E.L. TO ANNEX 33 ACRES

Meridian files suit

By SUSIE BENKELMAN
State News Staff Writer

A 33-acre parcel of Meridian Township's land in east campus is scheduled to be annexed to East Lansing Dec. 31, but a lawsuit filed by Meridian Township may prevent such action.

The suit, which will be heard Dec. 12, originally named Ingham County Clerk Lingg Brewer and the election scheduling committee as defendants. Because of the election results, however, additional people will become involved.

Meridian Township has added East Lansing as a co-defendant in the suit.

Meridian Township's Attorney David VanderHaagen, said that East Lansing was named as a co-defendant because of its new involvement in the case.

"BEFORE THE ELECTION, these changes were not necessary," he said. "But now East Lansing has an interest. Before they had nothing to lose or gain in the suit."

The annexation was approved Nov. 6 by a 2-to-one margin in East Lansing and a 3-to-1 margin in the "pistol" area.

The suit, filed Sept. 7, claims that Brewer was not acting under the proper statute when he and his election scheduling committee scheduled the election.

Meridian claims that Brewer should have followed guidelines provided by the Michigan Boundary Commission for scheduling an annexation election.

Brewer followed guidelines provided by the Michigan Charter Township Act, which gives the county clerk jurisdiction for scheduling annexation elections.

Meridian Township claims that the civil rights of the residents living outside the "pistol" area, so named for its shape, were violated because they were not allowed to vote in the election.

THE IDEA FOR the annexation was initiated by County Commissioner Mark Grebner, D-East Lansing, who circulated petitions last spring to get the election scheduled.

Grebner claims the boundaries between Meridian Township and East Lansing cause voter registration confusion because they cut through part of Akers, Holmes, McDonel, Owen and Hubbard residence halls.

Meridian Township superintendent Richard Conti has also been named as a co-plaintiff.

VanderHaagen said that in order to challenge the results of an election, the complaint must be filed by the attorney general, the prosecuting attorney, or an individual. Conti, as a citizen, is named as an additional plaintiff, he said.

VanderHaagen said it "is conceivable" that Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Jack W. Warren will give an answer to the suit before the scheduled annexation date.

East Lansing would gain federal and state revenues of about $117,000 when the annexation takes place. The township would also lose the population of the land and liquor licenses which are based on population.

Warren could issue an injunction to block the annexation, VanderHaagen said.

DC-10 carrying 257 crashes in Antarctica

By ROBIN HALL
Associated Press Writer

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — An Air New Zealand DC-10 carrying 257 persons on an adventurous flight to the bottom of the world slammed into a volcano Wednesday on the ice-bound coast of Antarctica, apparently killing all aboard. It was one of history's worst air disasters.

The 237 passengers on the sightseeing flight included 12 Americans, the airline said.

A Navy C-130 search plane from the U.S. Antarctica base at McMurdo Sound spotted the wreckage in the sunlit polar midnight about 1,500 feet up the slope of Mount Erebus, a smoldering, 12,400-foot peak that is one of the world's tallest active volcanoes.

A swing around Erebus, on Ross Island off the Antarctica coast 2,000 miles south of New Zealand, is part of the 11-hour air tour.

"It looks as though it burned. No survivors have been sighted. They are expecting a complete fatality," said Navy spokesperson Petty Officer Mike Hatcher.

THE HARSH CONDITIONS of terrain, blowing snow and winds around the volcano kept Navy helicopters from McMurdo, 30 miles away on Ross Island, from landing at the crash site immediately. Hatcher said efforts were continuing to recover the bodies.

Authorities at McMurdo were considering sending a ground party either overland or across the sea ice of the sound to try to reach the wreckage and recover the bodies, officials of the National Science Foundation said in Washington.

The cause of the crash was unknown.

"The crew did not report any trouble in their last radio contact" at 2:30 p.m., Air New Zealand spokesperson Chris Smith said.

The airline said 191 of the 237 passengers were New Zealanders. Besides the Americans, the other foreigners were 24 Japanese, 7 Australians, 2 Britons and a Canadian.

The identities of the victims, who included 20 crew members, were being withheld until notification of next-of-kin, airline officials said. One of the crew was well-known New Zealand mountaineer Peter Mulgrew, an associate of famed Mount Everest conqueror Sir Edmund Hillary. Mulgrew gave the passengers a commentary on the sights.

THE SIGHTSEEING PLANES fly from Auckland to Erebus and McMurdo Sound, cruise at a low level over that area, then fly for 45 minutes north along the Victoria Land coast before heading out across the water for the return to New Zealand. Air New Zealand has operated the flights for the past three Southern Hemisphere summers, and this was the fourth of the season.

At 8 p.m. Wednesday, the jetliner was reported an hour overdue (continued on page 18)

The season's first lasting snowfall didn't deter associate professor Doc Niemeyer from swimming his mile in the outdoor pool under the watchful eye of lifeguard Diane Cheffins. The pool usually closes Nov. 1 but the lifeguards agreed to work in colder weather, so it will be open for all until Dec. 7.

Carter warns Iranians of 'grave consequences'

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Carter said Wednesday he is grimly resolved to win the freedom of American hostages in Tehran, but warned the American people that "our determination may be even more sorely tried" in days to come.

In a nationally broadcast appeal for public support, Carter said his administration "will persist in our efforts until every single American has been freed" and once again warned the Iranian government of "grave consequences" if the 49 captives are harmed.

"Any claims raised by Iran will ring hollow while innocent people are bound, abused and threatened," Carter said in opening remarks at a news conference.

Vowing not to bow to blackmail by the Iranian government, the president said, "We are deeply concerned about the inhuman and degrading conditions imposed on the hostages."

"FOR A GOVERNMENT to applaud mob violence and terrorism — for it actually to support and in effect participate in the taking and holding of hostages — is unprecedented in human history."

For that, Carter said, "We hold the government of Iran fully responsible... The government of Iran must recognize the gravity of the situation it has itself created — and the grave consequences that will result if harm comes to any of the hostages."

The president said he still hopes for a peaceful solution to the crisis, which began on Nov. 4 with seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

"Last night, a statement of support for the release of the hostages was issued by the president of the United Nations Security Council on behalf of all of its members," Carter said. "We expect a further Security Council meeting on Saturday at which more official action may be undertaken to help in obtaining release of American hostages."

"We hope that out of this exercise of international law will come a peaceful solution, because a peaceful solution is preferable to the other remedies available — for the United States and for the world," he said.

THE IRANIAN MILITANTS holding the embassy have threatened to kill the hostages if the United States attempts military action to free them. The militants have demanded that the United States return the exiled Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran to stand trial. The deposed monarch has been hospitalized in New York, and U.S. officials have refused to meet Iranian demands to extradite him.

In his opening statement, the president said he was proud of the support and patience shown by Americans during the crisis.

"In these 24 days our will, our courage and our maturity have all been severely tested. History will show that the people of the United States met that test."

"IN THE DAYS to come, our determination may be even more sorely tried. We will continue to defend the security, honor and freedom of Americans everywhere. We will not yield to blackmail."

Virtually every point in Carter's opening statement had been made by Carter himself or in statements issued through the White House in recent days.

White House officials said the president's purpose in scheduling a nationally broadcast news conference was to rally public opinion in support of a hard line on release of the hostages.

A news conference was coupled with the launching of a major White House effort to win public support for a no-compromise stand on release of the captives.

Letters and Mailgrams — signed by press secretary Jody Powell — were being sent Wednesday to 7,500 newspapers, broadcast stations and others saying Carter supported the ringing of church bells and writing of letters to the Iranian mission to the United Nations as a lawful show of public support for the hostages.

National Guard bases beef up security

WASHINGTON (UPI) — National Guard units throughout the nation were alerted Wednesday to step up security of armories and installations following a rowdy demonstration at a Michigan air guard unit by groups protesting any U.S. military moves against Iran.

A guard spokesperson at the Pentagon said messages were being sent to National Guard bases "to step up their own security measures, ensuring the locking of gates, protection of access points — to keep out people we don't want in."

On Tuesday, some 30 persons invaded the Selfridge Air National Guard Base in Mount Clemens, demanding that the base commander, Col. Raymond Even, warn Pentagon officials not to take any military action against Iran.

Mackey's recruiting record 'inaccurate'

By TIM SIMMONS
State News Staff Writer

Editor's Note: This is the second in a three part series on MSU President Cecil Mackey's past and present administrative policies.

LUBBOCK, Texas — When MSU President Cecil Mackey took office in August, the poor affirmative action program of his former university (Texas Tech) was seen as a possible trouble spot for MSU.

Administrators from Texas Tech University, however, claim the University's affirmative action record does not accurately reflect Mackey's efforts at that institution.

"I think that is an unfair comparison regarding Mackey," said J. Knox Jones Jr., vice president for research and graduate studies at Texas Tech. "This is an awfully conservative part of the country."

Conservative attitudes abound in western Texas and the residents of Hubbock are quite willing to admit they are five years or more behind other states in their attitudes. Western Texas was legally segregated only 20 years ago and Texas Tech was an all white university until about 15 years ago.

"MACKEY WILL BE far more successful at MSU than Texas Tech in recruiting minorities," said Jack Baier, assistant vice president for student affairs at Texas Tech.

ANALYSIS

"The entire state (Texas) has been slow in reacting to federal government affirmative action plans, and Texas Tech especially had no formal commitment in that area until Mackey arrived," he added.

The people in Michigan, however, cannot afford to be disinterested in affirmative action, Jones said.

"This isn't the place for that — they (minorities and women) will go elsewhere," he added.

In 1978 there were 1,462 faculty members and administrators at Texas Tech. Of these 1,462, four were Black and 19 were Hispanic. There were more than 1,000 White male university faculty members.

The poor affirmative action record at Texas Tech prompted the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to audit the university, along with several other Southern institutions.

In an effort to alleviate some of the affirmative action problems, Mackey hired James Bond from the Association of State Colleges in 1978 to investigate the university's program.

THE RESULTS FROM both of these studies have not yet been completed said Richard Cloko, affirmative action officer at Texas Tech.

One of the Blacks in Mackey's administration at Texas Tech was Moses Turner, director of student life.

Turner was hired at MSU this September to replace Eldon Nonnamaker as MSU vice president for student affairs and services.

"I think Turner's situation was probably a mixture of talent and tokenism," Jones said. "He's certainly a competent guy, but I don't think we would have promoted him to a position like that here."

Without Mackey's input, most administrators agreed an affirmative action plan would have never materialized at Texas Tech.

"IT WOULD TAKE the president, vice presidents or Board of Regents to get that (a program) done in our system," Jones said.

He added that Mackey never really had a chance to implement his programs, although (continued on page 18)

Soviets toning down economic goals

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leaders disclosed Wednesday that they have toned down economic goals for 1980. Their new plan calls on citizens to tighten their belts under a 4.5-percent growth rate based in part on slack oil and grain yields this year.

The overall growth rate for 1979 remains secret, but was originally targeted for 5.7 percent. Soviet economists say privately that it will be about 4.2 percent.

While Soviet leaders have not disclosed 1979 output for such key products as steel, iron ore and coal, President Leonid I. Brezhnev on Tuesday revealed the worst grain harvest since 1975 — 179 million metric tons, about 47 million tons short of the target.

Oil production was 585 million tons, 8 million tons short of the 1979 plan.

At the opening session of the Supreme Soviet, the national parliament that meets twice a year, Finance Minister Vasily F. Garbuzov outlined a 284.4 billion rubles ($439.7 billion) budget for the 1980 economic plan.

South African ambassador kidnapped

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A group of about 10 rebels, some armed with submachine guns and pistols, kidnapped South African Ambassador Archibald Gardner on Wednesday, police said.

Witnesses said the band, made up of both men and women, grabbed the 60-year-old Gardner as he left his embassy and forced him into a waiting car, which then sped away.

The ambassador lost one of his shoes on the ground in front of the embassy, a witness said.

Police said no group had claimed responsibility for the kidnapping and they had no further details.

Gardner has spent five years in this Central American country.

El Salvador has been plagued by political unrest and rebel kidnappings for the last year. Prior to the Oct. 15 overthrow of the rightist regime of Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero, kidnappings of foreign businesspersons and envoys was common by radicals demanding huge ransoms.

Few can afford homes at today's prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only a "privileged few" can afford to buy a new home today, as people are squeezed by record-high mortgage rates and rising prices, the chairperson of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said Wednesday.

Jay Janis said only 15 percent of potential homebuyers can meet today's monthly payments, a "severe drop" from past years.

People must spend about 36 percent of their disposable income for housing today, or about twice as much as 10 years ago, he told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

The panel held hearings to study the housing outlook in the wake of tight-money policies adopted Oct. 6 by the Federal Reserve Board. Since then, mortgage rates have increased from 10 percent or 11 percent to as high as 14 percent, while interest rates to homebuilders exceed 16 percent in most places.

The government reported Tuesday that housing costs rose in October at the steepest rate since 1947, and many economists say the worst is yet to come.

'Jogging rapist' continues attacks

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The slap of quick footsteps after dusk in this city's Northeast section sends a chill through the air. Little girls know it could be the "jogging rapist."

Since Feb. 24, 13 youngsters have been assaulted — five raped — by a runner in greasy work gloves who continues to slip through an extensive police dragnet. He struck again Monday night.

Police say the eight girls who were molested escaped by struggling or screaming. The younger victims — the 10, 11, and 12-year-olds — were raped. They included a police officer's daughter.

"The stalking, the hunt, they must be as sexually stimulating to him as the actual act, because he lets them go if they resist," says Lt. Gerald Baker, who heads the search.

There's a pattern to the attacks. The jogger, described as a man in his early 20s with sandy hair, stops and asks the child the time. Then he grabs her with gloved hands. After the attack, he tells his victims to stay put and count to 100. Some of the witnesses said the man was dressed in a jogging outfit.

Plane and crew from Kitty Hawk mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — A radar-jamming plane based on the carrier Kitty Hawk crashed into the Indian Ocean Wednesday, and its four-man crew was reported missing.

The Navy said helicopters and patrol planes were sent out to search for the missing pilot and the other three crewmembers. Officials said an investigation has been ordered to determine the cause of the accident.

The Kitty Hawk and five escorts entered the Indian Ocean from the South China Sea last weekend. The task force was ordered into those waters after the White House raised the possibility of military action in the Iranian crisis.

The Navy statement described the EA-6B loss as occurring in the central Indian Ocean. That would be about 1,500 miles from Iran.

Shooting spree in Philadelphia kills three

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Four people, including a 106-year-old man, were gunned down Wednesday as they arrived at a church for a birthday party for a century-old friend, police said. Three of the wounded died immediately, and a fourth was critically injured.

One of the dead was Moses Beckett, 106, said the Rev. Roderick Clark, church pastor. He said the party was for Beckett's 104-year-old sister, Ella Palmer.

The shootings occurred on the street just outside the church in a predominantly Black neighborhood of north Philadelphia.

"I didn't see what happened, but persons who looked out the door when they heard the shooting told me they saw a man indiscriminately shooting," Clark said. "They didn't know who he was. He hasn't yet been apprehended."

A spokesperson at St. Joseph's Hospital said Shade Sherman, 63, and Althea Dunmark, 65, also died from their wounds.

Edward Durrah, 75, was reported in critical condition with multiple gunshot wounds.

DENOUNCED FOR FAVORING U.N. MEETING

Iran replaces foreign minister

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini replaced his acting foreign minister Wednesday in what appeared to be a toughening of Iran's line in the confrontation with the United States. The Moslem militants holding the U.S. Embassy said Iran must not take part in a United Nations debate on the crisis.

In Washington, President Carter repeated his determination to peacefully win the release of the 49 American hostages at the Tehran embassy.

But, addressing a group of diplomats, he sounded a tough note as well: "The harming of innocent people is condemned by every law of mankind and God . . . It's extremely important that mob violence be contained and that international terrorism not be permitted to reign."

Abolhassan Bani Sadr was relieved of his foreign affairs post and replaced by Revolutionary Council member Sadegh Ghotbzadeh after the embassy militants denounced Bani Sadr's plans to participate in a meeting this weekend of the U.N. Security Council on the Iran situation.

THE MILITANTS, ECHOING Khomeini's own rejection of any Security Council decision, condemned the U.N. body as the "Satanic Council" and "Carter's mouthpiece" and once again refused to consider diplomatic attempts to end the 25-day-old standoff.

The United States "must return the fugitive criminal (the shah) and all the wealth he has plundered," their statement said. " . . . otherwise the trial of the hostages will be a certainty." They accuse the embassy staff members of being "spies" who should be tried for their alleged crimes.

The militants and Khomeini have repeatedly rebuffed Bani Sadr in his conciliatory efforts to find some solution to the crisis short of immediate extradition of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran.

Ghotbzadeh, who is also director of Iranian radio and television, has been uncompromising on the question of the exiled monarch's extradition.

But the new foreign affairs chief, whose appointment was announced after he, Bani Sadr and other members of the ruling Revolutionary Council met with Khomeini, told the Iranian news agency Pars that it was still undecided whether Iran will be represented at Saturday's scheduled Security Council meeting in New York.

OUTSIDE THE EMBASSY, meanwhile, Iranian Moslems staged new anti-American demonstrations Wednesday and paraded with Islamic banners in preparation for the highly emotional Islamic holy days of Tasua and Ashura, Thursday and Friday.

Shah to leave N.Y. hospital and return to Mexico within 10 days

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The shah of Iran will leave a New York hospital bed and fly back to his luxurious retreat in Cuernavaca within 10 days, his public relations office said Wednesday.

"It all depends on when his medical treatment ends, but we believe he will be here in eight to 10 days," said spokesperson

Mark Morse, in a telephone interview from the exiled monarch's rented Villa Dos Rios in Cuernavaca, a resort town favored by the wealthy.

Morse said he did not know if Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi had a new visa but added, "He must have it because he is coming back."

But a Foreign Ministry

source here said "no decision has been made to give the shah a visa and there has been no application." He added that the government is not opposed to granting him a new visa.

THE SOURCE, WHO asked not to be identified, said there was no indication when the shah might return, but he expected more information in the next few days after the shah recovers from an operation to remove a gallstone in his bile duct.

Medical authorities said the shah is suffering from cancer of the lymph system, and an official of the National Cancer Institute, who asked not to be named, said all facilities to provide chemotherapy and other cancer treatment are available in Mexico City.

When the shah left Iran in January, he first traveled to Cairo for a brief stay, then moved to Morocco for a while, then to the Bahamas before coming to Mexico.

The Mexican government gave the shah a six-month tourist visa in June, when he moved into the six-house compound, 50 miles south of Mexico City. But the government indicated when the shah left Oct. 22 for medical treatment in New York that he would have to reapply if he wanted to return.

Morse, who works for Robert Armao, head of the shah's public relations firm, said there had been no unusual activity around the villa and said it had been maintained and regularly patrolled by guards since the monarch's departure.

IN OTHER MOSLEM NATIONS

Americans want to stay

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Americans working in Moslem nations appear to be in no big rush to avail themselves of a free ticket home, despite fervent anti-American sentiment in several areas of the tightknit Islamic world.

The State Department has offered passage to the United States to "non-essential" employees and their families based in 11 Islamic countries. Some U.S. companies followed suit because of the U.S. Embassy seizure in Tehran and the attack on the U.S. Embassy in Islamabad, Pakistan, where two Americans were killed.

They have been anti-American demonstrations by Moslems in recent weeks from India to Turkey, and U.S. Embassy security has been stepped up in all nations with large Moslem populations.

Almost 400 diplomatic personnel or their families were evacuated from Pakistan after the embassy attack, but elsewhere in Moslem nations, while Americans may be staying low-key, they are not flocking to the airports.

"Everyone is going to sit tight, but if they want to go we will pay the fare home," said an official of an American company in Dubai, the United Arab Emirates. "Most of us have been here a long time. We have houses, cars, boats and so on and do not want to abandon them."

More anti-American sentiment is sure to be generated this week in Iran, where the Shiite Moslem majority, led by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, celebrate their holiest day, Ashura. Khomeini has called on Moslems to support Iran's demand that the United States hand over the deposed shah of Iran, currently being treated for cancer in a New York hospital, in exchange for the 49 Americans held hostage at the Tehran embassy.

OPRYLAND AUDITIONS '80

Opryland is America's great musical show park. Millions of people each year see our fully-staged musical productions. And for 1980 we need hundreds of young singers and dancers, instrumentalists and leader/conductors, stage managers and technicians.

As an Opryland entertainer, you'll get the thing most important to a show business career—exposure. Every year, many Opryland entertainers go on to perform in productions such as Broadway musicals, national commercials and network television shows.

Auditions schedule for Opryland

Ann Arbor auditions will be held Monday, December 3, 1979, 12:00-4:00 p.m. at University of Michigan, Michigan Union—Assembly Hall.
Detroit auditions will be held Tuesday, December 4, 1979, 11:00 a.m.-3:00 p.m. at Marygrove College, Alumni Hall, Madame Cadillac Hall.

OPINION

Human services

If MSU does not agree to partially fund the proposed human services facilities to be built at the Spartan Village and Red Cedar schools, then those facilities, though desperately needed, will not be built. The University must cooperate and help to fund the facilities.

Primarily, the center will offer child care programs, since the current center at Spartan Village is inadequate to fill the high demand for child care in that particular area. One study estimated that there are more than 1,200 pre-schoolers living in the Spartan Village-Red Cedar School area. Most of the parents of those pre-schoolers are students needing a child care center that is both inexpensive and conveniently located.

The proposed facilities will provide many benefits other than just child care. Health care programs will be offered by the centers, as will library facilities and meeting rooms. There is an acute lack of space in Spartan Village for studying or for holding meetings.

The new facilities, in providing these services, will be of great assistance to persons in the Spartan Village and surrounding areas. The University should fully understand that.

According to a feasibility study, cooperation between the University, East Lansing, and the East Lansing School District is necessary if the centers are to be built. It is highly unlikely that any one of these particular entities will be able to come up with the entire funding for the center. Consequently, the city of East Lansing is relying on the other entities to contribute to the funding of the centers. The city has allocated from the Community Development Block Grant $500,000 of the $1.15 million needed to fund the project. However, it may decide to reallocate that funding to other projects if the University and the school district do not contribute funds.

The city should not be forced to solely provide funds for the centers. East Lansing has taken the initiative in developing plans for the centers, but most of the people who will benefit from the centers' services are MSU students living in Spartan Village or other University housing. The quality of their living environment is largely the University's responsibility.

If MSU does not help with the funding of the centers, then the people living in the Spartan Village area will be done a great disservice.

Oil price gouging claims resurface

The government must look into recent Saudi claims that some major American oil companies have been guilty of price gouging. It now appears likely that there are discrepancies between the prices some oil companies charge their customers and the actual cost of the oil to those companies. The actions of American oil companies cannot continue to be as sheltered as they have been in the past. Until the government acts decisively on this issue, gasoline and heating oil prices will continue to rise unchecked.

Earlier this week, there were more indications that American oil companies have been taking advantage of consumers by charging them excessive prices. Several Saudi Arabian oil leaders accused four major companies (Exxon, Mobil, Texaco and Standard Oil of California) of not passing on lower oil prices to American consumers.

The Saudis sell much of their oil to the United States at $18 a barrel, while most OPEC nations sell theirs at minimum prices of $23 a barrel. The Saudis claim that these American oil companies are taking advantage of their price restraints by either not selling the oil at a level reflecting its lower cost, or reselling it to other countries at higher market prices.

If these allegations are found to be true, and even if they are not, the Saudis will probably raise the price of oil. They feel they are being taken advantage of by some American oil companies. Why should the Saudis continue to offer lower prices when that only results in larger profits for American oil companies?

When enacted, the increase will once again prove that federal oil pricing regulations have been useless. Not only have those regulations been useless, but they also have not confronted oil companies' profits. The passage of the windfall profits tax may indicate to the Saudis that this government is serious in halting the unscrupulous tactics used by some oil companies. The tax will not provide immediate relief from spiraling fuel prices, but it may prevent an incident such as this one from happening again.

Many major oil companies have said increased third quarter profits are results of overseas operations. That may be so, but the relationship between the costs of oil and the prices charged to consumers is still ignored. Even if overseas operations have been stepped up, it still remains likely that some companies have been taking advantage of lowered Saudi prices.

... There probably isn't any better feeling academically than doing well on a test — it puts you in a good mood for the rest of the day. Conversely, there is no worse feeling in school than doing poorly on a test and feeling your heart go boom-boom-boom as you search for your student number on the list of grades outside a professor's office.

... Speaking of tests, don't you hate when 80 percent of the questions are on 20 percent of the material — the 20 percent you neglected to study?

... Movie recommendation: comedy fans should check out Start the Revolution Without Me, on the Classic Movie Series at Fairchild Theatre Dec. 1 and 2. Starring Gene Wilder and Donald Sutherland, this little known spoof of the French Revolution is right out of the Mel Brooks school of satire.

... Speaking of movies, when Star Trek — The Motion Picture comes out Dec. 7, look for MSU student Andrea Micallef's name in the credits. Andrea, who is a resident assistant in North Wonders Hall, had an internship at UCLA this summer and while there she managed to work on the Star Trek special effects crew: hence, her name is in the credits.

... Whenever I see somebody reading a book on campus, I usually ask the name of the book, and nine times out of ten I'll like the book, too.

... Sometimes during a boring lecture I'll look around and spot students in class doing some fine artwork on their notes. There are some really excellent closet artists at MSU.

... The only thing worse than a boring professor is a student who sits next to you and coughs, sneezes, and wheezes all over anyone within spraying distance — especially you.

... I liked the slogan on the Baryames' Tux Shop sign on Grand River Avenue recently: "We may not be attorneys, but we'll handle your suits."

... True Confession: when I was in the fifth or sixth grade, I used to look up "dirty words" in the dictionary. And, once in a while on a boring Monday, I still do!

... Of all the high school varsity jackets that MSU students still wear on campus, I think I see those bright red and gold ones from Troy Athens the most. (Maybe they haven't graduated yet?)

... MSU students wore many creative costumes on Halloween a month ago, but my favorite was the guy dressed as "Saturday Night Live" favorite, Mr. Bill, complete with a Mr. Spot, too.

... I often wonder who has the student numbers just above and just below my own.

... Anytime I go back to visit my old residence halls (Butterfield and West McDowell), I always check "my" old mailbox to see if I got any mail. Usually not!

... Whenever I find a crumpled up piece of paper on campus, I always read it hoping it'll be a juicy love note, or perhaps a treasure map, but it's usually just old economics notes.

... In our apartment, my roommates and I usually let the phone ring at least twice, even if somebody is sitting right next to it.

... Just one year ago today in the Detroit area, prices for regular gasoline averaged all of 63 cents per gallon.

... And finally, I stayed up all night last night just to see the sun rise — until it dawned on me!

... Good luck on finals, and have a nice Christmas break!

VIEWPOINT: SOCIETIES

Social policies unfairly attacked

By STANKAPLOWITZ

Like Mr. Sobhi, I strongly oppose apartheid. Unlike Mr. Sobhi, I see Israel as a fundamentally legitimate, democratic and decent society. It certainly is not a perfect society, and some of its current policies, such as those on the settling of the West Bank, are wrong. Considering the constant threats to its survival, Israel has behaved far more decently than most nations.

Mr. Sobhi has used history very selectively to make his case about the relationship between Zionism and apartheid. Through-out the '50s and '60s, Israel maintained close, friendly relations with most of the nations of Black Africa, providing them with a large amount of valuable technical assistance. Relations with South Africa were calm, and Israel regularly voted for anti-apartheid resolutions in the United Nations.

It was not until 1973 that the relationship between Israel and South Africa became closer. Mr. Sobhi's letter inadvertently helps prove my point. He says that diplomatic relations were upgraded to embassy level in 1973, (thus proving the minimal relationship existing prior to that) and almost every example of co-operation he cites occurred before 1973. One of the few examples is the group of "racist mercenaries" who helped Israel in 1947 and again in 1967. This was a group of individual Jews from South Africa that went to help Israel fight for its survival.

What happened in 1973? The Arabs began to use oil as a political weapon. By offering a small amount of their new wealth to the nations of Black Africa, they got almost all of those nations to break relations with Israel.

By threatening to withhold oil from the advanced nations of the world, they got Japan and some countries in western Europe to be very wary about giving economic, political or military assistance to Israel.

Seeing its friendships with African nations as offering no protection from the hard realities of economic power, and feeling increasingly isolated and vulnerable, Israel, like every other country, put survival as its first goal. It dealt with those countries offering trade and co-operation. Even now, Israel's relations with South Africa are by no means unique. Many other nations have close relations with that government.

Mr. Sobhi concludes with a call for the destruction of Zionism. Let us be clear on what that would mean. At best it means the destruction of three million homeless refugees. At worst, it means genocide.

Mr. Sobhi is also supportive of ending apartheid and of securing justice for the Palestinians. These are admirable goals, but giving Israel justice (security) is essential for the second goal and helpful for the first. While some Israelis want perpetual control of the West Bank, most would gladly give up control if they can be sure that will not be used as a base to terrorize and destroy Israel. As for apartheid, when the nations of the Third World return to their earlier knowledge that Zionism is a legitimate national liberation movement and once again offer Israel the trade opportunities vital to its survival, those nations will bring back the days when Israel cast its lot with the enemies of apartheid.

Lack of research badgers paper

Who is this Michael Semer character complaining about giving more money to The State News? Did he not research the claims presented in the letter before he went on his wild and slanderous attack against the paper? It is obvious that he did not. If he had, then he would have realized that many of the accusations he made against the paper were totally lacking substance.

For instance, in his letter he asked "What are we getting for our extra money?" Well, if he were to take a close look at The State News, he would realize that we are getting a good paper and a lot more than we pay for.

The State News is not obligated to print the paper for the students here. It is doing us a service. Why cry at paying a few more well deserved pennies to The State News when there has not been as great an uproar about paying the $18 annually just to keep Olin Health Center open and "functioning?"

When I read letters like Mr. Semer's, I wonder why some people have such a valiant disregard for factual information. I am sure you will be pleased to know, Mr. Semer, The State News is not the only paper in the East Lansing area. The Lansing State Journal covers East Lansing events quite extensively. There are several other publications covering newsworthy events in Ingham County.

Mr. Semer, I am afraid you also have a misunderstanding about the role of a newspaper. A paper should not be silent and just blandly report the issues to the community, as I am sure you would love for The State News to do. The State News is, and should be, one of the strong voices of the East Lansing community. Keep it that way. So, give the paper 50 cents. It deserves a lot more.

Uninformed complicate issue

In response to David E. Paul's letter of Nov. 26, "Entire budget should be reviewed," I have several comments to make.

First, I do not recall every meeting Mr. Paul. He may have been one of the several people who called ASMSU for information the evening before the rally. If this were the case, then the statement that was given to callers by me was drawn from an informal discussion with Sen. William Sederburg on Oct. 23. Sederburg's statement was that state funding for higher education has decreased in legislative priority in the past few years. (In 1968, higher education received 21.9 percent of the State budget; by 1978, it received only 16.4 percent.) Sederburg went on to say that the political "popularity" to support funding for higher education has declined, and to alleviate this, college populations must put in a stronger "plug" to the Legislature for higher education. This was the impetus for the rally.

Mr. Paul also stated that "ASMSU supports this unsubstantiated belief without any apparent concern and incentive to check with government officials for information on the state budget." Wrong again. The ASMSU Executive Staff received budget information from the Senate Committee on Higher Education. Steven Wachsberg, Executive Director of ASMSU, met personally with nine representatives and Senators, including Rep. Jeff Dongillo, co-chairperson of the Higher Education Issues House-Senate Subcommittee and with Lucille McColloch, chairperson of the House Education Committee. All of these people echoed the statements of Sederburg in that a stronger student voice is necessary to keep higher education funding from plunging even further on the state's list of priorities. They also agreed that a rally at the state Capitol was the best way to make legislators and the public aware of this problem.

ASMSU does not advocate in any way taking funds away from other government programs for higher education. However, we need to make legislators aware of rising tuition costs. Since 1972-73, tuition has risen 80 percent for juniors and seniors, and 78.4 percent for freshmen and sophomores. These increases are making it impossible for many to attend college. Our collective voice is the only way to make this problem known and prevented from getting any worse.

Mr. Paul, you are the one who is uninformed. Not only have you misquoted me, you have obviously not looked at the facts ASMSU has compiled for this cause. I invite you to attend ASMSU Student Board meetings and find out what the facts really are. Maybe then you can make the "rational and reasonable" decisions that you expect from others.

Mackey: 'U' must be more responsive to minorities

By PAMELA PENN
State News Staff Writer

By working more closely with the affirmative action program, the University could begin to rectify the problems causing low retention rates among Black students, MSU President Cecil Mackey said Tuesday night.

At an informal reception sponsored by the National Pan-Hellenic Council and the Office of Black Affairs, Mackey said the University would have to be more responsive to the needs of educationally disadvantaged minority students.

"Affirmative action has a direct concern with people making personal commitments to produce change," Mackey said. Affirmative action destroys existing complacency by forcing people to recognize the need for equal opportunity to help minorities take advantage of programs developed for their progress, he said.

MACKEY SAID VARIOUS factors had to be taken into account when evaluating Black students who are unable to adjust academically to the University.

Although there is a high rate of freshmen dropouts throughout the country, minority students are finding it especially hard to adapt to university pressures because of their cultural backgrounds, Mackey said.

He said there are still minority students who have not been adequately prepared for the academic pressures of college. Mackey pointed out that minorities, as well as other students, must evaluate their reasoning for wanting to attend college.

"If there is not a sound reason developed for attending college, there will not be a strong motivation to stay," he said.

Many students at the reception pointed out that university staff and faculty seemed unconcerned about the academic deficiencies that have arisen for minorities because of their cultural differences.

MACKEY AGREED THAT in the past, the admissions office has failed to recognize that the environmental differences of minorities have made their quality of education inferior to that of White students.

"The lack of good funding actions, legal actions and social actions have made academic quality in Northern urban high schools inferior to the quality of education most Whites are used to," Mackey said.

The University has not been sympathetic in meeting the additional academic needs of the Black student, he added.

"Although support services have been devised to help minority students adjust academically, the University has been less than satisfied with the progress of the program," Mackey said.

He said the Office of Supportive Services has not been effective in adequately reaching the needs of the educationally disadvantaged student.

"IT WOULD BE unfair for us to bring in students without making a commitment to help them develop their academic potential and receive an excellent education," he said.

The University cannot afford to create remedial classes without lowering the University's academic standards, Mackey said. The financial burden of developing courses that should have been taught in high school is more than the University can handle, he added.

Mackey said counselors and academic advisors who are sympathetic to the needs of minorities would have to be made available to the student. Also, higher positions would have to be offered to minorities to serve as role models for minority students, he added.

approval, it would be "in violation of the spirit" of the agreement.

IN A LETTER to the city council, Rhead stated that he would not support any resolution that came before the board that would bypass council consideration.

At the meeting Tuesday, Rhead said he is in favor of joining the agency because it would be the most "economically beneficial" option for the board to choose.

Boardmember Ray said after the meeting that the poll results would be only one consideration used when deciding the future source of energy for Lansing.

He admitted, however, that he would be "hard pressed" to vote against the wishes of BWL customers.

Marty Bakken, who last week unsuccessfully attempted to fill the vacant board seat, addressed the board, requesting that the polling firm be severely reprimanded for their polling practices.

SHERIFF DEPT. CUTS DEBATED

By SUSIE BENKELMAN
State News Staff Writer

The Ingham County Board of Commissioners said Tuesday it will entertain any suggestions made by the sheriff regarding cuts in his department for 1980.

A resolution which approves and deletes certain positions in the department was amended to publicly announce the board's welcoming of the sheriff's remarks.

"This way if the sheriff is unhappy, he can discuss with the Board of Commissioners and propose other cuts and changes," said Commissioner Mark Grebner, D-East Lansing. "This leaves us in a position where we can entertain any suggestions he may have."

"We're beginning to get heat from the union because they want to know just who gets laid off and who doesn't," Grebner said.

UNDER THE 1980 budget, approved Sept. 23, the Sheriff's Department is slated to lose funding for eight positions.

Sheriff Kenneth L. Predmore said Wednesday that he had been meeting with county controller and other county officials to evaluate his department and the effect of the cuts.

"Under the law, there must be sufficient money provided to the department," he said. "If I'm required to perform statutory requirements and the board isn't willing to provide the funds, then it would have to be referred to court. The basic objective is to maintain sufficient funds for the statutory functions of the sheriff's department."

Predmore said he did not see the resolution as a peace-making move between his department and the board of commissioners.

"This was merely a resolution which allows us to continue our debate," he said. "I have no problems with the board."

BECAUSE OF THE cuts, a citizens group has taken action to recall county commissioners Grebner, Jess Sobel, D-East Lansing; Thomas Mitchell, D-Williamston; and Patrick Ryan, D-Lansing. Ryan has since resigned from the board, due to personal and financial problems.

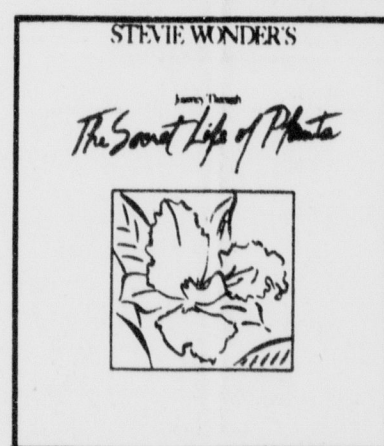

Thomas Mitchell, D-Williamston, said the amendment makes it possible for the sheriff and the county commissioners to carry on their "dual employee relationship." He also said the sheriff has always had the right to discuss the issue, but the amendment makes it publicly known.

In other business, the board voted to loan certain police equipment to Meridian Township. Meridian Township is in the process of establishing its own police department rather

Betty Carter's jazz is pure

By ROSS BOISSONEAU
State News Staff Writer

Betty Carter is a woman who has survived in today's musical world without compromising. With her albums available only very limited basis through Roulette Records and her own label — Bet-Car Records — and most of her older LPs deleted, she would seem to be little more than a musical curiosity. But Carter is much more than that: she is one of the first of the great female jazz singers (along with Billie Holiday, Ella Fitzgerald and Sarah Vaughn, among others), and she is the only one still in her prime.

Despite the dearth of albums currently available, her career seems bigger than ever. A feature story in Newsweek, several spots in magazines such as Downbeat and Hi Fidelity, and a general reawakening of critical interest in her has made the late '70s very good to Betty Carter, the "high priestess of bop."

Carter is fiercely individualistic. Her refusal to compromise musically has undoubtedly cost her more than a few dollars. But this doesn't seem to bother her at all, so long as she's still singing jazz. Her jazz. "But now you've got people like Flora Purim," she says. "She's not a jazz singer. She couldn't get on a stage with me or Sarah Vaughn or Ella Fitzgerald — or a lot of other ladies — and compete. She's a push button jazz singer."

When the name Al Jarreau comes up, she is a little more diplomatic. "He's a good performer. But just because you can improvise a little bit doesn't mean that you're a jazz person. Over the long run what do you do — what do you do over 10 years?"

She continues, "In jazz, the individual is not lost. In commercial music, the individual is lost. In jazz, the individual stands out, because you have to be yourself. I can't be like Sarah or Ella or Anita O'Day. But a record company can take a girl and make her into a Flora Purim or something like a Flora Purim, and everybody thinks it's OK."

"The young people coming up today just don't have the environment that I did. They're in a hurry. It took me years of hard work to get to where I am today, and it took others, like Dizzy (Gillespie), Ella, Horace Silver and Art Blakey, hard work and a long time too. But today, a youngster comes up, and the first thing he/she is told is to find a producer. Then they're ready to go. They don't want to take five, 10 years of work, paying dues, to insure that they'll achieve something lasting, like Art or Dizzy or Miles or anybody like that."

It has taken Betty Carter a long time to get where she is today. Starting out in Lionel Hampton's band (where she was given her nickname of Betty "Be-bop" Carter), her individualistic nature was not long in surfacing. "People would ask me whose band I liked better, Hamp's or Dizzy's and I'd always say Dizzy's, because his band was playing the bop stuff, while Hamp was still into swing." This led to innumerable firings (and subsequent rehiring) by Hampton.

Betty Carter

Since then, she has worked in a variety of settings, for the last few years in piano-bass-drums trios. When asked about recording with a big band today, she replies rather sadly. "Well, there's not a lot of big bands to do stuff with, unless you get a good club date or get a nice recording date. But it's not that easy to just run out and find a big band to do things with."

When the suggestion is made that this is another facet of commercial America, where only money-making propositions last (big bands obviously not being among them), Carter both agrees and disagrees. "It's not only America, it's the whole world. While it's true that Europe has more jazz festivals, after all that's where the Beatles came from, right?"

One area in which Carter feels that Europeans are a little more discerning than Americans is fusion music, that hybrid of jazz and rock with a heavy emphasis on electronics, often at the expense of feeling. "Fusion music has not really made it as big as it is over here. In fact, they detest fusion jazz. And a lot of it is dying over here as well."

The lack of feeling in fusion is what makes Carter so opposed to it. To her, jazz is feeling. "I just want people to feel what I do. That's the most important thing. When you see me, you will definitely know that I am a jazz singer. One performance — and then it's gone — it's over. The next night will be something else. For the audience to understand and analyze is not what I'm after. I just want them to feel. They can be dumb as hell, as long as they feel and enjoy."

Carter and her trio will bring their jazz to MSU this Saturday night. Opening the show will be the Sonny Fortune Quartet. Having stints with Miles Davis and Charles Mingus behind him, saxist Fortune will be presenting the audience with a taste of his Latin-flavored jazz instrumentals. Showtimes are 8 and 11 p.m. Tickets are $6 in advance and $7 at the door.

Midnight Ramblings

By BILL HOLDSHIP
RAMBLINGS — FALL, 1979

The Rambler is staring blankly at the TV set in this one-person cubbyhole his lease calls an apartment. He is thinking of friends from the past tonight, and his stoned mind ponders why certain faces sometimes pop up like a faded photograph or a scratched recording you remember loving as a child. The fact that people go away forever (physically and/or mentally) is the greatest human tragedy.

Video images flash before the Rambler's eyes as he pushes buttons on the cable box, moving rapidly from an ad for feminine hygiene deodorant to HBO where the former "boy genius" turned beached whale, Orson Welles, is narrating The Late Great Planet Earth — "When America becomes fascist, it will be called Americanism." He randomly switches to the MSU channel where a professor is lecturing on how some people believe that subliminal advertising can manipulate the way a society thinks, although there's no real evidence to prove it. And the Rambler switches to a film in which Alec Guinness, as Adolf Hitler, is discussing politics with his minister of propaganda.

The Rambler turns the set off, and decides that it's time for his nightly, vampirish sleep walk to the 7-11. (The Rambler is a foodaholic, an affliction which can be as miserable as being addicted to drugs or alcohol. The Rambler can momentarily anesthetize himself with food.)

On his walk to the store, he passes two drunk men, one of whom slightly resembles the Looney Tunes Tasmanian Devil, loudly singing "Where have all the liberals gone?" to the tune of Pete Seeger's "Where Have All The Flowers Gone?" The Rambler wonders why he only sees these kind of things at night when he's high, and he also thinks of how some people believe a revolution is coming back, while others are taking the sentiment of "Sometimes I feel so weak / I just wanna explode!" quite literally.

But the Rambler can recall another friendly face from his past — a cynical young man in his early 30s who once said: "Why did it end? Aside from mass paranoia, I guess we all liked air conditioning too much." Some drunken morons in a speeding Porsche swerve to scare the hell out of the Rambler, barely missing him as he cuts across the city parking lot to the store. They honk. He flips a bird and remembers that love makes the world go round.

7-11 always seems better in concept than reality. The Rambler can never make a decision, and he rambles around the store, looking lost. Two macho men in greek T-shirts are cooking burritos in the microwave. "But is it punk rock?" an inquisitive woman asks her boyfriend as Steppenwolf's "Born To Be Wild" blares from the radio.

Two women enter the store. They are beautiful in the manipulative Madison Avenue sense of the term. They know it. As he passes the rack with the Playboys, Penthouses, Clubs, Cherries, and 1980 editions of the Marilyn Monroe Nude Calendar, the Rambler wonders why sex only seems important during prolonged periods of non-participation.

He remembers how he sometimes thinks the world would be a better place without all this sexual tension, and how sometimes he even wonders if he wouldn't be happier not having to deal with other people at all. But he also remembers an Iggy Pop concert where — despite the outrageous things which occurred that night

— the one thing he remembers most is Iggy desperately telling his audience that "nobody wants to be ALONE!" (Alone comes soon enough.) Besides, the Rambler encounters at least several wonderful people every day who make him realize it's worth it and such thoughts are ridiculous. A comedian opens one of the magazines and asks him: "They're bigger than Dolly Parton's, aren't they?"

The macho men apparently know the two Madison women and have approached them. (The Rambler suddenly realizes why he always found Dan Akyroyd and Steve Martin's swinging Czech brothers so amusing.)

"Are you girls coming to the House Saturday night?"

"We weren't invited."

"You weren't invited!" He is genuinely outraged. "Who's your social director?"

The Rambler can't imagine why anyone out of kindergarten would need a social director, and he envisions Francis Coppola stopping a party to shout: "Cut! Not enough emotion here. Let's shoot it again." But the Rambler also realizes that in the end it all boils down to not wanting to be alone.

And the Rambler realizes that it really doesn't matter what he thinks because nobody seems to agree on anything anymore. He recalls a time of believing that he wanted to spend the rest of his life around an "enlightened" university environment, but he now feels out of place. He doesn't seem to fit in anymore, and knows it's almost time to move on.

He remembers a scene from earlier this fall. A large group of students were standing by the International Center watching a zealous evangelist preach fire and brimstone theology. The man's biblical interpretations were moronic, to be sure, but the crowd's jeers didn't seem to be any more intelligent. It seemed that all comments were being made less to express heartfelt ideas and more to impress their peers. The evangelist passed out some autobiographical literature, explaining that he had been a long-haired, hedonistic radical in the '60s before he repented and was saved. One particularly obnoxious person set the evangelist's literature on fire. The Rambler walked home in disgust, the flame blazing in his mind.

The Rambler is again staring blankly at his TV, watching Khomeini explain that it's all being done in the name of god. And while the Rambler remembers that God has always been on America and John Wayne's side, the only religious doctrine he can still believe in was expressed by the Christian mystic Thomas Merton many years ago — "We equate sanity with a sense of justice, with prudence, with the capacity to love and understand other people. We rely on the sane people of the world to preserve it from barbarism, madness, destruction. And now it begins to dawn on us that it is precisely the sane ones who are the most dangerous."

The Rambler recalls his walk home during which a person actually made eye-contact with him and smiled (the day's reward), and he thinks of the person who recently asked him why his columns in the paper aren't funny anymore like they used to be.

He drops the stylus on the vinyl disc. Tom Petty's voice snarls — "Modern men / Modern girls / We all live in the modern world," followed by a primal scream and a scorching guitar solo. For some reason, the Rambler always finds that line very funny. He sure misses his friends tonight.

Lansing's haven for young comedians

By JOHN NEILSON

Some people will do anything for laughs.

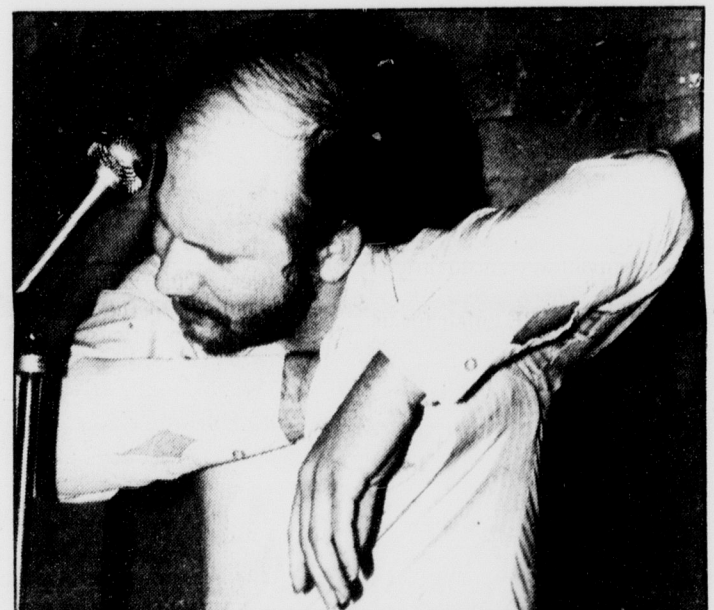

Take Joe Dunckel. (Please). Ever since his days in seventh grade, when his teacher would give him 15 minutes every Friday to tell jokes to his classmates, Dunckel has wanted to be a comedian. If the years since then have taught him anything, however, it's that it isn't easy for aspiring comedians to find an appreciative audience. Maybe that's why — years after his seventh grade debut — Dunckel recently opened a Comedy Castle in downtown Lansing as a showcase for people like himself.

Located in one room of the Alex's complex across from Bonnie & Clyde's on East Michigan Avenue, the Lansing Comedy Castle is a place where would-be Steve Martins, Robin Williams and George Carlin can see if they can cut it in front of an audience. Equally important, from Dunckel's point-of-view, is the fact that the Comedy Castle offers Lansing residents a place where they can go to see quality stand-up comedy on a regular basis.

Dunckel's Comedy Castle follows the pattern established in such clubs as The Improv and The Comedy Store in Los Angeles, Catch A Rising Star in New York, and the original Comedy Castle in Detroit. It was, in fact, after numerous appearances at the Detroit Comedy Castle that Dunckel got the idea to open a similar club here in Lansing.

"I was driving down there three nights a week," he said, referring to his many performances there during open-mike nights, "and I finally said 'the hell with this.' Not only were these trips expensive and bothersome, but it also eventually came to Dunckel's attention that — on any given night — a good portion of the Comedy Castle audience would be made up of MSU students.

With this in mind, Dunckel persuaded the management of Alex's to allow him to open up a local Comedy Castle in the Taffy's room several nights a week. Talented regional and national comedians would play there on Friday and Saturday nights, while Wednesdays and Thursdays would be devoted to anyone willing to sign up for open-mike time. Alex's would get the bar receipts, Dunckel would use the cover charge (usually $2.75) to pay the performers, and everybody would have a good time in the end.

"My motivation was not to become a millionaire or make a lot of money," Dunckel explained, "but rather to keep (the Comedy Castle) running and give comedians around Lansing a chance to (continued on page 8)

SUMMER JOBS ARE AVAILABLE

This summer how would you like to either work for the National Park Service or the Forest Service?

The National Park Service alone encompasses 287 areas in the United States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

Having worked for the Forest Service for three years, I know that the summer jobs available are ideal for a college student. Not only does the season coincide with summer vacation, but college education counts as work experience.

Some of the jobs available include:

- * Seasonal Park Ranger
- * Forestry Technician
- * Engineering Draftsman
- * Fire Fighting
- * Surveying Technician
- * Smoke Jumping
- * Seasonal Park Aid
- * Seasonal Skilled Trades and Crafts
- * Forestry Aid
- * Engineering Technician
- * Equipment Operators
- * Seasonal Environmental Scientist

Many other jobs are also included in the book including those with the National Park Concessioners.

To get these jobs you must know how and when to apply for them. I've compiled a job hunters guidebook that tells you all the qualifications, necessary addresses and forms you will need to get the job you want. Also included is the current salary information for the summer of 1980.

Don't cheat yourself out of this opportunity. Applications for these jobs must be in by January 15. If you act now, I'll send you, at no additional cost, job information on Federal overseas jobs.

EXTRA FREE BONUS

If you order right away, you'll get a free copy of "Federal Jobs Overseas"

I understand that if after 30 days I am not completely satisfied, I can return this book for a full and immediate refund.

'CHAPTER TWO'

Simon's autobiographical comedy

By WILLIAM BARNHARDT
State News Reviewer

Lecture Concert's Broadway Series brought the delightful Neil Simon comedy-drama Chapter Two to the Auditorium Tuesday night. The play was excellent due to an outstanding set, an outstanding cast, and a classic Simon script. In fact, a good script was certainly expected, given that so many Broadway critics were raving, calling it Simon's best work. Well folks, it was good, but it wasn't his best.

First, one can't help but applaud the drama's intentions. The play is Neil Simon's own story, concerning the death of his first wife and his attempt to marry again despite the problems and memories that still haunt him. Simon has depicted his romantic troubles in no uncertain terms, the dialogue is searing and frank, a new level of seriousness that former Simon comedies never attempted. (At present, Simon is writing the screenplay for the movie, which will star his real-life second wife Marsha Mason, playing herself. Hmmm . . .)

Second, one must applaud the wonderful cast. Gilligan's Island's Dawn Wells (remember MaryAnn?) played the second wife in the play, an actress named Jennie Malone. I was skeptical of seeing ingenious MaryAnn play the intelligent, determined, multi-faceted character of Jennie — but she played it beautifully, a perfect Neil Simon heroine, who brought the audience to applause with many stirring tirades and poignant deliveries. The "Neil Simon character" — novelist George Schneider — was played by David Faulkner. There is a subplot concerning Jennie and George's best friends, Faye and Leo (Donald Gantry and Kathleen Gaffney). Faye and Leo and their spouses have such abounding marital problems, that their role as comic relief from Jennie and George's George (David Faulkner) and Jenny (Dawn Wells) share a quiet moment together in a scene from Neil Simon's romantic comedy Chapter Two, performed in the University Auditorium Tuesday night.

Chapter Two depicts a new level of seriousness that previous Simon comedies never attempted . . . It is a delightful evening of Neil Simon repartee and insight into the playwright's life.

battles was well served.

THE PLAY'S two acts are as different in styles as Simon is versatile. The first act is Simon at his best, bitingly witty, sneaking lines of importance like, "Next to Christmas, loneliness is the biggest business in America" in between uproarious bits concerning typical Simon temperature-of-the-apartment jokes and what's-to-eat-in-the-house schtick. The second act is serious — too serious, perhaps. From the lighthearted romantics of the first act, the devastating tantrums and struggles of the second act leave the audience a bit surprised. The past is exhumed and exhausted, examined and then extinguished as Jennie encourages George to accept his first wife's death while George can only proclaim, "In order to get to the present, one must go through the past!"

Why Chapter Two is not Neil Simon's best play is a matter of subtlety. Simon's plays are full of fight scenes, all-out battles, and yelling contests. The humor interwoven in the arguments make for their power; for example Mel and Edna's nervous breakdowns in Prisoner of Second Avenue, or the California vs. New York custody-of-the-daughter squabble in California Suite, or the frustration scenes of insecurity and commitment in The Goodbye Girl. These fine scripts managed all the credibility and sadness of Chapter Two's darker scenes, but with much more subtlety, a cleverer job of writing.

Also the amount of second act time devoted to the subplot of Leo and Faye doesn't really serve to reflect the main character's ordeal, and it seems to be supposing to. To be honest, the audience would much rather see the likeable Jennie and George work their problems out, than watch Leo and Faye's affair fall apart. The continual interruption from Jennie and George's story makes the scenes appear hot then cold, then very funny then very sad, instead of that usual Neil Simon blend of moods and overlapping comic themes.

In short, it seems the main fascination with Chapter Two is that it's Neil Simon's story . . . beyond that, I'm not sure the play is all that important. Simon should learn from his ex-partner in TV comedy writing, Woody Allen, who managed his autobiographical Annie Hall without eliminating humor from the confrontation scenes.

At any rate, Chapter Two was a delightful evening of Neil Simon repartee and insight into the playwright's life. One thing that seems certain about Simon (as well as many of the major American comic filmmakers or playwrights) is that they all are making a healthy progression toward deeper meanings in social relationships, evidenced in the distance between high school froth like Simon's Star Spangled Girl and sentimental emotional works like Chapter Two. Simon seems to be in his prime now. And he's getting better.

perform."

The first step for aspiring comedians is open-mike night, where anyone with five minutes or more of original material is invited to try it out on the Castle audience (Call 882-7749 for a slot.). In the relaxed and intimate atmosphere of Taffy's room, it doesn't matter whether it's your first or fiftieth time in front of an audience — all that matters is whether you're funny or not.

"This is a learning experience for every one of us," Duncel pointed out, "and if you get up and bomb, so what? George Carlin has been doing this for years, and the last time he was in Lansing he bombed, too."

Local people who prove that they can draw the laughs will probably be asked back on later evenings to open for the headlining comedian. Duncel is hoping eventually to cultivate a stable of 12 to 15 "regulars" at the Comedy Castle, and suspects that much of the needed talent may come from MSU. Talent can show up where you least expect it, Duncel noted — one heckler in the Comedy Castle audience later came back on open-mike night to see if he could do it any better, and he may eventually end up as a regular.

Those that are serious about humor may also be able to use the Comedy Castle as a stepping stone to bigger and better things elsewhere. Duncel's connections with the Comedy Castles in Detroit and Cleveland (and affiliates that may be opening soon in Nashville and Atlanta) can be used to procure showcases there for ambitious comedians, and Duncel also noted that the Home Box Office cable TV network may be doing some taping at the Detroit and Lansing Comedy Castles in March. While these opportunities may sound like fantasy to ex-class clowns at MSU, one has only to look at such Comedy Castle alumni as Mike Binder to see the possibilities.

Binder — who has risen from a nobody to a national fame via such shows as Make Me Laugh since his appearances at the Detroit Castle — is only one of the may comedians that Duncel has lined up to appear in Lansing in the next few months. One of December's highlights, meanwhile, will be Leonard Barr — the 75-year-old veteran of 125 Tonight Shows, 300 Merv Griffin Shows, and numerous other TV and film appearances — who will appear Dec. 13 through 15.

In the few short weeks since he opened the Comedy Castle here, Duncel notes that he has already seen a lot of return customers, a phenomenon he attributes to the high prices being charged for entertainment elsewhere and the fact that movies "are so depressing nowadays." Comedy, he noted, is one profession where the only obligation is to make people laugh and feel good, and if Joe Duncel has his way, Lansing will soon be a much funnier place to live.

ZZ Top

ZZ Top — the raunchy trio from Texas — will appear at the Lansing Civic Center Sunday night at 7:30 p.m. Opening the show will be MCA recording artists Point Blank.

The champions of Texas rock in their rodeo suits, ten-gallon hats and cowboy boots, ZZ Top was formed in 1970, first coming to attention as the supporting group headlining acts were reluctant to follow. The band's hybrid of Southwestern blues and R&B with contemporary hard rock first met critical resistance, but the trio's dynamite performances and platinum releases — Tres Hombres and Fandango — soon guaranteed them a place in the hard rock hall of fame.

After a four-year hiatus — with no explanation of where they have been or what they have been doing — the performers have recently reemerged with a new LP — DEQUELLO. Tickets are $10 and $9, available at the Civic Center box office.

Icers' play is inspiring

If you're measuring the improvement of this year's MSU hockey team by its wins and losses, you're only looking at the tip of the iceberg.

Beneath the surface, in the heart of this team, are budding champions.

No, the Spartans are not a great team. In fact, it will be a few years before they can legitimately contend for a WCHA title.

But what this team lacks in talent compared to the universities of Minnesota or North Dakota, they make up for with spirited play.

TRUE, YOU CANNOT win consistently without the talent, but what this team is doing is laying the foundation upon which a successful program can be developed.

And what the Spartans showed us last Saturday night proved just how much coach Ron Mason and his talented staff have done with this team through 12 games.

The Spartans' 5-4 overtime victory over North Dakota was indeed an inspiration. After being totally embarrassed in a 9-2 loss to the Fighting Sioux the night before, the Spartans came out Saturday with an emotionally stirring performance.

The crowd of 4,291 that showed up after Friday's fiasco at Munn Ice Arena stood and cheered the players on several occasions during the contest for their determined efforts.

AFTER FOLLOWING THIS team for the past two and-one-half years, I've come to realize that the fans at Munn Arena are not only knowledgeable about the game of hockey, but they truly appreciate a team that never quits.

When North Dakota took a two-man advantage on a power play in the second period, the crowd gave three standing ovations to MSU goalie Doug Belland and the Spartans' defense for holding the Sioux off the board.

And even when North Dakota did finally put the puck in the net on another power play chance minutes later, the fans stood and cheered the Spartans' efforts as the lines shifted.

But what aroused my emotions most was when the fans stood at their seats after the final horn — in no hurry to get home after the three and-one-half hour marathon game — and applauded MSU's performance.

HAD I NOT been in the press box, I would have stood and applauded too. Not because I am an MSU fan, but because I sincerely admired this team's gutsy performance.

Although the Spartans broke four team records for penalties in the series, they always held their composure when it counted. This is something an experienced squad like North Dakota was not even able to do.

Mason says all he wants of his players is to be disciplined on the ice, give 100 percent and remember that they are representing MSU.

I can't think of three things this team did last Saturday in a more inspiring way.

AFTER THIS WEEKEND'S home-and-home series with the University of Michigan, the Spartans will have completed a most difficult first half of the WCHA season. Difficult in that they will have played all of the league's contending teams. Difficult in that seven of those 10 games will have been played on the road. And difficult in that the team has had to adjust to a new coach and a new system.

Through it all, the Spartans have held their own in the won-loss column. But beyond that, beneath the surface, the team has had enough character to sink even the Titans of the WCHA.

It can only be an omen of what is to come.

Big Ten basketball: it's still the best

By ADAM TEICHER
State News Sports Writer

Without much doubt, the Big Ten was the nation's toughest collegiate basketball conference a year ago.

MSU, the NCAA champion, lost five league games and ended up in a first place tie with the University of Iowa and Purdue University. The Big Ten supplied three of the top four teams in the National Invitational Tournament, including fourth place Ohio State University, runner-up Purdue and champion Indiana.

Believe it or not, most feel the Big Ten will be better than ever in the 1979-80 season. Of the 11 players selected to the Associated Press All-Big Ten teams of a year ago, only three — MSU's Earvin Johnson and Gregory Kelsner, and Purdue's Jerry Sichting — will not return to their teams.

Here is a look at how the Big Ten teams shape up.

(coach of Ohio State) because he's smiling so much.

PURDUE: The Boilermakers return four starters, including All-America center Joe Barry Carroll, the Big Ten's leading scorer last season.

Normally this would mean optimistic coaches and fans. But not at Purdue. The one starter it lost, Sichting, averaged 13.6 points-per-game and was the Boilermaker's best outside shooter. His presence in the lineup prevented opposing teams from sagging on the 7-foot-1 Carroll and champion Indiana.

IN ADDITION TO Carroll, forwards Arnette Hallman and Drake Morris and guard Brian Walker are returning. But most of the talk centers on finding a replacement for Sichting.

The leading candidates are junior college transfers Lee Cummings and Kevin Stallings. "These guys can score, but they both played at a level below Big Ten ball," assistant coach Everett Bass said. "They're unproven. It's safe to say we don't have a star here (at guard) and I'm worried about that. We're going to have to come up with some outside shooting to win games."

ILLINOIS: The Fighting Illini was one of the most interesting teams in the nation one year ago. They reeled off 15 straight victories at the beginning of the year and were ranked third in the country. Then the roof caved in. Illinois won just four of its remaining 15 games and finished in seventh place in the Big Ten.

One of the factors in the decline was an injury to center Derek Holcomb. Holcomb is hurt again and will miss the Illini's first five to seven games this year.

OTHER THAN HOLCOMB, the other starters are healthy. "We're going to play two true guards this year and this should help our ball handling quite a bit," said coach Lou Henson.

Last year, Henson played Mark Smith at guard, but has moved Smith, Illinois leading scorer last year, to the front court alongside Eddie Johnson. Rob Judson is back at guard and will team with Reno Gray in the backcourt.

"If we play like we can," said Johnson, "we can be a 20 win ball club."

OHIO STATE: Stability is the key word in Ohio State basketball this season.

"This is the first time since I've been at Ohio State that we've had an established starting unit before the season begins," said Miller, now in his fourth year as Buckeye coach after leaving Western Michigan University. "In the past, I've had to switch around and try new combinations for a while."

LEADING THE PARADE of returnees is guard Kelvin

Ransey. "Ransey has improved in all phases of the game," said Miller. This is bad news for Ohio State opponents because Ransey averaged 21.4 points last season.

Center Herb Williams, forward Jim Smith and guard Carter Scott were also starters last year. The addition is much talked-about freshman forward Clark Kellogg, whom many consider among the top three freshmen in the nation.

Ohio State's starting unit is so strong that a few experts are picking the Buckeyes as not only No. 1 in the Big Ten, but No. 1 in the country as well. But a weak bench just may hold them back from these achievements.

MINNESOTA: Probably the youngest team in the Big Ten, the Golden Gophers will start four sophomores along with one of the league's most underrated players, center Kevin McHale. Mark Hall and Darryl Mitchell are promising guards and Trent Tucker from Flint and 6-foot-10 Gary Holmes will team at forward.

THE BENCH IS untested. Coach Jim Dutcher says the first three Gophers off the bench will be two freshmen and a transfer from a junior college. Two key players from a year ago will not return. James Jackson is academically ineligible and Leo Rautins transferred to Syracuse University.

WISCONSIN: "There is optimism in Wisconsin basketball because of our wins at the end of last season," Badger coach Bill Cofield reported. Wisconsin won its last four games of the season, with two of those victories over Ohio State and MSU.

"We're more mature than we have been and we are giving indications that we are going to be more consistent," he added. (continued on page 10)

Grapplers tie Michigan

By BILL TEMPLETON

State News Staff Writer

With an 18-18 tie to open its dual meet season, the MSU wrestling team still has a lot of kinks to work out, according to head coach Grady Penninger.

"I was disappointed over it," Penninger said about the draw against the University of Michigan Tuesday night in Ann Arbor. "But the team was disappointed too and we all know we can be much better than we were Tuesday night."

MSU's Tony Uhlman came back from a big deficit at 118 pounds and decisioned Tom Davids 7-5, while the Spartans' Jeff Thomas beat Larry Haug, 9-4 at 126 pounds.

The grapplers suffered their first loss of the night at 134 pounds, as Bob Siar edged MSU's Gary Crump 3-1 in "a match we could have won," according to Penninger.

Jeff Therian won a 7-2 decision for the Spartans at 142 pounds, before David Rodriguez narrowly lost to Lou Joseph 10-8, at 150 pounds.

Penninger said he had hoped that Rodriguez could have won the match this year, after splitting matches with Joseph last year.

Greg Sargis, a freshman recruit at 158, beat Michigan's John Beljan, 13-8. The match was called "a good win for us" by Penninger.

MSU's Mark Varmette was pinned in 1:45 by Nemir Nadar at 167 pounds, before the Spartans came up with a 6-5 win from Jim Ellis at 177 pounds.

In the 190 pound class, "their best weight class," Penninger said, Mark Severen was pinned at the 7:28 mark by U-M's Steve Frazier, followed by the avenging of a loss last year by MSU heavyweight Shawn Whitcomb who decisioned Steve Bennett 12-7.

The grapplers leave for California Dec. 9, where they will compete in five dual meets against some nationally prominent teams.

"Cal Poly is the best wrestling team in California and has been for years," Penninger said. "We'll see them, along with Bakersfield and both are nationally ranked."

Basketball Big Ten style best in the country

The Badgers also have all of their starters back. Center Larry Petty lost 14 pounds during the off-season and Cofield says that "Petty is our most improved player. Having him in shape certainly improves our chances of having a winning season."

LEADING SCORER WES MATTHEWS, who hit the half-court shot that beat MSU in last season's regular season finale, and Dan Hastings are back at guard and Joe Chmielech and Claude Gregory will be the forwards.

"We need to have a good December," Cofield said. "We need that to keep up our confidence."

INDIANA: Incredibly, Bobby Knight is back as Hoosier coach and his team is one of the co-favorites, along with Ohio State, to win the Big Ten. The star for the champs is forward Mike Woodson. "He knows his job," said Knight. "Just get the ball into the bucket." A senior, Woodson averaged 21 points last winter.

Scoring may be a bit easier for Woodson with freshman guard Isiah Thomas in the lineup. "Isiah has played well in practice for the most part," Knight said. "Playing in Puerto Rico (for Knight with the Pan Am team) helped him make the transition from high school to college. His role on this team is well suited to his ability and temperament."

HOLDOVERS RAY TOLBERT and Randy Wittman will join Thomas and Woodson as starters, along with another freshman, 6-foot-8 forward Steve Bouchie.

NORTHWESTERN: "The injury factor in our case hurt us and kept us from putting together a season like we could have had," Wildcat coach Rich Falk said about last season.

Now that Northwestern is healthy and they brought in some impressive recruits, Falk is talking about having a winning season, and is doing so with a straight face. "I expect Northwestern will have a successful season and by that I mean a winning one," he said.

Leading scorer Rod Roberson is back, but Falk prefers to talk about freshman guard Mike Jenkins of Chicago, freshman forward Gaddis Rathel of Chicago, and sophomore forwards Jim Stack, who went down last year with a knee injury after only two games, and Bob Grady, who was academically ineligible for the Big Ten season.

DESPITE HIS OPTIMISM, Falk may find his Wildcats in the Big Ten basement for the second time in his two years as Northwestern coach.

MICHIGAN: Johnny Orr laughed a lot at the Big Ten's annual press conference in Chicago on Sunday. It was probably at his own team.

The Wolverines are woefully short on talent. Mike McGee has an abundance of it but hasn't yet learned to harness it.

But Orr, the Michigan coach, reports that this may have changed. "He is now playing as a team player and has earned the respect of the team. He has matured."

McGee will swing between guard and forward. Freshman Joe James may start at forward, but the rest of the lineup is unsettled.

"This team is better conditioned, they work as hard or harder than any team I've had," Orr said. "I like this team."

HE PROBABLY WON'T like this team so much when they start piling up the losses.

IOWA: The Hawkeyes are in much the same position as MSU. They were Big Ten champs a year ago, lost a couple crucial players, and aren't considered to be contenders for the title.

But with the Big Ten's best guard in Ronnie Lester, Iowa will remain competitive, at least. "We will continue to pressure full-court, run the fast break offense as we have done in the past and set some things up to take advantage of some of the players we have," coach Lute Olson said, referring to Lester.

To help get the ball off the board and to Lester, an 18.7 point per game scorer last season, Olson will start both Steve Waite and Steve Kraficisin, each at 6-foot-10. "We got our tails kicked on the boards last year and we are trying to fix that up. Rebounding is our biggest concern."

Kevin Boyle, perhaps the conference's best freshman a year ago, is back and Olson says he is "twice as good as he was last year."

FACE EMU TONIGHT

Tankers open season

By CHRIS HANSEN

State News Sports Writer

The MSU men's swimming team will open its 1979-80 season, traveling to Eastern Michigan University tonight and hosting Oakland University Saturday afternoon.

The Spartan tankers, coached by Dick Fetters, will be trying to better last year's dual meet record of 6-7.

This year's tanker squad will depend on the team's sophomores, as seven of eight returning letter winners are from last season's freshman class.

THE TOP SOPHS include Dan Majer, who was one of MSU's better performers last season, Fetters said. Majer swims the backstroke and freestyle events.

Other returnees vital to this year's squad are Scott Wilson, who was ninth in the 200-yard backstroke in last year's Big Ten finals, and Bob Lundquist, MSU's top breaststroke racer, who will also swim in the freestyle and individual medley. Lundquist was the leading scorer for the Spartans, with 117 points in meet competition last season.

Mike Borre, breaststroke; George Kruggel, butterfly; Mark Lancaster, freestyle; and Chris Rock, freestyle, are other sophomore letter winners returning.

Seniors Pete Saggau and Matt Johnson, along with freshman Mike Brown, an All-American from Grosse Pointe North High School, will be doing the diving for the Spartans.

THE LONG DISTANCE races will be left up to freshmen Kevin Hook and Matt Fetters.

Although the MSU tankers won handily over EMU last year, the Hurons will lend strong competition, boasting such talent as Jeff Romig, Mid American conference champ in the backstroke.

Saturday's meet against Oakland will show some close competition and make for an excellent afternoon of spectator fulfillment. The Oakland team will be displaying such talents as NCAA Division II backstroke champ, Mark Doyle, and national champ in the butterfly, Ian Dittus.

Saturday's competition will start at 2 p.m. and be held at the Charles McCaffrey Indoor Pool in the IM-West Building.

Women cagers set season goals

By BILL TEMPLETON
State News Sports Writer

The MSU women's basketball team, runner-up a year ago in both the state and Big Ten tournaments, has its sights set high this year and will center on a couple of goals coach Karen Langeland believes are attainable.

"We have set realistic goals to be undefeated in the state and in the Big Ten," Langeland said. "We are optimistic that we can regain the state title (lost last year to the University of Detroit) and make a strong run at our first Big Ten title."

If the cagers pre-season performance is any indication of what is in store this season, Langeland's thoughts are just around the corner from becoming reality.

A YEAR AGO, the team failed to adjust to changing situations, but with seven out of 12 players back again this year, Langeland is encouraged because of the experience factor, combined with better ability to adjust.

This year's Spartan quintet will rely on 6-foot senior center Mary Kay Itnyre and 5-foot-10 Nanette Gibson, both of whom were impressive during pre-season.

Itnyre has been playing with consistency, while Gibson has improved her shot selection and remained consistent with her shooting percentage.

The two were the Spartans' leading scorer and rebounder, respectively, last season.

Other players who figure to offer a great deal of support this year include junior forward Gale Valley, 5-foot-11 forward Laurie Reynolds, and 6-foot center Mary Vielbig.

VALLEY, ONE OF the MSU co-captains along with Itnyre, has extended her shooting range to 16 to 17 feet, an improvement from the 15-foot range she enjoyed last season.

Reynolds has been aggressive in her defensive play, while pairing that with more consistency in her outside shooting.

Vielbig has also been demonstrating greater intensity and has refined her offensive moves around the basket.

The cagers also have two freshmen recruits on the squad, forward Carol Meyers and guard Karen Wells, both of whom seem to be adjusting well to the program.

In addition to Meyers and Wells, freshman Jackie Carter, a 5-foot-11 forward, makes the transition to basketball following a successful fall with the volleyball team.

THE SPARTANS HAVE a tough road to travel in December as they open their season on Dec. 9 with a game against Ohio State University in Columbus.

The cagers then travel to California for the Cal-Poly Pomona tournament Dec. 13 through 15.

Continuing on its tough road schedule, MSU plays the University of Detroit at the new Joe Louis Arena in Detroit Dec. 20, before concluding its December route with the Queens College Christmas Tournament in Flushing, N.Y., Dec. 27 through 29.

The regular home season begins with a contest against the University of Illinois Jan. 5 in the IM Sports-West Arena.

Langenand anticipates that the Northwestern University Wildcats will pose her cagers their toughest challenge this season, after defeating the Spartans in last year's Big Ten championship game.

Swimmers host CMU

The MSU women's swimming team, with a 1-1 dual record, will open its home season against Central Michigan University at 7:30 tonight at the Charles McCaffrey Indoor Pool.

CMU coach Cheryl Solomon, an MSU All-America swimmer and two-year assistant under Spartan head coach Jennifer Parks, brings in a Chippewa team that will be making its season debut. Solomon's squad was 7-4 in dual meets last season.

CMU is led by Rose Trahan, last year's Midwest Regional champion and nationals qualifier in the 50 yard freestyle, and Ginger Warren, a standout breastroker.

MSU assistant coach Melinda Whitcomb says, however, that it should not be difficult for MSU to win tonight. She expects the closest races to be the freestyle events where the Spartans will pit their best swimmers against Trahan. Swimming the 50 yard freestyle for MSU will be Kyle Roggenbuck and Patty James. Mary McClellan, Kristi Pintzke and Roggenbuck will swim the 100 yard freestyle for the Spartans.

In other featured events, freshman standout Laurie Thompson, who already holds school records in two events, will swim the 500 yard freestyle for the first time in dual competition. Linda Mrosko will swim the 50 and 100 yard butterfly events, freshman Keli Emerson, who is the team leader in three events this season, will compete in the 200 yard individual medley and the 100 yard breaststroke, and co-captain Sandy Sarhatt will swim the 500 yard freestyle and 100 yard butterfly events.

All six of Spartan coach John Narcy's divers Jeannie Mickle, Patti McDonnell, Annette Kubiske, Amy Straith, Pam Burgett and Debbie Porter — will compete in MSU's final tune-up for its Dec. 7 meet against Pittsburgh, one of the top women's swimming and diving teams in the nation.

Marine Corps
College
And The Corps

The Platoon Leaders Class (PLC) is the primary college officer commissioning program of the Marine Corps. It is a leadership program, and the positive characteristics developed during training as a candidate will be of great value to you throughout your career—be it civilian or military.

What does it take to complete PLC training? It takes strength, agility, coordination, endurance, intelligence, moral and physical courage. It takes desire, determination and grit. If you think you've got what it takes find out for sure while you're still in college. And do it with no obligation.

You can join the PLC program in your freshman, sophomore or junior year of college. On campus you will not have to wear a uniform, participate in drill or attend any special classes because all training takes place ONLY IN THE SUMMER. Freshmen and sophomores attend two six week training courses. Juniors take one ten week course. Only after you graduate from college and accept your commission are you required to serve on active duty. Before then you may disenroll at any time.

PLC training is tough and we demand the best. Find out if you measure up. Contact us, NOW! Call Toll Free 1-800-292-5920 or see:

ASMSU positions available

The ASMSU comptroller, legal services co-director, and Programming Board chairperson will resign from their positions at the end of fall term.

James Peterson, ASMSU comptroller, has received an internship in Chicago for winter term.

Petitions for the positions are available in 307 Student Services Bldg. for interested sophomore and junior accounting or finance majors. Petitions will be accepted through Dec. 6.

Jeffery Muhn, co-director of ASMSU legal services, will be graduated this term. The director position will go to Co-Director, Brian Gaggin.

ASMSU Programming Board chairperson John Hayt will also graduate this term. A replacement for his position has not yet been selected.

At the ASMSU meeting Tuesday, Peterson said he was opposed to the idea of three student boards allocating money to registered student organizations.

Currently, the ASMSU Programming Board, the Student Media Appropriations Board and the ASMSU Student Board allocate funds to student organizations.

"It seems silly to have three boards to fund (RSO) groups," Peterson said.

Peterson also said the interest free student loans which ASMSU sponsors, should be increased to $40 sometime next winter term. The loans are currently $35.

In other action, the Budget Committee scheduled a meeting for Saturday at 2 p.m. in 327 Student Services Bldg. to review the current ASMSU budget, which expires Dec. 31.

A tentative budget was handed out at the Student Board's meeting Tuesday night. However, Budget Committee Chairperson Bob Carr said it was far from being finalized.

The Student Board would like to iron out all of the problem spots in the budget before it is to take effect at the start of winter term, Carr said.

Airlines may pick up United's cut flights

By BRUCE BABIARZ
State News Staff Writer

Four airlines said they are considering replacing flights to Lansing and five other Michigan cities that United Airlines has reduced service to state officials said.

American, Republic, Eastern and Northwestern airlines are reviewing the possibility of taking over the services United plans to drop next spring.

Members of the Michigan Aeronautics Commission met Tuesday with representatives of three of the four airlines to discuss United's plans for cutting flights to Lansing, Detroit, Flint, Grand Rapids and Muskegon.

"No commitments were made," said Robert Thomas, director of the commission. "We only received promises from the airlines to go back to headquarters with the proposals."

THE COMMISSION IS scrambling to find replacement services for the cities to be affected by United's scheduled reductions.

United said it is reducing services because of operating costs and a change in the company's structure from short to long haul flights, said Paul Elmen, manager of United's branch at the Capitol City Airport.

"United is looking ahead into the 1980s and the company believes it would be best to restructure from short-haul to long-haul flights," Elmen said.

United's reductions would eliminate about 50 percent of the airline's flights in Michigan. About 180,000 passengers were carried by United during the first nine months this year out of Lansing, Flint, Grand Rapids, Muskegon and Saginaw.

"It's not a question of volume," said Richard Hoener, vice president of American Airlines in Michigan. "It's a question of the economic feasibility of flying short distances with large planes."

HOENER SAID THAT because Republic airlines is already providing services to those cities, it would have the best chance at picking up services dropped by United.

But, Thomas said while he is not opposed to Republic picking up the services, he would favor a second airline to pick up the flights.

"If Republic were to take over all the services of United we'd have a single carrier," Thomas said. "If the employees went on strike and Republic couldn't operate, where would we all be?"

The airport officials affected by the cutback and the commission have recently asked the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board to prevent United from cutting services before a replacement airline is found.

"Our presentation to the board was well received," Thomas said. "They may be of significant help."

The commission may also take legal action, Thomas said, to insure the state can maintain its access to Chicago's O'Hare Airport should United pull out.

Search procedure reform bill approved by Senate in 30-0 vote

By LANI WIEGAND
United Press International

The Senate approved Wednesday a bill prohibiting police from conducting strip and body cavity searches in most misdemeanor cases and outlining procedures when such searches are permitted.

The measure was approved with no debate on a 30-0 vote. It now goes to the House for approval of a technical amendment.

A move to give the bill immediate effect after it is signed into law failed, however, meaning the measure will not become law until next spring, if it is signed by Gov. William G. Milliken.

In other action, the upper chamber placed in position for final action a measure banning smoking on public school property except in areas designated by local school boards. The bill was substantially weakened, however.

The search bill was the topic of emotional public hearings, attended by persons who had been subjected to humiliating strip searches after being picked up for minor infractions.

It limits use of strip searches in misdemeanor cases to persons suspected of concealing a weapon, drugs or other evidence.

A strip search must be performed by a person of the same sex as the suspect and cannot be done in the presence of those not involved in the search.

Law enforcement officers who assist in the procedure must be of the same sex as the arrested person.

Body cavity searches must be conducted by professional medical personnel. If the doctor or nurse performing the search is not of the same sex as the person being held, another individual of the same gender must be present.

The measure regulating smoking on school grounds originally had banned all use of tobacco by students, teachers and staff, but now allows school boards to designate areas where smoking is allowed.

Currently school officials must specify on which sections of their campuses smoking is forbidden.

Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Detroit, said the bill allows school boards to make their own decisions regarding smoking areas. Theoretically a board could ban smoking altogether.

Misdemeanor charges and an up to $100 fine for persons violating school smoking laws were dropped from the bill.

Classes offered to expectant parents on pregnancy, delivery and child care

By KAREN GOODWIN
State News Staff Writer

Parenting has to start with the first months of pregnancy, said a member of the Expectant Parents Organization at an International Year of the Child parent education forum.

Carol Buzzita told about 50 group participants Tuesday that to alleviate stress during pregnancy, a couple can enroll in one of five different classes which prepare expectant parents for all aspects of pregnancy, newborn care and parenting.

Buzzita, speaking at Harry Hill High School, 5815 Wise Road, Lansing, said the 36-year-old organization served more than 2,000 expectant parents in the area last year.

She said a first-time pregnancy can be difficult for a couple because they are suddenly bombarded with all sorts of advice from various relatives and friends.

TO LIMIT CONFUSION, a 10-week expectant parents class is offered in the Lansing area through the Expectant Parents Organization. Classes include lecture and discussion relation to maternal changes, nutrition, father's participation, labor, delivery and after birth care.

A four-week "refresher course" is offered for parents who have had a child but would like to re-learn breathing techniques.

A 10-week class for expectant mothers offers an opportunity for single mothers to share their concerns and support with other single women, Buzzita said.

The classes are conducted informally with lots of discussion, she said, with opportunity to discuss pregnancy, labor, delivery, planning for the future and resources in the community.

Another class, a two-week preparation for Caesarean birth, is aimed at those who know they will have or anticipate having a Caesarean birth.

For further information, contact the Expectant Parent Organization, 3938 W. Townsend Road in St. Johns.

CONTESTS HIGHLIGHT BEST AND WORST GIFTS

Holiday commercialism assailed

Christmas gifts such as chocolate Monopoly games and dirigibles built for two are typical targets of a contest to illustrate Christmas commercialism.

A non-profit, public education group called Alternatives is sponsoring two contests to determine the worst of "Christmas Commercialism" and the best of an "Alternative Christmas."

The group asks for 200 to 300 word descriptions of gifts that are "particularly tacky, tasteless, extravagant, expensive, awful, useless, or utterly crass." Entries for the "Worst of Christmas" contest are to show gifts that "serve only the financial interests of the manufacturers and retailers."

The Best of Christmas contest calls for 200 to 300 words descriptions of "gifts which demonstrated a more meaningful, humor or socially responsible celebration."

Alternatives will donate $500 to two non-profit, tax-exempt

"human needs or social change organizations." The winners of the "best" and "worst" categories will each be able to designate one recipient of the donations. Deadline for entries is Dec. 18.

The contest sponsor, Alternatives, was formed in 1973 to develop resources and projects to "challenge the runaway commercialism of our celebrations and lifestyles."

Their goal of "Alternative Christmas" focuses on the ideas of challenging Christmas commercialism by adopting alternative and meaningful celebration practices.

The group suggests diverting money which is normally spent on "holiday extravagance" to worthwhile social change and human needs groups.

For contest information write: Best and Worst Christmas Contest, Alternatives, 4274 Oaklawn Drive, Jackson, Miss. 39206.

Interviews today for Peace Corps

Peace Corps and VISTA representatives will be interviewing volunteers from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. today in MSU Placement Services, 146 Student Services Bldg.

Interested students who will graduate in less than a year with a bachelor's, master's or doctoral degree can stop by to sign up for an interview. A number of interviews have already been set up, but openings are still available.

Peace Corps volunteers work two years in any of 60 nations in Latin America, Africa, Asia, the South Pacific, or the Caribbean.

VISTA volunteers work for one year in rural and urban poverty areas of America. Some of the problems they deal with concern legal and welfare rights, food stamps and care for the elderly.

An information table will be set up at Placement Services during the interviews to answer any questions students may have. Students may also call collect (313) 226-7928 for information.

Hooded thief fingers former associates in organized crime car-theft business

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — A former $10,000-a-year bakery driver told senators Wednesday how he increased his salary five-fold by joining organized crime in the booming car-theft business.

Alex Jaroszewski said his initiation consisted of a few lessons and instructions to go to a Sears store and buy a dent-puller, a nail-puller, a set of screwdrivers and needle-nose pliers.

That night, he went out looking for a late-model Buick Riviera. He said his teacher, Steven Ostrowski, "pulled the doorlock out of the passenger door with the nail-puller, and placed a dummy lock back in the hole so it would not be apparent the lock had been removed."

"He brought the doorlock over to our car and drove a few blocks away. He stopped the car and showed how to read the numbers on a lock tumbler. After reading the numbers, he demonstrated how to cut a key with a keypunching machine. Cutting the key took only a few minutes. We then drove back to the Riviera. Ostrowski opened the door, started the ignition in seconds and drove away," Jaroszewski said.

THUS EDUCATED, JAROSZEWSKI said, he turned his legal $10,000 salary into $50,000 per year in illegal earnings.

The easy methods allow car thieves to make huge profits at low risk, said Jaroszewski, who testified with his face covered by a hood. He has testified against his former associates under a federal plan to provide new identities and addresses to key witnesses. The new name he has assumed was not revealed.

Car theft increased 13 percent nationally in the first six months of 1979 over the same period last year, according to FBI statistics.

Once professional car thieves steal a vehicle, it usually winds up in a "chop shop," where the parts needed to repair a similar car are removed. The parts are stripped of identifying numbers that could connect them to the stolen car and then sold to repair shops.

The theft, chopping and delivery of the desired parts usually are completed within 24 hours, he said. Often, an order from a repair shop or salvage yard for particular parts on a certain type of car is accepted before a car is stolen to fill the order, he said.

THE SAME PARTS, purchased from General Motors, Ford or Chrysler take four weeks for delivery and cost the repair shop more, he said.

Board allocates funds to student publications

The Student Media Appropriations Board, responsible for funding student publications, has completed the first phase of its allocation process.

The board granted to various groups $30,231, which is a portion of the ASMSU tax dollars collected from students throughout the academic year.

The following groups received $1,000 or more from SMAB.

- ACT-FOCUS — $2,300;
- Environmental Info Service — $1,320.
- Friends of Lansing Star — $6,375;

- Hospitality Press — $1,695;
- Light Writers $2,300;
- MSU Marketline Magazine $1,791;
- Olin Health Center $3,100;
- People's Choice $1,950;

Energy specialist says oil cutoff hasn't disrupted U.S. supplies

By DAVE SCHWEISBERG

DETROIT (UPI) — The cutoff of Iranian crude has not disrupted U.S. oil supplies but coupled with prior trends it has pushed the nation to the brink of a substantial shortfall, a top world-planner for Exxon Corp. warned Wednesday.

A.K. Wolgast, a world energy supply specialist and manager of the mammoth oil company's planning and analysis department, said petroleum reserves are at high levels but could be depleted rapidly if interruptions occur in other oil producing nations.

"Petroleum inventories are above normal, we're in a better position than a year ago," said Wolgast, in Detroit Wednesday.

"But there are just adequate supplies. We're on a knife edge.

"IF THE IRANIAN oil continues to be put into the market, there is still the same amount of supply. The question is whether we can get the supply."

With total oil demand in the U.S. running at about 18 million barrels per day, the 700,000 barrels per day eliminated from Iranian sources amounted to a four percent shortfall in the nation's needs, Wolgast said.

The cutoff was ordered Nov. 12 by President Carter. It was part of the administration's move against the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini after Moslem students took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and held Americans hostage.

The action by the students was sanctioned by the Iranian government.

Wolgast said at the time of the cutoff, Iran had been exporting a total of about 3 million barrels per day.

"IF IRANIAN PRODUCTION stopped totally, or another country cut back sharply, we could have some gasoline lines and a shortage," Wolgast said.

"But we don't think that's going to happen."

Wolgast credited improved American conservation and the slumping U.S. economy for the guardedly optimistic forecast. He said gasoline demand has dipped 7 percent within the past three months.

But Wolgast cautioned that supplies will be "very tight" at least until the early 1980s.

Exxon and four other major American oil companies had a 7 percent share each in the former Iranian oil consortium. The biggest shares, Wolgast said, were held by British Petroleum and Royal Dutch Shell.

Some aid came from Saudi Arabia, a moderate nation among the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The Saudis have increased production 1 million barrels per day in recent months to offset Iranian production lost since the revolution there.

"Saudi Arabia has historically helped keep prices down," Wolgast said. "The Saudis have used a lot of moderation and the American consumer has benefited from it."

Iran films to be shown

The films "Iran: Beyond the Headlines" and "Iran before the Revolution" will be shown at 7 tonight in B-104 Wells Hall.

The presentations are open to students. Admission will be $1.

Tree sale benefits area youths

Christmas trees will be sold by the Young Men's Christmas Christian Association of Lansing Dec. 1 through 24.

The trees will be available at the corner of Marshall Avenue and Saginaw Street and at the Parkwood Branch on Haslett Road. Proceeds from sales will be used to send area youth to camp.

Free tickets to ceremony available

Faculty, staff and students interested in attending the formal inauguration of MSU President Cecil Mackey may pick up free tickets in the MSU Auditorium box office between 1 and 3 p.m. Friday.

Three to four hundred tickets are still available for the ceremony, which will be held at 3:30 p.m. Friday in the Auditorium. The tickets may also be reserved today by contacting Herman King, director of academic services, 308 Administration Bldg.

Tickets reserved between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. today may be picked up at the Auditorium box office from 1 to 3 p.m. Friday.

Mackey

(continued from page 1) the president told Jones he probably would have stayed at Texas Tech for four or five years if he had not been offered the MSU presidency.

"Mackey was not a raving liberal, but he was a firm believer in obtaining quality people," Baier said.

Although MSU's affirmative action program has been in existence for almost 10 years, it was given much more emphasis after an HEW audit of the program two years ago. With administrator's taking a closer look at affirmative action, Mackey has been able to do almost as much in four months as he accomplished in three years at Texas Tech.

"Our first stage was to make sure everyone knew the policies and requirements all the way down to the level of faculty," said Charles Hardwich, vice president for academic affairs at Texas Tech.

THE UNIVERSITY, WHICH is now in a "wait and see" stage, certainly is not as far with its program as MSU, he added.

Mackey was also influential in obtaining funds for women's athletics at Texas Tech in an effort to comply more closely with Title IX requirements.

"He gave us as much money as he felt he could get from internal sources," said Jeannine McElaney, women's athletic director at Texas Tech.

"You can't expect somebody to be crucified day after day, though, when society is not ready to change," she added.

Regardless of the response to Mackey's affirmative action programs at MSU, his experience with Title IX will probably be needed.

Complaints were filed with HEW and the anti-discrimination judicial board last year by the MSU women's basketball team in regard to Title IX. In spite of this, MSU still does not fully comply with Title IX regulations.

TOMMORROW: Mackey's dealings with administrative changes.

Iran

(continued from page 2) shah said he would leave his New York hospital bed and return to his exile home in Mexico within 10 days, depending on when his medical treatment ends.

The Iranian government filed a civil lawsuit in New York against Pahlavi and his wife, seeking $20 billion it claims he diverted through a foundation bearing the shah's family name.

The U.S. bank Morgan Guaranty Trust obtained a West German court order for the seizure of Iran's 25 percent interest in the West German firm Fried Drup GMBH, reportedly because of a $40 million claim the bank has against the Iranian government. Since Carter's freeze on Iranian U.S. assets, several U.S. banks have tried to seize Iranian funds to offset outstanding loans to Iran.

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, returning from a self-appointed mediation mission to Iran, told reporters in London he believes he has opened a dialogue with Iranians and "hopefully now we can go along and encourage the U.S. government to negotiate a settlement so we don't end up with force of arms." Hansen proposed congressional hearings on the Iranian allegations that the shah's wealth was stolen from Iran.

The Navy reported that an EA-6B Prowler, a radar-jamming plane, crashed into the Indian Ocean and its four crewmembers were missing after being deployed from the U.S. aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk, which was sent to the area because of the Iran crisis.

Sheriff's

Equipment loaned to the department will include emergency lights, handguns, handcuffs, shotguns and radios.

The board also voted to schedule a special election for March 10, 1980, to fill the commissioner's position left vacant by Ryan. Ryan represented the 19th district, which includes parts of Lansing, East Lansing and Lansing Township.

The position is currently being filled by Maribeth Somers, an East Lansing Democrat who will serve until the election.

Walnut trees get legal protection

Walnut trees growing in Michigan could soon be protected from theft and unauthorized cutting under a bill pending in the state Senate Committee on Environmental and Agricultural Affairs.

The bill, which passed the House in October, would require that all walnut logs be marked with a special stamp, which buyers register with the state; and that transporters have a bill of sale or the owner's permission.

Violation of the act would be a misdemeanor, punishable by up to six months in prison and/or a minimum fine of $500. Illegal cutters or transporters would be guilty of a felony.

Law enforcers have had difficulty in the past determining whether or not walnut timber had been obtained legally.

Rep. Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, introduced the bill last year after 18 walnut tree thefts occurred in southern Michigan, where the trees are common.

"There's nothing new about timber rustling," said George Parmelee, a campus parks and planning curator. Tree thieves have been a concern of the administration since MSU was founded, Parmelee said.

MSU presently has two of the valuable trees on its campus, said Jonathon Wright, professor of forestry. The University also owns the Fred Russ Forest in southwest Michigan where walnut trees have been stolen in recent years, he added.

An average walnut log is worth around $5,000, said George Schmelzer, legislative aid for Bullard. The high value of the trees makes them good targets for thieves, he added.

The logs are usually cut into extremely thin sheets which are used for veneer in furniture. Some gun stocks are also made from walnut wood.

for a refueling stop at Christchurch, New Zealand, and at 10 p.m. the airline declared it lost, saying its fuel would have been depleted by 9:30 p.m.

Because the last radio contact was from 38 miles north of McMurdo, the U.S. base sent up two ski-equipped Navy C-130s, a C-141 Starlifter and two Navy helicopters to conduct a search. The fire-blackened remains of the plane were finally spotted on the northern slope of Erebus, 30 miles north of the base.

"The wreckage was spread over an area of about 200 yards," said Hatcher, spokesperson at the Navy Group Support Headquarters in Christchurch.

Airline spokesperson Smith said it was unclear whether the plane had just begun the tour or was headed northward to New Zealand when it crashed. But Hatcher said its position on the north slope indicated it was headed southward.

"IF THE WEATHER'S nice, they come in at 2,000 feet or so to get a look at the volcano," Hatcher said of the aerial tours.

Smith said a report from the area — he was unsure whether it was from the pilot or the ground — said there was a slight cloud layer at about 3,000 feet.

Navy personnel reported temperatures had dipped Wednesday to about 15 degrees Fahrenheit in the area, where daylight is almost continuous at this time of year.

There were no immediate indications that any structural problem was involved in the crash. DC-10s were grounded in the United States for a time after a DC-10 crash in Chicago last May that took 273 lives. Federal investigators blamed that problem on improper maintenance techniques.

The Chicago death toll was the third-highest in aviation history. The collision of Pan Am and KLM Boeing 747s at the Tenerife airport in the Canary Islands in 1977 killed 581 persons, and the crash of a Turkish Airlines DC-10 near Paris in 1974 took 346 lives.

Air New Zealand said it had never suffered a fatality before on any of its flights.

Because Antarctica is generally recognized as international territory, the investigation of the crash is expected to be conducted by New Zealand. But a team of U.S. experts headed by a National Transportation Safety Board investigator is to fly to the crash site as observers to help if needed, the NTSB said in Washington.

The Starlifter that took part in the search earlier had flown Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. of Virginia to McMurdo Sound for a flight over the South Pole commemorating the first flight over the pole 50 years ago by his famous explorer uncle, Adm. Richard E. Byrd. That flight had been scheduled for Thursday, but it was postponed because McMurdo aircraft and personnel might be needed for the crash recovery mission, U.S. officials said.

EAST LANSING PARKING RESTRICTIONS IN EFFECT

The Zoning Code of the City of East Lansing and the Uniform Traffic Code of the State of Michigan provide that

THERE SHALL BE

1) NO PARKING IN ANY FRONT, SIDE, OR REAR YARD EXCEPT IN A REGULARLY CONSTRUCTED DRIVEWAY OR PARKING SPACE AS DEFINED BY THE ZONING CODE OF EAST LANSING.

2) NO PARKING AT ANY TIME ON OR ACROSS A SIDEWALK.

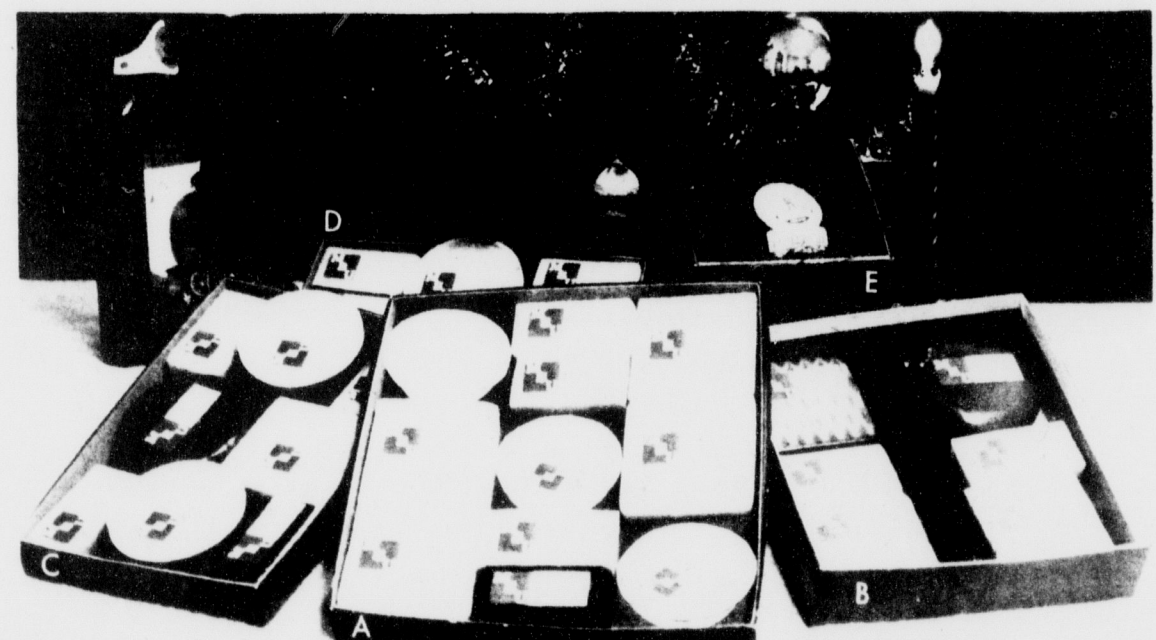

VIOLATORS WILL BE TICKETED

Complaints regarding vehicles parked illegally on front, side or rear yards should be reported to the Housing Division, 337-1731, Ext. 245 (Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-5p.m.). After hours and on weekends call the Police Department, 351-4220.

Complaints regarding all other illegally parked vehicles (in No Parking areas, blocking driveways, etc.) should be reported to the Police Dept., 351-4220.

For information regarding requirements for the construction of approved driveways and parking spaces, call the Department of Building and Zoning, 337-1731, Ext. 203.
