Ford criticizes Carter; '80 decision soon

Former President Gerald R. Ford spoke to the Michigan Retailers Association Tuesday morning about U.S. economic policy, energy and foreign affairs. The athletic department also gave him a football.

By BRUCE BABIARZ
State News Staff Writer

Former President Gerald Ford said Tuesday he will not be involved in any "smoke-filled rooms" to get the Republican nomination and will just observe movements to draft him for 1980.

Ford told reporters he is not a candidate, but he will decide within a week whether or not to allow his name to appear on the ballot of New Hampshire's primary — typically the first state to hold a primary.

The former Michigan legislator from Grand Rapids, who was in Lansing to address a meeting of the Michigan Retailers Association, said none of the persons seeking the GOP nomination will have enough delegate support to win the party's first ballot at the convention in Detroit next July.

In a campaign-like speech, Ford criticized President Carter's economic policies, but agreed with Carter that the fight for energy is the "moral equivalent of war."

"WE GAVE THEM a healthy growing economy and now we have double digit inflation," Ford said. He gave the Carter administration a "zero" economically when asked to rate it on a scale of one to 10.

The claim that inflation has been due to OPEC oil price increases is "untrue," Ford said that it is the Carter administration which is at fault. Oil Cartel increases only account for about 20 percent of the inflation, he said.

"I don't approve of any of these people going around interfering with decisions of the president and the secretary of state," Ford said when asked about the Rev. Jesse Jackson meeting with Palestinian leaders.

"Foreign policy is the job of the president and the secretary of state," he said.

On the political scope, Ford said that whether Ronald Reagan is too old to be president is something the American people must decide.

"IT'S GOING TO be very tough for Carter to get nominated and re-elected," Ford said.

He said that Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., is a "very formidable opponent" and that Chappaquiddick would not be raised as an issue if Ford was a candidate.

The Soviet combat brigade in Cuba is not a major presence, Ford said, but there is a "growing Soviet problem in Cuba" which has had a de-stabilizing effect on the West.

Ford added he is against the ratification of Salt II until the United States rebuilds its military strength.

"The Soviets will not be persuaded by good will or pleas for restraint," he said.

DOMESTIC OIL PRICES should be de-controlled in order to help with America's energy problems, Ford said, and we should stimulate production of "our greatest resource," coal. The production of 1.2 billion tons of coal is the goal of the mining industry he added.

"We must not allow Three Mile Island to throw us off," he said. "We should not let unreasoning emotion burden the discussion of nuclear power."

"There was a nominal amount of real danger," as a result of the accident at Three Mile Island, Ford continued.

Ford said that if nuclear power was eliminated then the United States would be dependent upon Arab oil cartels.

"TO CLOSE THEM (nuclear plants) down is totally irresponsible," he said. Solar and synthetic fuels should be explored and possibly used in the future, but they will not be in use for at least two years, he added.

Ford said he enjoyed being president and despite charges that the presidency wears on a person's health, he said he "got healthier in the office."

MSU Athletic Director Joe Kearney provided the University of Michigan alumnus Ford, who was also captain of the Wolverine Football team, with an autographed Spartan football.

"I won't mention what happened a few weeks ago," Ford said while holding the ball. He wished MSU an undefeated remainder of the season.

Mackey asks council to consider presiding over own meetings

By SUE ROBACH
State News Staff Writer

President Cecil Mackey told Student Council members Tuesday that he does not wish to act as presiding officer at the council's meetings.

Mackey's request reflects his previous suggestion that the role of an administrator as presiding officer at council meetings be reviewed. At the same time he suggested that the academic governance system be re-evaluated to determine its effectiveness.

"Participation in academic governance is best accomplished by a member of the body chairing with open agendas," Mackey said.

The Student Council should be chaired by an elected member of the council, Mackey said.

"Chair by precedent," he told the council.

MEMBERS OF THE council also shared

Mackey's view.

"This is something the council wants badly," said Stuart J. Moses, council member.

If such a procedure was adopted, Mackey said that it would not hamper the students from getting information to the administration or faculty.

"More autonomy for faculty and students would serve everyone's interests," he said.

"I am convinced that a position a body like this takes will carry much weight," Mackey said. "This is more important than I or Provost (Clarence L.) Winder are here."

MACKEY SAID THAT such a move would have advantages because it would be a more effective organizational style that would hasten procedures in governance systems.

In other business, a report concerning

Winder's request that a task force be formed to reassess the organizational role of James Madison College was tabled.

The Executive Committee on Academic Policy met Oct. 8, also at Winder's request, and voted to recommend to Winder that the task force contain one James Madison faculty member, one James Madison undergraduate, one representative from the faculty with commitments to undergraduate education and a representative from the faculty with commitments to graduate education.

The committee also decided to include John E. Paynter, acting dean of James Madison College, and a representative of the Steering Committee.

Elections to the 1979-80 Student Council Agenda Committee also took place at the meeting.

The bylaws for academic governance state that this committee must consist of a student member of the Steering Committee and three representatives of the Student Council: one to be an undergraduate student, one to be a graduate student and one to be an at-large representative.

Elected were David Saari, student member of the Steering Committee; Kim Sharp, undergraduate student; Steve Spivey, graduate student; and Fred Gaddy, member at-large.

Earthquake breaks All-American Canal; some cities left with two-day water supply

By ROBERT E. LOCKE
Associated Press Writer

EL CENTRO, Calif. — Officials said Tuesday that California's worst earthquake in eight years broke the major canal bringing water to this arid border region, leaving some cities in the area with only a two-day water supply.

That assessment came from city and council officials who met in the garage of the Imperial County fire station beneath neon lights left askew. The meeting was jarred by one of the hundreds of aftershocks from Monday afternoon's quake, which measured 6.5 on the Richter scale.

At least 91 persons received injuries in the quake, almost all of them minor. Damage in the area was put at $10 million to $12 million, but that's a very preliminary figure," said Imperial County fire chief Rudy Medina.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. cut short an East Coast political visit and returned to Los Angeles. He was to tour the Imperial Valley later in the day. Local authorities have already declared a state of emergency.

THE QUAKE ALONG the Imperial fault, 150 miles southeast of Los Angeles, shifted some home foundations by a foot in El Centro and moved a road six inches.

Officials drained the All-American Canal after the temblor made several cracks in the wall of the conduit which runs about 70 miles from the Colorado River at the Arizona border and west along the California-Mexico border.

That canal is the chief aqueduct in a network of canals that has made this once-arid desert region bloom with irrigated fields, yielding one of the nation's richest array of crops.

"The All-American Canal is our lifeline," said Medina.

The valley has 90,000 residents, most of them living in the cities of El Centro, Calexico, Brawley and Imperial.

Broken glass and water mains throughout El Centro kept clean-up crews busy

Tuesday. City officials asked residents to conserve water and arranged for tanker trucks to bring water.

"IF THIS OUTAGE goes beyond a couple of days we'll have to start trucking the water in," said a top official in the State Office of Emergency Service.

The earthquake also disrupted the sewage treatment plant at El Centro, leaving untreated sewage spilling into a holding pond.

Most of the early damage total came from the wrecked county government services building in El Centro. Imperial County Public Works Director David Pierson called the supposedly earthquake-proof structure a total loss and said it would cost $7 million to replace.

Firefighters from two counties warily eyed a gas tank farm where the quake damaged three tanks holding 90,000 gallons of gas and aviation fuel.

Authorities had been worried that the strong aftershocks that jolted the area could spark a "mammoth fire," but Medina said the situation had stabilized by daybreak.

MEDINA SAID ABOUT 200 mobile homes had been destroyed and several homes were also ruined.

By 8 a.m., seismologists at California Institute of Technology reported hundreds of aftershocks with 26 measuring 4 or more on the Richter scale, including six over 5. The largest — 5.6 — hit around midnight.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. An earthquake of 6 can cause severe damage.

The swarm of aftershocks inspired many residents in the area to sleep outside or in tents and trailers because of concern that houses could suffer new structural damage.

The initial quake, at 4:16 p.m. PDT, was centered 10 miles east of here. The tremor, the strongest in the 48 contiguous states since a 1971 quake in the San Fernando Valley near Los Angeles, was felt up to 300 miles away in three states and Mexico.

Just across the Mexican border in Mexicali, where some panic was reported in the city's teeming streets, police officer Apulinar Sumaran said many homes were injured — mostly by breaking glass.

Cal Tech seismologist Anne Blanchard said Tuesday that if a quake the size of Monday's "had occurred in Los Angeles, it would have been a lot worse."

"It was in a sparsely populated area and there were few high-rise buildings," she said. Blanchard said Monday's quake closely resembled another big quake in the area in 1940 that registered 6.7 on the Richter scale.

The earlier temblor, which provided the first evidence that the Imperial fault existed, heavily damaged the All-American canal which was then under construction.

Plans under way for Young to teach

By TIM SIMMONS
State News Staff Writer

Tentative plans for former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Andrew Young to teach at MSU this spring should be finalized by November, Robert Green, dean of the College of Urban Development, said.

Plans are being formalized for Young to teach a three-hour class once a week focusing on domestic and international orientation, Green said.

"Hopefully the class will be able to focus on developing countries from an international standpoint and topics such as the poor domestically," he added.

An attempt is being made to offer the course to all students enrolled in the University regardless of their college.

"We may be able to set up a system where some students take the course for credit and others just audit it," Green said. "I hope we could accommodate all students enrolled in some way or another."

GREEN IS WORKING with Provost Clarence L. Winder to form a faculty committee to outline course details.

The faculty committee will be comprised of members from the College of Urban Development as well as other colleges, Green added.

"We want other units to work with the College of Urban Development and sit with Mr. Young and his staff to detail the course," Green said. "Mr. Young has shown a great deal of interest in teaching the class."

Young is expected to teach about four or five classes and invite guest speakers to conduct remaining lectures.

"He could identify some outstanding people who would touch aspects of the course," Green said. "When I became aware of his resignation I felt it would be a great benefit to expose our students to someone with his views and sensitivities."

GREEN BECAME AQUAINTED with Young in 1963. They both worked in the civil rights movement with Martin Luther King between 1965 and 1967.

Young has been giving guest lectures at MSU since 1968, Green said. In 1972 he participated in an "urban forum" at MSU that still meets periodically.

"Young has spoken at many universities throughout the country, but this would be the first formal tie for him to one University," Green added. "If this works we may be able to attract him back for a class next spring."

Young's appointment as a visiting faculty member must be approved by Winder and President Cecil Mackey. Board of Trustee members will also be able to comment on the appointment during their regular monthly meeting.

"A lot of this has not been worked out, but we are working on formalizing it right now and hope to have it done soon," Green said.

Army lowers intelligence standards, recruits below-average but 'trainable'

WASHINGTON — About six out of 10 young men recruited into the Army last year "were below average in intelligence," the Army's top training general said Tuesday.

Gen. Donn Starry, head of the Army Training and Doctrine Command, told reporters this has been offset to some extent by what he called the "greater motivation" among these soldiers to serve and succeed.

"We're getting our share of the population who are less smart," Starry said, noting reports that college entrance test scores also have been declining.

Starry, who supervises the training of some 200,000 recruits a year, said volunteers with below average mentality are trainable, but that it takes more time to teach them certain mechanic type and similar jobs.

This, he said, has increased burdens borne by unit commanders, who must continue the teaching process after they receive below standard recruits from basic and individual training base output.

Starry did not have available a comparison of the mental qualification levels in the present all volunteer force with those of the old draft based Army. The last draftees were inducted nearly seven years ago and most have long since left the Army.

Unable to meet its recruiting objectives, the Army lowered its standards again this month in accepting 17-year-old volunteers who have not graduated from high school. Previously, a high school diploma was required of both groups.

Starry said it is too early to tell yet how this is working out.

As for young officers coming into the Army, Starry said "they are as good as they have ever been and better motivated than in the draft years."

The Army gets about 80 percent of its officers through the Reserve Officer Training Corps program, Starry said.

Levitation was one of the feats performed by Andre Kole, a 23-year-old veteran illusionist, who displayed his skills in the Auditorium Monday night.

American shares economic Nobel prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — An American and a West Indian who teaches in the United States were jointly awarded the 1979 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science on Tuesday for their work to improve economic and "human" conditions, including women's liberation, in the Third World.

The award, which carries a cash prize of $190,000 was the fifth this year received by Americans, who have captured the lion's share of 1979 prizes as in past years. The award to the West Indian was the first ever given to an economist from the developing world, according to the Royal Swedish Academy.

Theodore W. Schultz, 77, of the University of Chicago, and Sir Arthur Lewis, 64, the West Indian native and British subject who teaches at Princeton University, both have extensive practical experience of development problems and are deeply concerned about the need and poverty in the world and how to find ways out of under-development, the academy said in a citation.

Chinese dissident receives jail sentence

PEKING (AP) — China's most famous young dissident was sentenced to 15 years in prison Tuesday for giving military secrets to a foreigner and seeking to overthrow the government.

protest marches of several hundred people who sought redress of grievances dating back to the 1966-69 Cultural Revolution. The charges against her have not been announced.

The conviction of 29-year-old magazine editor Wei Jingsheng is to be followed Wednesday by the trial of a woman dissident, the next in what appears to be a series of trials of leaders of last year's "democracy movement."

Wei, editor and writer for the magazine Explorations, was convicted in a six-hour trial sure to be studied by many Chinese for clues to the direction Chinese justice is taking in an era of promised greater freedom. The case is being viewed as a test of China's emerging legal system and tolerance of democracy and dissent.

New government promises end to corruption

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The new military government sent troops against opponents in one capital suburb Tuesday, suspended constitutional guarantees and imposed martial law and a night-time curfew in the face of left-wing defiance.

government. Romero reportedly fled to neighboring Guatemala.

Col. Jaime Abdul Gutierrez and Col. Adolfo Arnoldo Mahano also dissolved the legislature that was dominated by Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero's right-wing government that was toppled Monday night. They also promised a redistribution of the nation's wealth and a "moderate and eminently democratic"

In Washington, the State Department cautiously welcomed the ouster of the rightist regime by the generals — described as young moderates — and said it was "encouraged" by the new leadership's call for moderation and free elections.

Salvadoran government sources said constitutional guarantees were suspended after members of the leftist LP-28 group erected barricades and took over municipal buildings in San Salvador's suburbs of Mejicanos and Cuscatancingo.

Two men tried in nuclear plant sabotage

SURRY, Va. (AP) — Jurors began deliberations Tuesday in what is believed to be the nation's first trial involving the sabotage of a nuclear facility after being told the two saboteurs acted in the public interest.

at the nuclear power plant here. The utility that operates the plant said the admitted sabotage by the two former employees caused $1 million damage.

"The issue here is your safety," defense attorney Maurice Nessen said in his closing arguments to the Surry County Circuit Court jury.

The trial before Judge Ligon Janes began Thursday in this rural Virginia community.

The jury must decide if William Kuykendall, 26, of Newport News, and James Merrill, 24, of Hampton, committed a crime when they poured a caustic chemical on 62 fuel rods April 27

Kuykendall and Merrill admitted pouring sodium hydroxide on the fuel rods to bring public attention to what they regarded as lax security and unsafe working conditions at the plant operated by Virginia Electric & Power Co. Both men had top-security clearances at the time.

One organizer of the mass protest said angry citizens would be demonstrating in 103 cities and towns against "the most massive, blatant redistribution of wealth in history."

Tomorrow is STOP Day for "Stop the oil profiteers," Wimpinger told reporters. The protests will come just 48 hours after disclosures that two of the world's largest oil exporters, Libya and Iran, have raised prices for crude-oil products.

Washington gov. wary of reopening dump

dumps, located in Nevada and South Carolina, have been trying to either close or drastically curtail use of the facilities.

The closing of the dump has caused some hospitals in New England to cut back on procedures that require the use of radioactive materials, such as testing for thyroid disorders and hormonal imbalances and determining proper drug dosages for certain heart ailments.

Ray shut down the low-level nuclear waste proposal site Oct. 4 after she said two trucks arrived improperly loaded and a third had faulty equipment. The facility is operated on leased land by Nuclear Engineering Co.

FINDS SUPPORT IN CHICAGO

Carter's trip has positive tone

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — President Carter, ending a two-day trip to the Midwest, condemned Cuban military activities Tuesday and expressed delight over Mayor Jane Byrne's near-endorsement of his re-election.

the city's Democratic leaders, but he returned to Washington with a surprisingly strong statement of support from Byrne.

Although he did not get a firm endorsement for his expected bid for another term, Carter did get Byrne's assertion that if the decision were to be made now, she would vote for him.

And the Chicago mayor made a pointed reference to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who is considering a challenge to Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, issuing a warning "to those who would divide the Democratic Party."

Washington, the president held a "town meeting" with residents of suburban Dolton, Ill. He assured the audience gathered in a high school gymnasium that inflation would ease by the end of the year.

And he criticized Cuba as "the most highly militarized country on earth per capita." The Cubans, he said, are "constantly interfering" with the affairs of other countries.

Carter said the Cubans have more than 45,000 troops in countries where "they have absolutely no business."

The United States will not move to establish normal diplomatic relations with the island nation until Cuba ends its involvement in the affairs of other countries and until the regime of president Fidel Castro releases "hundreds and hundreds, even thousands," of political prisoners.

added: "I really did appreciate it."

Byrne did not come away empty handed, either. Carter used the opportunity to announce several programs beneficial to Chicago and to Byrne's administration. For instance, he announced that the Air Force would vacate a facility at O'Hare Airport so an international terminal can be built there. Byrne had been working to take over the defense facility there for some time.

In addition, Carter announced plans for federal funding of more than 1,300 city government jobs.

Asked if he had expected a formal endorsement, Carter replied: "I think that was enough."

Byrne, a longtime friend of the Kennedy family, surprised even White House aides Monday night when she issued a thinly veiled warning to the Massachusetts senator that a fight over the Democratic presidential nomination was ill-advised.

BEFORE DEPARTING FOR

Commuter trains collide

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Screaming passengers were sent "flying" down the aisles and slamming into seatbacks when three packed commuter trains crashed in a chain reaction at the peak of the morning rush-hour Tuesday. There were more than 400 injuries, most of them minor, authorities said.

hospitals and an elementary school, the police commissioner said.

Conrail officials said as many as 1,200 passengers may have been riding on the trains.

"We were going at a good clip, 40 to 45 miles an hour," said R.C. Morrow of Glen Mills, a structural engineer and one of the commuters on board.

O'NEILL SAID MOST of the injuries involved bloody noses, sprained necks and some broken bones.

"We heard this big bang and ran out there with ice and paper towels," said Ruth Wolf, a teacher at the Harrington Elementary School, a block from the accident scene.

"We started flying when the engineer hit the brakes. Most of the people hit their heads and faces on their seats in front of them."

A nine-car lead train developed a mechanical failure and a second train, which also had nine cars, stopped behind it, according to R.B. Hoffman, an official of Conrail which operates the commuter service.

There were no reports of fatalities in the 8:19 a.m. crash on the Media-West Chester line just beyond a curve in the southwest section of the city.

"The leading train got started and headed toward Philadelphia," Hoffman said. "The third train stopped behind the second train and the fourth hit the third before it could move away."

"BRACE YOURSELVES," shouted a man just before the impact.

The force of the crash propelled the front of the third train into the rear of the second train which was just getting ready to pull out, Hoffman added.

The passengers, many dazed and dabbing their bloody faces with handkerchiefs, stumbled from the cars as police wagons, ambulances and fire rescue vehicles raced to the scene.

"WE HAVE NO idea what triggered the accident," he said. "All signals in the vicinity were operational when I arrived at the scene."

"A few people were trapped in the first smashed car but the firemen got them out quickly," said Police Commissioner Joseph O'Neill.

The injured were taken to 23

DESPITE PRODUCTION GROWTH

Recession still expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said Tuesday the nation still faces a moderate recession, despite figures showing industrial production in September registered the biggest growth in four months.

at the same time the Federal Reserve Board released figures showing industrial production was up by 0.5 percent last month.

"While the recession facing the nation is expected to be moderate, the current economic outlook remains volatile, particularly in light of the uncertainties about energy prices and availability," Miller told a congressional panel.

The increase represented a turn-around from a decline of 0.9 percent in August. The improvement was largely a result of an increase in auto output as manufacturers began production of 1980 models.

"We cannot be as certain as previously about the depth and severity of the economic slowdown," he said. But Miller quickly added that "there are few signs" the recession will be as bad as the 1974-1975 downturn which was the worst since the Depression.

Miller said the nation's economy in recent weeks has shown "more strength than earlier anticipated," but added that he still forecasts "a moderate recession."

The treasury secretary's testimony before members of the Joint Economic Committee came

In fact, he indicated the outlook may have worsened as a result of the Federal Reserve Board recent actions to push up interest rates, coupled with announcements by some oil producing nations of higher prices and cutbacks in production.

City workers layoff sparks debate

By ROLAND WILKERSON
State News Staff Writer
The layoff of temporary city employees led to an argument between Lansing Mayor Gerald Graves and Councilmember-at-Large Richard Baker at the City Council meeting Monday night.
The temporary employees were being paid with federal funds from the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA). The program was designed to provide job training for unskilled workers to help them land permanent employment.
The CETA controversy stems from an announcement the Mayor made in September stating that funds for 52 city CETA workers had run out.
THE CITY COULD have kept the 52 employees on until

Dec. 31, and still hire an additional 26 CETA workers at a cost of $55,000 to the city, Baker said.
Graves also sent the Council a letter stating that only 35 of 52 CETA participants were immediately laid off. He said that of the remaining 16 employees 12 were still working.
Graves, stressing his commitment towards the CETA program, cited the city had recently "created 44 new positions."
Graves said Baker used the "big lie tactic" when Baker criticized the mayor and council for not attending the program through Dec. 31.
Throughout his six-page letter, the mayor cited Baker as an "obstructionist" in delaying various city projects during his years as a councilmember.

BAKER CRITICIZED THE mayor's statement, commenting that "This is the first time that any one has ever said that I could overrule the other seven councilmembers on issues for four years."
The mayor also referred to the council a letter regarding a tax abatement application from Lindell Drop Forge.
The forge, located at 2830 S. Logan St., is requesting about $3.5 million for plant improvement and replacement of equipment.
The council also heard from the Michigan Women's Studies Association, which is eying the city-owned Baptist Convention Center as a home for a proposed hall of fame for Michigan women.
Gladys Beckwith, a representative of MWSA, said the center "would be an ideal spot for the facility."

A resolution calling for funds to renovate the center was sent back to the committee on Public Property and Safety when Second Ward Councilmember William Brenke objected to the replacement of the heating system. Brenke said he wanted clarification on how extensive the work would be.
MUSKOGON (UPI) — Bofours Lakeway Chemical Co. has taken steps to prevent worker exposure to PCE, which can cause a severe skin problem, a company spokesperson said Tuesday.
Ralph Wolthuis, vice president for environmental safety and governmental affairs, said a number of company employees have been plagued by an itchy, scaly red rash as a result of their exposure to the chemical, perchloroethylene.
"There were over a period of nearly a year a total of 19 who did have a dermatitis exposure," Wolthuis said. "We have over the course of the year as this has come about introduced several changes in an attempt to correct the problems."
"We think we have the situation well in hand. It's not an epidemic," Wolthuis said.
Wolthuis said workers will wear special rubberized suits, boots, masks and gloves to prevent skin contact with PCE.
The precautions were taken following circulation of an internal company memo written by a safety supervisor who recommended extreme caution in handling the chemical.
"I feel that we have a major problem which we must take steps to correct before it gets worse," the supervisor wrote.
"Once a person has a rash there is no medical treatment to make the person immune to getting the rash again."
Some 100 employees work at the plant.

County Board of Health will support Food Bank Drive

By KAREN GOODWIN
State News Staff Writer
Ingham County Board of Health decided Tuesday to support a Food Bank Drive for Nov. 9 and 10.
Chairperson Elinor Holbrook said the drive allows consumers to purchase non-perishable food items from designated groceries and donate them to food banks.
"It's been held twice a year for the last two years," Holbrook said, "and it's been very successful."
Commissioner Don Tavano requested that an evaluation and report of the bank's service be provided for the next board meeting.
HEALTH OFFICER BRUCE Bragg introduced a $180,000 state funded grant proposal for a maternal and infant care project for 1979 to 1980.
Bragg said the project, which is funded by the Department of Health, to 350 high risk women and their infants.
Women are scheduled to make 12 prenatal visits and nine infant visits.

"Since the program began one year ago, there has been a substantial improvement in (the) infant mortality (rate)," he said.
The cost to Ingham County for the program is $114,000.
Ingham County has the newest maternal and infant care project. Others with similar projects are Barion, Muskegon, Saginaw and Kent counties and the City of Detroit.
Holbrook requested that a report on the project's community effect be distributed at the next meeting.
The proposal will be reviewed by the Board of Commissioners beginning with the Human Resources Committee meeting on Oct. 22.
In other business, the board supported the registration, not licensure of sanitarians.
Licensure would give sanitarians an exclusive monopoly in practicing their profession. Registration protects a sanitarian's title, but does not restrict others from carrying out a sanitarian's activity.
Registration of sanitarians is a statute in Michigan, but a state House of Representatives bill favors licensure.

The board moved to oppose the House bill which takes away registration requirements.
Braggs reported that the 1980 Board of Health county budget was to be $2.1 million. The budget increased $20,000 from 1979.

Convicts can shorten term with 'good time'

LANSING (UPI) — Attorney General Frank Kelley Tuesday said despite a new law stiffening sentences, a prisoner still can get out before his minimum term is served if the maximum minus good behavior credits is shorter.
In an opinion requested by state Corrections Director Perry Johnson, Kelley also said the voter approved law precludes parole consideration for prisoners with life sentences.
And, citing court opinions on the matter, he said the law is valid, but it applies only to crimes which were committed on or after Dec. 10, 1978.
The law, approved last year bars persons convicted of serious crimes from using so-called "good time" sentence reductions to win release on parole before serving their minimum terms.
KELLY SAID THE law "does not terminate a prisoner's entitlement to good time and special good time, but rather prohibits good time credit for parole eligibility until the minimum sentence is served."
"However, when earned by good behavior, good time reduces the maximum sentence and a parole is not granted. A prisoner must be discharged when the sentence is served."
"Therefore, since discharge is required at the time that the prisoner has completed serving his or her sentence the prisoner must be discharged even though he or she has served less than the minimum sentence," he said.

PSC orders hearings

By MICKI MAYNARD
United Press International
LANSING — Bowing to a request from a consumer activist group, the state Public Service Commission Tuesday ordered hearings on the establishment of a fund to dismantle nuclear power plants.
The request came from the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan. Discussion of the issue arose in connection with a Consumers Power Co. rate increase case.
In other action, the PSC ordered state utilities to include information about home heating assistance programs in billing statements.
Consumers Power wants the rate increase to pay for future dismantling of the Big Rock plant at Charlevoix and the Palisades facility at South Haven.
The original Consumer's Power plan was to stash the money in an interest-bearing account. The utility wants to collect around $14 million a year from customers.
This money, however, would be subject to state and federal income taxes, meaning the amount remaining in the fund would be slashed in half by the time it was needed.
PIRGIM energy director Ronald Wilson, who expects the hearing to be held early next year, said the group was concerned about differing estimates of the amount needed to shut down the plants.
"One utility said it would be $20 million, another said it would be $20 million," Wilson said. "That's quite a difference."

Wilson said PIRGIM wants the money put away so Consumer's Power would not be able to use it for another purpose.
"We're very concerned that the money be there when decommissioning comes," Wilson said. "It should be either set up in a trust fund, or the utility should wait until the year 2000, when it is needed."
The consumer activist said the group would prefer the utility begin collecting the money now.
"They should have the people who are using electricity now pay for it (decommissioning)," he said.
In other action, the PSC approved an emergency order requiring utilities to inform their customers about government programs available to help them.

Commission chairperson Daniel Demlow made the proposal at hearings held Monday by Sen. Donald Riegler, D-Mich., on home heating programs.
If federal aid is not forthcoming, Demlow said he also plans to propose a PSC ban on winter utility shutoffs for senior citizens. He said more than 23,000 Michigan utility customers were disconnected last winter.

COGS MEETING

Student rights on agenda

The Student Rights Document will be the main topic at today's meeting of the Council of Graduate Students at 5:30 p.m. in the Con Con Room of the International Center.
The document, which has been held up by committee action, is a revision of the Academic Freedom Report of Undergraduate Students and the graduate students rights handbook.

The MSU Board of Trustees gave the University Committee on Student Affairs six months to formulate the document.
"They are revising the document so all of the student rights will be explained together and to get consistency on them," said COGS President Sharon Cogdill. "I hope to provide some pressure to COGS and to ASMSU into passing it through fast."

Cogdill said that if the document was not quickly finished and passed through the organizations, which need to ratify it, students will be in danger of losing their rights.

Court of Appeals rejects fund cuts

By LANI WIELAND
United Press International
LANSING — The Michigan Court of Appeals has rejected Wayne County's scheduled 1978-79 budget cuts saying its prosecuting attorneys office could not operate properly at a lower funding level.
The appeals panel overturned a lower court's ruling that the Wayne County Board of Commissioners had adequately funded the office, but said the county clerk, treasurer and drain commissioner had received sufficient budgets to provide their state mandated services.
Suits filed against the county commission by several officials after proposed budget trimming was announced prevented the staff cuts from taking place.
Suits filed against the county commission by several officials Wayne County's tumultuous 1978-79 fiscal year ends Nov. 30 and next year's financial outlook for the nation's third largest county does not appear any brighter.

"A serviceable level is not met when the failure to fund eliminates the function or creates an emergency immediately threatening the existence of the function," the court said.
Prior to the budget cuts — ordered by the MFC last fall as a means to reduce the county's rapidly growing deficit — assistant county prosecutors carried an average 140 case workload.
The figure is 99 percent higher than caseloads for prosecuting staffs in other densely populated areas of the country, the court said.
The county's budget cuts would have eliminated 18 attorneys — leaving the remainder of the staff with an average workload of 163 cases.

IT IS OUR opinion that such a loss would render the prosecutor unable to perform the (continued on page 14)

Chairperson Chuck Goeke of the University Committee on Student Affairs will report on the meeting of the document at the status of the proposal.

Also on the agenda is a report on the availability of athletic tickets by COGS member Steve Spivey. Spivey recently proposed an alternative method of ticket distribution to MSU Athletic Director Joseph Kearney, and will report on the status of the proposal.
There has been concern at COGS about the football, basketball and hockey ticket situations because every other year graduate students are the ones to receive the low priority, Cogdill said.

PCE exposure not 'epidemic'

MUSKOGON (UPI) — Bofours Lakeway Chemical Co. has taken steps to prevent worker exposure to PCE, which can cause a severe skin problem, a company spokesperson said Tuesday.
Ralph Wolthuis, vice president for environmental safety and governmental affairs, said a number of company employees have been plagued by an itchy, scaly red rash as a result of their exposure to the chemical, perchloroethylene.
"There were over a period of nearly a year a total of 19 who did have a dermatitis exposure," Wolthuis said. "We have over the course of the year as this has come about introduced several changes in an attempt to correct the problems."
"We think we have the situation well in hand. It's not an epidemic," Wolthuis said.
Wolthuis said workers will wear special rubberized suits, boots, masks and gloves to prevent skin contact with PCE.
The precautions were taken following circulation of an internal company memo written by a safety supervisor who recommended extreme caution in handling the chemical.
"I feel that we have a major problem which we must take steps to correct before it gets worse," the supervisor wrote.
"Once a person has a rash there is no medical treatment to make the person immune to getting the rash again."
Some 100 employees work at the plant.

Replace 911 with DPS phone system

Ever since the 911 emergency phone system was implemented on campus its effectiveness has been questioned, and it is time definitive action be taken to eliminate the 911 system at MSU.

Currently, students calling emergency numbers are connected with Lansing operators. It would be more desirable if there was an emergency number students could dial which connected them directly with the Department of Public Safety. The Residence Halls Association passed a bill recently that expressed these desires, and to them we give our support.

The justification for implementing the 911 number was to create uniformity around the nation in reaching emergency assistance. While this is beyond a doubt a valuable program for communities, it is not practical or needed at MSU. A working knowledge and extreme familiarity with the layout of the campus is essential for emergency assistance because of the complicated networks of roads on campus. Students usually associate their location with relation to a nearby building. Operators in Lansing would not have the familiarity that someone working on campus would have to direct the emergency units to the appropriate location. This system of calling directly to the DPS office has worked efficiently in the past and did not prove to be a drain for DPS personnel. There is no reason to believe that the DPS will not be able to take on the service again. It is the simplest solution to a complicated problem.

Until that comes about it is essential that students become aware of the best answer to the question, where do I call in an emergency? The best possible answer is to call DPS directly at 355-2221. If the situation calls for split-second timing and you cannot recall these numbers then dial 123. The problem with dialing 123 is that this number is now hooked into the same service as 911. Also this number connects callers with a Lansing operator which then has to dispatch a DPS officer to the scene. To complicate the matter even more, students using campus telephones cannot dial the 911 number because dialing a nine gets you an outside number, which followed by one-one will get you nothing but static.

By removing 911, there would be no more confusion as to which number should be called in case of an emergency. When on-campus, 123 would be used and when off campus, 911 would be used. With the DPS service completely reinstated, students calling from campus would reach a DPS operator who is familiar with MSU, not a Lansing operator who is not.

Returning draft worries citizens

If the United States government is really trying to forget the harsh realities of the tragic mistakes it made in Vietnam during an emotional period spanning more than 20 years, why is the government, prompted by military pressure, desperately trying to reinstate some form of the draft? For many Americans the reasoning behind national reinstatement of the draft may be hard to follow, but the argument put forth by military officials at the Pentagon is amazingly simple. Their claim, tersely stated, is that voluntary enrollment is not working.

What these officials essentially mean to say is that the voluntary system is not working to suit the whimsical attitudes held by the conservative white males who have traditionally run this country's military programs. They see the system as not working partly because it has too many blacks and other minorities, who many officials feel must be kept at subordinate levels. As the numbers of minorities increase (now estimated between 35 and 40 percent) keeping these people at subordinate levels becomes increasingly difficult.

Increasing minority enrollment is only one of the numerous issues confronting the military. The most debated issue, and the issue on which military officials have been most vocal, is the claim that the United States has inadequate military strength to continue to maintain support of our various international interests. If a war were to break out tomorrow, conservative estimates suggest that it would take the military at least 120 days to mobilize the necessary troops.

This argument is valid only if one can entertain the idea that the next major war Americans are involved in will be fought by conventional methods. The latest wave of nuclear weapons, flaunted by almost every industrial nation around the world, is not going to remain idle while humans barbarously battle in the trenches.

Probably realizing the unlikelihood of American troops fighting a conventional war in the near future, the House of Representatives voted this summer to kill a bill which would have renewed registration for the draft.

Let's not allow the military, in conjunction with the federal government, to quietly bring about a rebirth of another Vietnam. Though military registration is only a small stepping stone for the army's campaign to regain the power and authority it held in the '60s, mandatory enlistments in the military are drawing treacherously closer.

Young's invitation good politics

The possibility of former United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young being a guest professor at MSU is a pleasing and stimulating idea. And if Robert L. Green, dean of the College of Urban Development can pull this one off then he has outdone his critics with his best political move yet.

The College of Urban Development has been criticized as being nothing more than a black studies college with little direction and few students. The general opinion of many people is that CUD should be eliminated as a college and turned into a department.

At a summer Board of Trustees meeting,

CUD was attacked by Trustee Micheal Smydra, who said the college was receiving more money than it had students. He questioned whether the college is worth the money it gets. After a long discussion with Green, Smydra quickly changed his mind and stopped questioning the college's validity.

And now CUD is trying to raise its prestige by offering an experimental class spring term. The class would bring Young to MSU for four or five lectures. It would meet once a week for about three hours and would be offered University-wide. The course would also be co-ordinated by Green's people.

If such a class is developed it would be a necessary shot in MSU's sore academic arm. Other schools have drawn well known political and social thinkers as guest faculty members while MSU has simply lagged behind. Since President Mackey is trying to improve this University's reputation Green's move should be looked on with favor.

And the appointment of Young as a visiting professor is a step in improving MSU. Everyone seems to be thrilled about the idea. Students are interested. Faculty are interested. In fact, the faculty is so interested that they are trying to make sure the class is not just a CUD course. In other words, everyone wants a piece of the pie.

As of now, a faculty committee will develop a course outline that they will submit to Provost Clarence L. Winder. After being OK'd by Winder the outline will be sent to Mackey and then to the Board of Trustees. The results should be presented to the Board in November.

Young is a controversial figure who attracts attention wherever he goes. He has an international reputation, whether deserved or not, that stands him off from anyone else. Of course, Young did not come in Monday with the thunderous roar that has followed his career. But he did show that he is still capable of holding an audience.

Young spoke like a patriot. Not too controversial. Just enough to raise the ire of a few hecklers. In fact, Young said, he did not come to MSU to discuss the PLO-Israeli conflict. He mentioned the conflict because of an ad which appeared in the State News.

The ad depicted a photo of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and President Jimmy Carter. The advertisement was sponsored by numerous Jewish leagues. It asked that we recognize the PLO for what it is.

But, this was not what Young was concerned with. Young said his primary concern was international trade and development. And believe it or not Young was just an innocent bystander in the PLO-Israeli conflict. Or as he put it, "I wasn't looking for any trouble. I was just trying to be a good nigger."

Whether he has been one or not is unimportant. But what is plain is he has been controversial. Young has been a controversial figure since the days when he worked with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. His statements about American political prisoners and British racism have made excellent copy for journalists.

If given a guest faculty position Young will make for excellent and invigorating discussion on campus. He will also help Green to improve the reputation of CUD. Whether you like Green or not, you must admit that he has made a good move. By bringing Young here CUD now stands a little bit taller.

VIEWPOINT: BLACKS, JEWS

PLO not a factor

By MARK SHULMAN

There is no truth to the accusation by some of the eminent black leaders that former ambassador Andrew Young resigned because of pressures from Jews. It is not even true that he had to resign because of his unauthorized meeting with a delegate of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The truth is that Young resigned because of his own account he kept his meeting with the PLO from his superiors and then went so far as to tell the American public that it was a purely accidental meeting in which only social dialogue was exchanged.

One would have to be insensitive to fail to understand the bitter disappointment and sorrow felt by the black community at the loss of this pre-eminent symbol of black influence. The fact that this sorrow has turned into expressions of hostility to Jews has little to do with the role of Jews in Young's dismissal.

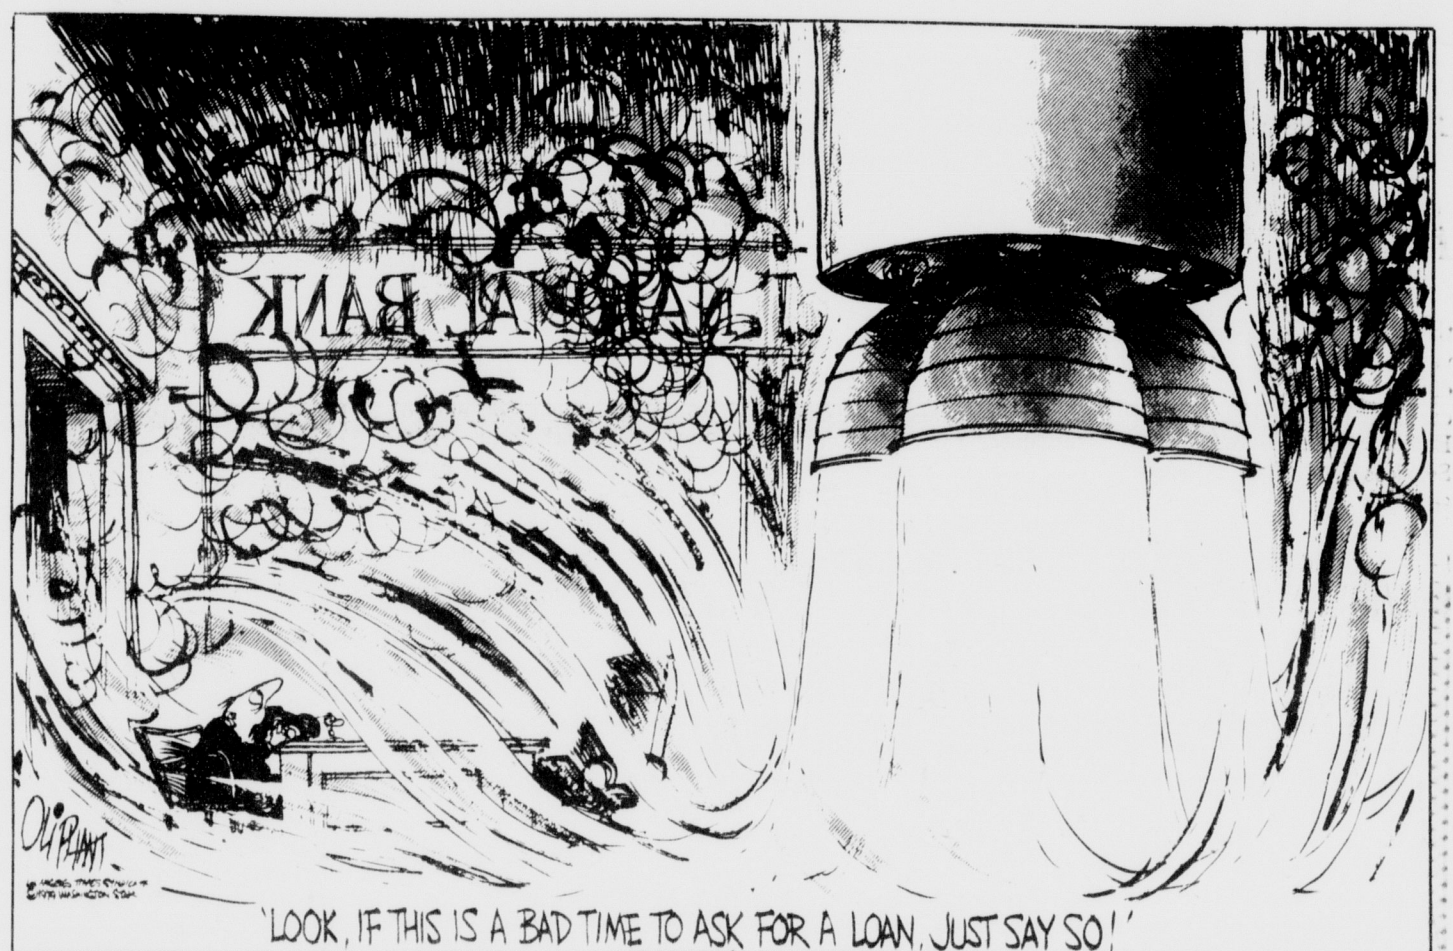

The truth is that only two out of the many Jewish organizations called for Young's resignation. Under such circumstances this showed a great deal of restraint and deference to black sensibilities. Thus, it becomes clear that the reaction triggered by Young's resignation must be seen as an indication of increasing hostility to Jews among blacks. How else can it be explained of the sudden black enchantment with the PLO, an organization that had as much in common with the civil rights movement and black aspirations as does the Ku Klux Klan.

It is for this reason the suggestion that Jews meet with black leaders to discuss the PLO are not only irrelevant but a dangerous distraction. Both groups need to meet immediately in order to begin to understand the reasons for their respective anger and frustrations with each other. If such dialogue is to succeed, then Jews must learn to empathize with the frustration of blacks over continuing social and economic inequities. Jewish leaders have been quick to tell blacks why they oppose such inequities as racial quotas, but they have not been as quick to offer alternatives that show promises of success.

On the other hand, the black community will have to realize that after such tragic events such as the Holocaust and the Six Day War, and particularly in light of the highly regarded American Jewish record of support for black aspirations, Jews will not allow themselves to get dumped on. It is with this type of understanding from both groups that a meaningful dialogue between them can begin.

LETTERS

TC dept. doesn't help alums

It is with mixed emotions that I received your recent mailing, "The CAS Communicator." As a recent graduate of the MSU telecommunications department, I was rather surprised to see that I was so quickly being hounded to join an alumni group. But then, I should have known that it is just like the University to be more concerned with money than people.

I was particularly "pleased" to note the solicitation on page 3 for the Purdue football game tickets and brunch. As the newsletter (and I use the term loosely) did not arrive until Oct. 9, the Oct. 1 deadline had long since passed.

The item that disturbs me most is that the Communicator devoted two whole pages to list established, successful alumni complete with glowing accounts of their accomplishments... yet virtually no mention is made of the other hundreds of alumni of the College of Communication Arts and Sciences that are currently unemployed! After months of job searching (and after excellent grades in school) I have not received one job offer! Checking with my friends, I find that they are in the same boat! The placement services, of both the college and the university, have been of no assistance!

I was pleased to see the "Day on the Job" solicitation to help current students, but this too ignores the fact that the majority of the college's alumni are unemployed.

I challenge you, the Editor, to change this great waste of alumni funds, to help assist those persons who need it the most... the hundreds who need help in locating a position in the communications fields. In keeping with the self-serving purpose and attitude of most alumni magazines, I have little doubt that you will never consider printing or acting upon this letter. Yet, if you even suspect that there may be a grain of truth in the above statements, check the unemployment statistics with the telecommunication department, the college of communication, and the MSU Placement Service.

You are offending far more of us that need your help than you are flattering with your "nostalgic alumni solicitations."

Give Blacks their due respect

Why is it that everyone in this country refuses to give black Americans their due respect? In your article "Mediation offered to Blacks, Jews," I counted six times (including the title) that the term "Black Americans" was not properly capitalized with a capital "B." Your staff obviously knew enough to capitalize the "j" in Jewish, didn't you know enough to do the same for the "b" in Black? In case you didn't know, the American Black is a proper noun. Now you know. I trust you won't make the same mistake again.

Marijuana bill a necessity

We certainly appreciate the concern The State News has for marijuana reform legislation. Senate bill 185, which we think will be signed into law as early as this week, is indeed a very important step towards re-evaluation of all marijuana policies. The medical history of marijuana has been shrouded by the fears and ignorances of other generations and to return it to the physician after more than forty years of prohibition is a magic moment in Michigan's legislative history.

Thank you for your editorial support but its final sentence raises several points which should be clarified. (Reference is to: "And if Milliken signs this bill, legal implications will be one less factor to worry about in the incessant drive to provide cancer patients with a compassionate end.")

First, the bill will be signed, either by Milliken or by Lt. Gov. Brickley while the governor is abroad.

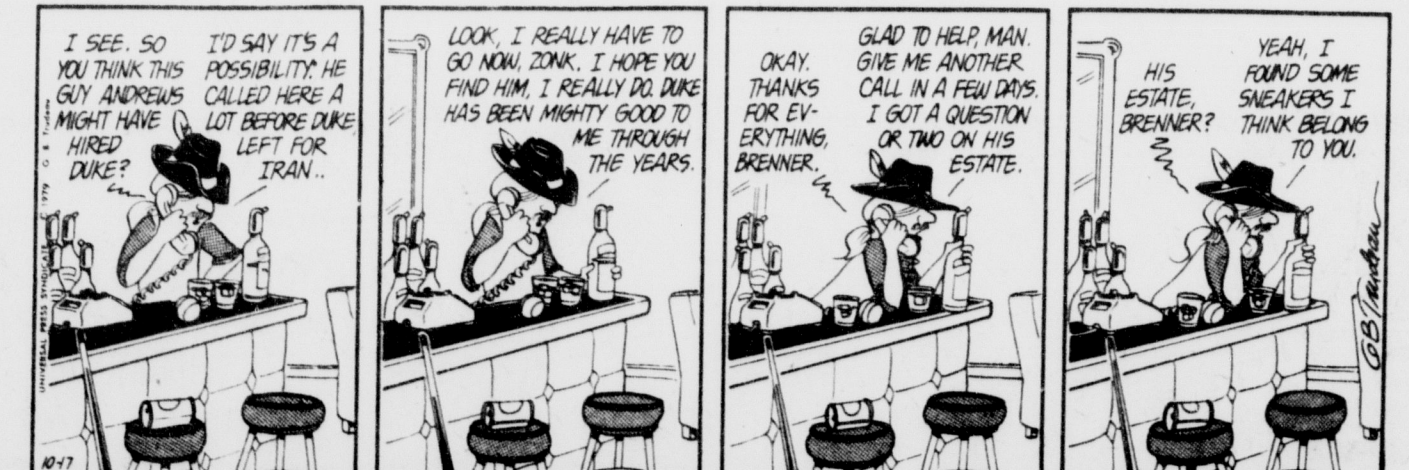

Second, legal implications are very much yet a factor to worry about in provision of medical marijuana. The state Department of public Health must walk a very narrow line in gaining approval from three separate federal agencies, or what was intended as compassionate medical relief can become a massive testing program in which patients are transformed into guinea pigs, so to speak. The hard part is just beginning.

Finally, marijuana's use as a companion to chemotherapy treatments is not for the purpose of providing "a compassionate end." To the contrary, it is intended to provide a new beginning. The intensity of chemotherapy's side effects — the nausea, pain, absence of appetite — are enough to compel some people to discontinue treatment. As both Deb Negen and Keith Nutt told our public health committees, marijuana is the only medication that allows them to continue. And that is what Senate bill 185 is all about — the right to sight and life itself.

Missing Italian banker surfaces; still faces trial on federal charges

NEW YORK (AP) — Italian financier Michele Sindona, who disappeared mysteriously 2-and-one-half months ago, surfaced in Manhattan on Tuesday and was hospitalized with a leg wound, federal officials said.

A government spokesperson said two federal marshals were sent to Doctors Hospital to guard Sindona. He was not under arrest but a 24-hour guard was assigned, according to an FBI spokesperson.

A determination will be made later on how long 59-year-old Sindona, who faces trial on a host of federal charges involving the failure of a major bank, will remain in the hospital.

An FBI spokesperson said that at 11 a.m., Sindona called the office of Marvin Frankel, his attorney, from a telephone booth three blocks from Times Square.

FRANKEL WAS OUT of town, so one of his associates and Pier Sandro Mangoni, Sindona's son-in-law, went to the telephone booth and took Sindona to Mangoni's Park Avenue residence.

A doctor arrived and "determined he (Sindona) should be admitted" to the hospital, the FBI spokesperson said.

"We were told he was haggard looking and has a dressed wound on his left leg," the spokesperson said, adding the financier was sedated and would thus not be interviewed by federal officials until Wednesday.

The spokesperson, who declined to be identified, said he did not know where Sindona was before he made the telephone call.

Sindona disappeared Aug. 2, and since that time several messages were sent to his family from alleged kidnappers and from himself.

HE HAD BEEN scheduled to stand trial Sept. 10 on fraud charges involving the 1974 collapse of the Franklin National Bank. He was also fighting extradition to Milan.

The FBI never termed the disappearance a kidnapping, but Frankel said he had received letters from Sindona and his alleged captors.

In one of the notes, sent to Magnoni, the family was told: "If you value his life, you will provide all the facts in your possession."

Sindona said in some of the correspondence that his alleged captors had demanded information about his financial dealings and warned that his life depended on the response.

Italian authorities have been trying to extradite Sindona to face charges that he removed $225 million from his banks in Milan. The specific charges here, in a 99-count indictment, allege Sindona illegally transferred $40 million from overseas to buy control of the Franklin National Bank in 1972. Two years later, the bank failed.

Sindona had been free on $3 million personal bail bond at the time of his disappearance, a bond secured by $150,000 and his cooperative apartment, estimated to be worth $500,000.

Once one of Italy's wealthiest men, Sindona had control of an international empire of banks and companies said to be worth $500 million.

What's so shocking about a decadent Stone?

Up And Down With The Rolling Stones
By Tony Sanchez
Morrow Quill, 310 pages
$8.95

Reviewed by BILL HOLDSHIP
"Old man, your morals are not our morals." — Keith Richard to a judge who reprimanded him for the presence of a nude woman at a Rolling Stones Party where Richard and Mick Jagger were busted.

Near the conclusion of Up And Down With The Rolling Stones, there is a quote that Steve Dunleavy wrote about Mick Jagger in the Star (Rupert Murdoch's trashy answer to the National Enquirer and People magazine) during the Stones' 1975 American tour. In the quote, Dunleavy refers to Jagger as a "demonic influence" and a "pimple-faced disciple of dirt."

Coincidental or not, the quote is ironic since Dunleavy (a man I plan to kick where it hurts someday) is the person who probably originated the tacky genre that Up And Down With The Rolling Stones falls into when he co-wrote Elvis: What Happened with Elvis Presley's former bodyguards.

Tony Sanchez, a Keith Richard employee for eight years (meaning that he scored drugs for Keith and friends), has written a book very similar to Dunleavy's "expose" in its cheap sensationalism and vulgar moralizing. Sanchez's book will probably never reach the notoriety of the Elvis "biography," since Dunleavy had the dubious distinction of publishing his book a week before the King's demise, and, alas, Brian Jones had been dead far too long for the necrophilic appeal to help sell Sanchez's book.

But there is another major difference between the two books. With the exception of Elvis's most insightful fans, the Dunleavy book came as a shock to a world mourning their fallen idol. On the other hand, anyone who has followed the career of the world's greatest rock 'n roll band is already familiar with the group's notorious and decadent lifestyles. There is nothing surprising about the fact that Keith ("If you're gonna get wasted, get wasted elegantly") Richard lives to play his guitar and fall into the amplifiers (even sex and food are secondary to music and drugs, according to Sanchez); or that Mick Jagger is a spoiled little boy who refuses to grow up and continues to do exactly what he wants, or that Brian Jones was a pathetic, paranoid human being — freaked out by the Stones' fame and lifestyle — shortly before his death.

What is shocking are the moral judgments and false assumptions Sanchez makes in his book. (And what right does Sanchez — an addict, himself, who was the Stones' main drug connection for eight years — have to moralize?) It's apparent from the beginning that Sanchez was viciously jealous of Jagger (he seems to despise the singer at times), and Jagger is revealed in a cruel light throughout the book. On the other hand, Brian Jones is portrayed as an almost saintly figure who single-handedly took the Stones to fame, and who Mick and Keith were "out to get" due to their jealousy over Brian's musical virtuosity. Bunk!

The worst aspect is that Sanchez acts as a "mind reader" throughout the book. In other words, he informs the reader what someone was thinking as they made love or experienced a trip — things he couldn't possibly have known. In the recent Playboy excerpt from the book (part of which was deleted from the final edition for reasons unknown), Sanchez wrote that Mick married Bianca because she resembled the singer and he could finally imagine that he was making love to himself. Now, I've often thought it would be nice to have an affair with Bianca Jagger (though she's not the type of person I'd like to join — for breakfast), and it has nothing to do with her looking like Mick Jagger. In addition, Sanchez draws on cheap sensationalism wherever he can — even drawing a connection between the Stones and the Manson murders because Charles Manson was a fan!

Sanchez's credibility is in question throughout the book due to the author's gross inaccuracies. His critical judgment is tainted (He calls "Come On" — one of this reviewer's favorite tunes — a lousy song.) He portrays Altamont as the apocalypse, and — thought it was a ghastly event — one only has to view Gimme Shelter to realize that many of the things Sanchez writes are totally false. In other words, they never happened.

There are also too many contradictions in Sanchez's book for a lot of his assumptions to hold water. "Evil" Keith and Mick are both portrayed as model fathers, especially Keith who worships his son, Marlon. "Selfish" Mick Jagger used his own money to buy medical supplies for Nicaragua (Bianca's homeland) after its disastrous earthquake, and the singer once jumped into a rat infested swamp to rescue Brian Jones, the man he was "out to get." And all Chuck Berry loyalties aside, if Keith is really a racist as Sanchez insinuates, it hardly explains why he and Anita Pallenberg (his common law wife) befriended the Jamaican Rastafarians, an act which so angered the middle-class Jamaicans that Anita was framed and put in a Jamaican prison where she was repeatedly beaten and raped by the guards.

Despite my resentment over Sanchez's money-making betrayal, Up And Down With The Rolling Stones isn't a totally worthless book. On the contrary, if you're a Stones fan intelligent enough to see through the crap, the book can be fascinating at times. There's no question that Sanchez was an insider in the Stones' intimate circle (his photographs testify to this), and when he manages to get away from sensationalism, he reveals facts and stories that can't be found anywhere else.

There are numerous intriguing stories about the '60s rock aristocracy, including the Beatles, Dylan and Eric Clapton. (Brian Jones played sax on several Beatle tunes, while his paranoia later made him believe that Bob Dylan — who once asked Jones to join his band — had written "Ballad Of A Thin Man" about him!) Sanchez documents that fact that the Stones and John Lennon really believed that they were changing the world during the '60s.

There are case histories of how the Stones got the inspiration for many of their tunes. Keith Richard comes across as the rock 'n roll street outlaw his fans have always believed him to be. (He was thrilled to be in prison after his first drug bust, especially when the other prisoners would cheer and applaud everytime "Satisfaction" came on the radio.) While Keith's heroin addiction is disturbing, there is an enthralling story which reveals Keith was visited by two FBI agents during the '75 American tour. They informed him that they knew he was an addict, and — since General Motors was putting up the money for the tour — Keith wasn't to be busted. Instead, the FBI supplied the guitarist with drugs during his stay in America. Hmmm... And, scoop of scoops, it's finally revealed that Ron Wood was the Stone who had a "romantic interlude" with Margaret Trudeau in Toronto, so now (thank God) I won't have to read Trudeau's autobiography.

Up And Down With The Rolling Stones may be intriguing reading for Stones' fans. Just be prepared to take the bad with the good. But then again, you may simply wanna save your money for the next Stones' LP. After all, it's the music that counts in the long run.

'My mother was a saint' but now who really gives a damn?

The time is here to reiterate a plea voice earlier in The State News and other places, summed up by the slogan, "Don't buy books from crooks."

The crook in question is alleged crook (gotta keep this legal, y'know) and former President Richard M. Nixon. The book is called Memoirs.

Now granted, you might be curious as to how he intends to weasel out of Watergate. After all, you know he's going to run for president again sooner or later, right? Nixon in 1984! Yeeesh! It's so fitting we almost gotta vote him in. Anyhow, you want to hear him out. After all, there's a First Amendment, right?

If this was Iran, Nixon would've gone down to a firing squad. Because this is America, Nixon's going to make a pile of money. Aside from his presidential salary, staff, expenses, improvements to San Clemente... oh well.

And the reason the time has come is the publication of this hefty two-volume tome in paperback.

Yessir, here for only $5.90 you can have Nixon's books in an edition all Americans can afford. After all, hasn't the author said, "I love America?" And for the philanthropists among us there's a nifty boxed set in the bookstores in time for Christmas. And still only $5.90! You get the box FREE!

If this were Iran, Nixon would've gone down to a firing squad. Because this is America, Nixon's going to make a pile of money. Aside from his presidential salary, staff, expenses, improvements to San Clemente... oh well. So we paid for all that. He was clever enough to sneak it past us, so I guess that's fair. But can you seriously contemplate plunking down even more of your bucks to read Nixon's excuses?

Free speech, you know the one? So whaddya gonna do?

The library! Go to the library and check it out. Or you can borrow it from someone who bought it because they didn't realize Nixon was making money off it. But you don't want to buy it. It probably isn't very good anyway. You ever read any other novels by Richard M. Nixon? First novels aren't usually that good, especially for someone who's never written fiction before.

Show Nixon and the publishers you have some scruples about what you read. Regency Romances yes, books by crooks no. Would you have bought Adolf Hitler's memoirs? NO! You would've waited until you had to read them for a class. Only history and poli-sci students should be forced to buy the book and that only after Nixon's been relegated to his historical niche.

Galumphing Gourmet

By JOHN NEILSON
State News Reviewer

As the Galumphing Gourmet for this "great collegiate newspaper," it's one's solemn duty to investigate any and all purveyors of fast food, junk food — and above all, cheap food — in the East Lansing area. Burgers, burritos, pizzas, ice cream, fish sandwiches, hot dogs, submarines — all these and more have been held up to the blinding light of truth for the masses before undergoing their ultimate acid test in the Gourmet's gut.

This search for truth, however, is not without its drawbacks. One cannot live on a daily diet of such delicacies without eventually becoming immune to their charms, and let's be honest about it: one Big Mac tastes exactly like every other Big Mac. The Gourmet, therefore, is often reduced to wandering the streets in a mindless stupor, seeking new thrills in his mass-produced world, ever on the lookout for the bright neon sign that promises true happiness and delivers it over a grease-stained counter wrapped in paper with an order of fries and a Coke on the side. It's an aspect of the job that they never told him about back in Gourmet School.

Imagine the Gourmet's surprise, then, when on a recent walk past the beckoning sirens of East Lansing's "hamburger row" he was suddenly confronted with a new name in town. The Gourmet froze in his tracks, awe-struck before the visage of the only man who could deliver him from the depths of his fast-food ennui.

Popeye!!!
The Gourmet's heart raced as his jaded salivary glands poured forth their fluids with renewed vigor. Here was a fast food stand stunning in its uniqueness, mind-boggling in its profundity, and truly sublime in comparison to its earthly neighbors. The Gourmet marvelled at the American ingenuity that could apply the fast-food concept and technology to a once-overlooked and much-slandered foodstuff, making it so appealing that Moms and kids alike would clamor for it nationwide. Fast-food spinach — how could it possibly fail?

But alas, it was not to be. The Gourmet had no sooner stepped inside the glistening new stand when his well-trained nostrils told him that he had been tricked, for the food that Popeye, Olive Oyl, Brutus et al were hawking at him was not what he had expected at all. From every wall his childhood heroes beckoned to him — not with burst-open cans of life-saving Spinach — but with chicken drumsticks, instead. The Gourmet was crestfallen, but since new thrills are new thrills, spinach or not, he elected to give the place a try anyway.

Unlike most chicken places, Popeye's gives their patrons a choice among different parts of the bird, so the Gourmet was soon seated before a tray containing two juicy breasts, (and a pair of free buns) a cup of "Cajun Rice," and the ubiquitous Coke. Blinking back the tears of betrayal he felt, he sank his teeth into one of the breasts...

And then he noticed something strange. Even after swallowing his bite he felt a warm glow throughout his mouth that was not unlike the ones he got from Mexican food. This stuff was spicy! And good!! Here was a place that took the colonel's crispy-styled chicken and made it better by jazzing it up with "New Orleans-style" spices, and boy, was it tasty!

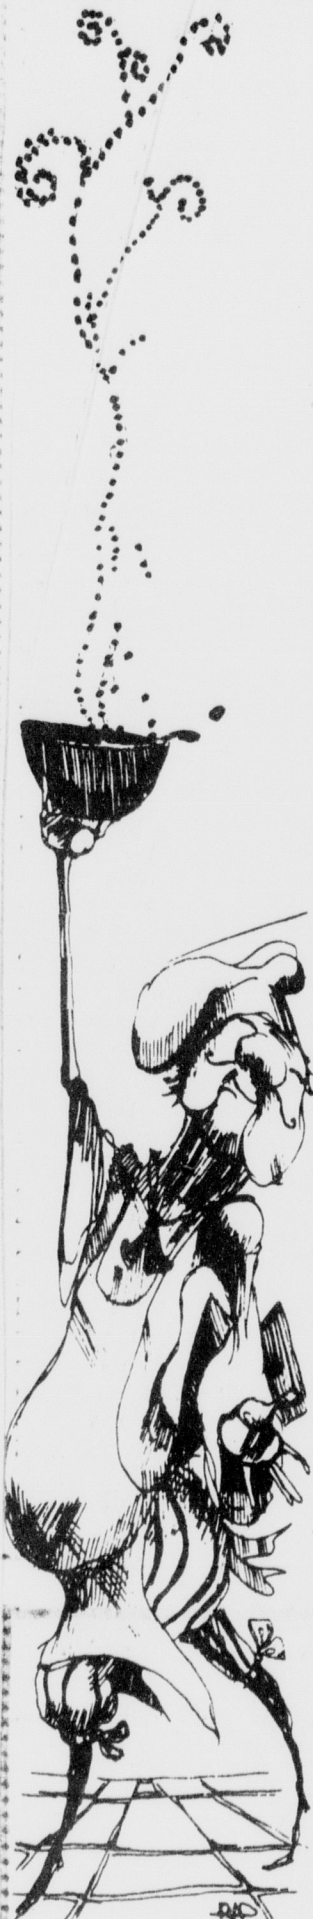

After a cooling sip from his Coke he then tried a mouthful of the rice, which was loaded with bits of ground beef, ground giblets, green onions, and spices. The glow in his mouth intensified as the tears of betrayal turned to tears of joy.

The Gourmet cleared his tray in a food-crazed frenzy, only to find that he still had room for more. Scanning the menu, he passed over the clam dinner and assorted side dishes and finally settled for some thing that would feed the fires that were glowing on his tongue. A chicken taco should do the trick, he reasoned, and since anything worth doing is worth overdoing, he ordered two. With extra hot sauce. For a split second he considered buying one of the green Jalapeno peppers that were available for a dime apiece, then decided that that might be too hard-core.

It was a very full and happy Gourmet that eventually wandered out from Popeye's into the darkening East Lansing night. As the cars raced past him on Grand River, the Gourmet found himself humming a long forgotten tune, and soon the words, too, emerged from the depths of his subconscious:

"I'm Popeye the sailor-man,
I'm Popeye the sailor-man,
I'm strong to the finish
'Cause I eats my..."
Oh, well, he mused, you can't go home again. But he did, anyway.

Judge rules IQ tests inaccurate; 'unlawful discriminatory intent'

By BERNARD HURWITZ
Associate Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — IQ tests that lead to the placement of an unusually large number of black youngsters in so-called mentally impaired classes were ruled unconstitutional by a federal judge Tuesday.

Chief U.S. District Judge Robert F. Peckham, ruling in a statewide class action suit filed in 1971 on behalf of five black children, said the use of standardized IQ tests to place children in educable mentally retarded (EMR) classes violated recently enacted federal laws and the state and federal constitutions.

The judge said the evidence showed IQ tests were developed on white populations and not adjusted or even re-examined when it became clear that certain groups — notably blacks and Hispanics — received low scores.

His decision also extended a ban on IQ testing for placement of blacks into EMR classes. Peckham had ruled in 1972 that no black children in San Francisco could be placed in EMR classes based on IQ test results. He expanded the order to the rest of the state in 1974.

PECKHAM'S DECISION ORDERED the state to retest the youngsters now assigned to the special classes. He also ordered the state to review its assignment criteria and receive court approval before resuming use of standardized intelligence tests on black children for placement purposes.

In his decision, Peckham said the history of IQ tests and special education in California "revealed an unlawful discriminatory intent . . . the intent was not necessarily to hurt black children, but it was an intent to assign a grossly disproportionate number of black children to the special, inferior and dead-end EMR classes."

Peckham said the high number of blacks enrolled in EMR classes has "less than one-in-a-million chance of happening by a color-blind system of assignment."

EMR classes, the decision said, are for "children who, while not severely retarded, are incapable of mastering the skills taught in the regular curriculum." The classes focus on physical hygiene, grooming and social adjustment rather than academic skills.

In 20 California school districts that accounted for 80 percent of the enrollment of black children in 1974-75, blacks comprised 27.5 percent of the student population but 62 percent of the EMR enrollment, the judge said.

EVIDENCE SHOWED THAT black youngsters score on the average one standard statistical deviation below white children on standardized tests such as the Weschler Intelligence Scale for Children or the Stanford Binet Intelligence scale, Peckham said.

Consequently, 15 percent of black children as compared to about 2 percent of white children are assigned to EMR classes, he said.

Here's How to Win

In each week's paper on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the State News will print a different qualifying number. To qualify for that week's drawing all you have to do is match at least three digits of your Student ID number with that week's numbers. You need not use all three numbers and you may use repeat digits as multiple qualifiers. You may match more than three numbers also.

If you qualify for that week's drawing simply fill out the coupon on this page and drop it off at one of the boxes located around campus. We will draw ten finalists from each week's entries. Each week's entries must be deposited by Thursday noon. No purchase is required.

FORMER INTERIOR MINISTER INVOLVED

Afghan president crushes mutiny

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India — President Hafizullah Amin's month-old pro-Soviet government has crushed a day-long army mutiny about 15 miles west of Afghanistan's capital city of Kabul, reliable diplomatic reports said Tuesday.

A well-connected Asian diplomat said the rebelling army unit was believed loyal to former Interior Minister Col. Aslam Watanjar, who headed an anti-Amin faction within the ruling Khalq (People's) Party and is still linked to the government overthrown last month.

There was no information immediately available about the number of troops involved or casualties in the revolt. Watanjar's whereabouts was not known.

It was the fourth army mutiny since the April 27, 1978, coup which brought the Khalq Party to power, but the first since the American-educated Amin assumed the presidency

Sept. 16.

ACCORDING TO RADIO Kabul, Amin presided over a six-hour emergency meeting of his cabinet Tuesday to discuss the mutiny.

Firing heard in Kabul began Sunday evening and continued through Monday afternoon, according to one diplomatic source who, like the others interviewed, asked to remain anonymous.

Diplomatic reports said the tanks and armored personnel carriers were brought into the streets of Kabul and parked outside key ministries and strategic points in the mile-high city, strengthening security for Amin's increasingly isolated government.

Pakistani sources said the tanks were withdrawn Tuesday, but soldiers remained and the city was described as very tense.

The official version of the mutiny broadcast by state-run Radio Afghanistan said loyal troops crushed an attempted uprising and reported the arrest of six "reactionary conspirators."

HOWEVER, ONE OF the six identified, the former mayor of Kabul, was reported under detention last week. And not one of the six persons identified was an active military officer.

The army mutiny followed a recent intensification in the nationwide civil war. Rebel tribes who have declared a "jihad" or Moslem "holy war" against Amin and his supporters, are believed in control of about half the countryside.

The worsening of morale within the armed forces, growing dissidence in the ruling party and continued pressure from insurgents have combined to put Amin in an extremely vulnerable position, foreign specialists say.

UAW negotiating pact concessions

By JAMES V. HIGGINS
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT—United Auto Workers union executives labored Tuesday over plans to grant contract concessions to the struggling Chrysler Corp. while negotiations continued on several touch issues.

A UAW spokesperson said the union hoped to present a money proposal to Chrysler Wednesday.

Any such proposal would amount to a lesser settlement for Chrysler workers than won earlier this year for their counterparts at General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co.

UAW President Douglas Fraser said Monday the union would relieve Chrysler of some of the burden of the huge auto industry pattern settlement reached at GM and Ford.

THE UAW WILL work to design a contract proposal, he said, that protects workers and ensures they do not bear a disproportionate burden of aiding the company.

UAW and company officials declined comment on progress of the talks, which resumed Monday at Chrysler after delays caused by targeted bargaining at Ford and GM.

There was intense subcommittee level bargaining on dozens of contract terms, including three of the most important areas of UAW concern.

Discussions focused on the company's supplemental Unemployment Benefits fund, which was depleted for low seniority workers earlier this year under the pressure of mounting layoffs.

The UAW wants to beef up the SUB fund, which provides laid off workers with up to 90 percent of their regular take home pay.

ANOTHER KEY AREA was representation. The union has made far-reaching demands for a seat on the company's board of directors and a voice in management decisions at all other levels.

There was also bargaining on pensions, which represented a substantial portion of the gains won at Ford and GM.

Those contracts, covering 657,000 U.S. autoworkers, provide a 3 percent annual wage hike, an improved cost of living formula, 26 paid personal holidays, pension increases and a blue collar stock ownership program.

The UAW represents another 101,000 U.S. workers at Chrysler, including those on indefinite layoff with recall rights.

Union officials have not yet set a negotiating deadline.

Chrysler has said its losses this year and in 1980 could reach $1.5 billion and is seeking loan guarantees from the federal government to tide it over to 1981, when it expects to show a profit.

Off-Campus Council discusses rent control

The possibility of lobbying for bills concerning rent control and security deposit regulations will be one of the topics of discussion at the Off-Campus Council meeting 7 tonight in 328 Student Services Bldg.

Other topics included on the agenda are a guide to availability and quality of housing in East Lansing and methods for establishing better communication between student residents and East Lansing homeowners.

Off-Campus Council was re-established as a major governing group under ASMSU last spring.

The purpose of the council is to represent off-campus students, defined as those not living in MSU residence halls, University apartments, sororities, fraternities or recognized cooperative housing.

All students who applied for interim positions on the council should attend, but all other off-campus students are welcome.

 statutorily mandated functions of his office," the court ruled.
 It said the trial court's assumption that the county's lower crime rate would reduce caseloads was inaccurate.

Noise level hearing set

The Michigan Department of Transportation will conduct a hearing on vehicle noise at 9:30 A.M. Thursday in the Law Building Auditorium in the Capitol Complex.

The hearing is to provide public discussion on proposed administrative rules which will enforce the vehicle noise control law enacted last year.
 The proposed rules include noise level standards, noise measurement procedures and enforcement procedures for new and used vehicles.

county any suggestions for increasing the prosecutor's budget, but said commissioners can consider staff cuts from the prosecutor's consumer protection division.

The court's decision marks the latest blow to Wayne County's financial situation. In August, the state Municipal Finance Commission rejected its request to borrow $22 million on anticipated tax revenues saying the county must devise a plan to bail itself out of its financial problems.

Attempts by a task force of legislators, county and Detroit officials, business persons and labor leaders to reorganize Wayne County's government now appear stalled.

the Billy Taylor Trio

One of jazz' truly great artists, Billy Taylor brings his trio to MSU for a debut appearance and a lecture-demonstration earlier in the day. Joining Mr. Taylor are FREDDIE WAITS on drums, whose "strong but sensitive playing" the N.Y. Times recently praised, and VICTOR GASKIN, one of the most prominent jazz bass players in the country. "In jazz parlance, the Billy Taylor Trio "cooks." The program will feature music of Ellington/Strayhorn and Taylor.

BINGEBREAD PRODUCTIONS presents
FORREST TUCKER
 Jerome Kern & Oscar Hammerstein II's
SHOW BOAT

MCQUEEN

Based on the novel "SHOW BOAT" by EDNA FERBER

A musical theatre classic, SHOWBOAT is as enjoyable today as it was in the late 20s when it exploded on Broadway and became an instant success. With songs like "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man," "Make Believe," "Bill," "Why Do I Love You" and "Oh! Man River," SHOWBOAT is alive with theatrical excitement. FORREST TUCKER, known to millions of TV and Broadway fans, stars as Cap'n Andy. BUTTERFLY MC QUEEN, a revered figure in American show business for her unforgettable performance in "Gone With The Wind," is something close to an American Institution.

Six stories, one plot: The Romance of Our Age is Technology.

Rendezvous In Spain.

You're a software applications specialist. When you picked this career, you never dreamed that one day you'd rendezvous in Barcelona, Spain with two Navy destroyers.

But when your company is Texas Instruments and one of your customers is the U. S. Sixth Fleet, you learn to expect the unexpected.

The destroyers are equipped with TI computers and they need new software fast. You come aboard and sail with the Fleet until your job is completed.

Not a bad assignment for a software specialist named Susie. You're glad you got into technology.

The Incredible Talking Chip.

You're an integrated circuit designer at TI. You've helped find a way to make a chip talk, something no integrated circuit has ever done before.

First application: an electronic aid that helps children learn to spell. The world's first talking textbook.

And that's just the beginning. The talking chip's potential is mind-bending. You're glad you got into technology.

The Salesman's Dream.

You're a TI sales engineer. You've got what is probably one of the most irresistible selling messages in the history of salesmanship.

It goes like this: "Hold this TI-59 Scientific Calculator in your hand. Now, let's compare it to the most popular computer of the 1950s—the IBM 650.

The 650 weighed almost three tons, required five to 10 tons of air conditioning and 45 square feet of floor space. And it cost $200,000 in 1955 money.

Now look at the TI-59 Calculator you're holding in the palm of your hand. It has a primary memory capacity more than double that of the 650. It performs its principal functions five to 10 times faster. And it retails for under $300."

With a story like this, the hardest part of your job is holding onto your sample. You're glad you got into technology.

The Joy Of Complication.

You're in semiconductor design at TI. You love it when people at parties ask you what you do. You say, "I make things complicated." (Pause.)

"In fact, I got promoted recently for creating some major complications."

What you mean (but seldom explain) is this: the more active element groups (AEGs) you can put on a single chip of silicon, the more the average AEG cost goes down.

In short, you make things cheaper by making them more complicated.

Your work made it possible for a TI consumer product that sold three years ago for about $70 to sell today for $14.95.

Your future looks wonderfully complicated. You're at about 100,000 AEGs per chip now and 1,000,000 is in sight.

You're glad you got into technology.

Outsmarting Smog.

You've always designed airborne radars for TI customers.

Now, all of a sudden you know your next radar design is going to stay at the airport. On the ground.

It's on the ground that traffic controllers at Los Angeles International Airport have a problem. They can "see" incoming and outgoing airplanes on their radar just fine, so long as the airplanes are in the air.

But when the airplanes are on the ground—touching down, taking off, taxiing, parking—they are sometimes impossible to see and control. Ground smog obscures them.

You believe you have an answer to the smog problem. You dig out the plans for an airborne ground-mapping radar you helped design. You adapt the design so the L. A. controllers can use it to see through smog. It works beautifully.

Today your smog-piercing radar is widely known as Airport Surface

Detection Equipment (ASDE). It's standard equipment at L. A. International and at the airport in Geneva, Switzerland. Other airports with smog and snow problems are expected to have it soon.

You're glad you're in technology.

Oil Sleuths International.

You're a geophysicist. A good one. You could be with any of the big oil companies. But you wanted to get with a company whose specialty is the same as yours. Exploration.

That's why you're at TI, in Geophysical Service.

TI explorer ships, TI photo-geologic aircraft and TI truck- and tractor-mounted vibrator systems are working all over the world. They're finding oil. And they're identifying areas where no oil exists, thereby saving huge losses in drilling costs.

Also, TI's worldwide computer network and its Advanced Scientific Computer is making 3-D recording and processing possible. This exclusive exploration technique is the only practical way to unscramble "no-record" areas on land and sea.

You're a happy sleuth. You're in on the biggest hunt in history. And your team is out in front.

You're glad you got into technology.
