

CONTRIBUTORS

WILLIAM MINTER is currently associated with the African Studies Program at Georgetown University in Washington. He has a Ph.D in sociology from the University of Wisconsin and has written several books on southern Africa, notably King Solomon's Mines Revisited.

AMPIE COETZEE, JULIAN F SMITH AND HEIN WILLEMSE are based in the Afrikaans Department at the University of the Western Cape.

EDWIN RITCHKEN is a post-graduate student in politics and history at the University of the Witwatersrand.

COLIN GARDNER is professor of English at the University of Natal, Pietermaritzburg.

DAVE LEWIS is the national organiser for the Transport and General Workers Union and holds an MA in Economic History from the University of Cape Town.

JEREMY CRONIN is a poet and philosopher and is currently working with the African National Congress in Zambia.

ANNE VAUGHAN is a researcher at the Institute for Social and Economic Research, University of Durban-Westville.

RAPHAEL DE KADT lectures in political science at the University of Natal, Durban.