Rhodesian planes blast post

By MICHAEL HOLMAN
Associated Press Writer
LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Rhodesian warplanes struck 90 miles into Zambia Thursday to pound a black guerrilla base within earshot of the capital.

Guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo said "we have lost quite a few people."

A day earlier Salisbury troops raided guerrilla camps in Mozambique. There was no word whether that raid was still in progress and no comment from Mozambique.

Nkomo, head of the Zambia-based Zimbabwe African People's Union said, "They have destroyed almost every structure." He suggested the bombs might have been American-made, although the United States supports the United Nations' total embargo against Rhodesia.

Casualties were not revealed, but the road was lined with jeeps, trucks and cars taking dead and wounded to the capital of Lusaka 12 miles away.

Nkomo said the planes dropped napalm, but Lusaka hospital sources said there was no evidence of napalm injuries. One medical source said more than 300 men of military age were treated at one hospital. The source estimated the death toll at "dozens."

In Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, the military command said its forces had struck Nkomo's main headquarters and that the attackers were returning to their bases.

A Rhodesian military spokesperson said the Zambian government was warned in advance and told the target was Nkomo's headquarters.

Nkomo said the base was a camp for the sick, the young and refugees.

"The bombs were very powerful and they don't make those bombs in Salisbury," Nkomo said. "I wonder whether Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith doesn't get them from where he has gone shopping," an apparent reference to Smith's visit to the United States.

Black smoke rose over the Chikumbi Camp and ruins of buildings were evident from the camp's sealed gates. Tremors from the bombs shook Lusaka and destroyed several shanties.

Reporters were barred from the camp by armed guerrillas but said most of the casualties evacuated were men of military age wearing green fatigues.

Reports from the site said the 45-minute attack was by six jets and about five helicopters, but there was no indication that Rhodesian ground troops were involved.

The attack came the day after Rhodesia announced a raid into Mozambique to its east, the base for Robert Mugabe's guerrillas.

Mugabe and Nkomo lead a loose alliance

Mozambique base raided in Wednesday's action called the Patriotic Front, and have been trying to topple the Salisbury government for six years.

Their efforts increased after an interim biracial government was formed March 3.

Zambia issued a statement saying a ZAPU "refugee camp" was attacked, and that the Rhodesians were "repulsed by gallant Zambian forces."

Nkomo said the camp was being built by the United Nations and Red Cross as a future home for ZAPU children. Tens of thousands of black refugees have fled Rhodesia to neighboring countries. Western diplomatic sources say there are four ZAPU camps and two refugee camps within 12 miles of Lusaka.

The raids came while all four members of Rhodesia's interim government — Smith, Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau — were in Washington. They are scheduled to meet Saturday with State Department officials on the subject of Rhodesian peace talks that would include the guerrillas.

Asked if the raids would affect the talks, Nkomo said: "How do you talk with these criminals who use napalm? It shows the bombing that is going on. Smith is talking with the Americans at the same time as he is attacking Mozambique and Zambia and talking about an all party conference."

Settlement of peace talk problems 'doubtful'-Dayan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and President Carter continued their public disagreement about the progress being made in the Mideast peace talks Thursday.

Dayan, speaking to Carter at lunch in Blair House in front of reporters, said the negotiations have encountered problems and chances of the two delegations settling them are "very doubtful."

Carter, returning to the White House after his luncheon with the two delegations, told reporters the talks were stalled, and "we don't have any particular problem."

The disagreement was a reprise of what happened Tuesday, the first time Carter met with the two delegations since the talks began. At that time also Dayan was pessimistic and Carter optimistic.

Dayan told Carter Thursday the "key to changes of the attitudes or the position of the delegations just is not here. So you have the full information from all of us. But whether you can obtain a change of position through the delegations here is very doubtful. It's not Camp David, with the heads of state here."

Dayan implied that the two sides had reached an impasse that could not be broken without one or the other violating the negotiating instructions it was given at the outset of the talks. At Camp David, the heads of state had more flexibility about deciding what positions to take.

Carter's response was brief. He said he recognized the difficulties and would seek the advice of the delegates.

The administration said Wednesday that Carter had not been in touch with either Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin or Egyptian President Anwar Sadat since the conference began.

However, it appeared from Dayan's comments that further discussions involving Carter, Begin and Sadat might be necessary.

It was the second time this week that Dayan made a public statement which contradicted the optimism voiced by the conference's official spokesperson, George Sherman of the State Department. Sherman has reported steady progress since the talks began.

Meanwhile, informed sources said Israel is talking to the administration about a new aid program to finance its withdrawal from the Sinai that could cost billions of dollars.

Egypt also is "talking about big numbers" in seeking American assistance for an economic development program, the sources said.

But the Israeli request is more closely tied to the peace talks, since the treaty is supposed to set a schedule for Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai, which is captured from Egypt in 1967.

MILLIKEN SIGNS BILL

Lobby reform OK'd

LANSING (UPI) — Gov. William G. Milliken Wednesday signed into law the state's first major reform of lobbying rules since the 1940s, but he called the measure weak and derided the closed-door meetings during which it was watered down.

Milliken asked the Legislature to enact more stringent lobbying regulations as soon as possible, although he said the new law amounts to some improvement over current statutes.

The measure will require anyone who spends more than $1,000 a year to influence legislation to register as a lobbyist. That basic improvement over current law remained intact in the many legislative battles on the bill, sponsored by Sen. Gary Corbin, D-Clio.

Corbin's original bill also would have required lobbyists to report anything over $1 they spend winning and dining law makers, but strong resistance from lobbyists and legislators produced a final bill allowing expenditures of up to $100 a year without reporting.

The measure also prohibits large gifts from lobbyists to lawmakers.

It is a portion of a four bill political reform act that was struck down on technical grounds in 1976 by the Michigan Supreme Court. Lobbying reform, campaign finance disclosure and public funding of gubernatorial campaigns — all portions of the original act — now have been re-enacted.

Milliken called for several improvements in the lobbying reform measure, including: elimination of a loophole which allows multi-client lobbyists to allocate food and beverage expenses among various clients to avoid the reporting thresholds; a requirement that food and beverage expenditure totals be disclosed; and Milliken also said he would support a provision requiring lawmakers themselves to file reports disclosing the amount of money lobbyists spend on them.

Youth group, Iranians scuffle at conference

By JOANNELANE
State News Staff Writer
A scuffle between members of the Spartacus Youth League and MSU Iranian students Wednesday night caused minor damage to the second floor hallway of the International Center.

A forum, sponsored by the Spartacus Youth League presenting the topic "Iran in Turmoil," was disrupted a few minutes after the featured speaker, Sam Lewis, editor of the league's newspaper, began to speak at 7:30 p.m.

Spartacus members standing at the conference room door asked everyone entering to submit to a body and baggage search saying, "It's for your own protection."

Before the speech began, a Spartacus spokesperson explained to the audience of mostly Iranian students that Lewis would speak for 45 minutes and then would open the floor to questions.

When Lewis expressed his views on the strategies the Iranian working class should use to overthrow the Shah, several Iranian students protested that Lewis's opinions were based on false information.

Spartacus bodyguards, wearing gloves and holding their forearms upright in front of their bodies, quickly surrounded the speaker when the Iranians criticized Lewis' comments.

Lewis further angered the Iranians by suggesting that their technique of trying to overthrow the Shah would only contribute more to the low status of women in Iran.

Several Iranian students, disagreeing with Lewis's viewpoint that such techniques would make the situation worse, shouted, "This is a lie."

Spartacus members demanded again that the forum be carried out in a "democratic" manner and that the Iranian students must remain quiet or leave.

Spartacus bodyguards then began to physically remove the Iranian students from the room as they chanted, "Down with the Shah, Down with the CIA."

The Iranian students remained outside

Sami Esmail departs from Israel today

Sami Esmail will be deported today from a Tel Aviv airport, said his brother Basim. He will arrive at New York's Kennedy Airport at 4:05 p.m.

Esmail will be greeted at the airport by his mother and Basim. He will have no money or baggage, Basim said.

Esmail will be flown out of Israel on the Israeli airline and will be under guard. He is not considered free until he is turned over to his relatives in the United States.

Basim Esmail said depending on Sami's physical condition, he will either arrive at Capital City Airport Sunday on a 1:33 p.m. or 5:35 p.m. flight.

Even if drinking age is raised to 21, minors may still be allowed into bars

By MICHAEL WINTER
State News Staff Writer
If the Michigan drinking age is raised to 21 after the Nov. 7 election, 18- to 20-year-olds still will be able to visit their favorite watering hole — if bar owners let them.

Though no state laws prohibit minors from entering bars, owners have the legal right to exclude whom they want. Liquor Control Commission officials say.

Proposal D, the ballot question calling for the hike, would raise the legal drinking age to 21 if approved. The age hike would take effect Dec. 22.

Several East Lansing bar managers said they would prohibit anyone under 21 from entering after the effective date if "D" passes. Most said enforcing the new law would be "a nightmare" if 18- to 20-year-olds are allowed to enter bars with those patrons 21 or over.

Some managers said special non-alcoholic nights or sections of the bar might be set aside for under-21 patrons if "D" passes. Others said those under 21 might not be allowed to enter after a certain hour.

Hand-stamping — a practice used in Ohio to separate 21 year old drinkers from those under 21 — would "cause too much confusion and result in too many minors receiving alcohol," said Eric Craymer, manager of the Rainbow Ranch, 2843 E. Grand River Ave.

In most Ohio bars, where 18- to 20-year-olds may only drink beer containing 3.2 percent alcohol, patrons are stamped differently and must display the stamp when buying or ordering alcohol. "High" beer contains 4 to 6 percent alcohol.

Because of a greater enforcement problem in student-populated towns, the liquor commission will be putting more investigators "back on the street" if "D" passes, said Walter Keck, chief of the commission's enforcement division.

If liquor license holders are caught selling or serving alcohol to a minor, they can be fined or have their license temporarily or permanently revoked.

Licenses can be fined up to $300 for each liquor code violation and have their licenses suspended from seven to 30 days, Keck said.

Despite the likelihood of 18- to 20-year-olds being barred from East Lansing bars if "D" passes, under-21 bartenders or waitresses' jobs won't be put on the rocks.

Any employee under 21 could still serve alcohol to customers if the drinking age is raised, Keck said.

But the new law would still prohibit employees who are minors from consuming or buying alcohol, which would include signing purchase orders from liquor distributors.

Keck said this would "inconvenience" many bars that employ people under 21.

One state official said if Proposal D passes, legislation must be enacted to comply with the Michigan constitution.

"There's going to have to be a good deal of administrative and legislative action soon after the election to deal with the problem," said Michael Hodge, of the Attorney General's office.

The Legislature must pass two laws raising the drinking age to 21 if "D" passes, said Terry Benson, of the State Administrative Rules Committee. Lawmakers also must repeal legislation passed last May raising the drinking age to 19, Dec. 3.

Benson said the Michigan liquor and penal codes will have to be amended when the drinking age is raised.

Passage of "D" would "cause real confusion" between Dec. 3, when the legislation would take effect, and Dec. 22, when D would be enacted, Benson added.

Emotions, statistics dominate '21' debate

By ANNE MARIE BIONDO and KIM GAZELLA
State News Staff Writers
Raising the drinking age to 21 became an emotional and statistical argument Thursday night as opponents and proponents gave the issue all they had.

The "town hall" meeting was the second in a series of three political events sponsored by the MSU School of Journalism.

Kim Stuck, a 21-year-old reformed alcoholic, and proponent of the proposal, said she started drinking when she was 13 because of "peer pressure."

"Everybody wants to be accepted," she said.

She said the drinking age should be raised to 21 because the 18-year-olds are not responsible enough to decide whether they should drink. Countless lives are also lost due to alcohol-related accidents, she said.

Stuck told the audience of a friend who was in an accident because of alcohol and is now "a vegetable," and a friend who drank a pint of whiskey on a dare and "never woke up."

"We're dealing with lives, not just our rights," Stuck said. "We all deserve a chance at living."

Admitting he opposes Proposal D from "strictly an economical" point of view, Dooley's manager Gary Foltz said he'll lose about 50 percent of business if the proposition becomes law.

"There will also be 'substantial economic impact on those who work for us,'" he said. About 95 percent of his employees are MSU students and many of those will be laid off, he said.

"If our business is curtailed, we'll have to cut back."

Foltz said Proposal D only restricts the sale and use of alcohol by those under 21 — leaving the bar doors open to the now 18-, 19- and 20-year-olds.

Pope delays picking top aides

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II on Thursday deferred picking his top aides, indicating a possible shake-up in the Vatican's central administration, the Curia.

A Vatican spokesman said there probably would be no word on the appointments this week. It was the first time in recent papal transitions that the chief department heads have not been renamed to office.

However, on the pill, abortion, priestly celibacy and other controversial ethical issues, the new pontiff is on record as supporting the positions of the Roman Catholic Church.

Trudeau's position unstable after setbacks

OTTAWA AP — Sharp setbacks in special elections this week have some members of Canada's ruling Liberal Party grumbling about the leadership of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. If the mood grows, the Liberals could go into upcoming national elections without Trudeau as chief for the first time in 10 years.

Many in the party establishment say they continue to back the 59-year-old prime minister despite Liberal losses in 13 of 15 parliamentary by-elections last Monday. But some rank-and-file Liberals are calling openly for a new party leader as Canada prepares for general parliamentary elections sometime in the first six months of next year.

Trudeau suffered another setback Wednesday in legislative elections in Saskatchewan. The New Democratic Party won 44 of the 61 seats in the provincial parliament and the Conservatives took 17. The Liberals lost all 11 seats they had held.

States try to block gas price regulation

DALLAS (AP) — Three states that produce most of the nation's natural gas agreed Thursday to sue to block sections of the national energy bill that would extend federal price regulation to gas produced and sold within a state.

Attorneys General John Hill of Texas, Larry Derryberry of Oklahoma and William Guste of Louisiana said they decided to join forces in a suit against the Department of Energy. The three states, which are estimated to produce 85 percent of the nation's gas, will split the costs involved.

In addition to trying to block the regulation of intrastate gas prices, the suit will be aimed at a requirement that states establish a process to perform the price regulation.

"Our contention is that there is no constitutional authority for the federal government to control the price of natural gas within a state," Hill said.

"So much of our natural gas is sent to the East Coast when we need it," Guste said. "Our gas should remain intrastate gas."

'Moratorium' lifted on Soviet trips

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has quietly lifted a moratorium on most high-level visits to the Soviet Union, imposed to protest actions by Moscow against dissidents and U.S. merchants and reporters, administration officials said Thursday.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, said the new policy reflects a changed Soviet attitude, which has helped improve the atmosphere between the two countries since last summer when Moscow charged two American newsmen with slandering the government and accused a U.S. entrepreneur of currency violations.

The administration never publicly used the word "moratorium" to describe the policy, but had said official visits to Moscow not involving security issues would be "deferred on a case-by-case basis." Officials said privately, however, that "moratorium" was an accurate description.

Officials said there are several trips now in the works which would not have been made last summer.

Bomber crashes in field; five killed

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — A B-52 bomber crashed into a field shortly after taking off from this busy Strategic Air Command base Thursday, killing five of the six crew members, authorities said. The big eight-engine craft was on a routine training flight and carried no nuclear or conventional weapons, said Capt. Carl Rossman, an Air Force spokesman.

The injured crewmember apparently was able to run from the blazing wreckage, authorities said. He was reported in stable condition at the base hospital.

The morning crash occurred in light fog in a plowed field about 2½ miles southeast of March AFB near the rural community of Sunnymead and about 65 miles east of Los Angeles.

Used extensively in the Vietnam War, the B-52 is the nation's primary bomber. It normally carries six to eight persons and can carry huge loads of nuclear or conventional weapons up to 6,000 miles.

Judge supports reporters, overrules libel

CINCINNATI (UPI) — A federal appeals court judge, backing a newspaper in a libel case, declared Thursday "the law must allow some leeway for error" by news reporters because of the "important role" of the press.

The statement by 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Gilbert S. Merritt represented some refreshing judicial support for reporters, who have come under fire in several courts recently.

Merritt's defense of the press accompanied a decision in which he and two fellow judges unanimously overruled a jury's libel finding against a Michigan newspaper, the Owosso Argus-Press.

The court said the jury was wrong in determining the paper libeled shopping mall developer Harlan E. Orr by using such words as "fraud" and "swindle" in reporting his 15-count indictment on charges of violating securities laws.

MEASURE TO FUND RESOURCES BILL, MORE

Carter OKs new 'projects' bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has signed a $27 billion measure containing $10.2 billion for the compromise energy and water resources program agreed upon in the waning hours of Congress after he had vetoed an earlier bill.

The energy and water resources compromise eliminated six water projects to which the president objected. Appropriations for 11 other projects in the original bill were downgraded from actual construction money to planning funds. Still retained in full is $6.1 billion for energy research and development.

The measure, signed by Carter on Wednesday, allows continued funding at last year's levels for several programs that otherwise would have expired for lack of House and Senate agreement on normal budget legislation.

An exception is the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program for public service jobs, whose funding level was actually cut by the so-called continuing resolution. The program, administered by the Labor Department, offers up to 625,000 public service jobs in fiscal 1979, a reduction of 100,000 from last year's level.

The measure also incorporates the Amateur Sports Act, which authorizes one-time grants of $16 million to the U.S. Olympic Committee for the 1980 Olympics. Actual payment of that money awaits separate appropriations action next year, however.

The sports act also is aimed at reducing the longtime bickering among amateur sports organizations.

Lung cancer up among females

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lung Cancer, by far the deadliest of the three most common cancers, has increased dramatically among women in this decade, according to a major new statistical report published Thursday.

The report, prepared by the National Cancer Institute, indicates the increased rate of lung cancer in the United States and rising death rates from the disease are largely responsible for a growing number of cancer cases and deaths generally.

The ongoing, five-year-old study is the first of its kind undertaken and is expected to begin yielding more comprehensive and reliable data about various cancers and survival rates from them in coming years.

Scientists who have noted the rising lung cancer rate in women have blamed it on increased cigarette smoking among women since World War II, whereas that habit had been largely restricted to men for the previous two centuries.

The lung cancer rate among men, which is considerably higher than among women, also has increased in recent years, but not nearly so sharply.

Colon and rectal cancers, breast cancer and lung cancer are by far the most common malignancies in humans, occurring nearly twice as often as any other form of the disease.

Namibia deal concluded

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — American-led Western powers and South Africa struck a deal Thursday on how to bring the troubled territory of Namibia (South-West Africa) to independence. The South Africans, while going ahead with their own elections there, will reopen negotiations for later elections supervised by the United Nations.

South African Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha raised a potentially major side issue, saying his country will not withdraw its troops from the mineral-rich territory until the 12-year-old war with black nationalist guerrillas ends.

Pretoria has controlled South-West Africa, also known as Namibia, for 60 years, the last 12 in defiance of U.N. demands that it grant the territory independence. Last month South Africa rejected the latest U.N. plan for a peaceful transition to independence and called its own elections for Dec. 4-8.

The Western five came here to persuade the South Africans not to go it alone and risk international condemnation and possible U.N. economic sanctions.

Paralyzed teen-ager given $7.6 million

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A teen-ager, who was paralyzed after a dose of cancer-fighting radiation destroyed her spinal cord, has been awarded $7.6 million in damages. One authority said it could be the largest single-payment malpractice award in the nation's history.

"I never heard of one anywhere near that," said Frank Chappell, science news editor for the American Medical Association in Chicago. "As far as I know that's the largest."

"They're wonderful people and now I have a chance for my life," said Laurie Necochea, now 18, of the jury which made the award this week. Her attorney, James Bostwick, said most of the money will go to pay medical bills.

Robert Glynn, a San Francisco attorney who represented Mt. Zion Hospital, said the case was built on "circumstantial evidence" and called the verdict "excessive. We certainly will appeal."

Necochea, confined to a wheelchair, was paralyzed in 1972 while undergoing six weeks of radiation therapy for a slow-growing and usually treatable form of thyroid cancer.

Medical witnesses testified during the trial, which began Aug. 22, that the paralysis was caused by a double dose of radiation which destroyed the spinal cord half-way down her neck.

Murder suspect arrested

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — A man sought by police in the shooting deaths of three persons was arrested after a gunbattle at his parents' home Thursday. His mother was found shot to death in the house and his father's body was later found in a freezer, police said.

Three persons, including the suspect, Billy Edward Hardesty, 21, were wounded and were in critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Hardesty's mother was found shot to death inside the dwelling, but it was not known immediately who shot her.

Washtenaw County prosecutor William Delhey obtained warrants charging Hardesty with three counts of first-degree murder and two counts of assault with intent to commit murder. Early Thursday morning, two men were shot to death in the parking lot of a saloon in Ypsilanti. Sometime before dawn, another man was shot and killed and two men were wounded in a tool and die shop about a mile east of the bar.

State police said Hardesty knew all the victims, and it appeared all had been shot with a .22-caliber pump action rifle.

One of the two men wounded at the shop gave Hardesty's name and a description of his car to sheriff's deputies, the deputies said.

Police cars soon arrived at the Hardesty home. Trooper David Koetsier said Hardesty stepped out on the porch with a .22 rifle and began shooting. Police returned the rifle.

Hardesty, hit in the right shoulder, went back inside, and started firing again, the trooper said. Officers finally rushed Hardesty at the door and arrested him.

Court supports marijuana laws

LANSING (UPI) — The Michigan Court of Appeals said Wednesday it will uphold the state's anti-marijuana laws as long as scientific and medical evidence is divided on whether the substance is harmful.

While a consensus on that health question is lacking, laws imposing stiff penalties for pot use are not arbitrary and unjust, the court concluded.

"The day may come when we are able to join defendant in his conclusion that the state has no right to regulate marijuana," the appeals court said. "That day has not yet come."

The opinion was rendered in an Isabella County case in which defendant Allen F. Schmidt asked the Appeals Court to re-evaluate in the light of new scientific evidence a previous decision in which it upheld the pot law.

Attorneys introduced evidence showing a split in scientific attitudes about the dangers of marijuana.

"Divided scientific opinion is not a firm enough basis upon which to declare a statute unconstitutional," the appeals court said.

"As long as a substantial body of scientific literature continues to conclude that marijuana use is or may be harmful, we cannot say that the Legislature's choice to rely on that evidence is arbitrary.

"Nor does the fact that the Legislature has failed to control other substances, such as tobacco, alcohol, or caffeine, require that we find an equal protection violation," the appeals court said.

The court stressed, however, that its ruling should not be taken as a warning to the Legislature to keep the current pot law on the books.

"To the contrary, we would continue to urge the Legislature to re-evaluate the marijuana 'problem,'" the court said.

A measure liberalizing the laws for possession of small amounts of marijuana passed the state senate this year but failed in the House.

"Under the circumstances, the choice of whether marijuana will be subject to regulation is still one for the Legislature, not the court," the appeals court said.

In other opinions, the appeals court ruled that extradition hearings in Michigan courts on fugitives sought by other states must be limited to two questions: whether the complaining state has filed charges, and whether the defendant is the person charged; and ruled that the Wayne County Road Commission is not the legal employer of taxi cab drivers who serve Detroit Metropolitan Airport and cannot require them to carry disability insurance.

Thirty years of changes seen by Union maintenance worker

By REBECCA DICKEN

Al Johnson remembers when MSU's alcohol policy was changed so visiting ex-president Harry S. Truman could have his daily bourbon.

As head of the Union Building's maintenance staff, Johnson has seen much change in the 31 years he has worked for MSU.

"Students are getting back to the way they were in the '50s," Johnson said. "You can talk to them now and they are more considerate."

Johnson began as a Physical Plant worker in 1947. After two years he was transferred to the Union Building and in 1957 was promoted to his current position where he supervises 18 workers, including six students.

Johnson spoke approvingly about the students of 1978.

"Jobs and careers mean more to the student today," he said. "Students work for their food and clothing — not just to go out Saturday night and have a good time."

Johnson's eyes flashed as the 58-year-old spoke of the campus protests in the 1960s.

"The worst time on campus was during the 1960s when the students rioted and defaced the flag."

"Students cut up pieces of the flag and sewed it to their clothing," Johnson said. "That really hurt me because I was in the Navy and we fought for that flag."

"The funny thing about it," Johnson continued, "was that the students were striking against the University but they would still come over to the Union to buy coffee and use the restrooms."

Many regular events and meetings were cancelled during the week-long protest, Johnson said, "but the University did not tell us to do anything special to deal with the students."

"I think student trends run in cycles," Johnson said. "Women's hemlines were mid-calf in the '40s and '50s, the mini was popular in the '60s and now it's back to below the knee."

Over the years of change, the Union Building has hosted a number of celebrities.

Johnson told about the day General Douglas MacArthur got caught in a Union Building elevator between floors. The World War II and Korean War general was here for a dinner before commencement exercises, Johnson explained.

Al Johnson, head of maintenance in the MSU Union Building, remembers when General Douglas MacArthur and Harry S. Truman visited MSU.

"His security men insisted on going in the elevator with him," Johnson said. "One of them accidentally bumped the stop button between floors and they were stuck."

"They were trapped for about 15 minutes while I ran to the fourth floor and released them with the main controls."

After MSU shifted its alcohol policy, Harry S. Truman also visited campus and the Union Building, Johnson laughed.

Truman refused his first invitation to speak at commencement because the University had a no-liquor policy, Johnson said.

Then MSU President John A. Hannah eliminated the rule for a day or two, Johnson said, so the ex-president could have his daily bourbon.

John F. Kennedy, then a senator, made a presidential campaign stop at the Union Building's South Terrace, Johnson said.

"I was really surprised because only about 300 or 400 people showed up to listen," he said.

Two years ago Walter Mondale drew a packed house in the Union Ballroom. He was only a vice-presidential candidate, Johnson added.

The University gives long-term employees a watch for 25 years of service. Johnson received a ring with a diamond and two emeralds for his 30th year last November.

Something that may have been more special to Johnson last year, however, was the graffiti that mysteriously appeared on the rock that rests near Beaumont Tower: "Congratulations Al Johnson, 30 years in the Union!"

Walk-jog set for hunger

By DARLENE DONLOE
State News Staff Writer

CROP, the Community Hunger Appeal of Church World Service, is sponsoring a walk-jog for hunger, Oct. 22.

The walk is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. at Peoples Church, 200 W. Grand River Ave. Registration for the walk begins at 1:30 p.m. at Peoples Church.

CROP is committed to creating awareness and raising funds to combat global hunger.

David Bower, CROP director, says he is expecting a large turnout this year. Bower said the goal for this year's campaign is 1,000 walkers. He also hopes to raise $30,000.

Bower said because of a lack of publicity, last year's turnout of 200 participants only raised $4,200.

The walk-jog for hunger, Bower said, represents food for those who are hungry and clothing for the needy.

Cristo Rey, which serves the community with daily and emergency feedings; Potter Park Outreach, which serves as a community center for the elderly and children, and the Capitol Area Lutheran Cluster Food Bank, will each receive 8.3 percent of the money collected.

Bower said the remaining money will go to self-help programs in hungry nations. He also said 90 percent of the money raised from the program usually comes from the urban cities.

Some of the CROP funds are used for agriculture cooperatives, food and housing and victims of earthquakes.

"It's the process of human development," Bower said. "People helping people rebuild their lives, that is what it's all about."

John A. Hannah, former MSU president and former head of the statewide fund raising program, will give the kickoff speech for the 1978 Greater Lansing CROP walk.

Hannah will give a pep talk to the participants encouraging them to finish the walk.

Participants will follow a route up Michigan Avenue to the Capitol and then back down Michigan to Harrison Road, through the MSU campus using Wilson Road, Farm Lane and Circle Drive, and finishing at Peoples Church.

The entire route is 10 miles, and check points and rest stops have been set up along the way.

Those wishing to participate in the walk can obtain sponsor sheets from any area church.

Friday 13th hits with electric shock

An employee with the MSU Grounds Department found Friday the 13th quite unlucky. Friday he started working at the stadium, was transferred to the Public Safety Building and was almost asked to go home to protect the campus.

While boring holes with a tractor auger near the stadium Friday morning, he struck an electrical cable that controls street lights around the stadium.

There was not enough of an electrical current in the cable to injure him, but it was reportedly quite a shock.

He was then transferred to the Public Safety Building to try his luck on its grounds. Again he was using a tractor auger to bore post holes for a chain-link fence.

Unfortunately he drilled through a plastic gas line. The accident leaked gas into the building and it had to be evacuated, campus police said.

Luckily, police said, the line was plastic so no sparks or explosion occurred when the metal drill hit the pipe.

"We suggested they might give him the rest of the day off," a police official said. "The whole day was a shambles as far as I was concerned," his supervisor, John Zink Sr., said.

Campus police investigate exposures

What kind of reaction does a strange man tapping on a window and waving bring? — especially if he's not using his hands.

A woman from Campbell Hall, while studying in a basement lounge at 10:27 p.m. Monday, heard tapping on the ground level window in the southwest corner of the hall.

When she investigated she saw a middle-aged man indecently exposing himself, waving.

After the woman recovered from her laughter, she brought two friends back to see the show. After an undetermined time the three women closed the drapes.

The Department of Public Safety is investigating the incident.

On the previous night a different indecent exposure occurred in Brody Complex.

A man in his late 20s pulled alongside a woman walking near Butterfield Hall and asked the victim for directions. When the woman came closer to the vehicle she noticed the man exposing himself.

She ran away. Campus police are investigating.

Carl Levin questioned in forum

By KIM GAZELLA
State News Staff Writer

Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Carl Levin said Thursday his contest with Sen. Robert Griffin is a "horse race" and they are running "neck and neck."

Levin fielded questions in a candidate's forum in Lansing sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi, the Society of Professional Journalists.

Levin spoke out in favor of colleges divesting themselves of holdings in South Africa.

He said it's appropriate for universities to get involved in South African politics when they are making decisions to invest because "they should figure out the implications."

They should also be able to withdraw when they felt it was necessary, he said.

Levin, a former Detroit City Council president, also said convicted elected officials such as Rep. Charles Diggs Jr. should not take their seats in the next Congress until their appeals have been heard.

Diggs was convicted of accepting payroll kickbacks while he was in office.

Levin said appeals in these cases should be expedited so courts would give elected officials highest priority and hear such cases in about one month.

"The citizenry is up in arms about the waste in government," he said. "They aren't going to tolerate these kinds of actions people have been convicted of — nor should they."

Levin called the gas guzzler tax, which would penalize all 1980 cars that do not get 15 miles per gallon of fuel, unfair. The tax is part of an energy package recently passed in Congress.

"It's an inequitable tax," Levin said, "because it's not based on family size or income, but on the size of the car. Some families need bigger cars."

He spoke out in opposition to nuclear energy and said that it shouldn't be utilized until ways to dispose of the waste are developed. He also suggested using alternative sources such as solar, wind and wave energy, hydrogen fusion and the use of more coal.

Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Carl Levin answered questions at a forum in Lansing sponsored by Sigma Delta Chi on Thursday.

He also opposed the development of components of the neutron bomb, because he said the neutron bomb is going to "make war more likely rather than less likely."

Levin talked about Griffin's voting record, which he has used as a target against the senator throughout the campaign. Griffin missed 216 roll call votes last year, the same year he said he would not run for re-election this fall.

He admitted Griffin's overall 22-year attendance of 86 percent is "OK" but stressed that his most recent record should be judged.

"We aren't judging as to what he did in 1959 or 1965, or even 1969," he said. "What he did last year is important."

Mall cable presentation planned

By JANET HALFMANN
State News Staff Writer

A cable TV program on the Dayton Hudson mall has been prepared by East Lansing.

The proposed shopping center, parking lot, and additional commercial development would ultimately cover 83 of the 200 acres owned by Dayton Hudson Properties in the northwest corner of the city.

"A Close Look: The Cedars Shopping Center" looks at the approved site plan, the ballot language and pro and con positions on eight questions surrounding the proposed development at Lake Lansing Road and U.S. 127.

James Anderson, of Citizens for a Livable Community, presents the case against the proposed mall while Peter Hutchinson, of Dayton Hudson Properties, argues the pro side.

Anderson said a full-scale regional mall is not needed. But, he said, perhaps special retail services provided by a Hudsons are.

Hutchinson said a regional mall is needed because $60 million in retail sales is leaving the area and being spent in cities such as Flint, Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor and Detroit.

Regarding a traffic impact, Anderson said with the regional mall 30 to 38 thousand cars daily would travel Lake Lansing Road making it virtually another Grand River Avenue. Additional cut-through traffic in residential neighborhoods would also result, he said.

Hutchinson said most of the additional traffic resulting from a regional mall would be on U.S. 127, with only 17 percent of the total mall traffic being East Lansing residents.

When asked about other possible uses for the proposed area if the Dayton Hudson mall wasn't built, Hutchinson said medium density residential development was cited by the Planning Commission as the most likely alternative.

Residential development would result in only 15 percent less traffic, but about one-half the net tax revenue and one-tenth the jobs, he said.

Anderson suggested the land be left undeveloped for a time to see how questions relating to energy, taxes and urban development turn out. Other options would be carefully developed and phased varieties of housing or a research-industrial park, he said.

On tax implications, Hutchinson said by conservative estimates first year net tax benefits to the city would be $175,000, the school system $400,000, and Ingham County and Lansing Community College, $150,000.

If the ballot tax proposals pass, expansion of the tax base would be even more important, he said.

Anderson doubted whether initial tax payments would hold up in succeeding years. And passage of the Tisch or Voucher amendments or both would practically wipe out any tax benefit, he said.

The informational program will be broadcast on WELG-22 beginning Monday through Nov. 6. It will air both at 2 and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and at 7:30 p.m. Mondays and Thursdays.

For residents without cable, the tape will be shown in the meeting room of the East Lansing Public Library Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 4:45 p.m. beginning Monday and ending Nov. 6; and Oct. 24 and Oct. 31 at 7 p.m.

Hannah named to force

By THE STATE NEWS
and UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

John A. Hannah, former president of MSU, has been named chairperson of a special task force investigating the need for changes in the state's civil service system.

Hannah recently resigned from his position as director of the U.N. World Food Council in Rome and returned to solicit funds as national chairperson of the MSU's Capital Enrichment drive.

Also named to the task force was Ira Polley, assistant provost for admissions and records. Polley served as state controller from 1960 to 1962 and state superintendent of public instruction from 1966 to 1969.

Civil Service Commission Chairperson Ruth Robertson said the job of the task force is to "guide civil service into the next decade and the next century."

"It includes men and women with direct experience in personnel work, inside and outside of government, and men and women who will be bringing a viewpoint that is not directly related either to governmental activities or to personnel processes," she said.

Hannah, who has worked outside the state for the past 10 years, said his overall impression is that the 38-year-old merit system in Michigan has worked well.

"Deliberations of the task force should, in my view, be directed toward preserving what is good in the merit system, and working for change where change is required," Hannah said.

"If the Michigan merit system in its total governmental, economic and political context carries within it the seeds of its own destruction, that fact must be faced by the task force."

"If recommendations for basic change in the constitutional status of civil service appear appropriate, I am confident the task force will find courage to make them," he said.

He said he believes the investigation will require several months.

Hannah, who served as MSU president for 28 years, also served as chairperson of the U.S. commission on Civil Rights, assistant secretary of defense and other positions in foreign affairs and education.

He resigned as president of MSU in 1969 to become the director of the Agency for International Development, and in 1974 he became director of the World Food Council.

U-M's Canham apparently puts profit over fairness

Michigan State Spartan fans had an unpleasant surprise when they turned on their television sets to watch the replay of the MSU-Michigan football trouncing.

The Channel 6 broadcast of the Channel 23 production — a weekly event while the Channel 23 transmitter is being rebuilt — was not shown. Excuses have been offered, but they all point to a demonstration of poor sportsmanship.

Arrangements to broadcast the game began months ago. In July, WKAR (Channel 23) telephoned U-M to arrange for transmission of the game to avoid the hassles WKAR had encountered in Ann Arbor before. Months later Will Perry, U-M's Sports Information Director, denied the request.

Monday before the game, MSU's Athletic Director Joe Kearney asked Michigan's athletic director, Don Canham, to arrange for a replay broadcast. On Friday, the day before the game, Canham told Kearney WKAR could have the game if it guaranteed the broadcast would not go outside the Lansing area. Canham figured it would be an impossibility for a regular Channel 6 broadcast.

Canham wanted to keep the broadcast confined because he was afraid a Channel 6 broadcast would reach Channel 20's beam. Channel 20 is a Detroit station with a contract to broadcast U-M's football games. Channel 20 officials said they didn't mind if a Lansing area station broadcast the game, but for some reason Channel 20's unselfish decision didn't satisfy Canham.

Canham has recently been juggling radio and television royalty figures in an attempt to make them more profitable. Cities in other states have bought U-M's rights, similar to the "Notre Dame Replay" system syndicated across the country. Canham hoped his team would draw big money for the school. Michigan cities fit into his plan, too.

When WKAR officials decided cable television was a feasible solution to the "broadcast beam" problem, they sent their equipment down to Ann Arbor to cover the event. But Canham ordered the cameras out of the stadium confines.

WKAR officials tried to reassure Canham they could confine the broadcast to the Lansing area because of the cable system, but instead of circumventing Canham's worries, it seems WKAR actually circumvented Canham's plans.

It is obvious Canham had no intention of allowing a replay to be shown to the MSU followers. He had expressed his "concerns," but refused to accept a guaranteed solution.

When presented with the facts, Canham again denied WKAR cameras access to the press box. This time his excuse was the lack of a written contract.

Canham and his university see dollar signs whenever they think of football. The television and radio rights, as already mentioned, are viewed as potentially profitable enterprises for the non-profit public institution. Also in the works is a price increase for football tickets to guarantee that each game is a million-dollar seller. He has grown so used to the business aspects of football that the only excuses Canham can fall back on are profit-motivated business technicalities. The lack of a written contract does not mean WKAR couldn't, under any conditions, broadcast the game. It just meant the arrangements were not on paper; WKAR could not claim they had a legal right to the replay — they could only rely on Canham's generosity.

Just who does Canham think we are? Sure, it's his stadium and he should control broadcast rights. But once he was guaranteed his broadcast rights would not be infringed upon, he still refused to let MSU fans see the game. It was his stadium, but it was our game.

Cheap shots accompany any big rivalry. Politicians joust with one another over their loyalties, varsity members paint sidewalks and landmarks, siblings attending the two schools trade insults. But it's all good, clean fun. Don Canham took his cheap shots a bit too seriously, though. His team looked bad on the field, but compared to his tactics, the U-M Wolverines came out smelling like Roses.

'LASH' LARROWE

Whatever happened to the Olds connection?

I'm over in the corner at this toga party after the U-M game, tipping the keg on its side to get the last few drops out of it, a smart aleck comes over.

"You sure look beat, Lash," he says. "Aren't you happy about the game?"

"Course I am," I replies. "It's just that I'm afraid our win over Michigan is a fluke, that it doesn't change the losing trend our team's been on for so long. I'm real concerned and upset about the outlook for football at State."

"I hear the search committee for the president is about ready to send some names up to the trustees. You know anything about that, Lash?"

"The committee operates in secret," I snaps, shaking the keg. "I only know what I read in the newspapers."

"There's a rumor going around," he smirks, "that you barged in on 'em last week, demanded they interview you for the job."

"Why shouldn't I have?" I demands. "I happen to know my name was put up. They never called me for an interview, so I went in there on my own."

"Way I heard it," he chortles, "you nominated yourself, Lash. Why would you want the job, anyway?"

"You know my dedication to MSU," I says. "I'm always willing to put my research aside to help in a crisis. The crisis right now is the football team, and I know I can give 'em the help they need if I'm in the prexy's chair."

"I get it," he says. "When President Harden was appointed last November, you predicted State would start winning. They did, too, didn't they, for the rest of the season?"

"Right," I says. "Big Ed took over, in no time jocks were cruising around campus in Toronados and 88s."

"How'd they get 'em, Lash?" he asks. "Have you forgotten where Big Ed was before he came to State as our new prexy?" I asks.

"Wasn't he president of Northern?" he asks doubtfully.

"He bailed out of there in the '60s," I tells him. "He'd had it with the hassles on the campus, decided he'd make a little coin for himself. He was pushing gas guzzlers on a 48-month payment plan at Story Olds when we picked him up, doin' OK, too."

"I remember now," he says. "After he took over, a jock put out that extra effort, the prexy handed him the keys to a Toronado or an 88. It worked in '77, Lash. Why isn't it working this year?"

"Simple," I says. "Big Ed may look to you like your typical big business fat cat, but he happens to have a conscience, too."

"For awhile there he wasn't able to sleep at night," I explains. "His shrink told him it was the guilt he carried because he was putting all those gas guzzlers on the road. Shrink told him the only way he could live with himself would be to stop handing out Toronados and 88s, reward the jocks with gas-efficient compacts."

"How could he do that?" he wonders. "Every Olds I've ever seen is a gas guzzler."

"You boogie on down to Story, sonny," I says, "you'll see plenty of Datsuns out in front. They're Story's second line."

"You mean to say, Lash, that last year one of the boys had a good Saturday afternoon, he got a Toronado or an 88, this year he gets a Datsun B210?"

"You got it, Clyde," I says. "And that's why the team's morale has been shot. Can you picture a 280-pound tackle tryin' to squeeze himself in behind the wheel of one of those little babies? And once he gets himself in, there's no room left in there for his bimbo."

"I suppose you told the search committee you have a plan to put MSU in the Rose Bowl?" he sneers.

"Of course," I answers. "I told 'em Big Ed was on the right track, but he didn't go far enough. You've seen the way I get around the campus, right? Schwinn folks found out about me, asked me to do some consulting for them. They promised they'll give me as many 10-speed jobs as I need to turn the team around."

"You really think the jocks'll go for bikes when they turned their noses up at the president's Datsuns?" he chortles.

"They will after Darryl and I give 'em our little pep talk," I says. "We'll explain to 'em that when they tool around on those bikes, they'll not only be helping solve the energy crisis, they'll stay in shape the year around."

"If that doesn't sell 'em on the bikes, I'll do what Big Ed used to do to make a hard sale at Story: I'll throw in back seats for their chicks for free, no charge."

Susan B. Anthony finally given deserved acclaim

One hundred years after the birth of Susan Brownwell Anthony, 38 states decided that it was finally time to give women the right to vote. The year was 1920 — less than 60 years ago. Anthony missed seeing that glorious day by 14 years — she died in 1906.

But her spirit did not die. In the years between her death and the time the 19th Amendment to the Constitution was ratified, this country saw an unprecedented rise in feminist consciousness. The winds of social change swept the world during the early years of this century coming to a swirling vortex after the humiliating debacle of World War I.

Susan B. Anthony was born of good Quaker stock in socially enlightened Massachusetts. She began a typically feminine existence as a rural school marm in 1846. Suddenly, according to the two paragraphs devoted to her life in the Encyclopedia Americana, "her prudishness changed into full-fledged reforming zeal." And that is it. Imagine the profound influences that must have occurred in Anthony's life to change her into a figure of national prominence.

The tragedy of Anthony's life is that it has been virtually ignored. No encyclopedia devotes more than two or three paragraphs to her life and no books or articles on her life were able to be found in the MSU Library. Of course, some one must have taken the time to record her efforts — a thesis or two here and there — but it is nearly impossible to learn of the impact she had on women and men during the latter part of the 19th century. Anthony cut her zealous teeth prior to the Civil War. She was one of the first and foremost abolitionists, long before William Lloyd Garrison rose to prominence. When she first began drawing attention to the atrocity of slavery, abolitionism was still considered something for weepy-eyed women to harp about after domestic duties had been completed.

After the 14th Amendment became law, Anthony changed her focus — if black male ex-slaves could vote, then so should women. In 1868, she became one of the co-founders of The Revolution, a paper dedicated to the emancipation of women.

The 14th Amendment, much heralded today as being justification for not passing the Equal Rights Amendment, was tested by Anthony. In the 1872 New York State and Congressional elections, Anthony cast ballots in the general election. She was promptly arrested and indicted for illegal voting.

It is almost inconceivable, in this day and age, to imagine someone being arrested for voting — but it did happen, in America, and less than 60 years ago. Some of our grandmothers can remember — but not with any sense of pride.

The federal government has recently been reminded of its past sins by modern-day feminists. Small attempts have been made at atonement, but whether their motives are sincere or whether it is merely an attempt to get irate women off their backs, remains to be seen. One example of this marginal atonement has been the decision to remove the likeness of a French-made statue from the surface of silver dollars and replace it with a true symbol of liberty — the visage of Susan B. Anthony. Somehow, we doubt Anthony would be terribly impressed.

Black faculty questions intent

The Black Faculty and Administrators Association has grave concerns about the proposed appointment of Lou A. Simon to assistant to the president.

- It symbolizes a retrenchment of commitment to racial minorities.
- It further removes racial minorities from the upper administrative structure of the university.
- It symbolizes a victory for majority women at the expense of racial minorities.

While we recognize and will fight for the legitimate grievances, needs, and concerns of majority women, these must not be pursued at the expense of Blacks and other nonwhites. Therefore, in spite of President Harden's stated goal of improving Affirmative Action at Michigan State University (which we applaud), the symbolism inherent in the proposed appointment cannot be ignored.

Lee N. June
President of Black Faculty and Administrators Association

Duh ... of course!

Why do they have to take it all away? Why can't it be legal to enter a bar at the age of 18, to drink, dance all night and just have a good time. But in order to buy alcohol in stores you must be 21. That will solve a lot of problems, but no one seems smart enough to suggest it.

Traffic control a major project on football Saturdays

While the MSU Varsity Club stands watch over Sparty, and Sparty guards the campus in the early morning hours before a home game, a student set-up crew, employed by the Department of Public Safety, prepares the campus for a barrage of automobiles descending upon the area.

Traffic control begins for home games with the set-up crew placing signs at strategic locations at 1 a.m. They also cover other signs with bags to keep vehicles from parking on side streets and obstructing traffic during pre-game parking.

The crew moves out in a truck loaded with signs, barricades and cones that will be dropped off around campus.

The crew also keeps an eye out for parked cars which might present problems when the traffic arrives on campus. DPS headquarters will be contacted and a tow truck dispatched to the location.

Numerous cars are usually removed to clear areas near the stadium or in reserved parking lots.

Usually 20,000 cars and their passengers arrive at the campus to ultimately clog streets, fray emotions and seek precious parking spaces near the stadium.

But DPS is on top of the situation, assigning game locations for officers and students in advance of the football season.

Prior to the heaviest traffic flow, which occurs about an hour and one-half before kick-off, a pre-game "pep" talk takes place at command headquarters in the Public Safety Building.

Police commander Major Adam J. Zutauf briefs officers on things to expect from fans when MSU wins, possible tie-ups, and special parking permits. During the Notre Dame game on Oct. 7, a wedding had been planned for 2 p.m. in the Alumni Chapel on Auditorium Road and special parking for the parties was permitted.

Incredibly, other athletic events were scheduled that afternoon at Munn Ice Arena. It presented a problem but DPS adjusted its schedule slightly to solve the dilemma.

Zutauf warned those at the morning briefing to expect people entering the arena for an ice hockey game, and to be cordial.

Anything can happen before and after a game, and though DPS is prepared for difficult situations, trouble sometimes occurs.

Saturday morning before the Notre Dame game, DPS was notified that a State Police helicopter used to spot traffic tie-ups was being overhauled and could not be used for the game.

"It did limit us a bit but Lansing (police department helicopter) was in the air to help us spot," Zutauf said.

"The machine (traffic control procedure) still worked which is a credit to the discipline of the department," he said. A helicopter, when available, is used to help officers stationed at intersections, parking lots and on campus patrols to know what to expect. Traffic can be rerouted to different ramps off the interstate highways and available parking areas.

Even with the air check, the system is only as good as its weakest link. More experienced officers are assigned at predetermined congested areas.

At Shaw Lane and Harrison Road, for example, officers who direct traffic that pours down from the interstate must be experienced with handling traffic flow.

They must know which cars can pass barricades. Permitted vehicles have special color-keyed stickers that allow them to enter reserved parking areas.

Problems in the system often occur with some of the 150 students employed by DPS. At 8:20 a.m., Oct. 7, a student missing from her assigned position at J lot, adjacent to Jenson Fieldhouse, caused a vehicle leakage into a reserved parking lot.

The woman later appeared from her car where she had been warming herself. She was strongly reprimanded.

Other problems are unavoidable with the parking procedure. In some instances, people forget to bring their permit-to-park stickers.

Lyons said a "no pass — no park" attitude must prevail.

Even MSU varsity football coach Darryl Rogers would not be allowed to park near the stadium if he had no pass, he said.

"If you know someone from sight then there will be exceptions," he said.

DPS officers receive three separate assignments. Some keep assignments throughout the game, but generally post- and pre-game assignments are given. If an officer is fortunate enough, he or she will be in a position to watch some of the game.

Duty comes first. While inside the stadium, officers keep the area secure and respond to various complaints at the stadium.

Officers are perched at each corner of the stadium to keep an eye on parking lots.

If something catches the attention of an officer a patrol car is called. But the system has loopholes, and sometimes thefts occur from vehicles.

Campus police are supplemented with "rent-a-cops" from various police agencies.

Among the responsibilities of the forces is frisking or requesting to look into handbags, blankets and suspicious containers of fans who may be concealing liquor.

Post game assignments have officers leaving game posts to direct traffic.

The plan works smoothly to send vehicles efficiently out of tie-ups and snarls.

The Lansing Regional Chamber of Commerce has mildly complained that the post-game traffic is moved out too quickly. Mike Seward, executive vice-president for the chamber said it would be better for business if traffic could be rerouted to business districts.

'Grant' PBB show delayed

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Concerns over the political effects in Michigan have prompted CBS to delay showing a "Lou Grant" episode patterned after the state's PBB disaster until after the Nov. 7 election, the network's local affiliate says.

WJBK-TV said it asked CBS to reschedule the episode from its originally planned airing date of Nov. 6.

In the show, a county bureaucrat, who could order the farms quarantined, refuses at first even though tests show there is PBB in the blood of a farm family with sick cattle.

Similar bureaucratic delays in Michigan's PBB catastrophe have been cited by critics of Gov. William G. Milliken's handling of the problem — an issue his election opponent, Democrat William Fitzgerald, has been hitting hard in the campaign.

The governor's aides and WJBK spokesmen said Milliken's staff had not asked to have the show date changed.

Spokespersons at other CBS affiliates said they would not have moved the show without viewing it first.

State Democratic Chairperson Morley Winograd said he is not content with explanations given in news reports that the program was rescheduled at the request of affiliated stations.

"The political implications of this action are obvious and require immediate public explanation," Winograd said in a telegram to Gene Jankowski, president of CBS television.

Mall debate scheduled

A public forum on the proposed Dayton Hudson mall will be held at 12:15 p.m. Sunday in the Social Hall of Edgewood United Church, 469 N. Hagadorn Road.

Opening presentations by Peter Hutchinson of Dayton Hudson Properties and James Anderson of Citizens for a Livable Community will be followed by questions from the audience. The discussion will be moderated by Alan Suits, president of Suits News Co.

Later Sunday, a panel of WVIC reporters will quiz Hutchinson and Anderson in a program to be carried live on both AM and FM from 5 to 5:30 p.m.

Whether the regional mall should be built at Lake Lansing Road and U.S. 127 will be decided by East Lansing voters on Nov. 7.

EARN OVER $650 A MONTH RIGHT THROUGH YOUR SENIOR YEAR.

If you're a junior or a senior majoring in math, physics or engineering, the Navy has a program you should know about.

It's called the Nuclear Propulsion Officer Candidate-Collegiate Program (NUPOC-C for short) and if you qualify, you can earn as much as $650 a month right through your senior year. Then after 16 weeks of Officer Candidate School, you'll receive an additional year of advanced technical education. This would cost you thousands in a civilian school, but in the Navy, we pay you. And at the end of the year of training, you'll receive a $3,000 cash bonus.

It isn't easy. There are fewer than 400 openings and only one of every six applicants will be selected. But if you make it, you'll have qualified for an elite engineering training program. With unequalled hands-on responsibility, a $24,000 salary in four years, and gilt-edged qualifications for jobs in private industry should you decide to leave the Navy later. (But we don't think you'll want to.)

Ask your placement officer to set up an interview with a Navy representative when he visits the campus on Oct. 30, or contact your Navy representative at 313-226-7789 (collect). If you prefer, send your résumé to the Navy Nuclear Officer Program, Code 312-B537, 4015 Wilson Blvd., Arlington, Va. 22203, and a Navy representative will contact you directly. The NUPOC-Collegiate Program. It can do more than help you finish college: it can lead to an exciting career opportunity.

Van's 'Wavelength' is all his own

By DAVEDIMARTINO
State News Reviewer

Van "the Man" Morrison. To me, number one. The best rock singer, bar none, the true star of the Band's Last Waltz and one of the few figures in rock worth caring about these days. As creator of Astral Weeks alone, one of the few truly classic recordings of the '60s, Morrison could for all intents have dropped dead soon after and his legendary status would be justified.

And with the exception of Veedon Fleece and a few cuts from St. Dominic's Preview, Morrison's output from Moonance onward really hasn't stacked up since, at least on the emotional level. Morrison's bestsellers — like Moonance and Tupelo Honey — have always been a little shy of depth and a little much on "celebration." While Morrison has never released a bad album, it's always seemed his periods of greatest happiness — his marriage, etc — have coincided with his most disappointing, most "domesticated" LPs.

His new album, Wavelength (Warner Bros. BSK 3212), unfortunately seems to veer toward the latter category, but is by no means as soppy or bland as Tupelo Honey or other products of Morrison's post-marital bliss. Instead it's spotty, spotty in the same way that Hard Nose the Highway was; like Hard Nose, Wavelength is entirely listenable. Some of it is downright outstanding.

The good songs — "Natalia," "Wavelength," and "Hungry For Your Love" — are really good, equal to the best of Moonance or Street Choir. The opener, "Kingdom Hall," somehow loses its power with repeated listening, not quite matching the intoxicating feel of "Wild Night" or the desperation of "Snow in San Anselmo." All of which is especially important — Morrison's opening cuts have always pretty much set up the moods of all of his albums.

Three of Wavelength's tracks are disappointingly ineffectual, "Checkin' It Out," "Venice U.S.A.," and the closing "Take

It Where You Find It." The failings of "Take It" are extremely distressing; the tune is Wavelength's longest, its "finale," and ultimately a dreary, aimless meandering.

I approached Wavelength with no small amount of curiosity. Its predecessor, A Period of Transition, was initially a huge letdown for me, after taking three years to follow-up the superb Veedon Fleece. Dominated by the horn arrangements of Dr. John, the album at first seemed forced and unauthentic, an impression that gradually wore off only after several weeks of intense listening. Wavelength grabbed me immediately — which isn't always a good sign. After listening to it repeatedly, the LP began to lose its initial appeal; only recently has it started sounding fresh or at all meaningful.

I guess meaning is the root of the problem here. Van Morrison's best music has always been full of meaning, especially on the emotional level, and the depths of emotion touched by Astral Weeks and Veedon Fleece aren't really in evidence on Wavelength. Morrison is writing in the same style as he did for Street Choir — joyful, thankful, and leaving lots of leeway for backing female vocalists. All of which isn't exactly my cup of tea.

One of Wavelength's most noticeable assets is keyboard player Peter Bardens, a former member of Camel and, even more importantly, part of the original Them, with Morrison. Them's punkish roots can't really be heard here — actually a shame — but the link-up may prove to be important. With Bardens is guitarist Bobby Tench (of Hummingbird and Jeff Beck fame), but disappointingly there really isn't much hard rock to give either player any leeway. I'm glad the horns are for the most part gone; I just wish Morrison would touch back on the jazz roots exposed on Astral Weeks and Veedon Fleece or else the blues/punk style that made his stuff with Them and the Bang label so superb.

So what's to be said of Wavelength? It's no masterpiece, certainly, but it's Van Morrison, and that's saying a lot. He's back on the road now, for the first time in years, and the Oct. 29 show scheduled in Detroit (with no less than Dave Edmunds, Nick Lowe and Rockpile) may well prove to be the concert of the year. Like I said before, three of Wavelength's cuts easily match any of Morrison's best material. For them, for the sake of Van Morrison, and for the sake of good rock 'n roll, the album should be picked up immediately. At his best or at his worst, Van Morrison will always be Van Morrison.

Bob Dylan grants rare talk with 17-year-old editor

HIBBING, Minn. (AP) — Pam Coyle, editor-in-chief of the Hibbing High Times, says Bob Dylan is a "little before my time," but she was not about to turn down an exclusive interview with the publicity-shy singer.

Dylan, folk hero to the generation that grew up in the 1960s, told his manager he would allow only one interview in Minnesota and neighboring states before his Oct. 31 concert in St. Paul, his first major concert in the area in about a dozen years.

And the manager, David Zimmerman, who is Dylan's brother, naturally thought of Dylan's alma mater, Hibbing High School. He got in touch with the High Times adviser, George Peterson, who had no trouble saying yes to the interview.

"I had to sit and wait for half an hour before he (Dylan) called," said Coyle, 17. "I had no idea what to expect. That's why I was so nervous. I didn't know how he would react."

The singer's call came Oct. 5, from a Baltimore hotel. Coyle questioned Dylan for about half an hour, and found that "after the first few minutes it was just like any other interview."

Dylan talked about the beginnings of his musical career nearly 20 years ago — on the stage of the Hibbing High School auditorium, where he entertained for homecoming and other programs.

Music was "a natural thing. There was nothing else I wanted to do," he told the editor-in-chief.

"It is always a thrill to come back to some place familiar," he said, of his upcoming St. Paul appearance. He said that his audiences now are younger but that he doesn't see much change in the way they react to his music.

Coyle's taste in music runs to the classical and popular, and she said she doesn't own any of Dylan's albums.

"I know a few of his songs," she said, "but only because they were done by other people."

MSU's Paul Klasinski (21) and an unidentified Spartan player chase after a loose puck during MSU's 6-3 exhibition game loss to Michigan. Amo Bessone's team will open its season tonight against Ohio State.

Amo's icers open season tonight

By JERRY BRAUDE
State News Sports Writer

The last time MSU opened its season against Ohio State was two years ago. But the weekend contests ended up only being warm-up games for the season as MSU blew out the Buckeyes 8-1 and 8-4.

But Ohio State and its conference, the Central Collegiate Hockey Association (CCHA), has come a long way since then. They will try to prove this weekend at Munn Ice Arena that they and the rest of their conference can compete with the more highly regarded Western Collegiate Hockey Association (WCHA).

"This is definitely not a warm-up game," coach Amo Bessone said. "There will be a lot at stake in this game because it's a battle between the two conferences to judge which is better."

Ohio State, which will take on the Spartans at 7:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday night, has 20 lettermen returning from last year's 16-18-1 squad that finished third in the CCHA with a 9-11 mark.

The Buckeyes held first place in the CCHA until the midpoint of the season before slipping behind Bowling Green, which went on to be regarded as the top team in the Midwest.

"The CCHA is definitely improving," Bessone said. "They're fighting for equal recognition with the WCHA."

At the moment, Bessone is still trying to keep three lines set. The Spartans lost one-third of their top line in Paul Gottwald for the rest of the fall and possibly another one-third in freshman Craig Lakian for the weekend. Gottwald was the third Spartan this year to be declared academically ineligible. Lakian bruised his shoulder this week during practice, and is doubtful for this weekend.

"Russ Welch (the other third of the top line) is currently all alone," Bessone said. "We'll probably put him on the line with Darryl DiPace and Paul Klasinski. If Lakian plays, we'll just stick a center between him and Welch.

"We have to keep Welch ingrained in the game. He's still our best skater and scorer."

Nevertheless, Bessone is sure on his starting line-up. Center Aaron Rucks, rightwinger Gary Harpell and leftwinger Dave Gandini will make up the starting forward line while Jeff Barr and Ted Huesing will start on defense. Mark Mazzoleni will start in goal Friday night and Doug Belland will handle the net duties Saturday night.

The Buckeyes have eight of their top scorers returning from last year led by Tom Scanlon, who had 45 points, and Paul Tilley, who had 42 points.

But, like the Spartans, the strength of Ohio State's game is the goaltending with Steve Jones and Mike Blake sharing the duties.

"We should be in every game with those two in there," Ohio State coach Jerry Welsh said.

Welsh also feels he has the best overall defense since his four years of coaching the Buckeyes in holdovers Greg Kostenko, Rod McNair, Bob Zannella and Mark Collins.

"Injuries have killed us in the past, but I think we have the depth this year to offset any injury problems that might arise," Welsh said.

Although Bessone feels his team has been improving during pre-season, he doesn't believe the team is fully ready to start the season.

"Because we start school late, we're at least two weeks behind all the other schools," Bessone said. "We just hope we can hold our own for the start of the season until we get Gottwald, Dan Sutton and Leo Lynett back for winter term. We think we have been making progress, but it's still a matter of how far the other teams have progressed."

MSU harriers travel to EMU

The young MSU cross country harriers will travel to Ypsilanti to battle Eastern Michigan today at 4 p.m.

Trying to even up their record at 3-3, the Spartans will have their work cut out for them, as the Hurons have defeated them the last three years.

Both teams are young and rebuilding. MSU coach Jim Gibbard is pleased with the way the Spartans have progressed. "I hope we run our best and continue to improve as we've been doing," he said.

The course the harriers will run is flat, and up to this point, most of the courses have been hilly. "That's an advantage for them," Gibbard said.

Freshmen Martin Schulist of Whitehall and Michael White of Jackson have done consistently well for MSU. In addition, two other freshmen, Mark Mesler of Grand Blanc and Harold Rutila of Farmington, have been outstanding.

"Schulist and White are capable of finishing in the top 15 of the Big Ten conference meet this year," Gibbard said. "That would qualify them for the NCAA District meet. Not bad for freshmen," he continued.

Eastern Michigan has a 3-1 record and is led by sophomores Dave Ferguson and Roger Jones and Freshman Terry Doherty.

"I think it'll be tough. With the meet on their home course, it will be a close race," Gibbard said. "It will be 10,000 meters and that will prepare us for the Big Ten meet. That's what we've been working for all season," he added.

Stickers host Big Ten's

By CHERYL FISH
State News Sports Writer

Seven Big Ten teams will gather today and Saturday on Old College Field to determine who is the leading field hockey team in the division.

It is the perfect opportunity for those unfamiliar with the game to learn it, and for enthusiasts to feast their eyes on a multitude of talent.

Top-seeded MSU has a bye in the first round of the tournament, and needs only two victories to emerge as winners. Today's pairings begin at 9 a.m. with Minnesota facing Indiana, Iowa against Wisconsin at 10:15 a.m. and Purdue vs. U-M at 11:30 a.m. Losers of the first two games meet at 2 p.m.; winners, at 3:15 p.m. MSU then takes on the Purdue-Michigan winner at 4:30 p.m. Consolation and championship finals will be played Saturday morning at 9:30 and 11 a.m., respectively.

The Spartans are undefeated this season, with a 7-0-2 record. In Wednesday's game against Western, the Spartans dominated the game but could not score. Western had only one shot-on-goal. The result was a scoreless tie. The two coaches decided against an overtime because of the field's condition. "We did not want to risk injuries or ruin the field for the Big Ten meet. The rains had left the field in poor shape," coach Sam Kajornsin said.

Kajornsin was not disappointed that his team did not win their last game before the tournament. "Every coach would like to win, but we will discuss our problems and correct them for the next time," he said.

For a team that has scored as many as 14 goals in a single game, it was quite unusual that the game remained scoreless. "Western is a good team, but so are we. Our problem was that they had too many people on the goal and our passes were too close to the goalie," Kajornsin pointed out. He is not worried that this will carry on into the tournament.

It does not matter to Kajornsin whether the stickers meet Purdue or U-M in their first game. "We're ready for both of them," he said. Both teams have lost a good deal of their players from last year. "Purdue lost most of their defensive team, but they have a lot of money for recruiting. They have some excellent freshman on scholarships," he continued.

This year Purdue has lost to Southern Illinois, which the Spartans beat, 3-2, early in the season.

Minnesota has done well this season, sporting a 14-1-1 record. However, Kajornsin knows little about them. "The Big Ten teams are spread out so far it is hard to know about all of them," he said.

Some of the teams have played more games than the Spartans, due to an earlier start of school. "That's why we have a camp after Labor Day, so we can get together as a team and keep in shape," Kajornsin remarked. "Everybody is healthy for this tournament," he added.

MSU has the advantage of watching the other teams play since they are not scheduled to play until 4:30 p.m. "We will be looking at everything they do. Whether they use the middle, right or left side of the field, how they shoot a corner, who their best players are and the way they pass," he said. "It is a coach's duty to study every team."

Kajornsin also feels he is responsible to see that all the players take care of themselves. "They listen to me, or else we wouldn't be doing so well," he said. "This is a team game, if someone does wrong, there is a weak spot, and every spot must be strong," he stressed.

Kajornsin emphasizes accomplishment in both sport and study because it keeps the women more disciplined. "I'm glad we have such a good group — people who really like each other and work together."

The entire team agrees that they must take each game one at a time, step by step. "That includes the Big Ten tournament. We are not thinking past that," Kajornsin said.

In the turkey trot Wednesday, sponsored by the Womens' IM, Dave Bennet won the men's division with Jerry Goodrich taking the runner-up spot.

Barbara Belt won the women's division with Laura Polpe taking the runner-up position.

Team honors went to Harried Harriers for the men's division and Ring-Dang-Do's of the women's division.

Don Gonyea won the Goosegg race with Paul Tongor taking second place.

Turkeys were donated to charity in the winners' name.

Finally a winner after years of frustration

I sure can't wait for basketball season to begin. Every year at the beginning of December, when the college season opens up, I come out of hibernation. The Super Bowl, the World Series, the Ali title fights, they're all fine; but as the beer commercial says, you can take all these away, but don't take away my college basketball.

I'm a college basketball nut. Although I follow college football closely, attend all MSU home games and revelled in the Spartans' big win over Michigan as much as anyone, I still feel that football was started on college campuses as something to keep students awake until basketball starts.

I guess part of the reason that I believe this is that I was raised in the suburbs of Los Angeles, perhaps the maddest basketball town in the country. But because I grew up near L.A., I was also subject to an overwhelming amount of frustration due to the fact that I was a USC diehard.

Oh, the disappointments I suffered watching USC's crosstown rival, UCLA, not only beat up the Trojans, but the rest of the country as well.

Last year, after USC flopped again and it became apparent that I would become a Spartan next year, I adopted the MSU cagers as my team.

Some of my friends came over to my house to watch MSU ("Michigan who?" they all said) play Kentucky in the finals of the Midwest Regional. It was the first and only time I would get to see the Spartans and I was anxious to see Earvin Johnson, Gregory Kessler and the rest of the bunch that I had heard so much about.

And they didn't disappoint me. While my friends sat with eyes transfixed on the tube, not able to comprehend the fact that mighty Kentucky was losing, I had on a grin a mile wide as MSU took a halftime lead. The second half was not quite as enjoyable for me and, I guess, other Spartan fans, but I was still proud of my team. It took the impeccable free-throw shooting of Kentucky's Kyle Macy to beat the Spartans.

Even though I was a bit sad afterwards, I knew there would be a next year, and next year is almost upon us.

I can't wait for the first time I get to see Jenison Fieldhouse explode following a Kessler slam dunk. For the first time I get to see "Magic" lead the Spartan fast break for an easy bucket. For my first NCAA championship.

This is why I'm looking forward to this year more than ever. In coming to MSU, I'm gonna be a winner for the first time. I know I am.

Women's harriers try for Big Ten title

By ADAM TEICHER
State News Sports Writer

"Winning the Big Ten championship is a big thing in any sport. It means the league title." So says Eric Zemper, the Spartan women's cross country coach. He takes his team into the Big Ten title meet Saturday at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Nine of the 10 teams in the league will send teams to the league meet, with Michigan sending just one runner to Madison. "The number of teams running is quite an improvement over the last few years. We've had barely enough runners to stage a meet over the last few Big Ten meets," Zemper said.

MSU and the host Badgers are the two top contenders for the league crown. Wisconsin faced the Spartans earlier in the season in the Badger-Spartan Invitational and beat them rather easily. But Zemper thinks the Spartans can turn things around this time.

"We ran right through the early season race. We trained hard right through it. There has been a tremendous amount of improvement on our team since then. Also, in that meet we were without Lil Warnes, one of our top runners," the coach reasoned.

Sally Zook and Mary Beth Spencer are the top Badger runners. Zook won the Badger-Spartan Invitational, also held in Madison, with a time of 17:48, eight seconds ahead of the second place finisher, Spartan Lisa Berry.

Minnesota has the best chance of "beating out either Michigan State or Wisconsin," according to Zemper, who adds that Illinois is also tough.

But the meet is essentially between MSU and Wisconsin. "They're a very good team, one of the best in the country. They have a lot of depth," Zemper said.

Spartans Kelly Spatz and Sue Latter have recovered from their bouts with the flu and will be running on Saturday. Each missed last week's meet at Penn State because of sickness. MSU figures to be 100 percent healthy for the first time of the season for the meet.

MSU Bowling Club host tournament

The MSU bowling club has recently made its final cuts, and is preparing for its season-opener Saturday at Union Lanes.

All schools in the Michigan Intercollegiate Bowling League will be participating at the event, including Michigan, Central Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Ferris State and Saginaw Valley.

Team captains will draw numbers as to determine which colleges will compete with each other during the day.

The first series of games will begin at 10:30 a.m., while the afternoon roll-offs will commence at 1:30.

Captain of the MSU bowlers this year is senior Tom Reaume, who finished the 32 game try-outs with a 188.7 average. The other four members comprising the squad are Don Loomis, who averaged 188.1, Hank Beadle at 186, Kendall Scherman at 184, and Ron Cohen at 181, all of which adds up to a 927 team average.

Steve Tunis at 178 is the sixth man substitute for the team. In all 38 students tried out.

The season runs through the middle of spring term, with the winter season being toughest due to eight weekends of away contests. Additionally, the squad will participate in Regional and Big Ten tournaments.

Last year the bowlers posted a 42-40 overall win-loss record, and placed fourth at the ACUI Region 7 tourney, consisting of schools from Michigan and Ohio.

Turnabout! Booters upset Spring Arbor

By JERRY BRAUDE
State News Sports Writer

Just when it looked like the season was falling to pieces, MSU's soccer team rose to the occasion and put it all together Wednesday, dumping a solid Spring Arbor team, 4-1.

"It was such a great feeling to put it together," coach Joe Baum said. "Everybody played well, and we were able to finish our plays."

Except for a 9-0 laughter with Grand Valley State, MSU's four goals were the most they produced this year.

"Being able to finish changed the whole complexion of the game for us," Baum said. "The defense didn't have to worry about one mistake costing them the game. It gave us a whole different tone."

The game was a crucial one for MSU, now 4-3-1, in trying to recover from last weekend's cellar finish in the Big Ten classic.

"We had a meeting before the game and decided to start proving to people that we're a better than .500 team," Baum said. "We were so fired up. We also dedicated the game to Scott Campbell (who is out for the remainder of the season with torn ligaments). He was the first player to get operated on for an MSU soccer injury in five years. He's a popular player, was our leading scorer last year, and I think the dedication gave us some extra incentive."

The Spartans did fall behind early in the game when Spring Arbor's All-American Howard Taylor dribbled past two defenders and fired a 20-yarder past goalie Rob Grinter.

"I hate giving up a goal with only three and a half minutes gone in the game, but after that we played with more intensity than usual."

After Taylor's goal it was all MSU. The Spartans kept constant pressure on Spring Arbor and contained Taylor for the remainder of the contest.

"The defense down the middle of John Haidler and Nick Bowen were able to contain Taylor," Baum said. "We were on them all day. Their plays just couldn't develop because we put so much pressure on them."

MSU tied the game at the 30-minute mark when Mike Price scored on a free kick.

Baum was content with going into halftime tied. But then Tom Coleman, who was a questionable starter, put the Spartans into the lead by beating two defenders in going for a head shot and then driving it into the net.

Coleman scored again with seven minutes gone in the second half with the assist coming from Kurt Easton.

"At that point we were winning every aspect of the game," Baum said. "We were playing our best in a couple of years."

Seven minutes later, Kurt Major finished the day's scoring with Curt Easton tallying his second assist.

"Since Easton is a junior with a little more experience, we decided to start him ahead of the freshman," Baum said. Baum also felt the veteran starters played a crucial part in the game.

"Haidler and Bowen were exceptional. Price was great, and defenseman Obi Nwabara played his best game at MSU. Tom Coleman showed that he was the best player on the field today. He's something else."

Baum saw the game as a re-birth for the squad.

"It could be the turning point of the season for us," Baum said. "It was a critical game in getting the momentum going. The win did more for our confidence than any other game this year. Now we believe we can score if we just keep on concentrating."

The Count sez, "Take my advice and donate blood, I did."

Emotions, statistics

"It doesn't prohibit those younger than 21 from working or entering the bars," Foltz said. "So if that thing passes, I've got a hell of an enforcement problem."
Paul Bailey, executive director of the Michigan Council of Alcohol Problems and member of Coalition for 21, said his group is mainly concerned that voters have a chance to decide the issue.

Bailey cited statistics which he said prove that the number of alcohol-related accidents involving 18- to 22-year-olds has increased. He said a booklet called the "Michigan Traffic Accidents Facts" says that since 1972, when the legal age dropped to 18, alcohol-related fatalities rose 132 percent.

For 18 to 21-year-old drivers, he said, alcohol-related accidents were up 41.9 percent, and for all drinking drivers the rate was up 6.8 percent, according to research.

Bailey said the "trickle down effect," the use of alcohol by 11- to 14-year-olds in junior high schools, is because of "irresponsibility of the 18- to 22-year-olds."

Chris Magnus, 17-year-old coordinator of the Three O'Clock Lobby, refuted Bailey's two main arguments with other statistics.

The number of young people in accidents is misrepresented, Magnus said.

"It's incorrect to say that 18- to 20-year-olds are worse than any age group," Magnus said. Citing statistics released by the secretary of state's office, Magnus said alcohol-related accidents increased among young people from 5 to 6 percent to about 10 or 11 percent after the drinking age was lowered.

The rate of accidents totals about 10 to 11 percent up through the age of 55, Magnus said reading from the state's report.

Blasting Bailey's second argument — "the trickle-down effect" — Magnus said raising the legal age to 21 "just doesn't make sense."

"The state Board of Education and the state superintendent of schools don't support it," Magnus said.

Magnus made points with the audience and his opposition, suggesting that schools add competent counselors to their staffs to help people with real problems — not just advise on class changes.

The forum was again disrupted when Lewis compared the situation in Iran to the Russian Revolution of 1917. Iranian students said the comparison had nothing to do with the current situation in Iran.

Department of Public Safety officers arrived shortly after 8 p.m.

Iranian students were asked to leave the building by DPS officers and Spartacus members decided to cancel the forum. The event will not be rescheduled.

DPS Sgt. Larry Lyon said no injuries were reported.

Seniors build parade float

All seniors are invited to help Senior Class Council construct a float for homecoming today between the Union and Human Ecology buildings.

MSU President Edgar L. Harden said he would stop by today to "help build" the senior's big block "S," said Kerry Simons, public relations coordinator for the council.

The Board of Trustees and other MSU administrators have also been invited.

The Senior Class Council had the only non-fraternity or sorority float in last year's homecoming parade, Simons said.

Oriental art exhibit and sale today

An exhibition and sale of original Oriental art will be on display today in the lobby of the International Center from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The art, presented by Marson Ltd. of Baltimore, Md., is a collection of about 500 pieces of Oriental art from Japan, China, India, Tibet, Nepal and Thailand.

Charles Wiebe, a representative from Marson, said the art works span two major areas. The first are older master works of the 18th and 19th centuries. The second area consists of a selection of Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts.

The first collection has works by Hiroshige, Hokusai, Kuniyoshi, Kunisada, Kuni-chika.

The second group of woodcuts, etchings, lithographs, serigraphs and mezzotints are by distinguished artists as Saito, Watanabe, Maki, Mori, Azechi and Watarai.

"The Marson prints are in many museums throughout the country," Wiebe said.

The art pieces are being sold and begin at $5. The exhibits are all matted and labeled with pertinent information.

Sources for genealogy research almost limitless for the interested

By JAMES KATES

The only problem with climbing a "family tree" is that once you get started it's hard to stop.

Mary Jane Trout, a research specialist for the State Library in Lansing, should know. Last spring, armed only with a postcard written in 1911, she flew to Scotland in hopes of finding information about her ancestors.

Instead, she found a living relative. "The postcard had a picture of a street in the little town of Tayport," she told a gathering of the Historical Society of Greater Lansing Wednesday. "One of the houses on the postcard had a mark over it. Amazingly, the street looked just the same."

"The postcard was signed 'M. Hardee,'" she said. "A man at the house told us the Hardees lived on the next street. I asked the woman at that house if she knew of an M. Hardee. She took one look at the postcard and said, 'Yes, that's my grandmother.' The woman was my second cousin.

"I still get goosebumps every time I think about it." Trout, who serves the State Library's Michigan Unit by bringing people and resources together, said genealogy "helps bring history to life."

"I remember how bored I was taking Civil War history in school," she said. "But when I discovered the role my grandfather played in the war, it suddenly became very exciting to me."

Trout said constructing a family can be approached in two ways. "You can start with a forefather and work your way to the present or start with yourself and work your way back," she said. "For obvious reasons, most people choose the second method."

Still, Trout said, the task is not easy. She said if one were to go back nine generations (to about the time of the Mayflower landing), he or she would have over 1,000 progenitors.

She advised people just getting started to obtain a good "how to" book at the library. Sources for research, she said, are practically limitless.

"The way to start is by categorizing any home records you may already have," Trout said. "Then you can go to public sources. The State Library can help people find cemetery, church, school and county records. We also have excellent secondary material."

But why do it in the first place? "There's always the prestige angle," Trout said. "So many people have told me they had relatives come over on the Mayflower that I often wonder how that ship made it across the ocean with so many people on it."

But she said most people in genealogy do it simply out of curiosity and a desire to find out about their ancestors.

"Kizzy Kunte said it in 'Roots': 'If you don't know who you are or where you've been, how are you going to know where you're going?'"

ASSEMBLY ABANDONS NEUTRAL STANCE

RHA will oppose Proposal D

RHA voted Wednesday to oppose Proposal D, which would raise the state's legal drinking age to 21, by a vote of 14 to 11.

Carol Purdy, Campbell Hall representative, made the motion, stating she collected over 200 signatures from persons in her residence hall who were in opposition to the proposal.

RHA had originally taken a neutral position on the proposal, instead simply urging dorm residents to get out and vote.

Purdy also asked the assembly to approve the selection of a new editor for the Rhapsody, the RHA newspaper.

Josephine Scott, a junior majoring in journalism, was approved by the assembly to become Rhapsody editor. Purdy said the paper would release its first publication of the year Oct. 27.

Dan Black, director of ASMSU Legislative Relations Cabinet, made a presentation outlining Michigan's three tax-cutting proposals on the November ballot. Black requested that RHA oppose all three proposals, citing higher tuition costs as their immediate effect on students.

"Passage of any two of these proposals," he said, "would double tuition for the first year and probably triple it the next."

The board also voted to allocate $200 in traveling expenses for persons attending the Great Lakes Association of College and University Residence Halls convention. The board did not decide which members to send.

Chuck Gagliano, assistant manager of residence halls, announced residence hall enrollment was down from last year, adding that the living units were beginning to break down many tripled rooms.

Tim VanAntwerp, RHA president, announced that the residence halls were asking students to limit their consumption of orange juice.

Rising costs were the reason for the requested cutback, said VanAntwerp, who added if consumption is not limited, the residence halls might be forced to discontinue offering orange juice on a daily basis.

Tenant aides trained

Tenants Resource Center is holding an eight-hour fall training session this weekend for volunteer housing counselors.

Completion of training will qualify TRC counselors to help people with housing problems such as evictions, security deposits, maintenance and leasing. Yvonne Nanasi, TRC director, said.

Training will be held Friday, 6 to 10 p.m. and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Prospective volunteers are asked to pick up a packet of materials prior to training.

Volunteers are requested to work for TRC at least one term, and sign up for at least two hours of counseling per week.

"Volunteering to counsel at TRC is more than learning about tenant-landlord laws," Nanasi said, "it's a rewarding personal experience."

A presentation on discrimination in housing will be given by a member of the Michigan Committee on Law in Housing, Leslie Leow-Blosser, a paralegal from the Great Lansing Legal Aide Office, will talk about eligibility for legal aide in tenant-landlord suits. City zoning codes will be discussed by a housing inspector.

TRC, 855 Grove St., aides tenants and landlords who need information on their rights and responsibilities, Nanasi said.

Neighborhood traffic problems surveyed by advisory committee

By ANNA BROWNE
State News Staff Writer

Traffic on neighborhood streets and street classifications were the major concerns of the East Lansing Transportation Advisory Committee Wednesday night.

The transportation committee held meetings in East Lansing neighborhoods so citizens could comment on any problems in their area.

Transportation is one aspect of the city's Comprehensive Plan, which is being redeveloped because it has become outdated.

A survey handed out at the neighborhood meetings asking citizens to identify problem transportation areas was summarized at the meeting.

East-west traffic in residential areas was a major concern — particularly in the Pinecrest area.

"If this transportation committee does not come to grips with this problem, it will be a total failure," Transportation Commissioner Pete Chiaravalli said.

Pinecrest area streets "are going to be an expressway in 10 years," he said. "We really need to work on this problem."

Street classification, or the categorizing of city streets by their design and traffic volume, was also a major concern of the commission.

When the Comprehensive Plan was formed, the streets were labeled as either expressways, regional thoroughfares like Grand River Avenue and Saginaw Street, major arterials like Abbott and Harrison roads, cross town routes, neighborhood collectors, and local streets.

Streets labeled in this manner when the plan was adopted in the mid '60s have outgrown their intended capacity, city planners said.

The smaller cross town routes and neighborhood collectors have become major shortcuts to avoid congestion on Grand River Avenue and Saginaw Street, planners said.

The city has designed Act 51, a cross between the original Comprehensive Plan street classification and an updated version compiled last year.

The main objective of Act 51 is to obtain more federal funds by classifying more streets as major arterials — which they have literally become, planners said.

Other citizen concerns included safety around schools, parking on residential streets, bike path safety and public transportation.

Reception, security discussed

By DEBBIE CREEMERS

A reception for the Board of Trustees co-sponsored by the Council of Graduate Students and ASMSU will be held Thursday from 5 to 7 p.m. in the Big Ten Room of the Kellogg Center.

The entire MSU community has been invited to meet with President Edgar L. Harden, current board members, candidates for the board and administrators. Chuck Goeke, president of the Council of Graduate Students, told the council Wednesday.

At its bi-weekly meeting, COGS also discussed night security on campus, especially at the Student Services Building.

"The first and second floor offices in Student Services close at 5 p.m. but ASMSU, COGS, the Volunteer Action Corps and the State News offices on the third floor have run into late-night security problems," COGS President Charles Goeke said.

A proposal to limit access to the building after 6 p.m., with a student guard paid for by the four organizations, was rejected by COGS because it would not provide for protection around the building.

A University wide escort service, similar to one currently used at Albion College, was suggested. A committee to investigate the feasibility of this service was formed.

The question of COGS joining ASMSU Legal Services was also brought up, but quickly dismissed.

"The Council withdrew membership last year because grads weren't taking advantage of the legal assistance," Goeke said.

He also complained that "the ASMSU lawyer Ken Smith didn't help matters any. He turned everyone off at a presentation last year by essentially saying 'sure, I'll advise you, but I want pay.'"

COGS could support legal services in name only, get counsel for graduate students with a contribution of $3,000 or work out a deal where graduate students pay a straight fee for advice.

Currently only undergraduates may use the service because they are taxed by ASMSU to pay for legal services at registration.

Jim Carr, department of physics representative, pointed out the shortcomings of any arrangement.

"They can only give advice. They can't bring suit against the University or other students. They also don't draw up divorce suits, wills or property titles," he said. "But they do refer students to 'good' lawyers, as they run lucrative private practices on the side."

Peter Brown, representing the College of Education, suggested the money might be put to better use by publishing a legal services handbook. A committee to investigate publication of a handbook identifying legal resources and resources was formed.

Goeke also clarified COGS' role in loans to graduate students.

"As of now, COGS does not offer loans," he said. "We only co-sign Financial Aid Office loans for students. We will however, discuss the possibility of COGS loans later."

Goeke also announced the Board of Trustees' Health Committee members will meet with interested students to discuss the $18 health fee. The meeting will be held in 443A Administration Bldg. Thursday at 3 p.m.

"Smokey" Stover, from MSU Grounds Maintenance, used 60 bails of straw to put the Horticulture fountain to bed for winter. The straw is used to absorb moisture and help prevent cracks in the concrete.

MARY A. GARDNER SCHOLARSHIP

Award honors 'U' journalism prof

A scholarship honoring Mary A. Gardner, MSU professor of journalism, has been established by Women in Communications, Inc. The scholarship will be available to journalism students "exemplifying the high standards of journalism excellence and integrity (Gardner) personifies and seeks to inspire in others."

The award was created by several of Gardner's friends and former students, beginning with a grant of $500 for fall 1979.

Those interested in the scholarship should contact Gloria Brown Anderson, managing editor, The Miami News, P.O. Box 615, Miami, Fla. 33152, or Jean Eisinger, 1237 W. Jarvis #2, Chicago Ill. 60626.

Gardner is president of the Association for Education in Journalism and is a 1978 WICI Headliner Award winner.

PORNO TONIGHT AND SAT.

FINAL 2 DAYS

I won't hesitate to say that Take Off is one hell of a fine movie. It easily eclipses any other porn film I have ever viewed, and will probably set the standards by which future porn films will be judged.

Take Off's position as great porn is unassailable. In fact, it has probably spoiled me, because now I won't be too ready to see run-of-the-mill porn for a while. On the other hand, I'm sort of glad. If all porn movies were as well done as Take Off, chances are I would become thoroughly addicted.
