU soccer star. "Next week crucial week because the Tigers are playing at home and the hockey is on TV. We'll see how many cross-over fans we have."

"I think the majority of fans were interested. That will be the key to success for the Express, to keep the interested and to win."

The Express is now 2-1 in the North American Soccer League (NASL), which is now in its 12th year of operation, and the NASL seems to be as strong as ever. Last Sunday more than 41,000 fans showed up to see the New York Cosmos play. The league seems to have made it, so the rest is up to Detroit.

It will be interesting to see if the Express can make it, and it will be important for them to be a winner this year to get some backers and supporters. If Detroit can make it through the year it will be a success.

Keating finally netters top man

By GAYLE JACOBSON
State News Sports Writer

Three seasons ago, senior MSU tennis player Tighe Keating was satisfied with his accomplishment of securing a spot on the Spartans' varsity squad, even if he was the bottom man in the singles positions.

Today Keating is in the leading singles and doubles spot for the Spartans.

"It's always been a dream for me (to be seeded first), since missing the team the first couple years," Keating said. "It's been my goal to play number one for MSU. I attribute my success to the help of coach (Drobae), through playing two professional tennis circuits, and mainly through the help of Jesus Christ."

Keating, a graduate of Brother Rice in Birmingham, where he excelled in both tennis and swimming, made MSU's varsity swim team his freshman year of college, but failed to make the final cuts in tennis.

The following year Keating again tried out for the tennis team and again was turned away.

"I just missed the team my sophomore year," Keating said. "I worked out when I was able to with the team, and made it the junior year."

In Keating's junior year Drobae advised him to improve upon his game by competing in the southern professional tennis circuit. Keating took off that winter term to tour the circuit.

"I decided that I wanted more confidence in my arm and I was advised by the coach to play in the southern circuit. I learned a tremendous amount of tennis. When I came back, I jined the team in the spring."

That was 1976. The following season Keating advanced to

Lacrosse resumes league play

BERRY BRAUDE
Sports Writer
The lacrosse team got a Sunday against Northern, 17-3, to end its losing streak. The Spartans as they play against Bowling Green State today on the Field at 3:30 p.m. The Wesleyan Saturday defending Midwest

Lacrosse League champs. The Spartans are now 0-2. "There are no easy games in the league," co-head coach Nevin Kanner said. "Each team recruits and has depth. Bowling Green State recruits players from the East and has a good team every year." Last year, MSU lost at Bowling Green State 17-6. "Bowling Green has good depth at every position, and they have good sticks. Their offense is constantly in motion, and they don't force it either. They are also one of the best man up teams in the league," Kanner said.

Kanner said MSU must come out against Bowling Green State aggressively.

"We'll have to hound them on defense and at midfield," Kanner said. "We must always be with them without over-committing ourselves. If we allow them a half a step, they will be able to shoot and score."

Kanner also feels that the key to the game will be at midfield.

"If our midfielders can play evenly with their's, it will be a very close ballgame," Kanner said.

Despite a 5-6 overall record, the team, just halfway through its schedule, has been breaking and closing in on numerous team records.

Their 105 goals this season surpassed the previous team record of 104.

The Spartans are also four points away from the three-year old team record of 159 for most points in a season.

Sophomore midfielder Tim Flanagan is closing in on three of injured Kevin Willitts' records. His 22 goals, 15 assists and 37 points are all just two points shy of the record.

Junior midfielder Joe Politowicz follows Flanagan in scoring with 30 goals and four assists for 34 points. Politowicz' 30 goals is a new Spartan record for most goals in a season.

"Injuries still have been bothering us," Kanner said. "Though we have depth in numbers, we still don't have depth in experience."

Flanagan finishes 37th in marathon

BOSTON (UPI) — Bill Rodgers, just 18 seconds off the record he set in winning the 1975 Boston Marathon, Monday won his second laurel wreath, edging Texas seminarian Jeff Wells in the closest race in the event's 82 year history.

Rodgers, a former Melrose, Mass., school teacher, wore the Mickey Mouse style gloves that helped him win the 1975 race in 2:09:55. He finished Monday's race in 2:10:13.

Steve Flanagan of East Lansing, Mich., finished 37th with a time of 2:20:36, the only Michigan resident listed among the top 50.

Flanagan operates the Frank Shorter Sports shoe store in East Lansing. He ran collegiate track at Connecticut and is married to MSU women's track coach Cheryl Flanagan, who once held the women's world record for the marathon.

Schneider sets shot record

Paul Schneider made it a grand sweep of the MSU men's shot put records when he added the outdoor record to the indoor record he already holds at the Dogwood Relays in Knoxville, Tenn., last weekend.

His heave of 56 feet 4 1/2 inches broke the MSU outdoor record and was good for fifth in the meet.

MSU sprint standout Randy Smith won the 100 meters with a time of 10.6. He ran 10.3 and 10.4 in the preliminaries.

The Spartan sprint medley relay team took first with a 3:20.6. The splits for the winning relay team were: Tim Klein, 47.3 in the 440; Smith, 21.2 in the 220; Ricky Flowers, 20.8 in the 220; and Keith Moore 1:51.3 in the 880.

Varsity debaters wrap up top season

By BETH TUSCHAK
State News Staff Writer

"Debate is like a jones. It gets to be habit-forming."

MSU Debate Team member The MSU Varsity Debate team wrapped up its best season in 11 years on Monday night in a heated public performance centering around federally funded abortions.

The affirmative team maintained that abortions are the right of every woman, whether rich or poor, while the negative team members said they thought federally funded abortions are unconstitutional.

Coming off a 58-18 win-loss record, the debaters had spent two weeks researching the topic.

Debate Team coach T.J. Larkin said one reason for the team's outstanding performance this year was the "freshness" of the group.

"We were all new to each other and a certain sort of chemistry happened between us," Larkin said. "Each member of the team has to be an individual, but there must also be a cohesiveness."

Debating for the affirmative team were Paul Hummer, a communications major who captured two personal first-place awards this year, and Brett Dreyfus, a pre-law major from McDonel Hall. The negative team was represented by psychology major Rick White, who also scored a personal first place finish this year, and Mark Fellows, a journalism major from Case Hall.

Dreyfus, described by coach Larkin as a "dynamic debater," opened the debate contending poor women have the right to an abortion and federal funding would guarantee every woman's right to have one.

"Poor women do not have access to abortions because in many cases the cost is too prohibitive," Dreyfus said.

Countering for the negative side, White argued that many people feel it would be morally wrong to pay for an abortion through income taxes.

"This goes back to Henry David Thoreau, who refused to pay taxes because he didn't believe in the way they were to be spent," White said.

He agreed that women have the right to an abortion — but not a free one.

Hummer, who the judges said gave the best presentation of the evening, pointed out that exceptionally high costs drive many women to having illegal "butcher" abortions.

The negative team caused a stir from the small but attentive audience when they rebutted and said a woman could go to the police station saying she was raped — even if she was not — and then be eligible for a free abortion.

"Besides the fact that that solution would cause a woman mental anguish in so far as facing impersonal police officers, how would a woman know that avenue is open to her?" Hummer asked the negative team.

"We could take out ads in the paper," White retorted. Mark Fellows, who team members describe as the "laid-back debater," said that since most federally funded abortions would be sought by women from minority backgrounds, minorities would decrease in population.

"In order for a minority to gain political power, they have to increase their numbers," Fellows said.

During rebuttal speeches, debaters changed their delivery.

They loosened up, spoke louder and used more gestures. The judges carefully took note of every nuance of the verbal sparring match, tallying up mental points for the debaters delivery, refutation, analysis and use of evidence.

"The guys are also judged on their ability to speak rapidly without missing a syllable or blurring a word, and the line of reasoning they use," Larkin explained.

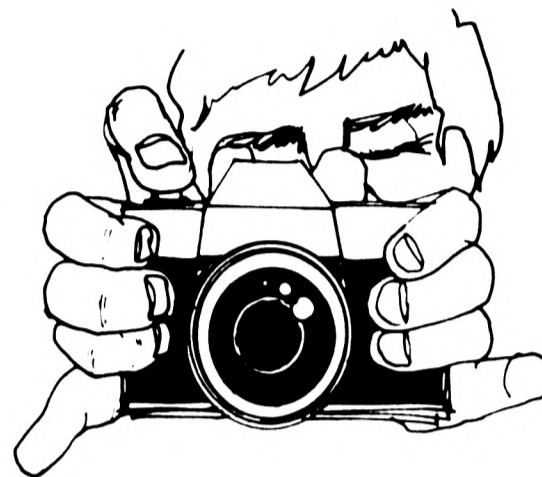

Votes counted, the judges were unanimous in their choice of the affirmative team as victors.

"That was one of the clearest debates I've ever heard," said Department of Communications Undergraduate Chairperson, David C. Ralph, who served as head of the three member judging panel.

Hearing deals with equal opportunity

The Ingham County Equal Opportunity Committee will hold a public hearing for county residents and employees in the council chambers of Lansing City Hall at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The hearing will deal with equal opportunity in all county services, including employment and grants. The opportunity areas to be discussed will include age, race and disability. The Equal Opportunity Committee was established in 1975.

Food drive being held

A food drive to replenish area emergency food banks will take place in Ingham County from noon to 8 p.m. Thursday.

Collection areas will be set up outside participating food stores. They will accept donations of non-perishable foodstuffs and cash to purchase food items as needed.

Collection points are all Lansing-area Kroger and Meijer Thrifty Acres stores and the Schmidt's Super Food Market in the Holt Plaza. A table will also be set up in the Lansing Mall to accept contributions.

The drive is sponsored by the Ingham County Task Force on Hunger and Nutrition, and is being held as part of National Food Day.

About 25 emergency food banks in the county, operated by churches and community organizations, handle more than 12,000 requests for food each year, according to Mary Alexander, Ingham County food distribution coordinator.

The food banks do not feed people on an extended basis, she explained.

"They supply foodstuffs to persons who would otherwise go hungry while waiting for the existing social programs to meet their needs," Alexander said.

She said emergency needs include senior citizens who run out of food before their social security check comes, and families waiting for unemployment compensation to begin, or have had a welfare check lost in the mail, or lost possessions in a fire.
